国家出版基金项目
NATIONAL PUBLICATION FOUNDATION

THE KIRGIZ'S HEROIC EPIC OF CHINA

مانا سى

MANAS

BOOK ONE

MANAS

Volume Two

XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING GROUP
XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING HOUSE

THE KIRGIZ'S HEROIC EPIC OF CHINA

ماناس

MANAS

BOOK ONE

MANAS

Volume Two

Book One

Manas

Book Two

Semtaiy

Book Three

Seytek

Book Four

Kenainim

Book Five

Saiyit

Book Six

Aslebacha and Bekbacha

Book Seven

Sombilek

Book Eight

Chigertey

THE KIRGIZ'S HEROIC EPIC OF CHINA

ماناس

MANAS

BOOK ONE · MANAS

| Volume Two |

Singing: Jusup Mamay
Editing: Manas Translation Editing and Publication Committee
Translating: Hongyan Li, Gary Chou, Greg Meeks

XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING GROUP
XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING HOUSE

Volume Two

Hero Manas' Wedding 491

Jagurp Bayi Proposed Marriage for His Son 493

Manas Married Princess Kanikai 517

Kokotoy's Memorial Ceremony 529

Bokmulon Held a Memorial Ceremony for His Father 531

Kunwuer Bayi Found an Excuse to Make a Disturbance 555

Koshaoyi Asked Manas to the Rescue in Danger 569

Manas Turned the Tide and Presided the Ceremony 581

Athletic Activities in the Ceremony 604

Kunwuer Bayi and Kozkamen's Conspiracy 661

Kozkamen and His Son Plotted to Murder Manas 663

One-eyed Kokchykoz Played Another Trick 695

General Ayi Suffered a Defeat and Escaped 715

The Contradiction Between Manas and Six Khans 735

Six Khans wrote to Manas 737

Manas Led Six Khans to a Punitive Expedition Against Kashgar 753

The Brotherly Affection Between Manas and Almanbet 765

Almanbet's Distress 767

Manas Looked for His Dream Hero 801

Almanbet Went to Manas for Shelter 833

Manas and Almanbet Became Sworn Brothers 858

Manas and Kanikai Retied Their Marriage Knot 885

Almanbet Married Arukai 896

Hero Manas' Wedding

Jagurp Bayi Proposed Marriage for His Son

All that happened before,
Made Ayikoler difficult to forget.
He tossed about in bed sleeplessly,
Then he called warrior Aji Bayi to the side of his bed:

"When we climbed over Basalik mountain ridge,
On the way to Mangat,
Outside of Buhara city,
Beside the Arakoler Lake of Ahechy,
I met a beautiful girl there.

"I need you ask our father at my request,
Let him go and try to find out,
Who is that girl?
If she is a girl of a noble and eminent family,
I must marry her."

After hearing what Manas said,
Aji Bayi answered him immediately:
"I have heard something about that girl,
She is the princess of Karahan,
Everyone praised she is clever in mind and skillful in hand.

"Karahan is the eldest among his brothers,
No one fails to know his great name.
The girl's father is Timirhan,
Everyone knows her as Karahan's princess,
Actually she is only Karahan's niece.

"Her father and her uncle are brothers,
So she is a girl from noble family,
And she will be my majestic sister-in-law in the near future.

"I will go to our father,
Tell him all that is in my mind.
If he send me as a messenger,
I will accept and start off without any delay.
I know your anxious feeling,
So I will not make you more worried about it."

At the busy noon time,
Clever Aji Bayi who was in high spirits,
Went into Jagurp's yurt in a hurry,
Greeted Jagurp and showed he had something to say.

He quenched his thirst with horse milk,
Then he began to say his purpose:
"My respectable father,
Manas sent me here to report to you.
He said there is a girl he met in Buhara,
He needs your help,
To ask and make clear the girl's background.

"No matter the girl's father is a poor people or Khan,
No matter he is rich or poor,
And no matter what kind of family she is from,
Manas said he must marry her.

"He said he married Nakelai from Karacha tribe,
Married Karaboruk from Karamark,
But they are not the ideal Khatun in his heart,
And they did not hold the traditional wedding ceremony,
Father, you must be clear with the wedding tradition.

"Once the girl's parents are wealthy enough,
As the father of bridegroom,

You should wear the silk and brocade given by the bride's parents.
This is what your son, Manas, wants to tell you,
I do not know what you will do."

Jagurp shook his head from side to side,
And turned to Bakdolet unwillingly,
Showing her with a sign:
"Fill up the bowl with horse milk!"

Jagurp entertained Aji Bayi with courtesy,
Horse intestine and horse neck fat were cut in the plate,
Strong tea was filled in the jade owl,
Honey was poured out from calabash,
Delicious wine was also put on the table.

"That's good, my child!
To go to the far place to be a matchmaker,
Who will be more suitable than you?
You are cautious and serious,
Please take heart and go to do it.
If you do not go I will be disappointed,
If you refuse to do it is irreverence to me."

Getting the designation of Jagurp Bayi,
Aji Bayi was ready to start off.
He set out from Belsaz,
Ran to Buhara at full speed.
The bay horse he rode,
Ran forward as if its hooves were burning,
Without any stop and rest along the way.

Wild goats passed by,
He had no mood to watch,
Aji Bayi pressed the stirrups frequently,
To urge the bay horse run faster.

Among the mortals,

Who has the heroic bearing and passion like him?
He passed through the ghastly and bloodcurdling forest,
And ran across the gloomy long narrow valley.

He passed the cliffs crossing by ravines,
Along with the uneven road,
And went across the wilderness under the scorching sun.
Having climbed over the soaring mountains,
Passed through the wilderness full of deer,
He also voyaged through the lake boiled with the storm.

The great bay horse was under him,
Its body was streaming with sweat.
Facing the gentle wind,
They stepped on the path toward Ayinla.

He traveled through hardships by night and day,
Finally he arrived at Karahan's palace.

It was a cool afternoon,
Karahan and some ministers,
Gathered in Koshkashati.
On the lawn outside Ayinla,
They were chanting on worship blanket.

Aji Bayi slowed down,
Went and stopped in front of them.

Though they did not know each other,
Treated as old friends;
Though they never met before,
They looked like relatives known very well;
No need for introducing,
He recognized Karahan immediately.

Aji Bayi dismounted his horse,
Tied the fore leg of the horse with the halter,

He stopped in front of them frankly,
Greeted Karahan with a good grace.

Karahan returned the salute loftily,
Considered Aji Bayi as an ordinary passer-by.
He turned and instructed his attendants:
"Guide this young man,
To the living room warmly."

Twelve attendants were rushing from one to another,
Served Aji Bayi with warmth;
Opened their palms, finished the prayer,
They butchered fat horse colt;
Horse milk was served ceaselessly,
In a hospitable manner.

Attendants rushed around here and there,
Tried their best to serve the guest.
The host entertained the guest with great warmth,
But without making clear,
Who the guest was and where he was from.

Let us put this aside,
Talk about Karahan's niece Kanikai,
And see what she was doing.

In the afternoon Aji Bayi came,
Kanikai had something weighty on her mind.
She was sitting in her bedroom decorated with spun gold.
The noise of horse hooves from the far,
Went into her ear suddenly.

From the horse clop,
She recognized it was a strange horse;
"In Buhara,
Only my uncle's gray horse,
Is such a great horse like this,

But it is back to prairie at this time,
It is not the time to get it back and ride.
Whose horse is this?"

She stood up from her seat,
Wanted to see clearly who it was,
She walked toward her door quickly.
But suddenly something came to her mind,
She stopped in the middle of her room:

"The free and unrestrained Manas,
Once passed Arakoler lake,
We met for the first time in a hurry;
Must the person here be sent by him,
To ask for the marriage of us?"

"When a girl is fifteen,
All in the mind is her marriage,
She will be strange and disobedient."
This was a saying from ancient times.

Kanikai worried others would laugh at her,
So she just looked out through the door by stealth,
She observed the strange comer carefully;
The bay horse under him was strong and beautiful,
And its tail was tied in a knot.
The warrior on the horse passing by her door,
Had a red face.

She saw the youth walk forwardly,
And stop in front of Karahan on the hillside,
Then the attendants crowded around,
Guided him into a yurt.

What Kanikai had seen,
Made her excited but mistrusted.
She looked out of her yurt by stealth,

Nothing happening outside could escape her eyes.

After the long journey, in the guest room,
Aji Bayi rested by himself for two days.

Everyone in Buhara was like mullah,
He slept in the yurt at night,
In the morning the sound of calling for pray,
Was as loud as bell chimes.
As a big white dragon,
Aji Bayi was woken up from his dream.

He washed his hands and face quickly,
Then dressed up and tied the belt well,
Took the long spear in his hand,
And walked into Karahan's palace in the morning.

Kanikai did not take her eyes off Aji Bayi,
When he passed by her yurt.
After Aji Bayi went into the palace,
Kanikai moved her feet,
And walked out of her yurt slowly.

She clung to the ornament on her hair,
To avoid making noise.
She came to the door of the palace gently,
Listened to the talk inside quietly.

The young hero Aji Bayi,
Walked into the palace frankly;
Karahan was sitting on the worship blanket,
Right after the pray, rosary beads were still counting.
He responded to Aji Bayi's greetings,
And opened his eyes to look at the young hero up and down.

They sat at the dining table,
Enjoyed the wonderful breakfast,

Right at this moment,
He began to talk to Aji Bayi:
"Young man, you are a stranger,
I welcome you to stay and visit;
But where do you go,
And where are you from?

"You have a great horse,
You wear rich leather coat;
From your horse and coat,
I can tell you are from far away."

Never taking grass away from sheep,
After Karahan finished his words,
Clever Aji Bayi began his answers,
In a polite and tactful way:
"I have an eagle, my Khan,
And you have a swan, my Khan;
Please fly your swan, my Khan,
Let my eagle catch it, my Khan.

"I have a black hawk, my Khan,
You have a gosling, my Khan;
If you fly your gosling, my Khan,
My hawk will catch it, my Khan!"

Aji bayi said in subtle way,
Karahan understood him immediately;
This is the matchmaker Manas sent,
Karahan had already known his purpose.

Karahan dare not say,
Any word of disagreement on the marriage.
He stroke his beard,
And turned his tongue ceaselessly.

"I'd better scare them away by asking costly dowry."

Karahan talked with himself for a while,
Then he said so:
"My gosling is grown up now,
If Jagurp Khan wants her to be his daughter-in-law sincerely,
He need fill up my summer prairie,
With all livestock three times.

"Fill up my winter prairie,
With all livestock three times;
Drive countless brown horses to me,
Drive tens of thousands of black sheep to me.

"Do not give me any two-humped camels,
I only want fat dromedaries,
At least one thousand,
Saddles must be made with expensive cloth.

"Each camel needs to carry a wood box,
Ropes tied the boxes must be plaited with silk.
Empty boxes are not accepted,
They should be filled up with brocade and silk.

"Black cows must produce milk well,
I will count them one by one,
There must be a hundred cows,
Milk is absolutely necessary to me every day.

"In front of my palace,
Two trees must be planted,
One is the gold tree, and the other is the silver tree,
Let two birds sing on the trees,
One is a lark, the other is a nightingale.

"In front of my palace,
Two big lakes should be built:
One is a milk lake, the other is a butter lake,
Milk and butter must be full in the lakes.

"If you can prepare all that I told you,
I will be satisfied;
If your hero wants the bride,
Jagurp Bayi should get all ready,
Then he can come to me."

Clever Aji Bayi,
Traveled the long journey by himself,
There was no attendant around him,
There was no money in his pocket either.
No tall dromedary led the way for him in the front,
No flocks of livestock were brought to Karahan.

Aji Bayi was such a clever hero,
He was also loyal enough.
He stood up immediately,
Showed his appreciation to Karahan.

Karahan observed him quietly,
And praised Aji Bayi in his heart.
"His warrior has already been so great,
How great will he be?"
Many thoughts passed through his mind,
But he showed nothing on his face.

Looking at the polite but empty-handed matchmaker,
According to the Kirgiz rules,
Karahan presented five "nine" gifts① to him:

Nine bolts of Aracha silk,
Nine bolts of Supour fabric,
Nine bolts of Burum woolen fabric,
Nine bolts of Karara cloth,
Nine bolts of Duryu silk,
And five valuable brocade clothes.

① "nine" gifts: "nine" is the unit for Kirgiz to present gifts, "nine" equals "dozen" in English. Especially for betrothal gifts, each kind must have nine in number, usually they only mention how many nines they have.

Many respectful elders,
Stood beside Karahan loftily,
Along with many Began who administered one place,
With all their heads high and chests out.

Eloquent Aji Bayi,
Said nothing to Karahan,
But put all gifts on his horse,
And went out of Ayinla.

When Aji Bayi was talking with Karahan,
Kanikai lifted her door curtain with curiosity,
Watched Aji Bayi by stealth.

When Aji Bayi was ready to go back,
She felt her heart beating fast,
She was really a lady with great wisdom.

Since she met Manas,
At Arakoler lake,
She thought back and forth and made her final decision,
She embroidered a splendid handkerchief.

Among the ladies using thimbles,
She was the smartest one,
She had no equals in the world.
She used gold string to embroider,
And silver string to bind the edge.

Blue sky, white clouds,
Golden sun, silver moon;
Flying birds, running wild animals,
Green grass and gurgling water,
Were all embroidered vividly on it.

Even though without washing for forty years,
It would be as clean as it was at the beginning.

She opened her delicate box,
Took out her handkerchief and had it over her heart,
Then she stood in front of the door of her yurt,
And waited for Aji Bayi.

"He must be younger than me!"
Kanikai made her decision,
To meet the young messenger.
When Aji Bayi came near her,
And was going to pass her,
"Hi, young man, please stop a little while!"
Kanikai said in a brisk voice.

Her voice went into Aji Bayi's ear,
Clearly as the sound of Koyark.
Aji Bayi held the halter,
Turned back with his horse.

"You come from afar,
You are such a smart young man,
Before you meet your future sister-in-law,
How can you go back only with the gifts?
Is this the custom of Kirgiz?

"Who is the man I want to marry,
My father did not understand it at all!
Who is the girl your hero wants,
You never speak it out clearly.

"The bridegroom does not know the bride's name,
The bride does not know the bridegroom's name either,
How could this happen in the world?

"Young man, you did a lot of things wrong,
Let me tell you one by one,
You have not finished your mission yet,
You cannot go back like this.

"My name is Kanikai,
Please take a message to the one who wants to marry me.
Please put this gift into your pocket,
Tell him this gift is a token of Kanikai's regard!"

Aji Bayi took the handkerchief from her hand,
Looked at it over and over again,
The attentively embroidered handkerchief,
Made Aji Bayi impossible to hold back his praise:

"Among the girls around the world,
Who else can make such a great embroidery!"

The eloquent Aji Bayi,
Was quick in thinking like jumping chamois:
"You are totally correct, my sister-in-law,
Your father agreed with the marriage,
I am carried away by the happy news,
So I mistakenly reckon I have done well.

"I have never been a matchmaker before,
I do not know how to ask,
The name of the future bride.
It's reasonable the matchmaker takes gifts,
But my Khan did not give me any gift,
Please forgive it.

"You have already known who is your bridegroom,
So goodbye! My sister-in-law."

Aji Bayi took leave of Kanikai,
Then he spurred his horse at high speed,
Traveled day and night back to Samurhan.
He mounted off the horse,
Tied the horse well,
And then went into Jagurp's yurt quickly.

Aji Bayi greeted Jagurp first,
And Jagurp responded and greeted back immediately.
Seeing the ornament at the edge of Aji bayi's coat,
Jagurp could not wait,
He wanted to know all.

Bakdolet was generous,
She ordered to serve abundant food on the table.
After the long and arduous journey,
Aji Bayi took up a bowl of horse milk and gulped it down.

Before he could be full of horse milk,
Before he could eat his fill,
Jagurp could not wait but asked:
"My boy, Aji Bayi,
Did they welcome you warmly?
Are you satisfied with your future sister-in-law?
And what betrothal gifts does the girl's father want?"

"Did you fully express our wish to him?
Do you accomplish your mission as a matchmaker?
Were you displaying full courtesy to them?
Are those colorful materials,
The gifts you brought back?"

Hearing Jagurp's anxious enquiry,
Aji Bayi reported in detail:
"People there are very hospitable,
Girls there are even out of ordinary.

"Your future daughter-in-law,
Is the princess of Karahan.
The name of the princess is Kanikai,
She is much smarter and more beautiful than the ordinary.

"I bowed to show my respect to Karahan,
And asked for the marriage sincerely.

The marriage contract has been made,
The betrothal gifts Karahan asked for,
Will surprise you a lot!

"I report to you as things really are,
No word is exaggerated,
No word is concealed either:

"He wants you to fill up his summer prairie,
With all livestock three times;
He wants you to fill up his winter prairie,
With all livestock three times.

"He wants you to drive him countless brown horses,
Drive him tens of thousands of black sheep.
Do not give him any two-humped camels,
He only wants fat dromedaries,
At least one thousand,
Saddles must be made with expensive cloth.

"Each camel needs to carry a wood box,
Ropes tied the boxes must be plaited with silk.
Empty boxes are not accepted,
They should be filled up with brocade and silk.

"Black cows must produce milk well,
He will count them one by one,
There must be a hundred cows,
Milk is absolutely necessary to him every day.

"In front of his palace,
Two trees must be planted,
One is the gold tree, and the other is the silver tree.
The crests of these two trees,
Cannot be lonely and quiet,
Two magical birds sing on the trees day and night,
One is a lark, the other is a nightingale.

"In front of his palace,
Two big lakes should be built:
One is a milk lake, the other is a butter lake,
Milk and butter must be full in the lakes,
And even spill from the lakes.

"If you agree to give him all betrothal he asked,
That can show your sincere desire for the marriage,
After a serious discussion,
And you make all that he asked for preparation.
If you prepare all these as soon as possible,
The marriage can be done to the wishes of both sides.

"This is what the girl's family wants,
After hearing it,
I was not scared away and not surprised either,
But contracted the marriage with them gracefully.

"Although I went with empty hands,
The girl's family presented us fat gifts,
I took all the gifts back here,
All the gifts are here,
I did not give any to others.
All other things depend on your decision,
I did not choose the exact day of wedding.

"Father, I left your yurt many days ago,
For Buhara to propose a marriage,
This is all I need to report to you."

"You did not give others,
The gifts Karahan presented to us,
That's the best you have done."
Jagurp listened to what Aji Bayi told him,
And responded huskily and ambiguously.

Jagurp swayed to the right side painfully,

Groaned as he was shot with an arrow;
Then he swayed to the left side gloomily,
Talked with an extremely anxious expression:

"My son, Aji Bayi,
What you did in this travel,
Seems like I smell a rat.
What the betrothal girl's family wants,
Made me think I am in a dream.

"Horses and livestock we can collect from the ordinary,
But where can we get the magical birds?
Brown horses we can get from other people,
But where can we find that lark?

"Black cows we can ask for from our people,
But where can we get that huge amount of gold?
Steeds we can collect from our people,
But where can we collect that huge amount of silver?

"We can narrowly get all others prepared,
How can we dig that butter lake?
Dromedary is easy to collect,
But how can we build that milk lake?

"To get a wife for Manas,
How can we let poor Kirgiz people lose all?
Miserable old people,
Tearful kids,
Will torture our conscience."

Hearing Jagurp's words,
Aji Bayi stood up immediately,
Said with a gift in his hand:
"When our lion sees this gift,
He will be very happy,
And gain an insight into the girl's mind."

Aji Bayi swung himself on the steed,
And rode toward the yurt of Manas.
The young hero Manas,
Was the commander and backer,
For sixty tribes' Arashi;
Every time he thought of beautiful Kanikai,
Manas burst with great joy.

Since Aji Bayi went to propose a marriage for him,
Manas turned over in bed sleeplessly,
He counted the days every day,
To wait for Aji Bayi's coming back.

He led his forty warriors,
And the hunting dog with collar,
Picked up his eye-shaded falcon,
Spurred his horse on the mountain,
To wait for good news from Aji Bayi.

Aji Bayi left Jagurp's yurt,
Spurred his horse toward hunting camp;
Ayikoler Manas,
Was coming toward him.

Seeing oncoming Aji Bayi,
Manas can not help laughing,
Stroked his beard and asked anxiously:
"My young hero,
I hope everything goes smoothly.
The little bag tied on the belt behind your saddle,
Is that the gift of engaging?

"She is a beauty hard to find in the world,
Although she lives in this secular world,
Her beauty exceeds most fairy maidens;
My hero, please tell me at once,
Have you accomplished your mission?

Did you get chance to talk,
With Karahan's princess?
Did you witnessed,
Her graceful bearing and appearance?"

Hearing the enquiry of Manas,
Aji Bayi reported to him immediately,
The details of the matchmaking journey:

"My majestic king,
I went to Buhara for engaging your marriage,
And I did not come back empty-handed;
We have engaged the marriage with them,
I bring you back this good news.

"The gifts I brought back are five nines,
I have sent them to our father.
I cannot come to see you with empty hands,
So I bring you one of the gifts.

"Karahan's princess Kanikai,
Presented you a gift specially,
It is here."

Aji Bayi put his hand into his clothes,
Took out the handkerchief Kanikai presented,
From the pocket next to his skin,
And gave it to Manas with deference.

Hero Manas unfolded the handkerchief,
And was surprised at the amazing present.
He put the handkerchief to his heart,
The feeling of love rippled in his heart.

Aji Bayi reported to Manas,
The exact number of the gifts.
Jagurp's response toward it,

He also reported to Manas in detail.

Manas held the handkerchief in both hands,
Turned and looked backward,
The handkerchief was still put to his heart,
"Chuwak must be extremely envious."
It was what Manas thinking about at the moment.

Manas put the handkerchief into his clothes,
Letting his excited heart calm down,
Then he gave out the order:
"Hero Aji Bayi,
We should take action right away,
To prepare everything we need on our way,
Follow the traditional customs,
To marry princess Kanikai.

"How can we stint our livestock,
How can a stingy person win the love?

"Our father's livestock are all over the mountains,
It does not matter he give out some.
We need to discuss with the elders,
We'd better go and take her back home next month.

"If her father is satisfied with the betrothal,
Kanikai can marry me.
To marry Kanikai,
Is my biggest desire;
If Kanikai becomes my wife,
Our tribe will be stronger."

Manas gave the command,
People gathered into his yurt quickly.
The elders like Garmgirchy, Akberita,
And his father Jagurp sat in the highest place,
Tirkechy, Shihay were coming one after another,

Uncle Bakay, hero Chuwak,
All people came finally.

Wearing the whole-colored uniforms,
Led by Kergel,
The forty mighty warriors,
Sat in the center of the yurt.

Unproductive mares were chosen to butcher,
Honey was put in horse milk,
All kinds of delicious food,
Covered the spread tablecloth.

The fried meats and butter were carried out,
The inviting horse neck fat was taken out;
Shining gold bowls on the table,
Were filled up with fragrant strong tea.

After eating and drinking their fill,
They opened their palms for blessing ceremony.
They went out on the grass,
Sat in the shape of ox horn,
To discuss the matter of marriage.

Manas said first,
With his deep sincerity:
"Jagurp, you are my father,
Garmgirchy, Shihay, Tirkechy,
You are my close relatives;
Akberita, you are my uncle,
Jigert Bayi and Kapchaque Bayi,
You are my elders and honorable rich men.

"Please listen to me carefully,
I have some words to tell you all;
Please get prepared for a marriage,
Your Manas is going to get married.

"Now I have achieved success,
And acquired fame as hero Manas,
'My child should get married.'
It is the responsibility of a father.

"I married Karacha girl Nakelai,
Later married Karamark girl Karaboruk.
They are my Khatun in your mind,
Bút the Khatun place in my heart is still vacant.

"I did not tell my beloved father,
My brothers,
And my healthy mother,
Even my dear uncle Berita.

"I met a girl in Buhara,
She is pure and beautiful,
Her face is like the bright moon.
In order to marry her,
I sent Aji Bayi to my father,
To tell him my decision.

"My father ordered Aji Bayi,
To Buhara for engaging the marriage.
Aji Bayi came back successfully,
But my father anxiously thought the betrothal,
Is in huge amount,
His heart is tortured by it.

"How could this happen?
Who will refuse to get a wife for his son,
If he has a son at home?

"The Khan in Buhara is Karahan,
Kanikai is his princess,
It is said that she is clever and deft without rivals,
If you all agree with it,

I want to marry her badly."

Others had already known,
Aji Bayi accomplished his mission,
No one mentioned it,
Everyone wanted Manas to say it out by himself.

Broken bones could be restored,
With extraordinary wisdom,
The sage Bakay stood up,
What he said made others satisfied:

"All that you said is the truth,
My child, hero Manas.
Jagurp Bayi,
You should listen to Manas.

"Karamark people made us homeless,
Since Manas mounted on the throne,
Kirgiz began to reunion.
He is not an empty-headed boy,
And he never does something nasty.

"He is mature and responsible,
He did not do it till now,
He is waiting for your order.
For all the elders,
He showed his respect.

"Considering that the way he behaves,
He is a wise Khan hard to find in the world,
He is open hearted and passionate,
Everything he has done is fair.

"In this world,
Such a great person is hard to get.
So we should try our best,

To fulfill his wish as soon as possible.

"Jagurp Bayi,
Now you have six tribes,
Isn't it good enough for you?
Today you give out some livestock,
Later you will get some back.

"All Khans here, please waste no time,
In getting prepared right away.
The marriage of black mane wolf Manas,
Cannot be delayed even a little bit."

Manas Married Princess Kanikai

Hero Bakay devoted his every effort,
All Khans took concerted action,
They were all busy,
In order to finish their own duties.

Jagurp Bayi's palace,
Was as busy as the market.
Black mane wolf Manas,
Had not released the news of his marriage,
But people heard about it,
No one was mean on their livestock.

In six cities and Andijan,
Senchybek who had beard like a fork,
Was collecting gold and melting it,
Prepared strong camels,
A long string of camels,
Formed a zigzag line in mountains.

On the hillside of Belsaz,
Were full of cows, horses and camels from all sides,
Jagurp prepared well the camels,
And the "Chakilo"①.
Sixty dromedaries were ready to go,
The packs were made of brass,
The covers were also sewed new again.
All boxes were made of gold and silver nails,

① Chakilo: It refers to the snacks like fried cookie, candy and dried fruits Kirgiz give out on wedding to the guests.

Covered with the carpets,
And filled up with valuable cloth,
Ropes bound boxes were made of gold and silver strings.

Sixty dromedaries had already started off,
Twelve of them,
Were loaded with gold ingot;
Sixteen of them with silver,
They all set out without any delay.

Soldiers escorting the betrothal,
Were busy from here to there.
Sixty thousand warriors driving the livestock,
Went through hardships with complaints occasionally.
Colts separated from their mums neighed loudly.
Clouds of dust kicked up by livestock,
Rose up in the sky and scattered.

Right at this moment,
Ayikoler Manas and Bakay,
Chuwak and forty warriors also hurried on their journey.
Warriors were led by Kergelchal,
Four hundred and eighty people followed them closely.

Jagurp rode on Tuchunak steed,
While his wife Qierdy's gray steed,
Were knocking the ground;
Bakay Khan's gray horse,
Had the ears standing upright toward sky.
Elders holding their heads high and chests out,
Sat on the comfortable saddles.

Akberita, Shihay and Garmgirchy,
Tirkechy, Kapchaque and Jigert Bayi,
Started off with lion Manas,
Riding with him side by side.
Others were busy everywhere,

Then drove the livestock to set out.

Horses were divided into six groups,
Stallions neighed and fought with each other;
Foals chased and played,
Colts ran from here to there,
With their tails cocked up.
Bulls mooed now and then,
Male camels pushed and squeezed each other;
Sheep flock bleated,
Horse flock neighed.

From the open field of wilderness,
Flock of argali rushed out,
Encircled by countless sheep,
They had no choice but mixed with sheep.
Wild goats rocked back and forth,
To escape in a panic;
Antelopes mixed with sheep,
Running as if on wings.

Flock of wild deer were out of puff,
Ran and jumped ceaselessly,
Their antlers had sixty branches,
Knocked and stuck with each other's now and then.
Antelopes gazed left and right,
Alpacas came running,
Elephants strode forward heavily,
With their short tails swinging all the time.

Tigers stretched themselves,
Leopards gathered in groups,
Lions widened their eyes,
Bears shook their long hair in the air.
Wolves paced up and down,
Foxes strolled along the road.
Sables narrowed their eyes,

Minks shook their heads and waged their tails,
Wolverines and brown bears went with livestock,
And could not escape from sheep flock.

Snakes were stepped flat,
Hedgehogs and tortoises,
Were crushed into dust.
Lizards and geckos ran in all directions,
But could not find the holes to hide.
All kinds of little animals,
Were living in panic.

The escorting team went in mighty formation,
Warriors were all armed to teeth;
One could hold out against a thousand,
With strong arms and waists.
Administered people were reasonable and fair,
Khans all wore the crown on their heads,
And wore pure gold belts,
The escorting team looked most magnificent.

Among flocks of livestock,
There were horses with colorful skin.
The escorting team spread out,
Even birds were hard to fly above them.
They could not find a place to stop,
After one day's flying.

Eagles were completely exhausted,
Vultures screamed;
Peacocks and nightingales flied in vain,
Finally stopped on sheep heads to rest.

Livestock driven as the betrothal,
Were spread all over Buhara.
Seeing the overspread livestock,
People in Buhara were shocked.

All kinds of animals carried to Buhara,
Formed unique scenery;
Stallions neighed all the time,
Mares responded from time to time;
Horses crowded in all the streets,
No one could count them correctly.

With the heavy steps,
Elephants walked in Buhara;
Bulls and cows chased each other,
And rushed into Buhara.

Rams and ewes pushed and squeezed,
Crowded the streets of Buhara;
Countless male and female goats,
Went into Buhara too.

Lowerlip drooped,
Molar teeth interlocked,
Humps stood straight,
Knocked each other's head,
And fought each other without shrinking back.

Female camels grunted,
For looking for lost kids,
Dromedaries and Bactrian camels mixed,
Male and female camels mixed,
And rushed into Buhara.
Male and female argali came together,
Goats chased each other,
The vast wilderness was exciting with them.

Elks ran along the riverbank,
Hinds were going with them;
Roe deer ran together with antelopes,
Red deer and zebras mixed together;
Ibexes and ostriches were together,

Buhara was almost stepped flat by the animals.

Golden eagles tired their wings in flying,
Falcons soared in the sky,
Oriental hobbies streaked across the sky,
And kites flapped their wings noisily.

Black cranes chirped,
Wild geese flied with them,
White swans flapped their wings,
Nightingales tired their wings,
And stopped on goats' horns to sleep.
Peacocks and cuckoos were all there,
Birds' wings blacked the sky,
All birds flied into Buhara,
It seemed the sun set soon.

Karahan got into a panic,
His face turned ashy:

"How could my casual words,
Bring us the roaring waves?
Did my vague words last time,
Bring mountain flood to us?

"What should I do now?
How can I count the number of livestock?
They are as much as grass,
How could I herd them?"

Karahan's mind was blank,
Too much worry came to his mind.
Ministers whispered to one another,
And complained:
"In order to amass your fortune and livestock,
You made a long list of betrothal.
Now are the countless animals,

Going to step Buhara flat?

"Gold, silver, jewelry and fried food,
Need two hundred camels to carry.
Our poor lives,
Can not be stepped by them under feet."

In the blink of an eye,
Jagurp Bayi riding his Tuchunak steed,
Came into the palace of Karahan.
He was in high spirits,
White beard was shining in front of his chest,
His face flushed as a rosy sunset,
He talked cheerfully with a clear voice.

Qierdy followed him closely,
Riding on the famous gray steed,
On her face was full of confidence.
Elichek hat was shining on her head,
Fifteen ladies accompanied her,
She was dignified and graceful.

Behind her,
The battle banner was flying in the wind,
The gold-trimmed flag was shining under the sun;
The points of the spears knocked together,
A battle seemed to begin at any time.

Gray quivers swung from side to side,
The crowd wriggled forward like black beetles.
They were all guests Jagurp Bay invited,
They came in groups pushing and yelling.

Buhara people headed by Karahan,
All showed up to welcome them.
The earth was quivering,
The grand scene was like in a festival.

Akberita and Garmgirchy,
Forty warriors headed by Kergel,
Made the ordinaries scare to shake,
And they could not help wetting their pants.

Cowards did not dare to get up,
Their legs were too wooden to move.
The earth was making booming sound,
It was horses that were treading on the earth.

Black mane wolf Manas,
According to the traditional customs of bridegroom,
Mounted off his horse in a secret place,
Seeing him, people were shocked.

Jagurp Bayi came on his horse with high speed,
Karahan came up to meet him warmly:
"The blowing dust covers the sky and sun,
Our city is almost buried by it.

"You drive livestock and bring the betrothal,
Too many people hold spears and blue banners,
Do you come to get a daughter-in-law,
Or come to conquer my city?

"My outstanding daughter among girls wearing thimbles①,
Is the bride you want for your son!
With countless heroes and warriors,
Are you going to take a war against us?

"Jagurp Bayi,
You come with livestock for a bride,
Or with troops for a fight?
I am filled with fear,
And do not know how to talk with you."

① Wearing thimbles: It's a metaphor which refers to a girl.

Jagurp came up,
And held Karahan's hands:
"My distinguished marriage relative,
Karahan,
We are going to be relatives by marriage soon;
You are completely candid, Karahan,
You have a nice daughter,
You are my respectable marriage relative!

"Both the stars in the sky,
And the beavers in the sea;
Both the gray hair on the head,
And the teeth in the mouth,
Karahan,
I will present to you generously.
My only request is,
To make a good arrangement,
For the team of escorting.

"If my son Manas can be your son-in-law,
And your daughter Kanikai can be my daughter-in-law,
I will let all neighbors make obeisance to you,
I will be generous on my land.

"If anyone shows contempt for you,
I will let him go to hell right away.
As long as I am alive,
As long as you agree with my request,
Young Manas will never disappoint us!"

Hearing Jagurp's words,
Karahan calmed down,
He led the guests into his city,
And began to arrange the guests from afar.

Two hundred old ladies were unsealing the sacks,
They complained the gifts were too many,

Janbaciterk① for the sisters-in-law was full of nine colts' meat,
Ladies carrying the sacks were so happy with it.

All the sisters-in-law,
Were all at a loss what to do,
The betrothal gifts they brought,
Were too many for them to put in order in time.

Ladies did not dare to meet the hero,
And did not dare to lead the hero to the bride;
Kanikai sat in her bedroom,
She was too shy to go and see the hero.

The hero came to his bride's room at midnight,
He was filled with deep emotion,
He cannot help reaching out his hands,
And gently stroked bride's face.

Kanikai was woken suddenly,
She grabbed the dagger beside her pillow,
Toward the hand touching her face,
She stabbed violently at the hero.

The hero got angry right away,
Turned round and left the princess;
Kanikai opened her sleepy eyes,
Felt sorry for her being impolite.

She dressed herself and got up in a hurry,
And stepped out of her room lightly,
She called the hero gently,
Her voice was gentle and soft.

She was like pure white silk,

① Janbaciterk: It's the Kirgiz custom. At the wedding, the meat and candies bride's family serve the guests should be all provided by bridegroom's family. The sacks to put the meat and candies are called "Janbaciterk". Usually they prepare two sacks, one is for bride's mother, the other is for bride's sister-in-law.

Her ringing voice was pleasant to the ears:
"Majesty Ayikoler, you should know,
Our people are smart and loose-tongued,
As the bridegroom,
You also come with other people.

"You come and hold hands at night,
You take me away easily,
I am not a widow.
For a hero who administers his people,
With brilliant battle achievements,
It is a proper behavior.

"Since you come with ease,
You cannot go like this,
I cannot let you go this way,
I will not allow myself to wait lonely in my room.

"You come by stealth at night,
This is what an ignorant youth does,
It is definitely not the behavior of a wise man,
What you do is not proper for your dignity.

"Tomorrow morning,
My sisters-in-law will send me to you,
They and I both will be very nervous,
We need venture ourselves to go to your room.

"Only one day's waiting,
We can fulfill our hearts' desire.
Please forgive me, black mane wolf,
To talk to you about my opinion!"

Kanikai's face was aglow,
She told the hero the traditions and rules.
Manas was sincerely convinced,
He stopped and turned round.

"Black mane wolf Manas,
Was stabbed by Kanikai!"
The rumor spread like wildfire,
It was not only such a small accident.

Horse race lasted for six days,
Shooting ingot were held for two days,
Wrestling on horse and on ground,
Took two days.

Presenting the betrothal and wedding ceremony,
Took thirty whole days.
A wedding from the beginning to the end,
Took forty whole days.

One room was used for the bedroom,
One room was for living room,
One room was for the kitchen,
And one for bathroom,
These four rooms were all for Jagurp.

Twelve camels carried a yurt,
The gift was not a little one,
Jagurp Bayi went out of Buhara,
Taking away his daughter-in-law.

They arrived in Samurhan to rest,
And began to enjoy the happiness of life.
Kirgiz were all happy,
Their happy life was going on.
Let us put this aside,
And see how Kokotoy's son, Bokmulon,
Held the memorial ceremony for his father.

Kokotoy's Memorial Ceremony

Bokmulon Held a Memorial Ceremony for His Father

Between Kazakh and Kirgiz,
Kokotoy belonged to Araban tribe,
He was the Khan who administered that place,
He had as many livestock on the prairie as the cattle hair.
However, this Kokotoy hero,
Was mercilessly oppressed by Karamark.

After Onuzdo passed away,
Kirgiz was carved up by Karamark.
"I should leave here as soon as possible."
Kokotoy moved to Tashkent to live.

Since he moved to Tashkent,
Year after year, livestock proliferated,
His livestock increased gradually in number.

Pure silver was as much as the stones,
Household utensils were all made of gold.
His accumulated fortune was countless,
He was the rich famous to all.

Five hundred camels took him to anywhere,
To visit day and night.
Although he had great fortune,
The misery of no son made him sleepless.

Endless melancholy filled up his heart,
His face was as sallow as dried grass.
He could not sleep well every single day,

Piled fortune could not be collected under earth.

He also could hold his pain,
To throw away his fortune.
"Let me hunt in the mountains,
Maybe it's the only way to ease my pain!"

He prepared the flint for making fire,
And chose thirty bodyguards carefully,
They whipped horses and moved like a flood,
They arrived at Karawurchik hills.

Among the great hills,
There was an abandoned infant crying.
At the edge of the hills,
There was a place called Kaypuchy.

Kokotoy could not help holding his joy,
"It is Kaypuchy① who presented me the son."
He held the crying baby,
Took the baby back home to raise.

He spared no expense to hold a grand celebration,
For the baby and named the baby Bokmulon.
Bokmulon's name celebration,
Was talked over and over till now.

The child's clothes were changed every threes days,
And given away to the poor,
Every day a goat was butchered,
Sadaha ceremony was held for blessing the boy's health.

A yellow ox was butchered every day,
And given to the poor in charity.
From the young ladies in all places,

① Kaypuchy: It is the name of a place. Kirgiz is a theistic group. From where they get the child, they would say it is the god of that place given them the child.

Six capable nannies were chosen.

They got large reward,
They must take care of the boy carefully.
Bokmulon lived in beautiful dresses and nice food,
He grew up in nannies' arms.

The ladies treated him as a valuable treasure,
He grew up unwittingly.
When he got nine years old,
He rode on his father's Manikair steed,
To anywhere he wanted to go.
When he got twelve years old,
He showed special favor to hunting and falconry.

Having got his father's permission,
He carried eagle and rode horse in deep mountains.
When he left home and went on hunting trip,
His father was pulled down by illness.

It was the time that fall turned into winter,
And the best time of falconry and hunting.
Bokmulon madly clung to hunting and falconry,
He did not go back home.

Kokotoy's illness grew worse,
At the time of evening praying,
The dying old man spoke suddenly,
Let others go and find Bokmulon.

Servants rode at a killing pace,
They arrived at the side of Bokmulon soon.
They did not want Bokmulon to worry too much,
So they told him gently:
"The black dromedary passed away."

Bokmulon was in high spirits in hunting,

"If it's dead, let it go."
Bokmulon did not understand the fact,
Still stayed on the wasteland and went hunting happily.

Servants were so anxious,
They told him the reason they came:
"Master, your father has passed away."

"How can I give up the best hunting chance,
Skin the black camel if it's dead,
Bury him if my father passed away.
I cannot get first-snow games every day,
Do not disappoint me with unimportant thing!"

Bokmulon's ignorant behavior,
Gave him a bad reputation of impiety.
It also became a typical example,
For future Kazakh to teach their children.

The young Ayidar wore his hair in a fringe,
He was also the single child of his family,
He rode on Manikair steed,
Ready to announce the death across mountains.

Right at the time he was ready to go,
Bokmulon repeatedly advised him:
"Yurbi is our close relative,
We should tell and invite him first,
All other guests to be invited,
We will wait for him to decide."
Bokmulon invited his uncle Yurbi,
To discuss about the funeral.

Bokmulon asked some people,
To dig on the ground and build a tomb.
The large vault had already been done,
Room was big and deep.

The dirt was piled beside the tomb,
Winter had frozen the dirt.
Working people had to set up the tent,
And continued on building tomb in chilly wind.

The deep vault was broad in scale,
The spacious room was also ready,
Bokmulon presented the ten workers,
Each a mare as the reward.

Margalan, Hohan, Namgan,
Badak mountain, Barik and Buhara,
The news of the death spread to anywhere.
Only in Samurhan,
People did not get the news of Kokotoy's death.

People praying for the dead got ninety livestock,
People who helped clean the corpse of the dead,
Got nine livestock as reward.
The steed of the dead was saddled well,
People prayed in front of the coffin,
The corpse was cleaned carefully,
And then wrapped up with white cloth.

Both sides of the cloth were bound tightly,
Kokotoy was buried in his tomb.
Ten tomb guards were chosen,
To guard the tomb and pray day and night.

Yurbi arranged all the matters well,
People prepared for forty-day memorial ceremony.

Close relatives and friends,
Connected clansmen and trusted followers,
Highly respected high officials,
Experienced and knowledgeable men,
Notables and prominent families in town,

All got the invitation of memorial ceremony.

People asked about the trace of Manas,
They only heard he went to Kurlu for hunting,
The messenger did nothing wrong,
And just went back without looking for Manas.

Bokmulon held forty-day ceremony for his father,
Then he followed his uncle Yurbi's suggestion,
Packed up all they had,
And moved to broad Kaimin prairie.

Winter gave way to spring, time never turned back,
Children laughed and colts scampered.
There was a lady named Suykaler in the tribe,
She was skillful in carrying tales making mischief.

One day at noon,
She appeared in Bokmulon's home suddenly.
Bokmulon was lying on the bed,
Stretching out his legs,
He gave Suykaler the cold shoulder,
And his eyes closed arrogantly.

Suykaler turned angry from embarrassment,
She reprimanded Bokmulon severely:
"Bokmulon, you are such a crackpot,
You do not have the common sense at all.

"You have the skin of human,
But inside is filled up with the shit,
How can you be so arrogant to me.

"When your father was dying,
You were not at his side,
But did hunting and falconry in wilderness.
I heard from others,

Your father treated you as a pearl in his hand,
He held Sadaha ceremony for you every day.
How could you be so ungrateful,
Till now you do not hold the ceremony.

"Wait, there must be one day,
Yurbi will force your mother to marry him,
And take away all your fortune.
You are only a child abandoned by others,
This is what you do not know at all.

"You do not have backbone at all,
You have no ability to take over family property,
I know you are weak and vulnerable.
Elbow-like hero Ageshi,
Have engaged with your elder sister,
Did he ask for your opinion?

"You lead a befuddled life every day,
Stay at home and dare not go out?
Or have I been blind,
And do not understand you?

"It is less than two years,
You have been so callous to me,
You are such an ungrateful bastard,
You should be punished by gods severely soon!

"You married a girl from Hohan,
She is so ugly with hair full on her breast.
You stay at home during daytime,
Follow her all around;
When you are sleeping at night,
You hold her tight in your arms.
She is bad tempered and with reddish black skin,
But you lose your heart to such a damned bastard."

Suykaler poured ridicule on him,
Laughed at him and rounded on him.
After pulling his face,
She left the room with her skirt swinging.

Bokmulon felt terribly ashamed,
But he could not hide under ground,
And could not kill himself either.
He was as anxious as fire flaming,
He was as downcast as games been shot.
He set himself in cover on bed,
Did not step out of the room two whole days.

Yurbi came to visit him three times a day,
Tried to please him.
Yurbi butchered two-year-old colt,
Presented crystal sugar and almond full on table,
And invited Bokmulon to enjoy with open arms.

But Bokmulon was out of spirits,
He even had no interest to look at it.
His aunt Jezbilek came in person,
Held his hand and pulled him to her home.

Yurbi knew the luck had turned in his favor,
He did not show his feeling but laughing in his heart.
He asked in a concerned tone:
"My dear child,
Why do you let your uncle worry so much,
And make me sad so much?
If I did anything wrong,
Please tell me directly."

Bokmulon did not dare to speak out,
What Suykaler had rebuked,
He poured out his heart through the excuse of ceremony:
"I followed your arrangement,

Moved from Tashkent and live here,
You give me a comfortable life here.
But others' gossip did never stop,
I am an ungrateful son in their eyes,
And I am unreasonable and muddle-headed.

"My father passed away last winter,
Till now I still did not hold a ceremony for him.
I'd better move back to Tashkent,
Return to my familiar home.
Live together with my old neighbors,
Then try to hold a ceremony for my father.

"I regard you as my beloved family,
I waste a lot of time here.
I thought I should be happy here,
So I came to you for help mindlessly.

"I did not enjoy any happiness here,
Instead I expose myself to severe ridicule.
Bad reputation is now on my back,
In this shadowy world,
How can I live my life in regret!"

As soon as Bokmulon finished his words,
Yurbi flew into fury,
With his face turning pale:
"Bokmulon, three whole days,
You are unhappy for such a thing!
If I do not treat you earnestly and sincerely,
Let the sacred salt punish me.

"My poor Bokmulon,
Do not be so sad.
I will write the invitations right now,
Send a proper person to deliver the invitations.

"Sage Koshaoyi is the backbone of Kirgiz,
Kokcher is the key personnel of Ayinla.
Senchybek in Andijan,
Marabek in Badakshan.

"Karahan in Buhara,
Arabek in Barik,
Kozbek in Dushanbe,
And Toshtuk in Kebizto mountain.

"Giant Ageshi Khan in Jetugus,
Kokboru in Betbakert,
Think about all the people we know,
We also need to invite them.

"Murzhakmat in Huloshan,
Dabtay garrison in Keyiwa,
Baeshi administer in Jetsu.
Akunhan is also a Khan in Kirgiz,
He lives in Yurkenichy.

"Yarkant, Hotan, Lop Nur,
Are where Tabaled, Nula and Karacha live,
They are our backbones,
We must invite them.

"In the lush forest,
Ketmandobi castle is located there,
Offspring of Kander Bayi,
Has already become a tyrant locally.
He is good at talking sugar-coated words,
We cannot forget to invite him.

"All the heroes we mentioned above,
They have same likes and dislikes with us.
Only Manas, son of Jagurp Bayi,
Is vicious and fond of killing,

We cannot let him preside the ceremony.

"My boy, that Famous Manas,
Never shows politeness even to the sage,
He looks vicious on the face,
He does not respect nobles and Bayi,
And has never been polite to anyone.

"He is more arrogant when he sees the eminent,
It seems he likes to break away from them,
All the eminent who are his neighbors,
Are full of complaints in their hearts.

"He does not regard families as families,
He has contempt for all the people around him,
No word is pleasant to the ear from his mouth,
He runs amuck everywhere.

"If we invite Manas to the ceremony,
He will throw the ceremony into disorder.

"On Aranick battlefield,
Hero Kokcher and I spared no efforts to fight enemy,
We established brilliant achievements;
But he pocketed the victory all to himself,
He is too stingy to give us any reward.

"But if we invite all the heroes to come,
And only discuss about the ceremony,
It will be a great loss for us,
And it is also not convenient for us either,
We cannot arrange them to come again for the ceremony.

"If you think it is suitable,
We invite Koshaoyi, Toshtuk and Ageshi,
Muzburchak and Kerkokuler,
And you and me,

We discuss where to set the yurts,
How many guests we need to invite,
We will discuss and decide all the related matters."

What uncle Yurbi said,
Came up just to Bokmulon's expectation:
"My respectable uncle,
You are like the wise ocean,
Your words are right after my heart,
You untie all my knots.

"A gust of happiness rushes to my heart,
Your words are like warm air,
Making me full of energy.
The guests we need to invite,
You can give me a list as soon as possible."

Yurbi approved very much,
Of what Bokmulon said.
He sent out the letters immediately,
To the guests to discuss the matter,
He gave them a fifteen-day journey.

Receiving the invitation,
Kerkokuler and giant Koshaoyi,
Hero Toshtuk and Ageshi,
And respectable Muzburchak set out right away,
And arrived at Bokmulon's home soon.

Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Welcomed them with flying feet,
Let them go into the yurts warmly,
Treated them with the utmost cordiality.

Guests rested for one day,
Got rid of the tiredness on their way.
Kokotoy's wife Gulayim was invited,

Together with them and discussed the ceremony.

The host Yurbi spoke first:
"Among sixty-yurt Arashi people,
My late brother Kokotoy,
Was a famous Khan.
He set up countless yurts,
He is the richest one among us.

"Unfortunately he passed away last winter,
We held a all-time grand funeral for him,
According to our traditions,
We have returned him back to the earth.

"Today we invite you all here,
Because his one-year ceremony is near at hand,
How do we hold the ceremony for him?
Where can we set the yurts for all guests?
Which guests do we need to invite?

"Headed by the eldest Koshaoyi,
Five Khans are all here;
We share the same slogan,
We live as neighbors from ancient times,
And we are related by blood.

"We did not invite Manas,
You are clear about the reason.
When he was eleven years old,
He killed Kuntoy and got great fame.
All Khans here today,
None of you shared his spoils of war.

"In Sariarca,
He occupied Shawruk's castle,
He did not invite us to join;
He captured Nakelai,

And forced her to be his wife.

"Rich man Kulitan sent a match-maker,
And wanted his son Ageshi to marry Nakelai;
Ageshi was young and did not know the truth,
Manas was completely inexperienced too,
How could not others tell the truth?

"Although it was a past thing,
Manas was arrogant and impolite,
He did not apologize till now,
And did not explain to Ageshi that,
He married Ageshi's fiancée unintentionally.

"In the battle of attacking Aranick,
Manas carried away Duohan's daughter Karaboruk.
I still remember clearly till now,
When Kandir Bayi was alive,
Kerkokuler was not born yet,
His father had already made the engagement for him.

"Till now,
Manas did not apologize for it either,
Kerkokuler feels sad about it.
If Manas knows nothing about these things,
The elders should all remember clearly,
All these past things.
How can others tell him nothing till now?

"We fought shoulder by shoulder in Aranick,
Defeated Ketlik together,
But he did not give us any reward.

"When he went on expedition to Alitshar and Andijan,
Even for the battle with Sariarca and Tashkent,
He did not invite any of you to go with him.
He kept all the results of battle by himself,

He never takes any of us into account.

"If he gets angry with us,
We can reason things out to him later,
But we do not need to tell him about the ceremony."

"What Yurbi said is reasonable."
Except Koshaoyi,
All others agreed with one consent.
Koshaoyi stroked his beard,
Talked to himself about his disagreement.

Bokmulon began to talk soon afterwards,
He was still indulged in empty talk with insolence.
He sat cross-legged among those guests,
Pointed his fingers and boasted without shame:

"My father passed away,
I am his only beloved son.
He left countless fortune in the world,
We cannot let the money go bad underground.

"He left countless livestock,
Spreading all over the prairie.
Gold, silver and jewelry fill up seventy storehouses,
How many camels do we need when we move them?

"It is impossible to count the silk and cloth,
Even a thousand camels cannot move them one time,
It is a big trouble for me.
There is also a lot of nameless treasure,
No one has ever seen them in person.

"Because of so much wealth my father gathered,
I will hold the ceremony for him generously.
If I do not hold the ceremony,
How can I comfort my father's spirit in heaven.

"I will arrange and decide by myself,
Who will be the guests of the ceremony,
In front of the whole world,
I will show my wealth and my manner."

After careful thinking,
Giant Koshaoyi started to talk:
"Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Those who hold the ceremony should take the duty,
Those who make mistakes should take responsibility,
The common goal is obvious to all of us.

"What we should do right now,
Is to decide the place for the ceremony.
It should be a vast prairie,
In the valley there should be a running river,
Thick forest should be on the banks of the river.

"Arayi is a vast place,
It is good for a big ceremony.
Although it is vast and green,
It has no wood for burning and running springs,
This is the only discount of this place.

"Since Arayi is not a suitable place,
We have heard long ago,
Kokdobe in Wuchykark,
Is the best place for holding a ceremony.

"It is a vast pasture,
There are no hills and mountain ranges,
Grass is waving both in summer and winter.
Valley floor is flat with no roaring river,
Only clear springs run quietly.

"On both sides of the valley,
There are thick forests blocking all sunshine.

If you consider this place is suitable,
It is really the best place for the ceremony.

"Giant Ageshi,
Is the son-in-law of Kokotoy,
The range between Jetuguz and Karkla,
Is easy for us to climb over.

"In front of it is Alma-Ata,
Muzburchak is also near there,
Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Are living there together with each other.
If you three Khans lead to move,
You can set up your yurts there.

"The rest three of us,
Will lead our own people,
To make preparation for going to the ceremony.
We will have no more opinions on it,
But holding the ceremony wholeheartedly.

"If there is anything else that needs discussion,
We will deal with it later.
Do not grudge your wealth,
Give rich rewards to the winners of games."

Bokmulon was responsible,
For inviting all the guests,
He promised to all Khans:
"Uncle Koshaoyi and all Khans here,
You all give evidence to me,
I will tell you all the guests we need to invite,
You listen to me carefully.

"After the careful discussion,
We have decided the place for the ceremony.
Where are you, Ayidar?

Please write down all guests' names right now.

"In Bektpakto mountains,
There is a city called Chambuler,
Ayi Khan's son Kokboru,
Is said to be a great hero;
Buhara and Budak mountains,
Are administered by Karahan and Marabek Khan,
We must invite them.

"Barik lives in Arabek,
Senchybek lives in Andijan,
You should go to their places,
Send them the ceremony invitations.

"Dawutay is the head of Keyiwa,
Murzhakmat is in Huloshan,
They always keep an eye on each other.
You continue to go forward,
You will arrive at Dushanbe,
Kozbek lives there,
I heard he has close relations with Akunhan,
It will be regretful if he is not invited,
You should send invitations to them one by one,
Show our sincerity of invitation.

"You set out from Afghan,
Go forward along Kizilsu river,
Kelaichy and Nishapur,
Are two places you cannot go round.

"In Kashmir mountain,
Lots of Kirgiz are living and multiplying there,
There are high peaks with snow,
You can come back if you cannot go through.
You will go pass Hotan,
Famous Nura Khan lives there.

"Shache, the neighboring city of Hotan,
Is under the control of Tabaled Khan.
The warrior named Karacha,
Is living on the bank of Lop Lake.
They are also Khans famous everywhere,
You must not forget to invite them.

"Your next stops are Yanji, Turpan and Hami,
You need to deliver the news to them.
To the north are Balikun and Beshbarik,
Do not forget to invite Khans there.

"You should talk clearly and seriously,
To those who are arrogant,
You should proper your speech.
Invite all of them with respect,
The unprecedented ceremony,
Will make them remember forever.

"Tell them if they do not come with excuses,
They will regret for missing it the whole life,
Then it is better to hang themselves with their belts.
For anyone who is indecisive and reluctant to come,
Or ignore our invitation,
Kokotoy's battle banner,
Will soon wave on their roof.

"Tell them it is the invitation from Bokmulon,
Then you can turn your horse,
And come back quickly.
You go toward northeast,
Many tribes live there,
They should be invited too.
Their vast land is well populated,
Bozkelterk is their master.

"Go and pass Kumsara range,

You will arrive at Georoy's palace.
They should get the invitation,
Who dares to say he is superior to me now?
If he dares to refuse my invitation,
He must be regretful in the future.

"Niskara and Muradiler,
Kalmark is their close neighbor.
They are called Kara Kalmark,
Hero Wushan is leading them.

"Do not be a humble yes-man,
Speak to them with great confidence.
There is never the rule to kill the messenger.

"It is said that a girl called Kerz Sayikali,
Went to them for help from Kerim.
Bolanchu is their hero,
Geoykara is a great archer,
Even Aisanhan shows courtesy to him,
All people of the Orient,
Bow to him and are willing to be obedient.

"The eldest son of Arokai,
Is the strongest Kunwuer Bayi,
Please invite them too.
He wears the crown on his head,
The feather on the crown is glittering.

"He bears extraordinary manner in a great state,
Aisanhan's chartered instruction is high in his hand,
He is nicknamed 'Karacha',
And he also has many others nicknames.

"People of the six Khans here,
Will be informed by us."
It seemed a strong wind blowing in the mouth,

Bokmulon's words were running like a river.

Koshaoyi listened to all these words,
He could not help speaking out loudly:
"Bokmulon, you are just a green hand,
If we let you brag at your will,
You cannot invite right guests,
Instead you invite all devils,
You will bring disasters to us.

"If you listen to my suggestion,
Kara Ketay and Kangayi people,
Especially Karamark people,
You should not invite any of them.

"You should do what is possible,
Do not break your wings for it.
Georoy is a malicious man,
Be sure not to let him and Bolanchu get together.

"You'd better wake up to reality earlier,
Do not be in your dream.
If you invite those domineering warriors,
And the great archer Geoykara,
All together to your yurt,
Disasters must descend on you.

"Arashi people combined by sixty tribes,
Were humiliated for many years,
We raise our heads again,
Since Jagurp Bayi's son Manas appeared.

"He is the back bone of all Arashi,
If we do not invite Manas this time,
Enemies will take over all our places,
Tramping us as if we were a spreading wheat field."

Bokmulon was reluctant and quiet.
Ageshi, Toshtuk and Kerkokuler,
Shouted in a threatening manner:
"If you invite Manas to preside the ceremony,
Then do not blame not save your face!"

Koshaoyi had to be silent,
But he considered in his mind,
The only way to make the ceremony smooth going,
Was to let Manas be the host.

Yurbi worried others would change their minds,
He and Bokmulon made the decision by themselves.
They invited the Khans to discuss,
Only except Koshaoyi.

Picked gray mares from gray horses,
Picked white mares from white horses,
Cut off mares' heads like butchering sheep,
Cut mares' belly open like cutting watermelon.

"Anyone who does not keep his promise,
Comes and says he agrees,
But changes his mind tomorrow,
His result will be like these mares."

After they finished the praying ceremony,
They rolled up their sleeves,
Put their hands in the mare belly,
Made promise together with their hands full of blood.

They broke fresh branches,
Made promises and said to keep forever.
They shook their beard and opened the door,
Returned to their own camps.

The plot of repelling Manas,

Was put into effect without opposing.
Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Moved toward Karakela mountain,
The mighty group was too long to see both ends.

Let's see the young messenger Ayidar,
Manikair steed under him was like flying bird.
He traveled day and night,
Sent the invitation to every Khan's yurt.
He did not omit anyone,
He raised his head high to show the dignity.

He went over all the places,
With the invitations from Bokmulon,
Finally he arrived in Kangayi Mountain,
He held the invitation,
Presented the invitation with great respect,
To that malicious Karaday,
Arokai's son Kunwuer Bayi.

Kunwuer Bayi read the invitation carefully,
Then he shouted out:
"Damned Arashi people,
Bite off more than they can chew,
How dare they invite us to attend their ceremony!

"I will lead all Karamark and Ketay people,
To go there together.
I will rob the Arashi,
Leave nothing to them,
Let them be obedient to me as my slaves.

"How could they be so undaunted,
To invite guests and hold the ceremony,
They want to improve their status and fame through it.
I will seize their necks,
Making Arashi people's life miserable!"

Kunwuer Bayi shouted as loud as thundering,
He could not calm down.
Seeing his rampant manner,
All the people lowered their heads in silence.

Let us put this aside,
And talk about the ceremony of Kokotoy,
The earth shook under the iron heels,
Guests came from all directions.

Kunwuer Bayi Found an Excuse to Make a Disturbance

Kangayi people turned out in full strength,
They all rode on horses and set out,
Like ravens flying over river rapids,
They marched toward Kokdobe.

Kara Ketay and Karamark people,
Their generals and commanders were,
Niskara, Georoy, Muradiler,
Bolanchu and hero Wushan.

There were giants too heavy for horses,
Endless strange things and oddities.
Like wiggling black beetles,
Spread over the sky and earth.

Koshaoyi, Ageshi, giant Toshtuk,
Kerkokuler and Muzburchak,
Knew guests were coming,
They arrived at the chosen place in advance.

Singers praised the coming Khans,
With their sonorous voice.
Yurbi Khan shouted and wrangled,
Busy with arranging guests.

So many guards and knights,
Followed him tightly.
Guests came from all directions,
Sky-high dust was kicked up.

A lot of people were quick tempered,
Draped cloaks over their shoulders casually,
Edge of cloaks waved and legs quivered.
Many Arashi people got involved in preparation,
Once they got there,
They began to pray first,
Then carried meat plates to serve guests.

"This is Kokotoy Khan's ceremony,
We cannot just look on and do nothing."
They all acted like siblings,
Busy here and there.

Night descended silently on the earth,
Clear sky and dark earth.
But in clouds of dust,
Sky was hard to see clearly.

Strong wind roared with no end,
Cold air never stopped touching faces.
Old men, old ladies and little kids,
Could not stop blowing their noses.

Right at this moment,
Horns were blown and war drums were beaten,
The earth was shaking to break in a loud sound.
A dense mass of troops crowded toward them,
Like spiders and beetles speading all over the earth,
And like flood waving forward.

The earth was crowded with people,
Different accents made it hard to communicate,
People rubbed shoulders and followed steps,
Coaches thronged all the spaces.

People blew horns, beat war drums,
And held banners of different colors,

There were more blue banners than red ones,
Many banners were with strips of different colors.

Niskara who commanded all the troops,
Was surrounded by all the leaders.
They all held the yellow banners,
Following him tightly.

Muradiler's troops were approaching,
Before they could dismount,
Before they could get arranged,
Karamark hero Wushan,
And Bozkelterk,
Leading their hordes of troops and horses,
Arrived at Kokdobe.

Bolanchu appeared in swaggering manner,
He made others heart startling.
Like a violent flood,
Kandan hero Georoy,
Arrived at Kokdobe.

He gathered all Tangut people,
Asked them to follow him tightly.
Seeing the coming huge army,
People were rather nervous.

Niskara and Georoy made great clamor,
Exposing their fierce nature.
They brought death in the air,
As if they would swallow Arashi:

"You disturb our comfortable life,
By the excuse of holding a ceremony.
We lead our troop and come here from afar,
With fatigue and sweat of the journey.

"You did not send messengers,
To welcome us on the way.
You did not prepare us gold and silver,
Did not present us steeds,
Did not present us tiger-skin coats either.
The arrogant Khans stayed in the yurts,
They did not go out to welcome us.

"We do not need to entertain them for the ceremony,
Warriors, do not dismount, turn the horse and go back,
And rob them of everything by the way.
We came with invitation but without warm welcome,
How dare they snub the noble guests from afar."

Two giants Niskara and Georoy,
Two heroes Muradiler and Wushan,
With Bolanchu and Bozkelterk,
There were thirty warriors equal in match,
But these six,
Were especially ferocious and malicious.

Bokmulon was scared to see this,
He dare not step forward to say anything.
Seeing people coming as flood,
He was already frightened out of his wits.

Two bastards Bokmulon and Yurbi,
Bowed and scraped,
As guilty person,
Braced themselves up to serve the guests.

Picked up six big horses,
Filled up six dromedaries' sacks,
Brought six bunches of silk and brocade clothes,
Presented them all to Kangayi Khan Niskara.

They wore a fawning smile like a woman,

Trying to please Niskara.
Niskara was ready to bite off others' nose,
He dismissed their boundless hospitality.

Georoy came and interposed:
"Take it, hero Niskara!
Famous hero Kunwuer Bayi,
Will come soon.
You can discuss with him carefully,
And then make your decision.

"We will make all Arashi people,
Get into a great panic.
Among all Kirgiz present here today,
We do not see hero Manas.

"I have only heard of his name but never seen him,
When we are ready to go back,
I will drive all the self-righteous Arashi,
Back to be our slaves.

"I will let them fall in desperation,
I will let them dry out and die,
I want them all to die without sons,
Losing faces of their ancestors.

"I will intercept and capture their horses,
I will despoil them of their wealth,
I will rob them of their hunting dogs and eagles,
I will let them be in great panic.
If I cannot meet my promise,
How can I be a hero!

"And I will give them a back thrust,
Loot the whole Arashi.
I want to see,
Who dare come and stop me."

Six heroes ran wild completely,
They accepted all the horses and gifts,
Took away camels and treasures,
They gave the order to butcher sheep for them,
With the standard of ten people sharing one sheep.
They picked strong oxen,
And asked to give each giant a yurt to live in.
Then they dismounted the horses unhurriedly,
Walked into the yurts with an arrogant air.

Right at this moment,
A great stir came up from the back of crowd.
The crowd shouted, horses neighed,
In the twinkling of an eye,
The shouts filled all the sky.

People could not see the coming things clearly,
It was like a flood peak coming,
Like flood bursting the banks,
Like fierce wind sweeping over everything.

Flat earth turned into ridges,
People all looked on in a daze,
They lost their wits,
And felt something bad would happen.

Seeing the flood-like people and horses,
They were all at a loss what to do.
For Arashi who were holding the ceremony,
This vast world was as narrow as a palm,
They found no way to escape.

People thronged, spears stood as forest,
Flying banners thrust into the sky;
Steal swords were shining,
Smell of death was in the air.

Kunwuer Bayi, Arokai's son,
Galloped on his black dapple crazily.
His fierce face looked like a devil,
Countless warriors were behind him,
Their noise made the sky and the earth shake.

The giants swaggered before all others,
Drove their steeds forward.
The malicious Kunwuer Bayi's father,
Was a devil who had committed numerous crimes.

Since his father was defeated by Manas in Nalun,
Kunwuer buried the seed of hatred in his heart.
He thought of revenge every day,
But he did not find a proper excuse.
Now Arashi invited him actively,
He could not let off the opportunity of revenge!

Kunwuer Bayi made good preparation,
He was ready to rob Arashi pasture bare.
He led a mighty army of warriors,
Vowed to stamp Kirgiz's castles flat.

Six heroes came in the front,
Six huge banners stood behind him,
There were over a thousand warriors,
And countless horses under each banner.

The huge and mighty Kunwuer,
Was strong and malicious,
He led countless veteran soldiers,
As aggressive as the flaming fire.

He was highly skilled in military drill,
But treacherous and changeful.
Seeing the boar's appearance,

No one dare come up to welcome him,
They were all struck dumb with astonishment.

Troops the villain led,
Were in endless line,
There was a long stick with a hook,
In each soldier's hand,
Seeing the meat in the wok,
They rushed forward and fought for it.

Among numerous Arashi People,
No one dare go forward to stop them.

Niskara and Kunwuer pointed their fingers on the horses,
Planned the evil plots,
Attempted to rob Arashi.
Georoy helped stir up troubles by the side,
A great calamity was ready to begin.

"Why did not you still present,
Gifts to giant Kunwuer Bayi?"
They demanded unreasonably and rudely.
Hearing their rampant noise,
All Arashi kept silent and dare not make a sound.

Arashi were busy rushing from one to another,
Bent their knees to show their respect.
The old and the young hid themselves,
Others who looked on,
Were all in great panic:
"If this Kangayi person gets angry,
Our ribs must be broken,
And our blood will dye the earth red.
We never see a guy so fierce and malicious,
How can we come only for losing our life?"
Dark clouds were hanging over their heads.

In order to comfort the devil Kunwuer Bayi,
And to ease the rage in his heart,
Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Hurried in and out half a dozen times.

Bags were filled up with treasures,
Countless gold and silver were sent.
Whole-colored black baby camels,
Were prepared for Khans during their visiting.

Arrogant Kunwuer Bayi,
Was not pleased to look at the gifts:
"You bustle up here and there,
Regard yourself as an important person.

"You invite me to the ceremony,
But you are not qualified to fawn on me.
Do you dare to speak out,
'This is Kokotoy's blue banner.'

"Every one can gather the wealth,
Kokotoy's son Bokmulon,
What ability do you have to act so conspicuously!

"You are arrogant because of your wealth,
So I will grab all your wealth away.
Since you are so rampant,
I will let you know the taste of slave.

"Since you all gather here,
I will capture you all in one net.
I will make you turn to ashes like grass,
I will let you lose your fame to nothing.

"Since you come to me by yourselves,
I cannot break my promise:
Kokotoy's Manikair steed,

Is a great horse presented by god,
It should be put on splendid horsecloth,
And presented to the Aisanhan as his mount.

"It is a magical steed,
Its figure is like antelope.
Now it is agitated and depressed,
Only because it does not have a proper master;
When we move,
It can walk in the front,
To bring glory to the troops.

"The supreme commander of Kakan,
The backbone of Kangayi,
The great shelter of Kangayi,
The impregnable steal door,
Of the ordinaries living in the east,
It is our Aisanhan,
Who is the right master of this steed.

"Now Manikair deign to be kept,
Among you, Arashi people.
You can choose to bring it here,
Or you can turn and go back,
Once tomorrow comes,
I will let you know the outcome."

Kunwuer Bayi was rude and truculent,
Jewelry and jade shone on his head,
Robe of the king was on him.
Like a fierce tiger that rushed out of the forest,
He opened his eyes and mouth wide,
Showed his greed without any concealment.

Ferocious look was in his eyes,
Unknown words were hiding in his mouth.
Now, how could people face,

Such a ferocious face.

He was totally indifferent to,
All the people standing in front of him.
He took away all gifts presented to him,
But still talked greedily:
"Any of you can not leave too far from me,
Tomorrow you must present what I want."

Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Showed their apology only on the surface,
But groaned inwardly badly,
They returned to their yurts in great fear.

They sent messengers that very night,
To invite giants Koshaoyi, Toshtuk,
And other great persons;
Kerkokuler and Ageshi,
Ayi Khan's son Kokboru,
Janadili and Tenay.

All Khans came for the ceremony,
Commanders and generals of Arashi,
Renowned headmen of Ayinla,
And heroes too heavy for the horses,
They invited all of them,
Yurbi complained of their suffering:

"All of you have known,
We hold the ceremony together,
We discussed together,
And you all have no objection to it.

"The power of inviting guests,
Was given to Bokmulon.
He is Kokotoy Khan's son,
He sent the invitations without deep thinking.

"Except some of the women,
All the others have already come here,
Not only our friends, but also bad guys.
We are faced with a crowning calamity.
Especially Karaday from Kangayi,
Arokai's son Kunwuer is even more ferocious,
Niskara and Georoy,
And many other heroes,
The hatred buried deeply in their hearts for long,
Now it is the opportunity for them to revenge.

"They expressed clearly their intentions,
They are planning to get our Manikair steed,
And said 'it is the right horse for Aisanhan'.
It seems they will not give up the steed.

"If Kunwuer Bayi lacks ideas,
Niskara is always ready to incite him,
It will make harder for us to deal with.
If they provoke with spears tomorrow,
What should we do?"

Yurbi groaned with a long face,
After Khans heard the news of it,
They gazed at each other in speechless despair,
Karaday's threat made them scared.

All Khans at presence,
Played deaf and dumb.
Kokotoy's son Bokmulon,
Was quick in mouth but slow in mind,
He picked the chance to talk immediately:

"Uncle Koshaoyi is our elder,
All you present here are great people,
Even if you don't have the title of Khan,
People you killed are over thousand in number.

"You are all thickly built heroes,
And win in every battle;
But I have never seen,
A hero like Karacha from Kangayi.

"Even if I present all my father's wealth,
He will not pay any attention to it.
I witnessed his action and heard his words,
And I see my last day is soon coming.

"I talked with all you Khans,
About inviting guests from everywhere,
And the list of guests.
After getting your permission,
I sent out all the invitations.

"Kangayi turn out in full strength,
They are as many as beetles on the earth,
They fly out to us like wolves,
And make us fall into desperation.

"They will probably disperse us,
To other places to be slaves.
They asked us to reply,
To their request tomorrow.
How can we figure out,
What is their next trick.

"The young men will all be their slaves,
And young ladies will be their servants,
Khans will all be killed,
And Khans' wives will be widows at home.

"Fathers' beloved daughters,
Mothers' doted sons,
White-haired old people,
Irrepressible children,

Will be dispersed and killed.

"In addition to this,
They will ransack mercilessly,
Our furniture and household utensils,
Livestock on our prairies,
Gold and silver in our closet.
Khans, you are all presenting here,
Let us discuss how to deal with such a situation."

Facing the elders,
He recognized his stupidity,
Self-glorifying Bokmulon,
Burst out uncontrolled crying at the moment.

Koshaoyi Asked Manas to the Rescue in Danger

Everyone lowered their heads silently,
And turned their blind eyes to Bokmulon's tear.
Two hours had passed,
Uncle Koshaoyi posed his opinion:
"Akunhan is of my generation,
All of you present here,
Some can be considered as my children,
Some can be considered as my brothers,
For all of you here,
I can claim myself to be the senior.

"Bokmulon acted on his own,
Without experience and listening to the advice,
And then brought us this great disaster.
Facing the threat from Karamark,
You are all frightened and keep yourselves in the background.

"Khans act like lions every day,
But today you all shrink back in your yurts,
Even dare not step out of the threshold;
When Kangayi people shout curses to us,
You even dare not exhale.
You cannot make a spectacle of yourselves,
To bring dishonor to your fame.

"The great steed Manikair,
Kunwuer Bayi will not give it up.
Cowards' animals usually die first,

And then themselves.
This is the adage from long time ago,
It comes true here today.

"One of you is dizzy with the property,
The other acts as the chief commander of all people,
Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Where does your arrogance go.

"If each of you here thinks it is appropriate,
There is something I must express clearly,
Please listen to me carefully.
If any Khan here freaks out,
Maybe he will flee here at night,
But he can go at most a journey of one day.

"If Kunwuer Bayi,
Chases after you with a fine steed,
You only have a chance to bury yourself underground.
If you lose your precious life,
Whom else can you cry to?

"Anyone who dares to fight with him,
Amounts to go to his doom ahead of schedule.
Karamark people's master Kunwuer Bayi,
Who dares to contend for hegemony with him,
And who dares to fight with him?

"You have seen many heroes here,
You have sighted giant Georoy,
Niskara and Bolanchu,
You also got to know them.
Who dares to fight our way out of the yurts,
To wage a decisive fight?

"As soon as you stand in front of Muradiler and Wusan,
You all will be dumbfounded;

If all your soldiers flee and run for their lives,
It will sweep your fame and dignity.

"Yurbi and Bokmulon,
I had given you two suggestions before,
One was no invitation to Kangayi people,
The other was to invite hero Manas to the ceremony.
Previously you had doubts in your hearts,
Jagurp's son Manas,
You did not ask Ayidar to send a invitation to him.

"You have invited a wolf into the house,
And brought us fatal disaster.
To clear up the messy situation,
We have to invite Manas to turn the tide.
Now you must send a messenger to Manas,
Spur the horse forward as fast as he can.

"If Manas does not agree,
If he does not hold his flag up,
Is there any of you who can step forward bravely,
To bring stubborn enemy Kangayi under control.

"They will not let us hold the ceremony successfully,
And continue to make trouble unreasonably.
If we want to reason things out with them,
They will shout loudly,
And instigate their followers to capture our lives and property.

"In the interest of holding the ceremony successfully,
And for the sake of all your lives,
You must invite Manas to host the ceremony,
Please write an invitation to Manas as soon as possible."

Khan Koshaoyi's words,
Were sounding very sonorous and forceful,
He was like an eagle,

The silver beard on his lower jaw,
Was shaking along with the running words.

Khans thought back and forth,
Then went out of the yurt one after another.
Yurbi and Bokmulon,
Together with Ageshi Khan,
Wrote a long letter,
To express their desire.

They asked for the forgiveness first,
And promised to present nine fine steeds,
And countless gold, silver and jewelry,
To obtain clemency from Manas.

Each tribe should present nine fine steeds,
All treasures in the world were all mentioned in the letter.
At the end of the letter,
They promised to present most beautiful girls in the world,
Even with these girls' names in it.

They thought only the countless treasures,
Could dispel Manas' anger.
They finished the letter before the bedtime,
And waited for Khan Koshaoyi to check.

Let young Ayidar pack his bags,
Let him ride on Manikair to the journey.
They took the selected steeds,
The written letter,
The appointed messenger Ayidar,
To sage Koshaoyi to survey.

Khan Koshaoyi unfolded the letter,
Ran his eyes over the letter.
"You real bastard!"
Koshaoyi bristled with anger at once:

"Bokmulon, you are such an idiot,
Do you think Manas will come after reading your letter?
Your steeds and beautiful girls,
Does he care about these?
Could he use your finery,
Will he come here for these things?

"Instead of coming to the ceremony,
Mans will get irritated.
'I will wait until Kangayi people drive them off,
Then I come and quiet down the situation.'
How could he come so easily?
How could he maintain the order of the ceremony?

"How can he need fine steed,
He has too many great steeds;
How can he want fine clothes,
Good quality fur is all in his hands.
You should write a new letter,
According to my suggestion."

Koshaoyi called a Maoledo in,
Let him redraft the letter:
"This is your uncle Koshaoyi who writes to you,
I have something important to tell you,
Please read the letter carefully.
I will tell you my heart,
It is all the truth.

"For the ceremony of Kokotoy,
We sent invitations to guests everywhere,
Guests all came with the invitations,
It made the situation a great mess.

"A lot of heroes came from Kangayi,
There are giant Kunwuer Bayi,
Niskara and Aoronko,

They brought countless soldiers at the same time.

"As soon as they arrived they provoked us,
Our spirit and confidence collapsed in front of them.
If I tell the story from the beginning,
It is hard to tell clearly.
Anyone who is not a Kangayi,
Would be bullied by them.

"The sun and the moon get crossed here,
It is our critical time now.
Please bury the previous hatchet,
Set out and come here at once,
This is your uncle Koshaoyi's desire.

"Ayikoler, if you do not come soon,
People here will fall into disaster.
Kunwuer Bayi is a wicked monster,
He inches down to us with arrogance.

" 'The idiot brings disaster,
The great man takes the consequence.'
This is a famous ancient saying,
But it comes true here today.
You cannot look on and do nothing,
Because you were wronged.
If you do not come forward and reverse the trend,
No other Arashi people can fight and rule the territory.

"Please do not make us heart-broken,
My Ayikoler Manas,
For the sake of the peace of all Arashi,
Please put my advice deep in your heart!

"Kirgiz will suffer from the plunder of enemies,
And be swamped in the vast ocean.
What a humiliating matter!

Ordinary people's patron Manas,
Please come soon and drive the evil out.

"Kangayi people are obsessed with ambition,
They attempt to invade and occupy Arashi,
That will be the unbearable disaster for us,
You cannot sit watching such a big affair.

"Respectable hero Khan Manas,
I give my heartfelt blessing,
Beg Khuda to bless your health."
Koshaoyi wrote the letter in such a way,
To ask for the help of Manas,
In less than the time of boiling a pot of tea,
He had ordered Ayidar to start off.

The night passed, the morning came,
People had to come out,
They could not hide any more.
Khans and heroes all got together,
Uncle Koshaoyi took the lead,
They all mounted their horses,
Greeted and encouraged each other.

Common people looked cautiously in humble reverence,
More than eighty warriors came to Kunwuer's camp.
Heroes were all freaked out,
Stood in lines silently.

Niskara watched every one secretly:
"——The old Koshaoyi towers above most of others,
He is the hero and the giant,
He owns the demeanor of a fierce and ambitious person,
But, unfortunately, he is over eighty years old,
He is in his later years.

"His beard has turned white,

His joints began to creak,
He has already had one foot in the grave,
If he takes all his energy,
He still can knock one valiant general down.

"——Brave Toshtuk is a path-breaker,
He owns powerful back and shoulders,
He can rush in the under world alone,
His story is circulating among people.

"It is said that he ever defeated seventy giants,
He has extraordinary outward appearance.
He lived without sunshine for a long time,
He has lost his former glory.
He just returned from under world less than seven months,
And still walks with a rolling gait,
His energy has not fully come back.

"——Ageshi is also a hero,
But he cannot display well with his short arms and legs;
Tabalerd, Nura and Karacha,
They are Khans but enjoy undeserved fame.
If they do not have the crown and power,
No one respects them.

"——Khan Ayi's son Kokboru,
Is really a great man,
It is a pity that,
This hero is not so adventurous.

"——Another warrior is Ake Bayi,
He is only seventeen years old,
When he grows full-fledged,
He will become a hero hard to beat.

"Now the warrior Ake Bayi,
Just get married,

He married a coquettish lady,
It made his essence deficient.

"——Ayidarhan's son Kokcher,
Is valiant and heroic in bearing.
But lack of judgment and easy to be cheated,
He always readily places trust in rumor,
If he conquers this shortcoming,
He will be an unbeatable general.

"Among Arashi people present here,
No other heroes deserve to be mentioned."
Niskara made remarks in his heart,
Watching every Arashi people carefully.

"Are you finishing your observation?"
Koshaoyi asked him immediately.
"Kokcher, please come here,
And be my interpreter."

Khans and heroes at the opposing side,
Were judged by Koshaoyi one by one:
"——Please look at the hero called Aoronko,
He administered common people,
Before Aisanhan,
Now he is over seventy years old with white hair.

"Though he looks strong and bears the dignity of a Khan,
As a high mountain,
Once he fights hand to hand with others,
He must be the one who is knocked down.

"——Kangayi hero Niskara,
Jumped restlessly as a camel with bad skin ulcer.
He is bad-tempered and cares for nobody,
He has a keen mind full of cunning tricks,
He is eager to have a try.

"There is no beard on his short lower jaw,
He has an ugly appearance.
No matter where he goes,
He brings disasters to the people there,
But he always hides back in each battle,
He is such a chicken-hearted crafty gangster.

"After sixty-day jolting journey,
Running sweat did not wash his dirty face clean;
Six-dekaliter wheat was eaten,
The stinking smell was from his head to foot;
He killed sixty giants,
Bloody smell was all over his body.

"——Georoy is also unusual,
Though he has the laurel of a warrior;
If he fights with me hand to hand,
He is not as brave as me.

"——Black mane Bolanchu,
Strong, rude, and fond of killing,
He is conceited but simple-minded,
He is a bastard without a spirit.

"——Kermzshy's son Muradiler,
Assumes his father's power as his own,
He is fatuous and without virtue,
But he is ruling people in his territory.

"——Wusan from Karamark is energetic,
He likes to make trouble out of nothing.
He is pushed aside,
With no comparison with Kunwuer Bayi, Georoy and Niskara,
He is in the cracks of these three people,
He only can be a yes-man in front of them.

"——Look at Arokai's son Kunwuer Bayi,

He is cunning and fathomless,
Like a slipping viper.
He is crafty to the enemies,
Even to his relatives.

"By his wisdom and means,
He can defeat all his rivals;
If his temper flares up,
He can cause tempests,
Throw the universe into disorder."

Both sides watched and judged each other,
They pulled reins and waved whips.

Right at this moment,
"Jabu! Jabu! Jabu[①]!"
Such noise of shouting came near.
The crowds surged forward,
Under the leadership of Wusan,
They arrived at the fireplace,
Trying to take the meat pot away.

"Mandu! Mandu! Mandu[②]!"
Another noise of shouting came,
Kangayi people came forward in groups,
To fight for the cooked meat.

"What are you doing?"
The person in charge of the meat did not finish his words,
He was beaten and abused by others,
He could not move anymore with wounds all over his body.

People fled and hid everywhere,
Finally got to the side of heroes.

① Jabu: the shouting Karamark people make when they jeer.

② Mandu: the shouting Kangayi people make when they jeer.

Witnessing such a disorder,
Heroes were made embarrassed.

They stayed aside silently,
Without knowing what to do.
The situation was totally in a mess,
They could do nothing but watch Kangayi people making trouble.

Let us put this aside,
And talk about Ayikoler Manas,
How could he rescue Arashi people from suffering,
And let Kokotoy's ceremony go on wheels.

Manas Turned the Tide and Presided the Ceremony

Receiving sage Koshaoyi's letter,
Ayidar set out on the steed Manikair at once.
Holding the letter in his pocket,
He spurred his steed toward sunset direction.
He pushed on without stop,
And he approached Samurhan before sunrise.

Manas is a worshipful Khan,
His stories were told from mouth to mouth.
The supreme camp located in the city,
Was towering into the sky splendidly.

Ayidar spurred his steed,
And rushed into the city like greased lightning.
There was no guard outside of the palace,
Ayidar went in without any prevention.
Where was the palace of black mane wolf?
He could not find any person suitable to ask.
Many people went and came in Ayinla,
He could not know where to go,
No one showed him the way either.
Young Ayidar strolled in the city,
At last he met hero Sarataz.
Adelerbek's son Sarataz,
Administered all the guards of the palace.
There were forty warriors guarding in the palace,
Sarataz was their head.
All the warriors were bright and brave,

They were always high in spirit and energetic.
They were also well trained,
To resist any kind of enemy.
Hero Sarataz in front of him,
Was more fierce and malicious.

When Sarataz saw Ayidar,
He began to interrogate.
Ayidar answered him clearly:
"I come from the distant Karakela mountain,
Uncle Sara, I believe you have heard of,
The matter of holding Kokotoy's ceremony.
Khan Koshaoyi sends me here,
To present his letter to our hero."

Sarataz responded after Ayidar's words:
"If it is true, young man,
You'd better visit madam Kanikai first.
From this morning till now,
Our hero did not meet with any one,
No one dare to say anything to him.
We do not know what makes Khan upset,
He sits in his camp with great rage.
If you rash forward to him bumptiously,
You must be in trouble.
If he kills you,
Who dare go to save your life?"

After hearing this,
Young Ayidar knew he could not meet Manas directly.
He pulled the halter and turned his horse,
Went to Kanikai's palace.
He greeted Kanikai first,
He was too nervous to say a complete sentence.

Smile was on Kanikai's beautiful face,
She gazed at the messenger's confused eyes.

She asked her servants to come out,
To welcome the distant guest into her palace.
She took out a soft cushion,
Put on the flower felt and let guest be seated.

Ayidar began to calm down,
And he expressed his purpose to Kanikai:
"Khatun, my dear sister-in-law,
In your supreme honorable palace,
I will hide nothing from you.
I come from Kokotoy's ceremony,
I have a very important mission.
Where is black mane wolf Manas?
I have an important letter to show him personally."

Kanikai smiled,
Lifting her beautiful face,
She asked Ayidar kindly:
"I have known you are well-behaved,
You are a prudent and able-minded young man.
Is Ayidar your formal name?
Are you Khan Koshaoyi's nephew?
Your people went beyond your depth,
But now you come for help with great troubles.
Please sit and drink our horse milk wine,
If you are lucky enough,
It is not a problem to see Manas.
If you make Kankoer angry,
It is your fate to lose your life.

"Bokmulon held the ceremony beyond his ability,
He invited heroes around the world,
Is it because Kangayi create disturbance,
You come here in a hurry?
They must carve up your boiled meat,
Take all your gold and silver away;
They see through your ability clearly,

So they can be rude and unreasonable to you.

"The letter Bokmulon and Yurbi wrote,
Must be rejected like a piece of waste paper.
Then your uncle wrote the letter personally,
And sent you to come as soon as he can."
As if she had attended the ceremony in person,
Kanikai knew all like the palm of her own hand.
Her words hit the right nail,
It made Ayidar shocked.

Young Ayidar was in a rather nervous state,
As if sitting on pins and needles.
He took out Kankoer's letter,
Delivered it into Khatun's hand reverently.
Tablecloth was spread in front of him,
All food was on the table.
"Please enjoy yourself."
Respectable Kanikai finished her words,
Then stepped out her palace softly.

Lion Manas was sitting in his palace,
Uncle Bakay and forty warriors sat in front of him,
They were discussing a big event.
Clever Kanikai entered,
And said in this way:
"Ayasi Bakay,
I have something important to say.
What I am going to talk is,
Bokmulon holds a ceremony in Karkera.
They hold a ceremony beyond their ability,
Drawing Khans from all directions.
They cannot maintain the normal order,
And put themselves in great disaster,
So they send a messenger to ask for your help.

"Wise Koshaoyi wrote the letter,

He sent Ayidar here.
Ayidar dare not see you and present the letter,
He was waiting in my palace.
The letter is in my hand now,
Here is Koshaoyi's signature at the end of the letter."

According to the rules,
Kanikai handed the letter to Sirak.
Sirak took the letter,
Opened and ran down the letter,
Then read the letter loudly,
All people present deeply concentrated.

The lion burst into great anger,
He shouted after he listened to the letter:
"Take Ayidar to me,
I will not spare him!
Since he comes by himself,
I will kill this stupid idiot!
They only remember when great disaster came,
And forget me beyond the heaven in peacetime.
They pretend not knowing everything,
So, let Karamark people,
Kill them all!
Since the ceremony has started,
It will let me lose face if I go now!"

Manas shouted in great fury,
Asking others to bind that guy tightly.
Hero Sirak was very calm,
He was afraid Ayidar would be killed,
By Manas on impulse.
He asked others to bring a brown male camel,
Let Manas kill the male camel.

Manas held Zhoykuma sword,
Lifted it up and cut the camel into halves.

It was balanced well like they weighed it,
The male camel was cut right into halves.
Part of the pent-up anger,
In hero's heart was released.

Bakay opened his mouth at this moment:
"Do you plan to attend the ceremony,
Or you have other plan?
My respectable leopard,
Koshaoyi sent you his personal letter,
There are a lot subtle words in his letter,
Like 'the sun and the moon will meet here'.
If we do not start off right now,
Coward will be your name and accompany you.
If you plan to go, my hero,
We'd better spur our steeds forward now.
If you do not want to go,
Please let Ayidar go back right away."

The famous forty warriors,
Were with great achievements and fame;
They were looking forward to going to the ceremony,
But they dare not say their desire directly.

Their respectable sister-in-law Kanikai,
Opened her mouth at this moment:
"Bokmulon is young and ignorant,
He has allowed wealth to turn his head.
They invited guests with their ignorance,
In the celebration of the ceremony,
Kangayi people reversed to be the host and ran wild.

"A lot of livestock were butchered,
But were all robbed by Karamark.
Khans headed by the sage Koshaoyi,
Has no way to turn the situation.
The odds are little if they choose to fight,

And they are unable to quiet down the chaos.

"Kirgiz people are suffering,
This is the disaster descended from the heaven.
When they feel helpless,
They ask for your help sincerely.
If it's possible, you'd better set out right away,
They will bless you from their deep hearts.
Let everyone who attends the ceremony,
Distinguish clearly the hero from the coward.

"People from all directions gather there,
Enemies and friends are under the same sky.
Equipments are all in readiness,
You just display your power and prestige.
If you need anything else,
I will prepare for you as soon as possible."

Kanikai and hero Bakay,
Both encouraged their hero to go.
Leopard's mind was filled with many thoughts,
He remembered sage Koshaoyi,
And his suffering people,
Arrogant hero turned right away,
And went into his yurt and fell into thinking.
The forty warriors,
Were waiting for his order to start off.

Steeds were ready to go,
With silver edged leather and armor on,
The body was wrapped tightly,
Swords could not pierce and knives could not cut,
Even flaming charcoal could not make any hole on it.

Each steed was trained and tamed well,
They were all strong in build and bright in hair,
And were ready to the battlefield at any time.

White-silk feeding bags were eye-catching.
Each steed had extra fodder.

In the season of having foals,
Steeds were fed by horse milk.
When the battle time came,
Steeds were fed with sheep tail fat.
The wheat separated from bran,
Was carried by the spare steeds.
Joybolot sword and spear,
Were folded in the middle,
And carried by strong male camels.
Sarataz was ordered to make preparation,
Packed all stuff in the cases.

Heroes jostled one another,
And came to Kanikai's yurt.
Lion Manas just showed up,
Young Ayidar got into a real flap.
Seeing the hero's serious appearance,
He stood up and greeted immediately,
Legs were out of control,
And the body was shaking.

Manas had never seen Ayidar before:
"Who are you and why are you shaking?"
"I am Ayidar,
Please forgive me!"
When Manas heard the name of Ayidar:
"Catch this servant,
Throw him into fire!"

Let him take one's hat off,
While he was going to cut the person's head[①],

① Let him take one's hat off, while he was going to cut the person's head: Kirgiz use it to describe someone who becomes aggravated.

Bayimat was such a person.
Bayimat and two warriors came up to help,
They pulled Ayidar's legs tightly,
And lifted him up over the fireplace.
Honeysuckles and rose willow were burning,
Which made the fire flaming.
Water drops fell unceasingly,
From Ayidar's breast and waist.

Seeing this, Kanikai was stewed up with anxiety,
She came forward to stop them right away:
"Stop! You such maniacs!"
Ayidar stood up slowly,
Smoke came out from his mouth.

Kanikai went forward,
Saved Ayidar's life:
"My respectable black mane wolf,
Please let me explain to you clearly,
To punish the only son,
Is definitely not right.
Ayidar is his parents' only son,
You are yours' too,
How can you hurt his life!"

Wide tablecloth was spread over,
Eyes were fully filled with the food,
The heroes ate and drank their fill,
Then was ready to start off.

In a hurry,
Kanikai called Erchywuler and Bozwuler to her side,
Asked them to open the door of the storehouse,
And moved a huge wood box out.
Kanikai took out forty shoulder bags,
Handed them over to each warrior:
"Valliant soldiers, please listen to me,

You must take bags and do not complain the weight.
When you get the place where all people gathered,
What in the bags are useful to you.

"For the sake of honor and fame of lion Manas,
Because of uncle Koshaoyi's sacred letter,
I give a bag to each of you.
When merging into crowd for ceremony,
Your same-color steeds and same bags,
Will let you show up your power there.
In each bag,
There are same-color saddles and carpets,
And other harnesses,
All are in the bag.

"Not short for tall soldiers,
Not long for short soldiers,
I watched and observed each of you for a long time,
I know all your size clearly.
I made each of you a suit of clothes.

"Red is the color for the warriors,
White is for the steeds,
Such dresses must be admired by others.
All dresses are in the bags,
And you need tie the bags on the saddles."

Kanikai told Aji Bayi designedly,
Took out a special gift and let him take care of it:
"The ceremony is exceptional,
There must be a lot of surprising contests and matches.
Besides wrestlings on horse and ground,
There will be many other contests.
The wrestling needs special pants,
I made it day and night,
Please put it under your saddle,
That's what the lion must have.

"When the wrestling starts,
This leather pants he needs to wear.
The outer part is made of the skin of goat,
And the lining is made of silk.
If you stretch it, it becomes longer,
If you stop stretching, it goes to normal,
Its name is Kanidahay,
You must remember it."

As soon as Kanikai finished her words,
Manas gave out the order.
"No delay, start off right now!"
The black steed with the white forehead,
Had an armful tail,
Its mane hung down loosely like dark clouds.
Kanikai put the saddle on the steed by herself,
The saddle was made of Manat cloth①,
Which made the saddle splendid.

Ayikoler lion Manas led the troop,
Uncle Bakay was the chief commander,
Eagle Sirak,
And hero Chuwak,
Was following tightly.

Badass Kergelchal,
Beat the drum loud enough to wake the dead.
Forty warriors, like a gust of whirlwind,
All turned out at the same time.
Tails of the heroes' steeds were divided into two parts,
A lock of mane was standing up high.

Heroes were all well-armed with great prestige.
Gunpowder bags were filled full,
Flint bags were hanging at their waists,

① Manat cloth: One kind of soft and thick cloth.

Arrow bags were filled up with arrows.
They took the rope with twelve edges,
And poisoned spear,
The flag was fluttering in the wind, the battleaxes were glittering;
Heroes swung their Buradursen lashes,
Toward the direction of Karkera,
They rushed forward day and night.

Young Ayidar started off in advance,
And he went back to their camp two days earlier.
"Ayikoler has decided to attend the ceremony,
He will arrive today or tomorrow!"
He sent this great news to every one,
Khans were all looking forward in anxiety.

Kunwuer Bayi, Georoy, Niskara,
Bolanchu, Wusan, Muradiler,
The six wild boars drew together,
Began to discuss the countermeasure.
They were all talking in confusion:
"Meat prepared for all guests,
Will be divided up and make them starve;
There are attractive treasures in many Ayinlas,
And full of livestock in the valleys,
We will rob them too,
Anyone who dare to oppose us,
We will kill them just like cutting a watermelon."
They were good at making trouble out of nothing,
They were in collusion with one another,
For the schemes and intrigues.
Then they returned to their own yurts and waited.

Ayikoler Manas and giant Bakay,
Climbed over Tashmoynok hillock,
They watched on the top of the hill.
Karkera had a vast territory,
Troops of Kangayi all stationed there,

Moving like black beetles.
The hero watched with his forward eyes,
Enemies were clashing in every direction,
But Arashi people yielded in humble reverence.

The battle flag of Manas,
Was waving on the top of the hill.
Seeing the bright flag of their hero,
Helpless Khans were all wild in great joy.
They all turned and went forward,
Carrying each other in arms.

Facing this situation,
Bakay Khan said:
"The gift from our Khatun,
Must show its power here.
We ride the same-color steeds,
Let us wear same-color battle gowns!"

Hearing the order of Bakay,
Warriors all ran to their own steeds,
Untied the bags behind the saddles,
And took out all the things in their bags.
Put the carpets on their steeds,
All the steeds were becoming silver;
Warriors wore their suit of clothes,
The red color made them eye-catching.

They looked at each other,
And were excited in making comments.
Same colored steeds were uniform,
They even could not recognize their own ones,
They asked and looked,
Could not find their own steeds,
Scrambled the same steed halter.

"Khatun married our lion, our tiger,

They are perfectly matched,
It is hard to find such a woman in the world,
They are really just made for each other."

Warriors were going to go forward,
As uncle Bakay opened his mouth again:
"Ayikoler Manas, my lion,
No one can compare with your dignity and fame,
When you get in front of all of them,
You should show your respect to Koshaoyi.
For other Khans,
Even when they stretch out their hands to you,
You can ignore them flatly.
Bokmulon lacks wisdom in his head,
Do not be tolerant with Yurbi,
You can teach him a lesson mercilessly.

"If we do not take the edge off their spirit first,
How can we begin our fight with them?
We will act from the expression on his face,
Please remember this in your heart.
Once you give the command,
We will be ready to take action.

"You should be careful to your words,
Do not waste your breath to argue with them;
You cannot descend your dignity,
Just for reasoning things out.
We need let them sense our majesty,
Let them admire us from the heart,
Let enemies be scared out of their wits,
And let them recognize our identity clearly.

"Let them get into a panic as they see you,
Make them lose their wits as seeing your heroic bearing;
Let them worry about their lives,

Let them get in great panic.

"Other things need to be paid attention to,
I will let forty warriors decide."

Heroes loosed at halters,
Without any hesitation.
Lion Manas shipped his steed.
White battle gown was flying in the wind,
Ackura steed galloped with his hooves,
Went forward like the wind.

Ackura was the pride of all steeds,
Its exalted ears kept sticking up,
It galloped away,
Its light gait was hard to compare with any;
If competing in the race track,
It never stumbled.

Let's look at the hero's kingly appearance,
That was the honor god bestowed.
His courage doubled as he rode on Ackura,
People watched aside with high praise.

Giant Kunwuer Bayi and Niskara,
Stopped and watched carefully.
If it was not the majesty of the lion,
They would have robbed everything from ordinary people.

Kunwuer Bayi watched with the utmost concentration,
Niskara observed him carefully.
Kunwuer Bayi and Niskara,
Had never seen lion Manas.
Seeing the great figure of Ayikoler,
They praised and were surprised:

"Manas, we see here,

And the ancient hero Rustam①,
Is like two peas.
His eyes are too deep to be fathomable,
His face is like fried wheat grain②;
If he lose his temper and bristle with anger,
It is just like death Azleyla③descending to the world.

"Look at his shield-like ears,
They are extremely alert and ready to attack.
Anyone who dares to argue with him,
Is definitely facing the failure.
He is as strong as the male camel,
He has a pair of bright piercing eyes,
Which are as glorious as billowy lake.
His eyebrows knit and anger is on his face,
It is as cold as the chilly wind.

"He is such a hero,
No one could compare with him.
Defeating him is some madmen's dream,
It is such a great and correct decision,
To keep serious watch on his birth many years ago."

Niskara praised him repeatedly,
Without finding any of the hero's weak points.
Do not try to find his shortcomings,
Even evaluation for him was not comprehensive.
All giants coming with him together,
Were nervous and uneasy at heart.

As seeing the heroic bearing of the hero,
Kunwuer Bayi began to hatch the plot.

① Rustam: The ancient hero in Turkic legends.

② Face was like fried wheat grain: Wheat grain turns to the color of skin of human and it is shining on the surface after the grain gets fried. Kirgiz folk artists use it as a metaphor to praise warriors' healthy and charming face.

③ Death Azleyla: The hero who killed others in cold blood in folk legends in Turkic language.

Once there was a tiny bit of chance,
He would play a waiting game.

As he was lost in his thought,
Sage Koshaoyi went into his sight.
Koshaoyi and the hero greeted each other,
As cool as a cucumber.

Uncle Koshaoyi opened his mouth,
And expressed his true thoughts:
"Ayikoler Manas,
I have lost my confidence.
I revolved many ideas in my mind,
But still no idea can help us defeat the enemy.
Since I, Koshaoyi, became famous from long ago,
I have never been so embarrassed.

"Meat for serving guests was taken by them,
And it was not enough for greedy Kangayi.
We picked and sent them fat livestock,
But put us in danger instead.
They are not satisfied with the food we sent,
And seek a quarrel deliberately.
Especially that evil Kunwuer Bayi,
He was so malicious,
He did every evil,
And asked for our Manikair steed① shamelessly.

"Right at this critical moment,
I sent Ayidar to invite you,
Because it was in a hurry,
The letter was not clear to be understood."

Khan Koshaoyi was crowning majesty,

① Manikair steed: It was Kokotoy's horse. After Kokotoy died, according to the rules, only his son Bokmulon could ride it. If others asked for it, it was the insult of personality and infringement of rights to the dead and his heir.

He was never insulted and challenged like this,
He was wrathful with tears full in his eyes,
With his voice choked hard.

"My uncle, I have known your difficulty,
Manikair steed of Kazakh Khan,
Cannot be presented to Karamark!
Karamark raised such an unreasonable demand,
They should eat up the shit!
They forced you to present Manikair steed,
How can Karamark be the master of the steed?
They asked for Manikair steed,
Do they plan to marry their daughter to us?

"They can get valuable gifts when they ask for casually,
How can Arashi people so inept?
They try to take away Manikair by force,
What kind of giant is Kunwuer Bayi?
Aisanhan took it as an excuse,
Does it mean Bokmulon is not qualified to ride the steed?
That famous Aisanhan,
In what way is he more respected than Bokmulon?
Where do those bastards station now?"
Angry sparks were shining in the eyes of Manas.

"Now it is the time."
Yurbi thought a little while and opened his mouth:
"Hero, how are you?"
Just after he finished his words,
Hubbub of noise was coming.

"What is happening there?"
Hero Manas asked right away.
"That is the noise Karamark made,
When they are jostling meat."
Yurbi answered Manas.

Hearing this,
Flames of fury sparked in the eyes of Manas:
"It is better to die right now,
Rather than being such a Khan.
How can you tell me,
It is Karamark coming to jostle our meat,
You such a shameless bastard!"
Manas lifted his Buledursun whip,
Lashed toward Yurbi brutally.
The whip fell on Yurbi's face,
Blood covered his face immediately.

Loud-mouthed Karamark people,
Jostled meat in the pot like wild bees,
They took willow forks in their hands,
Went forward like a wriggled snake.
They took willow sticks in their hands,
Stepped forward with vigorous strides.

Leopard Manas clouded with great anger,
Severe-looking was on his face.
The loud and angry shout of the lion,
Reached a distance a horse could go in one breath:
"Are you coming for the ceremony,
Or just reveal yourselves when you are faint with hunger?
If a householder has no ability to manage a household,
The wrangling guest would probably rob the place of the host.
This is the saying our ancestors have handed down,
It gets proved today.
If you are coming for the ceremony,
Please keep your dignity.
If you have other attempts,
Please explain clearly here today.

"I will not leave it alone,
I will not care about my own life either.
If Kangayi makes me angry,

I will let flames of war burn up!"

The shout of Manas was earthshaking,
And shocked everyone at presence.

Magical Buledursun whip,
Was held tightly in his hand.
He lashed left and right,
Toward the group of Karamark who robbed us,
And scared the shit out of them.
Forty warriors followed closely,
And showed their power to Karamark.

Hearing the shout of the lion,
Karamark dodged and ran away,
Like sheep encountering wolves,
They stepped aside and made a pass in the middle.
"Arashi stand at one side,
And Karamark at the other side!"
Manas was so angry,
He lashed his whip unceasingly,
Chased and drove them,
To the bottom of Kaitechy cliff.

Such insult was impossible to bear,
Illustrious Kunwuer Bayi,
Gave a leap and landed himself on the saddle of the horse.
Tricky Niskara held the halter,
And said to Kunwuer Bayi:
"Hero Kunwuer Bayi,
Please do not get angry.
They invited us to the ceremony,
But we could hardly wait to jostle their meat,
And provoked such trouble.

"Any action is out of the rules and custom,
Manas never regards other's feelings and face.

Face of Khan Yurbi,
Was lashed split with blood all over.
In order to deal with the disturbance,
He lifted his whip to Arashi first,
Then fixed the order,
And drove us to the bottom of Kaitechy cliff.

"We need to wait for the right chance,
To battle it out."
Niskara held back the halter of Alekala steed,
And made suggestions to Kunwuer Bayi.

Kokotoy's son Bokmulon,
Whipped his steed to run faster,
His tear continued running down his cheeks,
Before Manas made the stop,
He expressed his regret:
"If the basic judgment and decision is wrong,
A lot of unexpected things will happen.
I invited guests beyond my ability,
Which caused Karamark's turning out in full strength.

"Before you and your warriors came,
They did not take me as the host.
Under the despotic power of Karamark,
I have presented Niskara, Georoy,
And Kunwuer Bayi,
Six fine steeds,
Six camels,
And countless gold and silver for each of them.

"They insulted me with their noses in the air,
Attempted to forcibly occupy my wife Guli Ayim,
And took away my Manikair steed.
They thought Arashi was weak and not competent,
They could act on their own will.
Kokotoy's wealth was piled up like mountains,

They were so greedy that wanted to occupy all.

"Yurbi and Koshaoyi did not know,
I opened the storehouse last night,
Took out countless gold and silver,
Put on camels and presented to them again.

"Ayikoler Manas, please listen to me,
Even though he took Manikair steed away,
We expected we could be alive,
Though our lives are as fragile as that of the ants.
However they wanted us to disappear like ash,
They will catch every Arashi at the ceremony,
To be their slave!

"Damned maniac Kunwuer Bayi,
Doesn't he make his heart's content?
He is not a usual person,
Heroes in the world can hardly shake his position.
He is like a mystic mountain,
And a gangster you'd better not provoke."

"You are such a poor guy,
Why don't you know your ability and be cautious?
Continue to host your father's ceremony,
I, Manas, do not enjoy undeserved reputation.
Take the steed away from my hand,
He has no such ability."

Giant Manas was boiling with rage,
Turned the head of his steed to the ground stove.
He ordered others to act right away,
To build the ground stove again,
And asked people to kill horses and sheep again.
Khans came and gathered,
Crowded round lion Manas.

Manas spoke to all Khans:
"Khans present, please listen to me carefully.
Please count clearly the number of the guests,
No matter he is friend or enemy.
Karkela prairie is vast,
It is boundless with no hills;
You should take care of your livestock,
And guard your steeds carefully.
If you are lazy and lie in your yurt,
Your steed will not be safe.
If you lose your steed,
No one will listen to your excuse.
A clever soldier,
Will make things difficult for you.
Hot-blooded young men,
Do not indulge yourself and make mistakes.

"When they come to make trouble,
We will give them head-on blows.
Do not indulge yourselves in the joy of the ceremony,
You should be cautious at any time,
Even at night you should be awake,
And watch around carefully."
Ayikoler gave out his orders,
Each word was reasonable.

Next morning, meat was ready in the pot,
And being distributed in order;
Carring the plates of meat according to the rules,
Every one was satisfied;
People who had no meat to eat for two days,
Were full finally at this moment.

Let us put this one aside,
To see the entertainment and competition in the ceremony,
Those exciting situations,
Would make you have a lifelong memory.

Athletic Activities in the Ceremony

Elaman's son Erchywuler,
Made forty knots on his cotton belt.
Red tassels were decorated on the top of his round-cap,
He had a ready tongue and a quick mind.

Kokotoy's son Bokmulon,
Presented him nine livestock headed by camel;
Nine gorgeous costumes,
Made of silk and brocades;
And a lot of clanking gold and silver.
"Before guests leave,
You display your talents to them with abandon,
And announce to the guests,
All the activities that will be held here."

Erchywuler pressed the steed with his legs,
Rushed out of the crowd;
Young Ayidar right followed him,
Ayidar was full of life too.
Erchywuler rode on Kelanboz① steed,
Ayidar rode on Kulanboz② steed.

Talented singer Erchywuler had good lungs,
His spontaneous singing was like he remembered lyrics well,
No matter how he changed the singing way,
The lyrics were running out like sparks;

① Kelanboz: It means dark red steed in Kirgiz language.
② Kulanboz: It means cinereous steed in Kirgiz language.

"All the people who attend the ceremony,
Please listen carefully.
Guests came from everywhere,
All should start off early tomorrow morning.
Competitions will start soon,
Please prepare your horses well.

"The first place in the horse race,
Will be granted a reward of two hundred kilogram gold,
It is sure in full weight.
The rider who gets the first place,
Will become very rich soon.

"Even the last place can get a hundred foals as reward,
It will be carried out right away according to the rules.
Don't think I am speaking at random,
It is a promise from Khan Manas."

Erchywuler announced loudly,
All people heard clearly.
He expressed all this with his singing,
Khans heard and were happy in the heart.

People ran around spreading the news happily,
All horses for the race were tamed,
Heroes watched Ackura steed carefully,
It needed one more day to tame.
How could they deal with it at this moment?

In Khan Koshaoyi's tribe,
There was a warrior named Narmart.
He guarded horses for a long time,
He could tame the wild horses well.
Kanikai sent out the messenger,
To pick Narmart up to the ceremony.
Narmart's face was full of smiles as he saw Ackura,
He was happy as if he got a grandson.

"Though there is only one day to tame the steed,
It will not stop Ackura from winning the first prize;
Among all the horses attending the race,
Ackura must be the one that gets to the finishing point first.

"Look at its wide breast,
It will not be out of breath when goes up the hill;
Look at its strong rump,
It will not feel tired when goes down the hill.
The steed is too perfect to find any fault,
Our hero is supremely fortunate.

"It must not be fed by fodder,
We need make it perspire heavily.
Let it drink enough spring water,
And cover with a light felt when it is sweating,
Then pull it to the breezy hill.
Let it stroll the whole night on prairie.
It is right six days,
To get to the starting point of the race,
That is just enough time to tame it well.
Fine steeds for the race,
Must be left far behind soon.
That prize of two hundred kilograms of gold,
Must be put on his steed!"

After hearing Narmart's words,
Kanikai gave a relieved smile:
"My brother Narmart,
Please tame the steed by yourself;
I will give you two warriors,
Let them help you finish your mission."
Boguwuler and Baymart,
Were appointed as Narmart's assistants.
Kanikai put the halter of Ackura,
Into the hand of Narmart.

Kanikai was tossing and turning in bed,
She got up and went out three times,
To see the condition of Ackura,
She could not let her eyes closed,
And go to sleep when she was worried.

Erchywuler announced with his song,
That let all racing steeds go to the starting point.
Tall and strong Ackura steed,
Was handed to Koyualer to ride.
He was the only son of Kokboru,
He was clever and outstanding.

"One wisdom can be better than another,
Eyes are the windows of the heart;
White eyes and black eyes,
There must be some bad guys.
Look at Niskara,
He shows a cunning and evil appearance."
Kanikai felt anxious and fearful,
So she said to Manas like this.

Karacha's daughter Kerz Sayikali,
Rode a light brown mare,
It was an unusual steed.
"The girl who wears her hair in forty braids,
Is more exalted than others."
Competitors declined politely with each other,
Then they put her steed in the front.

Giant Georoy's steed Achybudan,
Was right after hers.
Khan Koshaoyi's steed Totoru,
Was standing at the third position.
Niskara's light maroon steed,
Was right after Totoru,
It was also a famous fine steed,

It won every time in horse race.

Behind Niskara,
It was Chalkuyruk steed of Airtoshtuk.
Muradiler's blue steed,
Was right after it.
Bozteltek's steed,
Was a gray one with red lower jaw,
It stood beside them.
Hero Kokcher's black and white steed,
Bolanchu's tall maroon steed,
And Kokboru's dark maroon steed,
Were just standing behind.

Ackura was standing at the tenth position,
People were so confused about this,
Why Ayikoler let his steed participate in the race,
Question mark was in everyone's mind.

Cunning Kunwuer Bayi,
Told others he would ride his own steed,
And did not let Alekala enter the race.

"Manikair should be used to monitor,
If any steed is found to break the rules,
No matter which side it belongs to,
It should be shifted out of the race.
Any steed wins will get good prize,
If Manikair does not get first place,
It should give up the prize."
Erchywuler announced like this,
All people came for the ceremony,
Heard clearly and put the words in their hearts.

Ketay wore red tassel,
Karamark wore black tassel,
Heroes headed by Niskara,

All came to the side of Manas:
"Please uphold the justice, hero Manas,
If Manikair enters the competition,
We do not need to waste our time,
We just give up the race and remove the saddle.

"Your Manikair,
Everyone knows it has wings and bronze lungs.
If bird competes with it,
The bird cannot catch up with it.
How could animals with four legs,
Compete with it?"
Their request was accepted,
Manikair could not compete in the race,
It only could drive the horses and monitor the order.

Right at this moment,
Erchywuler began to sing:
"There are totally six thousand horses in the race,
Please look at the starting point carefully,
The race will pass Yili,
And need steeds climb over Siber hill.
Sentries should stand high on mountains,
To watch the whole process of the race.
Steeds need sixteen days to get to the starting point,
And then wait four days there;
After the starting praying,
Even Steeds gallop on their hooves as fast as they can,
They still need five days to get here.

"The side of Siber is the downhill,
Please recognize your own steed then cheer for them.
If anyone who can be the judge of knowing the way,
Please come out and get ready;
If there is any rider gets lost at night,
You should give him the right guide."

There were a lot could be the judge,
Six people came out and stood in lines.
These volunteer judges,
Were ordered and coordinated by Showtu.

Guests were from all directions,
There were totally a hundred and forty tribes,
Selected equally from each tribe,
One thousand and five hundred people were chosen,
Ayidar was appointed to lead them,
And drive the racing horses to the starting point.

All steeds for the race had left,
Made sand rise up in the sky.
Arashi people began to prepare,
They erected a high post,
At the place of ingot-shooting.

Round timbers were bound tightly,
One after another;
Deep hole was dug on the ground,
Post for hanging the ingot was erected.
The post was as high as the sky,
It was a thousand and fifty-five arm span long.
On the beam of the post top,
Were seventy-two woolen ropes,
Which were hanging the ingots on.

Every thing was prepared well,
Competitors of shooting arrows came up.
All things were ready,
A lot of interesting things need to be singing.

People set out from Ayinla,
And finally gathered at the race site.
Kokotoy's blue flag,
Was flying in the center of the site as a symbol.

Great number of Arashi,
Came to both sides of the race site;
Other Khans' people also gathered,
A sea of people was like rolling waves.

All great archers,
Gathered at Kokotoy's ceremony,
The rich prizes attracted every one:
"Any one who shoot the ingot off,
Can get the ingot as a gift,
And also get nine dromedaries with carrying bags,
Nine selected steeds,
Nine mink coats for showing your identity,
And a hundred colorful splendid clothes."

In order to get these prizes,
Khans and ordinary people gathered together.
Ordinary people, honorable Khans,
And brave warriors all arrived.

Kunwuer Bayi came first,
With his one thousand attendants;
Among one thousand archers,
Zhoykara was the most famous one.

When heard Zhoykara arrived,
People all discussed animatedly:
"If Zhoykara enters the game,
There is no need to compete,
Kunwuer Bayi can get the prize without surprise."

Hearing the discussions,
A prepared plot was coming to Kunwuer Bayi's mind:
"At the horse race yesterday,
I stopped Manikair to enter the race successfully;
Today I should try my best,
To stop Almanbet out of the shooting site."

Let ideas be revolved in his mind for a while,
Then he began his talking:
"Please listen carefully,
His name is not Zhoykara but Sipshaydar;
Among you Arashi people,
Sorandik's son Almanbet,
Is his fellow apprentice of the same master.
They are on guard against each other,
They hide themselves in you.
The competition of shooting ingot,
Should stop both of them."

Sipshaydar and Almanbet,
The fellow apprentices of the same master,
Were pushed out of the game,
They felt helpless even they had super skills,
They had to watch others competing out of the site.

It was a great chance to show,
Kunwuer Bayi was full of confidence,
Gunpowder was filled full in the firelock.
He sat on the gold saddle of Karamark style,
Moved his hips and leaned to one side,
Made a shot out of his firelock,
Seventy ropes for hanging the ingots,
Were shot half and swung in the air.
The one thousand attendants,
Were all itching to have a try,
Some lifted their firelocks,
Some took the bows and were ready to shoot,
They whipped the horses and shot on their will,
No one did not miss the target.

Koshaoyi got the chance to shoot,
He took his one thousand attendants.
He took the aim with his attendants,
But they all missed.

Niskara came into the site with his attendants,
They looked majestic in their fully armed set.
Arrows shot out like raindrops,
Sparks were full in the sky;
They ran through like the flood,
They missed the target too.

All Khans rushed on to the front,
To shoot one by one,
The noise of firelock shooting continued,
Smoke covered the sky as the thick fog.
All confident heroes,
Went to prove themselves.

Until all others made their shoot,
The black mane wolf whipped his steed,
And raised his Ackelaty firelock:
"Uncle Bakay tried in every possible way,
And presented me this Ackelaty firelock;
It was made by lame artisan Bolicbye,
He polished it shinning.
He told me face to face:
Carry Ackelaty firelock on my shoulder,
It is the highest honor.
Shooting with Ackelaty firelock,
Is a great delight and enjoyment.
Heard this my blood was boiling,
Now it is the time to sing the song of victory."

Like going to the bloody battlefield,
The hero wore his white silk battle gown,
Raised his Ackelaty firelock,
Aimed at the shining ingot,
Pressed the steed to go forward fast.
Watched what the hero was doing,
People stepped aside from the middle,

The lion whipped his steed,
Rushed forward like the wind:
He let go the halter of the gray and white steed,
His agile body sucked on the saddle,
Opened his eyes wide, he triggered the firelock,
Thick smoke sprayed out of the firelock;
Bullet was shot out and the earth was shaken,
The crowd burst into cheers,
The joyful shouts went up to the sky with the smoke.

Seventy ropes for hanging ingots,
Half was shot down by Kunwuer Bayi,
The other half was shot down by the lion.

The gray and white steed galloped its hooves,
Rushed forward like the wind;
Before the ingot fell on the ground,
Hero Manas had already caught it in his hand.
His superb action,
Made others excited and admired.
People shouted "Prize" and came up,
Hero distributed all prize to others.

While the shooting game was on,
Baldheads also began their competition,
The game of hot sheep lung patting head was on.
The prizes for this game,
Nearly all went into Baymart's hand.
Kunwuer Bayi's attendants,
Even did not get the prize of this game,
That made him so angry.

Erchywuler took his time,
Mounted on his horse and came,
Lifted up his voice and sang,
Told the following games to all:
"Never get tired when waving the hammers,

Never get slack when facing troubles,
The waist is as flexible as a willow twig,
And can withstand the burning of summer sun;
Run in the hot desert,
And never feel thirsty and short of breath.
Please let such heroes show their faces,
Let every one appreciate your graceful bearing."

Khan Kunwuer Bayi and Niskara,
Understood the content through the interpreter.
Without any hesitation,
In order to defeat Arashi people,
They began to look for the heroes among their people.
Aoronko from Kangayi,
Was a warrior who never feared difficulty;
He was a commander under Aisanhan,
Administered Kara Ketay tribe.

Niskara came up,
Said to Aoronko like this:
"In Kara Ketay tribe,
You are the representative for Aisanhan.
You only know point your fingers at others,
All competitions we are fallen behind,
We lose our face in front of all.
Kara Ketay people recommend you unanimously,
To go and compete in the wrestling game.
You are growing old,
This is the best time for us to see your prestige."

Kunwuer Bayi and Georoy,
Heartily agreed with what Niskara said.
Aoronko could not decline but go and compete.

He wore the iron waist belt,
And Brume leather pants.
That was a pair of magical pants,

When you stretched it could become longer,
When you released it could go back,
It was changing surprisingly.
He was naked to the waist,
Went to the site like a black mountain,
He sat in the center of the site.

Look at his strong arms and legs,
They were like towering phoenix tree;
Upper lip trooped,
Lower lip hung below,
Two nipples were hanging,
Like being sucked by two calves;
Two cheeks were bulging,
As two babies were shaking there.

Faced with this strong guy,
People dare not lift head to watch him.
Many self-glorifying heroes,
Eyed each other speechlessly and lost their courage.
The bastard sat in the site,
Did not put anyone in his eyes.

Unstoppable hero Manas,
Gathered all heroes together,
For Khans who did not come,
He sent messengers to invite them,
No one was absent,
All heroes were gathered together.

"Koshaoyi, we need to choose the right person,
To compete with our rivals.
Weak people cannot go,
Do not lose our face,
Never make yourself lie on the wrestling site;
People who speak highly of themselves cannot go,
Such people cannot defeat their rivals!

My respectable uncle,
Please choose carefully;
No matter which hero you will choose,
Do not yield to him but make the best use of the time."

Hearing the black mane wolf's words,
Uncle Koshaoyi opened his mouth:
"Turn the horse head to me."
His steed was in the horse race,
So he pulled to himself,
The maroon steed of Tolukeman.
Uncle mounted on the horse,
His beard floated in the wind as white as snow;
More than sixty heroes there,
Were shocked by what they saw.

"I will go and see warrior Burut."
Niskara rushed in the front to challenge.

"For this wrestling competition,
Hero Toshtuk, it's time for you to compete,
Do you have any opinion?"
Uncle asked Toshtuk.

"I have no problem, as you let me go,
I am not afraid and my legs will not be weak.
I lived underground for seven years,
I went on expeditions from east to west,
Killed seventy giants;
For the honor I fought by my own,
No one fought together with me.
I return to man's world,
No more than seven months;
I only had one drop of blood then,
Now the bruised muscle did not recover.
If I am thrown down by Aoronko,
It will make me regret the whole life."

"What the hero said is right."
So he was not chosen.

Uncle Koshaoyi continued,
Came in front of Ayihan's son Kokboru:
"Aoronko is provoking in the game site,
Can you go and compete with him?"
"My uncle, do not blame me,
I cannot go,
That wild boar will eat people,
I do not have enough courage to fight with him,
I got a shot on my arm before,
If I compete this time beyond my ability,
I am afraid I will lose your face."

"If your arm was broken,
You must lose in the game."
Koshaoyi urged his steed,
Passed through him quickly.

Ayidarhan's son Kokcher,
Was famous for his martial skills.
"My honorable child Kokcher,
You should show your braveness.
It's time for you to contest with Aoronko,
And bring us the news of victory."

Kokcher answered him in this way:
"You are our senior and sage,
I have spit out the blood for three years,
My lungs have serious illness;
I will not go to contest even I am healthy,
He is the person as brutal as a wild beast,
Who dare to compete with him?

"Aoronko is renowned far and wide,
I did not see and heard lot about it.

My uncle Koshaoyi,
I am really sick and cannot go."

"You are disabled with only a half lung,
But I know nothing about it before."
As Koshaoyi passed,
He saw hero Ark Bayi.
He was a seventeen years old young man,
He had mighty look and handsome appearance.
Koshaoyi stopped in front of him and asked:
"My child, would you like to contest with Aoronko?"

"You ask me to go, I should go without hesitation,
If I am capable, I can defeat him.
However, if I fall down under his feet,
It will put an end to my future.
I have not grown up yet,
Who will undertake my regret for the life?"

Koshaoyi praised him after hearing his words:
"Young Ark Bayi is unusual,
He is a real hero.
Niskara observed him carefully a couple of days ago,
Found he is physically exhausted because of his marriage.
What Niskara said is totally right,
All his muscles and bones are not fully grown.
And he does not cherish his health at all,
Now he is weak and lacks spirit."

"Judge and criticize every one,
No one can be qualified for the fight;
To deal with hero like Aoronko,
Only Koshaoyi can be a matched rival to him.
My respectable uncle Koshaoyi,
Whether he himself likes to go and fight."
Black mane wolf Manas thought in his mind,
Whipped his horse and stopped in front of Koshaoyi:

"My respectable uncle,
Could you have been frightened by Aoronko,
Half day has passed,
Why does no warrior like to go and fight?

"I want to do it by myself,
But I am not sure whether it meets the rules.
From I was born till now,
I had never fought with others on my feet.
If that guy comes out on his steed,
I must go and fight with him.
Aoronko is around your age,
I think only you can be an unbeatable rival to him."

Heard leopard Manas' words,
Koshaoyi felt the begging tone in the words.
He did not say he could not go,
But walked forward by watching in front and behind.
His fellows all came up to him,
And put on clothes and rolled up sleeves for him.
"I have two requests,
Black mane wolf, you need keep in your heart.
It doesn't matter I go to wrestling game.
But my wife is not good at needlework,
She did not make a suitable leather pants for me.
Young people all shirk from going,
Now you, leopard, ask me in person,
I have no reason to shirk.

"My only worry is that if he pulls hard,
My pants will be torn apart,
Then I only can sit on the ground to hide my shame.
There are some old wounds on my waist,
They are aging but still creak from time to time;
Please send me five to six young men,
To do the massage for me.
If the nip in my body cannot be dispelled,

It will still hide somewhere in my body,
Please remember clearly,
What I am going to say.

"If that Karamark holds my waist,
Shook it left and right like shaking the yoke,
That will relieve the pain on my waist,
It will make me comfortable and happy,
And I will close my eyes to fall asleep;
You cannot let him throw me down,
And step on my head at this moment.

"When I am going to fall asleep,
Your shout should come as a thunder,
Maybe at such critical moment,
What man need is the alertness.
My eagle,
You must remember,
Do not forget stretch out your spear,
To stab me hard."

Right at this moment,
Kokcher rode on a steed calmly,
Came to the front of Koshaoyi,
With his flowered yellow long pants on.
Ark Elkechy was a handy and clever lady.
Uncle Koshaoyi had already heard this before,
So asked Kokcher for borrowing his leather pants.

"If we can meet your need,
We would like to do everything!"
Kokcher took off his leather pants,
Handed it to Koshaoyi politely.

Koshaoyi touched the pants and said:
"Stretching it one or two times is fine,
But it will be torn to the third time;
The leather was over tanned a little,

It is too soft now."
Uncle began to put on the pants as he was talking,
His legs were in but he still pulled them up,
When the pants waist reached his hips,
It could not go up any more.

"Please pull it harder."
Kokcher came up,
Helped him pull the pants up.
The pants was finally pulled up,
But a hole was clawed at the crotch of the pants.
Kokcher felt so embarrassed,
His face blushed with shame and hid in the side.

Black mane wolf remembered suddenly,
The leather pants Kanikai made.
He turned back and asked Aji Bayi:
"Is my leather pants still here?"
A light broke in upon Aji Bayi,
He took out the pants under the saddle.
Manas came up to Koshaoyi excitedly,
He held the kanidahay pants like a shield:
"My uncle, please try this pants."

Koshaoyi gazed at the pants,
The pants was totally different from any other one,
It was so shiny that dazzled eyes of all.
Koshaoyi observed it again and again,
The handwork was exquisite.
Koshaoyi was so delighted with it,
And began to put it on.
Two legs were already in,
When it went up to the crotch,
It could not go up to the waist any more.
Seeing this Manas shouted loudly:
"Go and get Kanikai here soon!"
Anger was showing on his face,

Eyes were burning with fire.

Kanikai walked with a light step,
Came to the side of the hero soon.
She covered her beautiful face with her scarf,
To avoid all the people there,
She was afraid of the reproach of others.
He did not want to show up there,
Because of lion's calling of her,
She came reluctantly to the front of all.

Manas said to her in depression:
"You praised highly to the pants,
I presented it without any hesitation…"
His wife interrupted the hero's blame,
Looked at Koshaoyi and said:
"I have known before what will happen now,
I know uncle is going to wear it,
I made especially for him.
I worried lion would question me,
So I sewed the edge tightly inside,
It is very sturdy.
Lion, please try to pull it,
Then pour your blame to me."

The leopard was already in great fury,
His heart was surging with anger;
He wanted to tear the pants of one mind,
He would never bear it.
Aji Bayi took over the leather pants,
Manas held the pants legs tightly in his hands,
Pulled to both sides hard,
He did not hear the noise of tearing,
The pants surprisingly went longer and wider.
Seeing this,
Bakay urged his horse to Manas,
He was excited and took over the pants,

Gave it to Koshaoyi by himself.

Uncle Koshaoyi put on the pants again,
It was just the right size for him;
Seeing the pants of the perfect size,
Kanikai's eyes ran over with tears,
Turned round and wiped her tears.

"How many wives do you have?"
Koshaoyi asked Manas.
"I married a Karacha woman,
Married a Karamark girl.
Then married a woman from Buhara,
Totally married three ladies.
The woman from Buhara,
Is the one who made the pants."

Koshaoyi said after hearing this:
"If she is a Buhara girl,
She must be in the same clan with me.
When my uncle Onuzdo was alive,
There were three rich men,
They said Buhara was their own land,
They moved to there with twenty thousand attendants.
My great lion,
You were born under a lucky star.

"My light, take off your scarf,
Lean forward to me.
From the time you get married till now,
Do not you ever get pregnant?"

Kanikai lifted her scarf,
Showed her face to Koshaoyi;
Crossed her hands in the front,
Bowed and gave a salute to show the respect.

Uncle Koshaoyi said with certainty:
"Any brilliant and respectable person,
Has his weak points and regrets;
Kanikai has a twisted life,
But she is the proud of all female.
She is with noble disposition,
She is a clever lady,
And an intelligent and courageous heroine.
She is the handy one among long hair ladies,
She is the most innocent one among long dress ladies,
She is absolutely the queen of all ladies.

"Her hair at back neck was so soft,
She will suffer more in her coming life.
Hair on the top of her head was also too soft,
What a pity she cannot have a baby.
Happiness she can get,
Is much less than what she will suffer.

"She is the most handy one in ladies,
And she is a descendant of an honorable Khan,
Only problem is her high cheekbones,
Will bring her endless sufferings.

"She is tall and beautiful,
After the lion leaving,
Her happy life ends;
Although she will live a long life,
Her sufferings excel her happiness.
Except this misfortune,
She is like a fairy maiden from the heaven."

Heard the prediction of her life,
Kanikai looked extremely worried with tears:
"I prayed I could have a son,
I hope your wish can come true,
Let me have a son one day…"

Kanikai's sorrow tears,
Made every one present upset,
No matter who saw her look,
Would shed their tears of sympathy.

Koshaoyi also could not take it,
All his muscles were hurt:
"Please retie your scarf,
Your life is pitiful.
I will pray for you sincerely,
Pray you can have a son."
Koshaoyi knew the secret of the pants,
Praised Kanikai for her sewing skills.
He hung the belt on his neck,
And prayed for Kanikai.

Arashi from all sixty tribes,
Lifted up their hands.
"What happened?
Kangayi people raised their hands confusedly,
Bent tips of their fingers a little to pray.

Koshaoyi's wish came true right away,
He himself saw it clearly too.
Uncle with the magical power,
Gazed at what was happening in front of him,
A gust of fog raised in front of Kanikai,
The colorful fog raised slowly from the ground,
Then revolved up into the sky,
Became into burning flames.

Uncle became happy,
And said to Manas:
"Congratulations, my lion,
I wish eagle can stop on your eagle frame.
This spoiled only son,
You just name him Semtay.

You will have a son soon,
I wish he can live longer,
Wish he can have a long life."
Uncle prayed for Kanikai heart and soul,
Kanikai thanked him and left with great joy.

Lion Manas opened his mouth:
"Gulidur's son Arabye,
Serik and Kutunay,
You three are strong and energetic,
Please massage your uncle's waist."

Koshaoyi lay on his stomach,
Three young men did massage on his waist.
"Oh, my children,
Please stand on my back,
Step on my back hard."
These young men exchanged their glances,
Then stamped on his back together.

Uncle's back was wide and flat,
Like a prairie,
Uncle felt a pain in the chest,
Three young men stepped unceasingly.

"Why are they so light,
Like insects?
You, young men,
Do not be lazy, you need sweat!"
Uncle's shouting was earthshaking,
Aji Bayi and Majik came up,
Five heroes stepped on his back.

Niskara came up to them at the moment:
"Will you stamp the old man to death,
Then give him to us?"
Hearing these words,

Koshaoyi jumped up from the ground,
Then rushed forward silently,
And stood in the center of the wrestling area.

Aoronko sat in the wrestling area,
And cursed Koshaoyi,
With the worst words:
"Koshaoyi, you move so slowly,
You have wasted a lot of time;
You look back continually,
Which god are you waiting for?
Since Khan Manas gave the order,
You cannot choose not to come.
When you hear my name, Aoronko,
Do you feel nervous and flustered?
Does your spirit go out of your body?
Death is in the front,
The way of being alive is cut."

Aoronko blew his own horn loudly,
Uncle Koshaoyi responded him calmly:
"I am not worried about your shameless boast,
I do not know when you became so brave.
You are under other's roof for years,
How can you say such words!
You are around my age,
When you were thirty years old,
Why did not you show,
Such braveness?

"Are you really so brave and strong,
Or do I see nothing of life?
We fought hand to hand for six times,
Which time did you win me?
Do you remember in every fight,
You did flee in panic?
If you can remember your past,

You would not talk widely here today.

"On the battle field of the river Nalun,
I knocked you off from your steed.
You walked on air since you became the commander,
How could you forget all your past.
You such a bastard,
How you can be wildly arrogant now!"

Aoronko stood up and rolled up his sleeves,
He was ready to challenge Koshaoyi.
Uncle Koshaoyi strode forward,
There is no room for him to forbear.
They tangled with their stretching arms and legs,
Their arms twisted together.
Chest was against chest,
Legs supported their body.

The two giants grappled with each other,
Twisted each other hard.
Lifted the other one,
Threw him one-arrow away.
Attacking and counterattacking with loud shouting,
Lives were at the edge of destroying.
Both hands clasped each other's waist tightly,
A gust of wind came with their revolving.
Threw the rival away,
But got to his side at next second.
They fought day and night,
Countless candles and lights were burned.

Uncle Koshaoyi was old but vigorous,
He roared loudly sometime,
And kept silent the other time.
Flying dirt around them,
Was mixed with their sweat into the mud.

Seeing the situation of fighting to the death,
Many self-glorified heroes,
Were smelling the death near them;
Sweat covered all over them,
Like endless raindrops.
Heroes not in the wrestling,
Who could be more courageous than them?
Khans chose shrewd brained warriors,
Sent them to get more information.

Two heroes fought without stop,
Blue veins stood out on their arms,
They pulled and pushed in full strength,
Beard waved in the air,
Body knocked body.

The ground stepped on by them,
Was like the field ploughed;
It was totally a mess on the ground,
There was no mark of grass under their feet;
On the hard surface of the ground,
There was a sound of spring running.
People opened their eyes wide and watched,
They still could not tell who would win.

Under the pressing of Aoronko,
Uncle's waist did not hurt at all,
It made him comfortable and happy.
At this comfortable moment,
Sleeping insects found Koshaoyi,
Upper eyelids fought with lower eyelids,
He had no way to expel them away.
In the evening,
Uncle Koshaoyi could not resist any more,
He embraced his rival and fell asleep.

"The bastard has been troubled by his sleep!"

Aoronko shouted and surprised with great joy,
He roared and lifted Koshaoyi over his head.

As giant Georoy saw it,
He rolled a yurt-size rock,
In front of Niskara and Kunwuer.

Aoronko held old Koshaoyi over his head,
Walked around for displaying his strength,
He span his rival over his head,
Tried to throw Koshaoyi on the rock,
Make Koshaoyi die on that huge rock.

Right at this critical moment,
What Koshaoyi said resounded at his ears,
The lion whipped black steed Karakarman,
Rushed forward without hesitation,
Shouted loudly for calling attention:
"Koshaoyi, you should hold tightly!"
No matter how loudly he shouted,
Koshaoyi was still in deep sleep.

In order to wake the hero,
Manas whipped his horse and waved his spear,
Stabbed the spearhead toward Koshaoyi's thigh,
A hole with flesh and skin came on the thigh.

Koshaoyi opened his sleepy eyes now,
Seeing the huge rock in front of him,
He was awoken immediately.
If he was not awoken in time,
He would have been thrown on the rock and died.

Muscle stabbed by the spear made him painful,
Blood ran out like spring water.
Uncle opened his eyes and watched,
Tried his best to grab his rival tightly,

Then made himself stand on the ground.

As soon as legs landed,
He carried Aoronko over his shoulder,
Over his head without extra trouble,
And threw his rival behind him.

Seventy-four years old man,
Showed his power and strength.
He turned back,
Strode over the head of his rival,
And kicked the Aoronko's head hard.

Seeing what happened in front of him,
Kunwuer Bayi took the chance to kick up a fuss:
"Heroes can be thrown off and knocked down,
What is the rule to stride over the head?
If striding over the head is unintentional,
How about kicking the head?
You, Brute people,
Do you have such rules?"

Facing Kunwuer Bayi's entanglement,
Ayikoler had to respond:
"Two heroes are wrestling,
It is normal they hate each other;
Break arms, break legs,
No one will really care.
You such Karamark,
Why do you make trouble out of it?

"Aoronko and Koshaoyi are similar in age,
They are both over seventy years old,
They have few things to yearn,
For an exhausted old man,
It is normal his legs touch his rival by accident,
Why are you trying to make troubles?

I do not intend to strive for supremacy,
Do you want to have a contest with me?
I will stay down with you at any time!"

The hero rebuked Kunwuer Bayi angrily,
Turned round and announced loudly to the public:
"We cannot be stirred up by Kunwuer Bayi,
We still need to choose the warriors by each side,
And let the game continue.
Kunwuer Bayi likes to kick up a row,
Since I am here, you all can be at ease."

Kunwuer Bayi could not put out his fury,
He did not dare to contest with this Kirgiz hero either,
He racked his brains for ideas to deal with,
Eyes lost the past brightness.

No one asked his condition,
He lost his mind in a worry,
Like got a shot from rival's arrow,
He turned the head of his horse and stepped aside.

Uncle Koshaoyi defeated Aoronko,
He won the prize and honor.
At the year of his seventy four,
He went on to the wrestling site bravely,
His earthshaking behavior,
Was passed on generation after generation.

Uncle Koshaoyi smiled,
And said to the public generously:
"No matter how many prizes I get,
I will share with all of you,
The lion can give me the prize,
I have been delight for it.
First I got the magical leather pants,
Unbearable waist pain in long time,

Was cured magically,
After Karamark people's massage.
If the fire of war burns in the future,
I can go and fight for my people."

Get rid of the pain of the waist,
Uncle stood up straight.
What Koshaoyi said was reasonable,
He really got double prizes.
Let us put this aside,
Talk about how hero Niskara and Ageshi,
Competed with each other.

Kangayi hero Niskara,
Strode to the wrestling site.
His long neck supported his head,
Red face was like the color of sheep lung.
His eyes were as red as those of owl's,
He looked extremely ferocious,
With his head raised proudly,
Each of his bushy hair on the top of the head,
Was sticking up like spines of hedgehog.

They did not win in the contest,
He was filled with great fury.
He was strong with sturdy bones,
His head was like a black yurt;
Huge body stood erectly,
Like a high mountain;
He dragged his huge body forward,
Came up to the racing site and sat.

Fierce hero Niskara,
Was at his prime time of forties.
He was a monster with two legs,
He was the devil in human world,
When looked from his back,

His shoulders were wide and flat,
As flat as the plain for horse race.
His head was as big as a yurt,
And eyebrows were like dogs with long hair.

They did not win in shooting and wrestling,
He was angry in hatred.
His face took on a ghastly expression,
It turned from yellow to purple then from black to red,
Great fury was on his face.

He took all his courage,
Got ready to swallow the world.
He sat in the center of the wrestling site arrogantly,
Like an unbreakable mountain.
Kangayi people banged the drum for him,
Made a barrier around.

Manas opened his mouth after seeing this:
"Uncle Koshaoyi is over seventy years old,
A white-hair old man,
Won us such an honor,
No matter who wants to compete,
Please stand out and go to fight for Kirgiz."
Old Bakay continued to say:
"Respectable Khan Manas!
I heard elbow-like hero Ageshi,
Will marry Kokmenchok,
She is the daughter of Kokotoy.
Though he is not strong enough,
He has the strength to contest Niskara;
He has strong bones and muscles,
He is like an iron-made man,
Only he can fight with Niskara."

"Where is hero Ageshi?"
Black mane wolf looked around for the hero.

Six to seven warriors whipped their horses,
Rushed forward fast,
Came to the yurt of Kokmenchok to look for him.

Kulitan's son hero Ageshi,
Waved his eagle-like body.
He tried to curry favor when he saw unmarried girls,
And turned a deaf ear to married ladies,
When he met old ladies,
He even did not look at them.

The forty attendants of Kokmenchok,
Were all unmarried young girls.
Ageshi came in the middle of them,
He asked seven sisters-in-law,
And many beautiful young aunts to come.
In Kokmenchok's yurt,
He lay on his back and enjoyed the happiness.
Girls toasted to him in turns,
He was like living in the heaven.

Came to Kokmenchok's yurt,
Bozwuler passed on a message loudly:
"Listen carefully, hero Ageshi,
Khan Manas sent me here,
Niskara has already been on wrestling site.
No other heroes are suitable,
So you are chosen to contest with him.
If we cannot return on time,
He will send more people,
It will make you more embarrassed then."

Ageshi set out right away as soon as he got the news,
Iron armor was jingling on him.
Kokmenchok dare not stop his lover,
She only could see him off to the wrestling game.

Hero Ageshi made himself calm down,
Said to Manas:
"I am pretty good at sprint,
But I sweat all over when I do long-distance running,
As long as anyone embraces me,
It will be hard for me to control me laughing from itch.
It will make me lose my will to fight,
And easy to beat down hurt by the rival.
You are the lion famous around,
And your fame has spread far and wide.
If I laugh and shake my body,
With my teeth showing out,
Please make loud shouting,
And waving your whip high in the air,
Lash on me to make me awoken."
Once the words finished,
Ageshi rushed into the site.

Niskara had a huge body,
He was a great giant,
He lifted up Ageshi easily,
Over his head.
Ageshi was thrown on the ground as a cat,
But he got up agilely and entangled with his rival again.
They began to fight from the sun rising,
Till the evening came.
He was like a drunk man,
Began to laugh disorderly.

Lion Manas could not hide his anger,
He shouted with great fury:
"Laughing in wrestling,
Who has seen such a bastard like you?
If you do not want to win,
You'd better give up the prize and go back to sleep;
If you continue laughing like this,
You will lose face of all Kirgiz!

Koshaoyi took three days,
You can not waste any time today."

Lion Manas got angrier as he talked,
He rushed forward as a leopard,
Lifted his whip and lashed Ageshi ceaselessly.
In a blink of an eye,
Ageshi stopped his laugh,
Choked back his pain and took courage to fight,
He took an attack to Niskara,
Threw his rival down.
Niskara fell on the ground weakly,
He struggled but could not stand up again,
Like a giant pine tree being cut down.

When returning back,
Ageshi strode over the head of Niskara;
As he stepped out of the wrestling site,
Ageshi gave his order like this in great courage:
"Run after desirable girls,
I need more happiness to comfort me.
All prize the winner can get,
I will not divide;
Any one who needs can take it,
But do not argue and anger over it.
If it is not your magical whip,
Leopard, how could I defeat my rival?"
Hearing what Ageshi said,
People shared his prize happily.

Erchywuler mounted his horse again,
Announced the following games:
"It is the end of wrestling,
Next is stabbing each other on the horse.
Do not waste time, just go,
Please choose your warriors."

Hearing the announcement,
Kunwuer Bayi put on his official hat,
Which was having long feather on it.
He wore felt boots and wide belt on his waist,
Kunwuer Bayi was showing an energetic-looking,
Face as bright as the moon, waist as knife sheath.
Strong Kunwuer Bayi,
His head was as big as a hill,
Eyebrows were as thick as two eagles falling there.
The diamond on his hat,
Was shining under the sun.

His huge body was like a dromedary,
Waving arms were like the rising lake;
The long hair on his scruff,
Was like the long mane of maroon horse.
His eyes, like the whirlpool in the lake,
Could submerge everything;
His nose was like a sharp rock,
Thin beard was like reed in Gobi desert,
Thick beard was like the handle of an ax,
Some were like bundles of arrows.

He carried firelock in his pocket,
Whipped steed Alekala continually,
Gold-plating arrows were shining,
Huge gunpowder bag was waving left and right.
He drew all attention to himself,
He was valiant and heroic in bearing.

His steed was long in its body,
Like a pipe,
Rushed and jumped on its hooves,
Made dust rose up high in the air.
Forty warriors were beside him,
They were awe-inspiring.
Kunwuer Bayi went by himself,

To join the game on horseback.

Seeing Kunwuer Bayi going by himself,
Brave hero Ayikoler Manas,
Could not control his mood;
He turned the head of his steed and asked Khan Koshaoyi:
"Which horse I need to take to the contest?"
Koshaoyi gave him a reasonable answer.

"Karakarman is a black steed,
It always jumped and pranced,
But it is in its later years,
The stiffening joints made it act inconveniently,
Its fortune has changed.
Tolekaman's maroon horse,
Is strong and in the prime age,
But it contested several times in horseback stabbing game,
It has already got tired of the game;
If it is a long contest,
It will fall down and not get up again."

"I got a fever in my brain,
I did not make any preparation for it,
So it leaves me in such circumstances,
Even cannot find a good steed for myself.
If I had known it,I would not let Ackura go,
And compete for the prize of horse race!
How could not I notice before,
Kunwuer Bayi will go and compete by himself!"
Without his steed Ackura,
Leopard Manas was so worried.

Right at the moment he was at a loss,
Aji Bayi came up with his advice:
"I met a fine steed yesterday,
It is just the right steed for you.
It has Karamark-style saddle on its back,

It was tied right at the camp of Ayidarhan,
That steed was maroon without any one other color hair,
It was just tied on the post.
I asked around,
That is the steed of hero Almanbet.
That is really like a maroon elephant,
It is attractive with its flame-like body."

Aji Bayi did not finish his words,
But the hero did not want to listen;
Waving the whip and looking for the steed of Almanbet,
Aji Bayi followed him tightly,
They rushed to the camp of Ayidarhan.
Seeing the tall maroon steed on the post,
Eagle Manas was very satisfied with it.
There was no time to ask the permission from the master,
Then untied the steed from the post.

We need make an explanation,
Why the maroon steed did not enter the race:
Pushed aside and alienated by Kunwuer Bayi,
Almanbet came for help from Ketay.
He doubted the motive of Kunwuer Bayi:
"All horses have started off,
To the horse race.
But Kunwuer Bayi left steed Alekala at home,
It made me cautious and doubted.
If Kunwuer Bayi participates in horseback stabbing game,
I will go and compete with him."

Almanbet left his Kelejeran steed,
For the sake of accident of the game.
If Kunwuer Bayi let the black steed in the game,
He would have not left Kelejeran by his side.
Since tricky Kunwuer Bayi left the black steed,
Almanbet tied the maroon steed and waited.

Before the horse race,
Kunwuer Bayi sent out spies,
To watch the movement of steed Kelejeran regularly.
When he heard the news of Kelejeran not going to the race,
He doubted Almanbet would have other movement,
Then he kept steed Alekala by his side specially.

In order to oppose Kunwuer Bayi,
Almanbet untied the steed.
To avoid all others,
He asked to put up three tents,
He doubted Sipshaydar would make troubles,
So he hid in the back secretly.

Exquisite bow and deadly arrows,
Were being held in his hand tightly.
If anyone dared to take action,
To kill him and his steed Kelejeran,
He would shoot his arrow mercilessly.

When Manas untied the halter,
And got ready to take the steed away,
Almanbet drew his bow,
And was ready to shoot the deadly arrow.
"Untie the halter without any sound,
Who are so bold to do this?"
Right at the moment when he was aiming,
A mysterious big hand,
Grabbed his arm and stopped him suddenly.

Wise Almanbet,
Had observed without any words;
He never saw but heard a lot,
It was right Kirgiz hero Manas.

"Ackura is in the horse race now,
In order to compete the horseback stabbing game,

In order to get a suitable horse to ride,
How can he come to check by his own?
Observe him carefully for his age,
He is in his prime thirties.
With the bless of god,
He is the Khan for all ordinaries.
The god grabbed my arm,
Must be his patron saint.

"No matter it is good luck or bad luck,
It is all decided by the god,
If I snatch the steed,
I must have done against god's will.
I have seen the warning from the god,
Where does the result go?"
Many thoughts passed through Almanbet's mind,
He fell into a reverie,
He waved his arms and shouted to them:
"The warrior accompanied the hero,
Please turn your horse and come here!"

Aji Bayi turned round right away,
Whipped his horse back to the side of Almanbet.
"Take my steed away freely,
Who are you after all?"
Aji Bayi answered immediately:
"Hero knows the value of this steed,
While ordinary people know the value of the right hero;
Jagurp's son hero Manas,
Knows the master would let him borrow the steed.
Kunwuer Bayi has already gone to fight,
Manas decided to fight with him on this steed;
He is eager to win in the contest,
So he forgot to visit the master of the steed."

Hearing the detailed explanation from Aji Bayi,
Almanbet responded him:

"You are kind and eloquent when you are talking,
You are a clever young man.
Ackura is in the racing,
Kunwuer Bayi got a plot in his mind.
He kept his Alekala by his side.
For the sake of safety I keep Kelejeran by my side,
And prepare to compete in horseback stabbing.

"If I do not provide my steed,
It will damage the hero's fame;
If the lion goes to contest without the steed,
Others will blame me.
Damned Kelejeran,
Has passed its forty-year old birthday,
The joints have been stiff,
It needs one-night adjustment.

"If it is possible, young man,
Please catch up with Khan,
Ask him to let the steed sweat first.
Let the steed jump over six valleys,
And six rivers,
Do not spare his halter to whip.
If the steed does all these confidently and easily,
Then it is ready to go to the contest.

"If you meet high hill,
Please whip it up confidently.
But do not pull its mane,
The saddle is stable enough.
If the steed does not swing its tail toward the hill,
It is ready to go to the contest.

"Arokai's son Kunwuer Bayi,
Is cunning and crafty,
You need observe him carefully;
He rides on fine steed and with great skills,

That is an outstanding steed,
It can compare the wisdom with human.
There is a mysterious person called Ageyar,
He protects the steed secretly.

"Under no circumstances,
Kunwuer Bayi will fall off the steed.
The rope is knitted with six silk threads,
The rope is tied on the saddle,
It is tight and strong,
Even his bottom leaves the saddle,
The steed also can take him away safely.

"If everything goes smooth,
And the hero is energetic and courageous.
If the god can bless him,
If the hero's white silk battle gown protects him,
If I, Almanbet, predict correctly,
Our lion must defeat the strong rival.

"If he stabs the enemy down on the ground,
Be sure the lion does not chase from the back of the enemy;
He must not fall into the trap,
Of seventy giants and forty devils unintentionally.

"Ketay hero Zhoykara,
Lion should be at ease for him,
I, Almanbet, am tailing after him,
But the lion does not rush into the front of enemies.
If anyone has evil intents,
I will deal with it.
What I, Almanbet, especially emphasize,
Ayikoler need remember clearly in his mind."

Clever Aji Bayi appreciated the thoughts,
He bowed his head to thank and turned his horse,
Went back to the side of the lion like the wind,

Told all these to the hero.

Ayikoler and Aji Bayi,
Led the steed to the hill.
In order to make the steed perspire fully,
Jump over rivers and valleys the whole night.
When the steed was sweat all over,
They arrived at a six arrow wide stream.
The lion rode the steed and jumped over it,
The rear legs did not drag on the ground.

Aji Bayi followed him,
Said to the hero:
"Please give me the halter,
I will ride it to the green plain,
Make it sweat freely."

The lion answered Aji Bayi:
"I get to know Kelejeran gradually,
I am fond of and unwilling to part with it.
It has iron sieve-like lungs,
It has bronze hammer-like hooves,
It is the better one among horses.
Do not need take it to wilderness,
Its energy will get recovered on the way."
The lion whipped the steed forward,
Like going on the cloud.

"Manas is ready to compete!"
People watching around was excited,
They looked left and right as they were waiting,
Their ears were grasping all words from all directions:
"Two heroes fight on their steeds,
Who will be the winner?"
The crowd twittered like sparrows,
They put their heads together and discussed.

"These harnesses are not suitable to me,
Send someone to get my saddle,
And put it on Kelejeran."
Arashi hero Manas,
Got heartfelt wishes from his people.
When he mounted the steed and rushed to the game,
People praised with their eyes wide open.

Ayikoler got a super natural figure,
It was as big and tall as mountain Arato;
Kelejeran steed under him,
Got big and round hips.
He wore his white battle gown,
Like brave tiger jumping the river;
Facial expressions were changing all the time,
His prestige made others all nervous.

There was long hair on the back of lion's neck,
His eyes flashed like lightning,
No one could spare the disaster at his gaze,
His hands could hold more than thousand pounds,
Pinched by him would be smashed to pieces.

He mounted on Kelejeran,
He was as tall as mountain Oboler;
Spear Sier was waved in his hands,
The top of Nokaor boot was pointing to the sky.
Flames were burning in his eyes,
He rushed out of the crowd.
Forty warriors accompanied beside him,
Cheered and shouted loudly for him.

When he got to the racing site,
The lion turned round and looked back,
Forty warriors led by Kergel,
Held their halters and stayed behind.

Forty devils behind Kunwuer Bayi,
Also accompanied by the side of Kunwuer Bayi.
Only Kunwuer Bayi himself,
Rushed out with his spear in the hand.

Ayikoler Manas dropped into silence,
Too many thoughts rose in his mind:
I will give the chance of offensive,
To Arokai's son Kunwuer Bayi,
Let him admit my superiority from the heart.
Every game he was in has lost,
He must be burning with a frenzy of rage now.

"Kunwuer Bayi, you make the attack first,
I do not compete the chance of offensive with you.
If you are capable you can stab me off on the ground,
Otherwise the chance will be mine."
Hero Manas held the halter,
Stood still and waited for the attack from his rival.

Giant Kunwuer Bayi lifted up the horn,
Legs waved on both sides of his steed,
The magical black steed,
Galloped its hooves forward.

Kunwuer Bayi screwed up his courage,
Blue-tassel spear was flashing the cold light.
The Ketay-iron made spear top,
Was quenched in the diamond liquid.
It could stab through anything that was hard,
It was like an elastic wolf tongue,
Poison was already smeared on the spear top,
There is no possibility to be alive after being stabbed.

A dense of dust was blown,
After the black steed;
He nerved himself and rushed forward,

Hoped in vain to stab a hole on the rival.
He jabbed out his spear with full confidence,
Whistling sound from the spear top,
Made earthshaking noise to ears;
Kunwuer Bayi whipped the black steed and galloped,
The spear was going to stab directly to the chest of Manas.

Bang, the spear rebounded,
Like knocked on a rock,
The spear top sparked and fell aside;
And broke into several pieces,
Piercing noise haunted in the air.
The black mane wolf did not move an inch,
It was just like gentle breeze fanned him.

"It is my time to attack, my chance comes!"
Respectable black mane wolf whipped his steed forward,
Like a moving mountain.
Kunwuer Bayi sat on the black steed,
Put his hand in his pocket,
Pulled out a little statue of his god.
Muttered devoutly,
He made the sound of asking for help from Tengeryn.

Seeing the statue in his hand,
Karamark all crowded forward,
Fell on their knees and kowtowed,
Made their prayers together:
"Tengeryn, please bless us,
Since god's spirit is shining in his chest,
How could the rival survive under Kunwuer Bayi's attack.
Manas, the Brute,
His head must fall off on the ground;
Kunwuer wave the knife and kill Manas,
It is as easy as to cut willows in spring."

Niskara invited many monks,

Asked them to chant:
"Please chant,
Pray for our hero;
If he cannot come back safe and sound,
I will kill all of you."

Niskara screamed aloud,
Karamark and all other people,
Were all frightened badly.
"God, please bless us,
Let Kunwuer Bayi win the game;
Do not let us, innocent ordinaries,
Be the sacrifice of Khan's fury."
They prayed sincerely,
With tears and crying from time to time.

Kunwuer Bayi came to the center of the game site,
Waited for the attack from the lion.

The lion whipped magical steed Kelejeran,
Shouted the name "Manas" aloud,
Took a violent attack toward Kunwuer Bayi.

Magical Sier spear,
Could stab through anything;
It would never rebound when it stabbed the rock,
No one could spare their praises to the magical spear.

Kelejeran under the hips of the hero,
Had charming eyes like baby camels,
It jumped and shook its body,
Like an untamed colt;
High head and wide chest,
It was really a rare steed.

Kunwuer Bayi stood in the center of the site,
He was as strong and tall as a mountain;

Leopard Ayikoler Manas,
Stabbed his spear out from the profile of Kunwuer.

The battle armors connected on Kunwuer Bayi,
Were broken into tiny pieces,
The felt hat-size pieces,
Flew in the air with the wind.
Got stabbed by Manas,
The dark red blood gushed out.

Kunwuer Bayi turned his horse,
Was going to flee away.
Manas continued his victorious pursuit on Kelejeran,
If Kelejeran could catch up with Alekala,
The Karamark with blood flowing badly,
Must die under the ax of the hero.

Unfortunately, Kelejeran was old,
Its paces slowed down gradually,
It did not catch up with Alekala;
As soon as Kunwuer Bayi fled back to his camp,
His attendants got around him.
Karamark people all came,
Like black ravens gathering.

If listened to Almanbet's order,
If acted in accordance with Aji Bayi's advice,
Let Kelejeran run and perspire in wilderness,
The result might be different.

The hooves and muscles of Kelejeran,
Were not completely limbered up,
Liquid gathered in its joints,
Were not all eliminated,
The gristle on the end of its ribs,
Did not become soft enough either.
If the waste sweat of the steed could be transpired,

The rival would have not fled away under its hooves.
The lion had to turn his steed,
There was full of regret in his heart.

"What a pity, my god,
I am so rash in action and lack right prediction!
If I had known Kunwuer Bayi came to provoke,
I must not let Ackura leave me;
The rival came in front of me,
How could I let him flee away so easily!"
The lion sighed and moaned as he thought of it,
The hero buried his regret deep in his heart.

In the game of horseback stabbing,
Almanbet wore his white Kemantai coat,
And hid in the crowd with his make up,
No one could recognize him.
He fixed his eyes on Kunwuer Bayi,
He guarded the archer Sipshaydar.
Sipshaydar did not show up in the game,
But Kunwuer Bayi seized the chance and got escaped.

Manikair under young Ayidar,
Had long mane and splendid tail hair.
Chewing-iron was on the other side,
Halter dragged on the ground,
Flying hooves were hard to stop,
It rushed and got in front of people like the wind.
Young Ayidar said in this way:
"All Khans led by lion Manas,
I need tell you in your face.

"After two days of racing horses started off,
I start my trip of returning from the starting point.
I went through wide bank of Yili river,
At the beach of Yiliebin,
I caught up with the racing horses.

It is like wind blows under the hooves,
Steed Manikair took me forward fast.
I bumped on the horseback,
It was hard to recognize each horse.
I only see one steed,
And do not know where other horses are.
The first horse has already rushed on the top of the hill,
It is still some distance from here,
It will approach till the evening."

Hearing what Ayidar said,
The crowd knew horses would come soon,
Put their heads together and talked.
Ayidar pulled the halter and turned his horse,
At the moment he was going to leave,
He took a glance on Sirak,
That was a meaningful look.

Sirak felt something abnormal,
He turned about what Ayidar said:
"Does steed Ackura of Ayikoler,
Surpass all other horses?
Does he remind me deliberately,
Start off and welcome it in advance?
If the rivals arrive first,
They will play tricks and make trouble,
How can I remain indifferent to this?"

Gulidur's son Alebye,
Eloquent Aji Bayi,
Erchywuler and Bozwuler,
Showtu and Kutunay,
Sirak led these six heroes,
Mounted on the horses and started off.

Right before starting off,
Sirak reported to the lion:

"Khuda bestowed you the honor,
Please mount your steed,
Go toward the finishing point slowly,
If you agree, my lion,
Please ride on gray steed Ayimanboz,
Go near the flag at finishing line,
You will hear the sound from the hooves of Ackura.

"This steed is good at short distance running,
It runs and jumps like fleas;
Long neck and round rump,
It is strong and very agile.
When young Ayidar came,
He hinted about letting us prepare."

After reminding the lion,
With the worry of Ackura meeting with misfortune,
Extremely clever hero Sirak,
Led six prestigious warriors,
Wore whole-colored black clothes,
Rode on their steeds which arrows could not catch,
Along the Karkara valley,
Galloped toward Yilibing Mountain.

Honorable Khan climbed on the mountain,
Observed with piercing eyes,
Cunning Kunwuer Bayi,
Appeared in horse race suddenly.
Chuwak was chasing after him,
Black steed was under him,
Ears of the steed made sound against the wind.
"What happened on earth?"
Sirak was distracted with great worry:
"Does Arokai's son Kunwuer Bayi,
Turn his steed and move forward?
Is my fellow Chuwak,
Chasing after him?"

Sirak waved his whip,
Tirakziler under him galloped its hooves,
They followed Chuwak and Kunwuer Bayi,
Rushed forward like wind.

Chuwak met with him,
And asked him:
"Where is our hero's steed?
Did you see Ackura clearly?"
Before Chuwak held the halter of his horse,
Ringing sound of hooves came near.
When Chuwak was fixing his eyes,
Ackura was waving its tail and mane in his sight.
Georoy's steed Achybudan,
Was one-horse behind Ackura.

Running horses were right at the turning corner,
Kunwuer Bayi just missed it,
He whipped his steed forward for a short distance.
Then turned round suddenly and watched,
Georoy's mount Achybudan,
Galloped its hooves like wind,
Kunwuer Bayi turned his steed,
Caught up and ran beside Achybudan.
"It seems Achybudan has got the first place,
I will help not let any other steed pass it."
In the blink of an eye,
At the moment of thought coming,
Airtoshtuk's mount Chalekuyruk,
Followed and came in his surprise.
Kunwuer shouted loudly as seeing this:
"Do not let Brute horses pass,
Karamark soldiers,
Go and block the way of Chalekuyruk!"

Let Kunwuer Bayi do what he wants to,
Please listen to the story of Sirak.

Sirak went with seven fellows shoulder by shoulder,
They followed Ackura tightly and cheered for it.
Majestic steed Ackura,
Galloped its hooves forward.
Its four hooves lifted off from the ground,
There was no footmark left on the ground,
When meeting fence-high cliff,
It jumped over like a bird of prey spread its wings.

Along with the running steeds,
Coat edges of young rider on the steeds,
Were flying in the air with rustling sound;
Horse mane and tail were waving in the air,
Figure in running was easy to recognize.

Sirak was too excited as seeing this,
He shouted to the warriors beside him:
"Warriors, please do not shout the name of Manas,
In order to avoid making troubles.
Kunwuer Bayi follows us tightly,
He must go forward and chase in advance;
He probably missed and did not find,
Our running Ackura.

"We run around Ackura,
We'd better make Ackura hind from his sight;
Put grass covering on each steed,
Do not let any rivals find us.
When climbing over Siber hill,
We'd better go off the main road;
After climbing over Jonboktor mountain,
We can go and gather closer the steed."

Warriors gathered around Ackura,
Escaped from rivals' picking eyes.
Chuwak and Sirak went shoulder by shoulder,
They left the other six warriors far behind.

That was a plain wilderness,
Sudden wind swept its chest;
Ackura ran against the strong wind,
With sturdy steps of regular rhythm;
Ackura galloped with four hooves off the ground,
The sweeping dust flew under its hooves.
Steeds Tilkezler and Koktikai,
Were left far behind.

Right at this moment,
Sly Kunwuer Bayi climbed on a hill.
He appreciated Achybudan,
He was proud and happy:
"This is a rare steed,
No other steed can compare with it.
It is running in the front,
All other steeds,
Are heavy in their hooves,
And are left far behind."

Kunwuer Bayi bursted with joy,
He relaxed with his finding,
He took out his tobacco bag,
Enjoyed his smoking while watching around,
He saw young Ayidar suddenly,
Who whipped the horse on a slope with dust behind it.

"The damn Brute,
I must win steed Manikair;
Ayidar on the horseback,
I will throw him into the hole."
Kunwuer Bayi whipped his steed,
Ran forward staggeringly.

Each movement of Kunwuer Bayi,
Was clearly in eyes of Ayidar:
"He is coming for me,

If I meet with him face to face,
I will lose my life for no reason."
Ayidar turned his horse,
Ran along the zigzag path.
Kunwuer Bayi whipped his black steed,
His black coat was waving with the breeze.
He went on the way he thought the best,
Rushed forward along the mountain road,
Ayidar had already been lost in his sight.

Kunwuer Bayi looked right and left for Ayidar,
He even did not see the shadow of young Ayidar.
Kunwuer Bayi took out his telescope,
Took a look on the horseback;
All heroes started off before them,
Appeared in his sight.
The great figure of Ackura,
Was in and out of his sight from time to time.
Who was the person after that steed?
He fixed his eyes and identified carefully,
Finally he knew they were Chuwak and Sirak,
Eight heroes were following Ackura tightly.
"I can catch up with Ackura,
But how to deal with those eight guys?
They are running along the mountainside,
Do I need to go along the valley,
And leave them far behind me?"

Kunwuer Bayi was filled with fury,
Which would almost take his life away.
Seeing Ackura went in the front,
His complex anger flamed afresh,
He could not control his hatred.

He whipped his steed and rushed forward,
Got to the side of steed Achybudan;
Held its halter and tied on his stirrup,

Whipped Achybudan forward.
When they went down the hill,
He dragged his black steed hard on the ground,
And did not let them leave any hoof print;
When they went up the hill,
He pulled the halter hard,
Whipped the steed temerariously.
He used up all his ways,
And approached Ackura gradually.
At a low ridge,
He rushed forward from the side.

As Chuwak saw this,
He shouted to the young rider of Ackura:
"Loose the halter and let it run by its will!"
Other heroes beside him,
Were all shouting the name Manas,
The noise of shouting and hooves,
Roared high into the air.

Long mane and tail waved in the air,
Steed Ackura flew its hooves.
At a turning corner,
Achybudan had been shoulder by shoulder with it.

Sirak could not hold his worry,
Held the halter of Ackura in his hand.
Magical Ackura was full of energy,
It did not let Tilkezler pass.
Pulled and whipped Alekala horse,
That was Kunwuer Bayi's usual step;
Acruka did not let rival steeds passed itself even half step,
Kunwuer Bayi was filled with anger as a mad man.

Audiences stood up and stepped backward to both sides,
There was a passage as wide as a valley in the middle.
As Ayikoler saw this,

He was so worried;
Ayimanboz under him,
Opened its cave-size mouth.

Young Ayidar whipped Manikair,
Cought up from behind,
Held the halter of Ackura,
Galloped its hooves and raised a cloud of dust.
Ayikoler Manas called with worrying voice:
"Ayidar,
Please hold the halter of Ackura,
Pressed it tightly under your stirrup and go!"

"The rump of the steed is round and strong,
You must let it quicken its steps!"
A clever idea came to Ayidar's mind suddenly,
He poked on the bottom of Ackura hard,
Hero's mount Ackura,
Was very strong in its muscle,
It was energetic,
Like it never went on a long trip.
Ackura ran swiftly,
Even the eagle was put to shame.
Manikair and Ackura went on shoulder by shoulder,
Without knowing which one would win.

"Please protect the rider,
Ask him to hold the halter tightly!"
Ackura got to the flag post first,
Like a gust of wind.

Let us put this one aside,
Talk about the plot of Kunwuer Bayi and Kozkamen.

Kunwuer Bayi and Kozkamen's Conspiracy

Kozkamen and His Son Plotted to Murder Manas

Before Ayikoler Manas arrived,
Kunwuer Bayi sighed deeply:
"If it is not steed Manikair pushed it,
My steed must win the game."
Georoy was in great fury too,
He attempted to make troubles.
The bags full of gold and silver,
Were on his horse and he hid them.

"Please return your prize!"
Hero Manas came in front of him.
Georoy turned and ignored the hero,
He sat steadily and whipped his steed.
The steed got the first place,
But the prize was occupied by the rival.
Hero Manas could not bear such disgrace,
He waved the magical whip Buledursun in his hand,
Urged his steed forward,
And requested Georoy:
"Hand over the prize,
Otherwise you have no chance to be alive!"

Georoy responded without a sign of weakness:
"Achybudan is absolutely the first,
Your Ackura could never get to win.
You ordered Ayidar deliberately,
Let him push and pull with steed Manikair;
The unique steed Manikair,
Was the one pulled Ackura to the finishing line.

You said your steed got first,
Only dogs believe in what you said.

"My mount Achybudan,
I cannot let it compete but get nothing.
You can take the prize if you can,
Otherwise keep away from it.
My mount got the first place,
Of course, I should get the prize."

As he was going to turn round,
The hero waved his whip Buledursun,
Lashed in towards his face.
The end of the whip hit on Georoy's face,
The skin as the size of a top cover of a yurt,
Was split and flesh broke forth,
Blood spurted out greatly,
Flew along the collar.
Georoy pulled the halter and whipped the horse in a hurry,
Ran into the crowd quickly.

"What happened on earth?"
Karamark people were confused,
And asked Georoy.
"It is Manas, barking as a cur,
It is bastard Manas, making troubles,
He grabbed my prize with me for no reason,
He injured me with something I do not know."
"Hero, your flesh is broken,
Your neck is bleeding."
Georoy had another steed, called Barcha,
It could go thousand miles in a day like Achybudan.
Georoy transferred to steed Barcha,
He fled away with this steed.

The news of Georoy running away,
Went into ears of hero Manas.

He mounted on steed Manikair,
Shouted at Aji Bayi:
"Do not delay, start off right now!"
Followed the track of Georoy,
The hero whipped the horse and chased after.

At a place called Kara Kangshar,
It was so mysterious there.
If going through it,
Water would well out of the lake ceaselessly.
White birch and wild willow were full on both sides,
Ditch reed waved and rustled with the wind,
Wild lotuses were flourishing,
It was a total chaos in a broad view,
The gloomy jungle made people frightened.
Georoy turned his horse there,
Then went round the jungle into the mountain.

Manas said to Aji Bayi:
"Fortunate Aji Bayi,
Your luck comes again.
It seems Georoy gets lost,
He is possessed and impossible to correct himself.
Look at the hill in front of us,
It is not far from us.
I will go up on the top,
Make Tangute's giant Georoy,
Poked off his horse and killed.

"You follow the hoof print and continue chasing,
Do not make him lost in your sight.
If you meet with Georoy,
Do not be scared and flee away.
I have magical steed Manikair,
I will come to you as soon as possible."

Heroes branched out into two groups,

To look for Georoy separately.
It was right at dusk,
The hoof prints disappeared suddenly,
There was no sign of stretching forward.
"It seems Georoy did not flee too far,
He may still run in the forest;
He has lost his way in a panic,
He may choose remote path to flee."
The hero whipped his steed Manikair,
Continued his chasing as fast as the wind.

At a turning corner,
Georoy and Manas met face to face.
As seeing the strong figure of Manas,
Georoy turned his horse right away to escape.
He saw Almanbet right at that moment,
Who was running toward him on the maroon steed.
"Manas and Almanbet come at the same time,
They must come and challenge me."

He was flustered in great panic,
The tightness in his chest came up to his throat,
He jumped off his horse suddenly,
With his body shaking in great fear.
He staggered along and hid himself in the forest,
And left his steed Barcha beside the road.

The steed was strong and clever,
It turned round and fled toward Kangayi.

"If the evening comes,
Georoy will escape under the cover of night.
He must reckon his purpose has fulfilled,
As he got the prize."

The lion turned back,
Held the magical firelock Ackelaty in his hand.

Steed Barcha galloped its hooves,
Up on the mountain when it stopped suddenly.
Before Barcha could take a firm stand,
The hero had fired his firelock.

A ball of fire streaked across the dark sky,
Right fell on the head of Barcha.
"Aji Bayi, please take the bags back right now,
The prize is all in those bags.
You'd better cut off the head of Georoy,
And tie it behind the saddle and return."

Aji Bayi whipped his steed forward,
The bullet the lion shot,
Right hit in the neck of Barcha,
The steed was fallen and died immediately,
But Georoy escaped in a flurry.

Aji Bayi bent down,
And picked up the bags and put on his steed.
He grabbed the tail of dead steed and pressed under his stirrup,
Dragged the dead steed back to the side of black mane wolf.
They searched in the jungle again and again,
They still could not find Georoy.
"The back of steed's waist is a trophy."
Ajia Bayi cut off the back of the waist and returned.

Manas turned the steed Manikair round,
Returned the station at the noon the next day.
A whole horsehide was tied behind the saddle,
Trailed from the horseback to the ground.
Seeing their hero coming back,
Arashi people were cheering and jumping for joy.

As hearing Georoy was killed,
Kangayi were so sad.
Right at this moment,

Kunwuer Bayi said to his people:
"Brute people will not let us stay here anymore,
They will kill us one by one.
You should start off right now,
To find our own home in Kangayi.
Georoy might be still alive,
You need search him carefully on your way.
If Georoy has been killed by them,
They must cut off his head and show it off here.
Since we do not see his head,
It is just the rumor of his death.

"Except the forty warriors,
All others do not stay and just set out,
I will start off later,
This is all that I want to say."
People came from the east,
Headed for their returning journey happily.

Damned Kunwuer Bayi began to shrink back,
He plundered in Kapaler on his way.
They beat Kazakh people hard,
Killed and set fire along the area of Gurpledek,
They killed numerous young men,
And plundered livestock and property.
Two hundred households were suffered severely,
Livestock having been plundered were countless.
No people outside knew about this,
Because no one sent the message of being plundered.

Kunwuer Bayi went back his home and thought hard,
New plots fermented in his mind.
He remembered a man called Kozkamen,
Whose eldest son was Kokchykoz,
That was a young man full of cunning tricks.

Jagurp lived in Altay in his early years,

Kozkamen lived next door,
They were good neighbors for each other.
Kunwuer Bay invited Kozkamen to his home,
Served with generous hospitality:
"You are both intelligent and courageous,
You know well about Jagurp's characteristics.
Jagurp's son Manas,
Did everything evil in this world,
Can you capture him alive,
Put him in the iron net and drag him here,
Or can you kill him in secret,
And take his head here to meet with me?

"If you can make my wish come true,
I will let you be the Khan,
Of sixty tribes of Arashi.
The vast area among three rivers of Kangayi,
Will be administered by your son;
If I say anything false,
I will pray god Tengeryn throw huge rock on my head."

Kunwuer Bayi vowed solemnly,
Let Kozkamen make his wish come true.
Kozkamen was blinded by greed,
He listened to the order of Kunwuer Bayi,
And moved to the village of Jagurp soon.

Kozkamen took his eldest son Kokchyboz,
Poured out his woes to Jagurp sobbingly.
After their talking,
They greeted each other.

Kozkamen said to Jagurp:
"My friend, I miss you so much after we parted,
How could I hide my feeling from you?
We were closed neighbor when we were in Altay,
Our livestock were mixed together,

Our herds were on the same grassland.
No matter it was sweet or bitter,
We tasted together.

"You gave Manas the name Chanjindy,
You beat your brain with protecting your son.
We keep our mouths shut on your secret,
I went to your yurt many times,
I knew Manas had already been born,
But I did not betray you,
And went to inform Chingersh against you.
Now we live a hard life in poverty,
We specially come to you for help from Kangayi.

"I regarded Kangayi people as my relatives,
I regarded Kunwuer Bayi as Khan,
I regarded them as my backup,
But I cannot bear their humiliation.
He sent his men to collect exorbitant tax,
They took all my livestock away from me.
I cannot bear and be filled with anger,
I have to leave for a new place as your neighbor.
I did not discuss with you before,
I do not know whether you would agree.
I have driven my livestock and carry my yurts,
Come to you for help with my whole family."

Kozkamen poured an unceasing flow of words,
He revealed his heart to Jagurp.
Jagurp gave in to the praises,
He was proud with his head high and chest out:
"No matter eat, drink and wear,
Or the carriages for moving,
You have all them prepared,
We have no burden here.

If tax is imposed every day,

Karamark deserve death.
Manas held the banner and dominated,
He is famous all around,
He does not impose any tax,
Kirgiz all live a happy life.
Herds like rocks on riverbank,
Are full on mountain and valley;
Stir the fat in the pot,
The fragrance of horse milk fills four seasons.
Young girls are as bright as wild flowers,
Their skin is white and delicate.
Since you come on purpose,
Please go and have a rest first,
I will tell your purpose to my son."

Jagurp's face was full of smiles,
And came to Manas soon,
He told Manas word by word,
The message of Kozkamen's coming,
And his own attitude and opinions.

"For a long time,
Father does not come here,
He comes specially today in person,
What is his plan in his mind?"
All these did not escape from Kanikai's eyes,
She doubted and worried;
She listened carefully far away,
She tried to catch the meaning of Jagurp's words.

Kanikai prepared lavish gifts next morning,
Went to visit Kozkamen specially.
To celebrate neighbor's happiness of moving,
Baby camels and mare were driven.
Pancakes were in right number,
And a lot other food was prepared,
Tea was wrapped well in paper;

Cooked lamb meat,
Fragrant horse milk wine filled all vessels;
Different kind of fur was numerous,
Each family member could get one.

"Since father Khan is warmhearted to him,
I may satisfy his vanity as well."
Kanikai chose six ladies as her attendants,
Presented gifts and greeted.

Wise Kanikai,
Was common in nothing with others,
She returned to Ayikoler,
And said what was in her mind:
"Kozkamen from Kangayi,
You treat him as a senior,
Black mane wolf, you should be careful,
They have crafty plots in their heads.
His son is Kokchykoz,
Who is shrewd and deep,
Cunning heart and odd characteristics,
With no basic human nature.
After seeing them,
I feel worried and doubted."

Manas medicated for a while,
And responded subtly.
Got no clear answer,
Kanikai had to keep silent.

Days passed with chaos around,
Ayikoler followed his father's order,
Treated Kozkamen with hospitality.
"You go and visit him again!"
He asked Kanikai to visit and greet again.
Kanikai was accompanied by Kaklay,
Who was her personal servant.

At a place near Ayinla,
Clever Kanikai stopped her steps.
She decided to leave Kaklay there,
And went to visit by herself.
She handed the halter over to Kaklay,
She took soft and slow steps forward.
Pure-gold earrings were shining,
Pure-silver hair decoration,
Was long to her hips and jingled.

Kaklay observed carefully,
Wise Kanikai,
Took her earrings off and put in her pocket,
And grabbed the hair decoration tight in her hand.
With quiet and soft steps,
She approached Kozkamen's yurt.

It was noisy in the yurt,
The noise of chattering and discussing leaked out.
Besides Kokchykoz and his wife,
There were Kozkamen and the wife,
It seemed they were making a plot:
"Since we move here,
We have not seen Manas yet.
Poison is ready now,
We just wait for his coming.
His wife came once,
Talked a lot to us…"

Kanikai listened for a while outside,
Then she turned back to her horse.
She led the horse to the yurt of Kozkamen,
Presented the gifts she brought to them.

"Set up the pot and fire up, treat the guest!"
In order to hide their plot,

They spoke in Karamark language.
If Kanikai agreed to eat with them,
They were trying to make Manas come too.

Kanikai stood up and said:
"Manas never drinks alcohol, but only tea,
He shows little interest to any kind of delicious food,
He will not come even you specially invite him,
I cannot stay here for long either.
I must go back now,
Even you are so hospitable."

Kanikai stepped out as she finished her words,
Kozkamen was thinking behind her:
"His wife is astute,
She might become aware of what we are going to do,
If we want to stay in Ayinla longer,
We need be cautious and do not burn ourselves.

"They herd all horses on prairie,
We should plunder these horses.
Only that famous steed Ackura,
Is fed in the stable by Manas.
He never let his servants ride it,
Only he himself can ride on it.

"If we plunder his horses,
Manas must follow the hoof prints,
And chase after us.
My son is an incomparable archer,
Who else dares to compete with you?
You should shoot him to death on the way,
Then we cut his head off.
We return and hide in Kangayi till it cools off,
Then we come here again,
Descend disaster and make Kirgiz suffer."

Hearing what Kozkamen said,
His wife, his son and daughter-in-law,
All agreed with his words.

Khan Bakay and forty Warriors,
Made their mounts roam on the prairie.
Each of them went every day in turn,
To check and guard without any stop.
Warriors who love horses sent fodder on time,
They were never lazy to tame and comb the horses,
It was hard to keep the rule all the time,
Gradually they failed to guard the horses.
All horses were all on prairie freely,
They did not know a bloody disaster would happen soon.

Kozkamen made a full preparation,
He bet his all on this single throw.
Since Kanikai came and visited them,
He played his witchcraft every night,
When people were all in deep sleep.
They tried in vain to choose fine steed to ride,
But they caught nothing.
They did not dare to delay any longer,
They had to drive all horses away with them.

Right at that night,
The lion wore his white battle gown tidily,
Rode on his magical steed Ackura,
Came to Karaboruk's yurt.
He ordered five attendants to guard his steed,
He went in and took a rest in the yurt.
Kanikai knew nothing about it,
She was in her yurt lonely with the light on.
Right at this night,
Kozkamen drove the horses and escaped.
It rained heavily next morning,
People were all in their yurts without going out.

The rain stopped at dusk,
It was so quiet everywhere.

In the season of molting hair,
At the moment the rain was heavy,
Manas did not care his fine steed.
"Let the lazy bastard lie and rest!"
The lion shouted to Karaboruk:
"Lead my Ackura here soon!"
He was going to check it.

The hero carried the magical firelock Ackelaty,
Held the spear Sier in his hand.
Without wearing his white battle gown,
He went out of the yurt in a hurry.

It turned sunny in Ayinla,
But it seemed it was still raining on the prairie.
This was an abnormal thing,
Manas did not really notice it.

He looked up toward the prairie Kankula,
He did not see any of the horses.
He lowered his head and watched the track of hoof prints.
Hoof prints got denser toward the direction to Tarasha.
"Horses usually roam freely on the prairie,
We must lose them when storms come."
His heart was torn with anxiety,
He whipped his steed and climbed on hill Tubela,
He could see herds of horses in his sight.

Manas whipped his steed Ackura,
Chased after in a hurry to check.
These were not the heroes' mounts,
The lion concluded the horses were captured.

He watched carefully the track of hoof prints again,

Whipped his magical steed Ackura continually.
"I cannot go back like this,
Tell them the news of horses being plundered.
How can the thief do against me,
Dare to rob my horses!
How can the bastard be so audacious,
Dare to take a sneak attack on me.
No one fort can stay under my attack,
No one enemy can escape under my spear."

Lion Manas whipped his steed,
Ackura rushed like a whirlwind.
The body of the steed was like a ready bow,
The earth was shaking under its hooves.

Manas chased for sixteen days,
Went into mountain Koytash where grass was abundant.
The steed was already tired with sweat all over,
Lion Manas was so anxious.
He had no eyes on his steed,
He had to whip Ackura hard,
Soon he climbed on the top of a hill,
Sky-high dust rose under the hooves of the steed.

Kozkamen and Kokchykoz,
Lifted their telescope and watched,
They saw the hero chasing after them.
They discussed with each other,
For the plan to deal with the hero.

They planned to dress up,
Dressed men up to girls and ladies,
Tried to confuse others.
While Kokchykoz hid himself beside a cliff,
In hill Tubela.

The direction hero Manas came,

Was a vast sandy river rapids,
To the direction of lake Yisaik,
Was boundless wilderness.

Kozchykoz held the firelock in his hand tightly,
Bullets were filled in the firelock;
To avoid the breaking when he was shooting,
The gunpoint was iron hooped.
Gun body was set on a rock,
He put rock carefully under it.
He lifted the firelock and aimed at the hero,
He was ready to shoot at any time.

The lion did not wear his white battle gown,
And he did not button up his clothes either.
"It is such a great chance,
Everything comes in my wish.
I never think he will come by his own for the death,
All Arashi will turn into my slaves!"
Kokchykoz opened his eyes wide,
Held his breath and watched the dust in the front.

The hero was brave and courageous enough,
He rushed forward fast without noticing anything.
Ackura under him galloped its hooves,
Left a long path a dust behind them.

"This is where his heart is,
It is his deadly place."
Kokchykoz aimed at the target carefully,
A ball of fire flew out of his firelock.

The firelock made a deep sound,
The bullet did not go through his heart,
But it went through Manas' body,
Made a serious injury of his lung.
Brave hero Manas,

Did not fall off on the ground.
His magical steed Ackura,
Rushed forward on the hill.

"Do I miss the target?"
As seeing the prestigious hero,
Sitting on his mount firmly.
Kokchykoz did not dare to go up,
He doubted he missed,
He mounted on his steed hurriedly,
Turned round and fled in great panic.

He caught up with his fellows,
Told them what happened in detail:
"I missed at the crucial moment,
Did not shoot lion Manas.
He ran up on the top of the hill,
But he did not see me there.
Let the world be destroyed,
Let him take his horses back!
You guys try to flee back to your hometown,
Otherwise he will kill you all."

Hearing what Kokchykoz said,
Others were anxious about their coats edges waving,
They left the horses they were driving,
Fled away like scaring birds.
"Manas will come soon,
We will be punished by him severely,
We have no choice but flee away!"
The guys led by Kokchykoz,
Abandoned the horses and fled away.

Brave and strong black mane wolf,
Was fearless;
When he went up on the hill,
He turned the head of Ackura round,

Went into a valley.

That was a green meadow,
It was quiet and trackless.
The injured hero came here,
He was dizzy with his ears ringing,
He fell in the grass,
From the back of Ackura.

Lion Manas was passed out,
He breathed heavily.
Ackura guarded him as a royal servant,
Did not leave him even a step.
The horses got rid of the devil people,
Under the leading of a grey horse,
Horses all rushed toward Tarasha.

Chuwak's steed Koktikai,
Was a stallion without being castrated,
It always had the desire of mating.
It chased other horses with its ears up,
The horses yearned for fresh grass,
Got bites on their ramps.

Aji Bayi's maroon steed,
Was not in the herd of horses;
Aji Bayi went on a long trip,
To visit his relatives in Andijan.
On the day the lion started off,
He just returned his home in Ayinla.

Sirak's steed Tilkezler,
Smelled Ackura,
It hid from the sight of Koktikai,
Ran to the mountain to search its fellow.
Ackura and Tilkezler,
Were a pair unusual magical steeds,

They swung their tales,
To drive off the flies for the lion.

Under the guard of two steeds,
Birds in the sky, beasts on the ground,
Did not have chance to approach the hero.
Black mane wolf hero Manas,
Was going to bleeding to death;
His magical mount Ackura,
Held weed Kalederkan in its mouth,
Spread the weed on the wound to stop bleeding.
Weed Kalederkan could clot blood,
So it kept Manas' blood from running out.

Aji Bayi who left Ayinla,
Walked into the yurt of black mane wolf.
Kanikai was waiting at home,
She was sorrow in the yurt,
Her eyes were not shining any more,
Her sad expression had no way to be hidden.

Aji Bayi did not know what happened,
So he asked Kanikai:
"My respectable sister-in-law, is the lion in?
I have something important for him."
Kanikai sighed gently:
"Respectable Aji Bayi,
I also have something to tell you.
Please do not laugh at me,
I do not know where the lion is!
Many days ago I took a lot of gifts,
Went to visit Kozkamen from Kangayi.
I found this man was abnormal,
I wanted to tell the lion what I was worried.
But the lion went to Karaboruk's yurt,
Came out of Karaboruk's yurt,
He went into the yurt of Nakelai.

It rained heavily that day suddenly,
I was so worried and I can not sit at ease."

Kanikai finished her words,
Different food and drink were put on the tablecloth.
Aji Bayi ate and drank,
Then he walked out of the yurt.

A sheet of shadow appeared at the direction of Tarasha,
Silvery sound of hooves came into ears,
A big herd of startled horses came in a rush,
Flying dust rose high all over the sky.

Warriors were all frozen with shock,
As seeing the running horses;
The grey steed was running in the front,
Horses behind it were all covered in the dust.
Dust flew among the sweat,
Like countless streams running in the air.

Steed Koktikai neighed,
As loud as a bell.
Hearing the neigh of Koktikai,
Chuwak stood and rushed out:
The steed came to Chuwak breathlessly,
Chuwak doubted and shouted:
"What on hell happened?
Warriors gather immediately!"

Hearing the order from Chuwak,
Warriors all rushed out in a hurry and worry,
They stood with the halter of their mounts in the hand,
Saddled their steeds up for the expedition.

Aji Bayi doubted in his mind,
Kanikai's words made him worried.
He ran to the yurt of Karaboruk,

Asked her about Manas.
"The lion did come that day,
He left in a hurry in the evening.
He went out at dusk,
I did not see clearly.
Your lion did not go anywhere,
He must be in the arms of his concubine."

"What an evil woman she is!"
Aji Bayi sighed and cursed in secret,
Whipped his steed to the yurt of Nakelai.
Nakelai came up and said:
"Began Aji Bayi,
What makes you in such a hurry?
Except Kanikai's yurt,
How can forty warriors come here?"

Aji Bayi was not patient to her words,
He asked Nakelai anxiously:
"Is lion Manas here?
I have important things to report!"
"My Began Aji Bayi,
Are you kidding with my life,
Are you going to check and question me,
Did you ever see him here?
He must go to someone he loves,
I do not know whose arms he is in."

Aji Bayi was in a rather nervous state,
Sadness filled up his heart suddenly.
He turned the steed and whipped hard,
Went to Khan Bakay's home in a hurry.
Warriors were busy with their hands and feet,
Wiped the sweat on the horses.
"My honorable uncle,
You are respectable, you are the treasure of wisdom.
I looked three yurts just now,

I asked and questioned,
I still cannot find where our lion is."

Right at the moment Aji Bayi was talking,
Sirak came in and asked hastily:
"I cannot find my mount,
Is anyone seeing it?"

Uncle Bakay heard what they said,
He was shaking in his boots.
He called up Kergelchal,
Ordered and warned again and again:
"I am a damned old man,
I should have predicted what would happen!
I made an unforgivable mistake,
But I am stupid and did not notice it.
They all say I am a prophet,
I am just a silly mediocre person.

"Kergelchal, start off right now,
All of you together!
Tolik, you can predict,
Please tell the fortune of the lion now,
Where is he now?
Please tell me right now."

Alem's son Arakan,
Was an augur divining with sheep scapula,
He could divine a lot unknown events.
"Please take out your scapula,
Observe them carefully.
And please tell me,
Where is my child Ayikoler Manas?"
Tolik threw up the divining stones,
Took a look and then his face turned to grey paper,
He said with tears:
"Uncle, please mount your horse now,

Go and look for the lion in Koytash quickly!"

Arakan held the scapula,
Expressed to Bakay in a tearful voice:
"My respectable uncle,
The lion lay on his back on a meadow,
Ackura and Tilkezler,
Are guarding him.
Kozkamen came here,
No one put an eye on him."
The divine of Tolik and Arakan,
Came to the same prediction.

Uncle Bakay gave the order,
Heroes all mounted their horses,
Started off toward prairie Koytash,
For searching their majestic hero.
Sirak ran up,
Caught the halter of steed Tuchunak,
Vaulted into the saddle quickly.

Kanikai was clever enough,
She always thought ahead of their needs.
Aibepu and Saibepu were both magical medicine,
Apu and Sapu were unusual too,
Kermakzler had potent effect,
The effect of Kaynatmakara was surprising.
Saribarp and Kokjashiler,
Were unknown mysterious medicine.
Wild bear, condor and golden eagle,
Hawk and owl,
Their guts had magical effects.
All medicine they would use,
Were all prepared well.

"As long as the hero is safe and sound,
Warriors will come to report within two days;

I should make good preparation,
To start off once I get the news."
Kanikai walked in and out,
She was distracted like wind blowing waves.

Uncle Bakay and Kergelkal,
Hero Kader, Toman and Showtu,
Eagle Chuwak and forty warriors,
Identified the track of hoof prints and rushed forward.
They urged horses on for sixteen days,
Arrived at the valley Koytash,
Then they climbed on the hill nearby.
They watched and searched carefully,
Looked for the whereabouts of hero Manas.
Horse trainer observed the track of hoof prints,
From the hoof prints of Tilkezler,
They found where it parted with other horses.

Lovely steed Ackura,
Heard the sound of hooves coming closer,
It felt scared and anxious:
"Who is the coming enemy?
Is the dangerous moment descending?"
It jumped in panic,
It could not calm with thousand thoughts.

At this critical moment,
Tilkezler ran onto the top of the hill,
Saw people who were coming.
It seemed to send signals to the coming people,
It neighed loudly to them.
Hearing the neigh of Tilkezler,
Ackura was filled with fury,
And made a shout of angry.

Like a foal scattered from herds of horses,
All horses began to neigh,

Especially the magical steed Koktikai,
Its sound was roaring in the sky.
Horses left behind,
All rushed to the front and ran fast.

Followed the neigh of Ackura,
Warriors whipped their horses into the valley.
They all dismounted from their horses,
Raised black mane wolf to his feet.

Uncle Bakay was extremely grieved,
Bean-size tears ran ceaselessly.
He held bloody Manas,
In his arms tightly.
Chuwak staggered to the lion,
Warriors ran to Manas as fast as they could.

They all tried to push others aside,
Made themselves stay closer with Manas.
At this crucial moment,
They all cried without scruple,
Finally they stopped crying in their right senses.

They spread the battle gown and put Manas on it,
Fed spring water into his mouth carefully.
The hero struggled with his lips,
Gulped the water into his stomach.
After finishing the while barrel of water,
The hero opened his eyes slowly.

Manas looked around and then said:
"I believed Kokchykoz rashly,
Then disaster descended on me.
Where are Sirk and Sirak?
Uncle Bakay, hero Chuwak,
And Aji Bayi, are they here?
Kozkamen, the bastard,

Have you already captured him?"
Hero Manas passed out again,
Before he finished his words.

As seeing this,
Bakay felt relieved in his mind:
"Khuda bless us so much,
Let black mane wolf come to.
His guts did not injure,
It's our biggest bless.
Go and pick a fine steed,
Pick Kanikai here tomorrow morning.
You may not know,
Kanikai is exceptionally clever,
She has a good knowledge on a wide range.

As soon as Bakay finished his words,
Smart Baymart responded right away:
"Respectable uncle Bakay,
Please let me accomplish this mission."

Aji Bayi led a tan steed to Baymart,
And gave advice repeatedly:
"Kanikai can ride this horse."
Before Aji Bayi finished what he was saying,
Baymart had mounted on Koktikai,
And held halter of the tan steed in the hand,
Whipped and rushed out like an arrow,
Entered into the unmanned valley soon.

He looked around and felt excited,
Baymart stroked his moustache,
Patted the dust off his clothes at times.
Like a fifteen years old young man,
He galloped forward as wind.
The steeds were sweat all over,
Baymart did not stop at all.

When the sun set and night descended,
The warrior walked into the lion's palace.
People all came up to ask,
Baymart told them about the hero in detail.
"Let's go! Khatun!"
He urged Kanikai to start in a hurry.

Kanikai had already been ready,
She packed up and started off right away.
The hero must bleed too much,
So she filled a leather bag with fresh milk.

"It is said that the hero drank water and opened his eyes,
He could express himself clearly,
That means his guts are not injured.
I need hurry on with my journey,
And get there before the sunrise.
The hero had had nothing for days,
His stomach has shrunk and need be expanded slowly.
I hope uncle Bakay and others,
Did not feed him any food mindlessly."

Kanikai was worried,
Too many thoughts went through her mind.
Medicine was packed well in the bags,
All things needed were taken.
Baymart carried the leather bags with milk,
All other stuff was carried by herself.
They mounted the horses,
Kanikai and the warrior started off.

Khan Bakay thought carefully,
He did not feed the lion even thumb-size food,
The hero rested with eyes closed,
He could taste some spring water from time to time.
To avoid him getting cold,
They covered him with thick leather coats.

"When does Kanikai come?"
He looked down the hill worriedly.
Warriors all guarded beside the hero,
They all did not sleep the whole night.

Honorable sister-in-law Kanikai,
Disguised herself as a man with a bun on the head top,
As the sun shone on the top of the hill,
She arrived at the lawn in the valley in haste.
The tan steed ran too fast,
Kanikai could not pull its halter to stop,
The hot-tempered steed,
Needs others help to stop.

Aji Bayi knew the habit and temper of this steed,
He mounted Tilkezler,
Got ready to grab the halter of the tan steed.

"Let me do it!"
Sirak requested.
Then he mounted the horse,
Rushed out like an arrow,
And like a gust of wind.

As hooved stepped on the rock,
Rock power splashed like dust;
Hero Sirak ran from the side,
Grabbed the halter of the tan steed in his hand.
Violent tan steed ran crazily,
It ran fast and excited,
Sirak's arm held the halter,
Was almost pulled off.
If the halter cold not be held tightly,
It must run wildly with Kanikai on it.

Kanikai came up to the hero lightly,
Manas heard her footsteps,

But he could not lift his eyes to see her,
The bad injury made him fall in a trance.
Kanikai got no time to greet others,
Took out the medicine hurriedly,
Stirred sugar in milk,
And fed the hero with the milk.

She asked to wash the wound clean for the hero,
She wrapped his arms with white cloth tightly,
Then turned his body carefully,
Applied the magical medicine on the wound surface.
The gall of condor and black bear,
Was diluted and fed to the hero.
Gall bladder of the condor was smeared on the wound,
Valuable medicine Aibepu and Saibepu were taken orally;
Medicine Apu and Sapu,
Were mixed together in one bottle.
Kanikai was a handy lady,
She took out all medicine,
Prepared well for use;
Cleaned the wound with fresh water,
Unwrapped the cloth to check carefully.
Kanikai saw the hero's inflaming wound,
She comforted in low voice though her heart was pierced:
"Enemy used poisoned bullets,
Shot you mercilessly;
Maybe his vision was blurred,
The bullet missed the vital part.
Your invincible might,
Frightened the enemies off in panic.

"We treated them sincerely,
But they plotted cruelly to murder you,
Seeing your wound, my Khan!
It is as big as the wooden basin for holding meat, my Khan!

"Why you did not wear your white battle gown, my Khan!

How could you be so remiss, my Khan!
You are unmatched in the world, my Khan!
You are outstanding and unrivaled in brave, my Khan!
When you whipped your steed out, my Khan!
You only took braveness but forgot scheme, my Khan!

"Enemy shot you with poison bullet, my Khan!
I can see your heart, my Khan!
It is like the millstone, my Khan!
You are more brave than wise, my Khan!

"You entertained Kozkamen hospitably, my Khan!
You believed him easily and are fooled, my Khan!
Were you driven by the devil, my Khan!
How could you remember the horses being taken, my Khan!

"I pray that Khuda can bless you, my Khan!
I will try to cure you, my Khan!
It is all the order of Khuda, my Khan!
We cannot change but face it, my Khan!"

Kanikai expressed her complaints,
Guarded the lion day and night.
Three months passed soon,
Lion Manas recovered gradually,
He was as strong as before.

Ayidarhan's son Kokcher,
Stationed on mountain Koruktu,
He patrolled the roads and guarded the border.
He set out specially one day,
Came and visited Manas.

The hero asked about Kokchykoz,
He answered in truth without hesitation:
"Kozkamen's son Kokchykoz,
Is in the camp of General Ayi.

"General Ayi is the leader of Ketay people,
He is a brave backbone of Ketay;
He stations in Besibalek,
They are wealthy and free from care.
He must wave his flag and come one day,
To plunder Kirgiz and Kazakh."
Kokcher hid nothing from the hero,
Expressed all his worries clearly.

Hearing what Kokcher said,
The lion got the thought to attack General Ayi suddenly:
"Khan Bakay, Chuwak, please come here!
I have something to tell you.
I conquered east and west and defeated numerous heroes,
Banus and Sokso both were defeated and fled away.
I suffered and fought regardless of my safety,
But I never feel vexed like today.

"I will go and attack General Ayi in Kangayi,
I will ask him for Kokchykoz.
Whether he yields Kokchykoz or not,
That is his own business.
If he insists on not yield Kokchykoz,
Then I have to fight with him."

When they were discussing the plan,
A Kazakh opened the door and came in,
He reported to Manas:
"When Kokcher came to visit you,
Kokchykoz led fifty warriors,
Went along Yili river.
His attendants were all ferocious,
It is General Ayi who provided him these warriors.

"Kirgiz and Kazakh stationed there,
More than thousand households were plundered.
People are all homeless,

They suffered from the disaster,
Never happened before.
Fellow villagers all left their homes,
Ran to Yuchykarkela,
And Sariarca,
Some villagers fled,
Toward Shankemin."

Hearing this news,
Manas was burning with great fury,
His countenance made everyone scared,
He determined to spare none of the enemies.

Let us put this aside,
Talk about how Kokchykoz,
Carried out his plot.

One-eyed Kokchykoz Played Another Trick

Heard the report from the Kazakh,
Manas' face turned black,
The desire of revenge rose up immediately:
"Dear wife, please return home soon,
Tell Garmgirchy, Berita,
What happened in detail.

"Let them prepare one thousand camels,
Load weapons, bullets and food on.
If you do not wipe out the shield of Kokchykoz,
How can I return home willingly?"
Though lion Manas said so,
His wound just healed,
How could he lead troops on an expedition.

Manas was in a great state with majestic-looking,
Since he had made his mind,
Who dare prevent him from going?
He did not go back to prepare,
He just set out along lake Yisek.
He went around the prairie Terks,
Pressed onward to the territory of General Ayi.

Bloodsucker Manas was unstoppable,
He was filled with great fury.
After many days' journey,
He arrived at the domain of General Ayi.

The warrior walked in the front,

Met with the enemy patrol on the ridge.
Kangayi soldiers on the patrol,
Were totally more than sixty.

Kirgiz warriors explored the way in the front,
Were smart Erchywuler and Bozwuler,
Showtu who wore a felt hat,
Bokowuler and Baymart,
And Atay, Zhatay and Arakan.
They were all there,
With Aji Bayi and Sirk,
Totally there were ten warriors,
But they need fight sixty enemies.

Patrols of Kangayi,
Detected the target from far away,
They were eager for action,
They would not let anyone escape easily.

Angry Sirk and hero Showtu,
Met with Karamark suddenly,
Several enemies appeared from both sides,
Waved their knives and blocked in the front.
More enemies waved their knives,
Rushed out from the flank.
These famous heroes,
Were surrounded in the middle.

Zhatay was a ferocious hero,
His words were just as good as himself:
"We cannot rush into them blindly,
We need fight regardless of danger;
Fight with enemies,
Do not beat the battle drum,
Just fight with enemies desperately.

"Be sure not be trapped by enemies,

To avoid being captured by them;
We need act together,
Whip horses, wave whips, scatter around.
Enemies will believe we are going to flee,
They must chase after us tightly.
You are all efficient heroes better than hundred others,
Take the chance and defeat them.
Try to show your power and courage,
Defeat and make enemies frightened out of their wits;
Let black mane wolf see,
How brave his warriors are."
Heroes all approved,
What Zhatay said.
Ten heroes scattered,
Pretended to flee to ten different directions.

"Brute people are scared away by us!"
Ketay soldiers whipped their horses,
Chased after them tightly.
They lifted the whips high and shouted,
As they were all victorious generals.

These Kirgiz brave men,
Ran out for a while,
Then turned round and ran back suddenly.
Showtu wore a felt hat,
Stabbed seventeen enemies down their saddles;
Khan Jagurp's son Sirk,
Stabbed twenty-one enemies down;
The left enemies,
Were all captured.
Kangayi soldiers on the patrol,
Did not flee away at all.

Right at this moment,
Kokchykoz came and challenged again.
He knew Kirgiz like the palm of his hand,

He shouted and rushed in the middle of warriors.
Warriors tied together,
All Karamark soldiers captured.
Seeing the great figure of Kokchykoz,
Warriors were all worried with thousand thoughts;
They know the power of Kokchykoz,
Such a ferocious man,
Who could fight him?

Facing the coming death,
They felt helpless and dejected.

Sirk nerved himself,
Made the arrangement decidedly:
"Erchywuler, Bozwuler, hero Showtu,
You stay and fight together with me;
Rest warriors leave right now,
Drive the captured soldiers to the lion.
Then deliver the message soon,
To Chuwak and Sirak,
Tell them the crucial condition here,
We can only hold out two days at most."

As soon as the words finished,
Sirk turned round and fought Kokchykoz.
Jagurp's son Sirk,
Was stabbed over from the horseback,
By Kozkamen's son Kokchykoz.

Erchywuler held the spear in the hand fearlessly,
Fought against Kokchykoz bravely,
Erchywuler fell on the ground soon.
Bozwuler went around three times,
Seeing the difficult situation of Erchywuler,
He took the courage and rushed to Kokchykoz.
They tore each other's sleeves,
And did not yield at all,

Attempted to twist the other's arm off,
They insisted on,
As long as meat could cook well,
Bozwuler fell off finally.

Lovely Showtu,
Did not care the danger,
Great figure was as tall as a tall tree,
Giant-size feet stood still on the ground,
Facing ferocious Kokchykoz,
He made a violent attack.

Showtu knocked the spear of Kokchykoz off,
Stabbed his spear toward Kokchykoz's chest,
Unfortunately he missed a little.
Lost the spear in the hand,
Kokchykoz felt flurried suddenly.
He had to straighten his body,
He fooled and said to Showtu:

"Through my long-term observation,
You are a real hero.
Please let me pick my spear up,
Maybe I can defeat me,
Or you can defeat me."

His kidding words were useful,
Showtu took it to be true.
Others drove the captured enemies,
To the camp of Kirgiz.
"Take off the helmet but to cut the head,
They can drink blood as water.
Chuwak and Sirak,
One of them must come to me,
And drive me to the front of Manas,
Let him punish me severely.
Such bloodsucker with full of hatred,

Must toast my guts and drink my blood.
Even if he does not eat my guts,
He must cut me into pieces.

"If I can defeat these four in front of me,
I must capture them.
If I fail to defeat Showtu,
I will be captured by them.
How could I still tangle with Showtu,
The time of fierce enemy's coming is approaching!"
Cunning Kokchykoz,
Turned his steed and fled away.

Showtu was blamed by his fellows,
But did not know how to respond.
Erchywuler, Bozwuler and Sirk,
Blamed him together:
"Plead to pick up his spear for fighting,
That guy is not such a hero.
Believed him so easily,
How can you act so rashly!

"Please think about, big brother,
How can you act like this?
He has already cheated you,
He will not come back again.
Raise conditions in the battle,
Only Manas and Kunwuer Bayi can negotiate,
Chuwak and Niskara,
Sirak and Muradiler,
Can match their identity.
Common warriors like you and me,
How can we pretend to be heroes and make trouble?"

Three heroes quarreled continually,
One after another seriously:
"When you permit,

If we go and stand in the way,
For you, the warrior,
It is such a shame.
If that kind of thing happens,
We will feel small,
Will make others laugh at us as warriors of Manas? "

Hero Showtu recognized his mistake,
He lowered his head and thought in silence.
Kokchykoz had fled away in panic,
Four heroes stood there without any plan.

Drove dozens of captured enemies,
Warriors came to Manas' camp,
Told him in detail,
What they had confronted.

Chuwak set his temper in a flame after hearing this,
He stood up and shouted:
"Where is my mount Koktikai?
Lead it to me right now!
Showtu is my backbone,
He is a hero shining with exploits.
Kozkamen's son Kokchykoz,
Will kill or capture,
All four warriors left there.

"If we lose these four warriors,
Our wings will be injured and tails will be broken;
How can we fly without wings,
How can we steer the direction without tails!"
Hero Chuwak made his blood boil,
He was restless with anxiety.

Hearing the name of Kokchykoz,
Black mane wolf Manas could not restrain his fury.
He asked to saddle his steed,

Prepared to go on an expedition on Ackura.

Sirak opened his mouth at the moment:
"Lion Manas, my respectable brother,
Where are you going for the expedition?
You are Khan for numerous common people,
Your fame as a bloodsucker spread far.
General Ayi, the parton of Kara Ketay people,
Must bite the hook when he hears the report of Kokchykoz.

"From augur Tolik,
I have known the detail.
Three warriors were defeated by Kokchykoz,
When it was Showtu's turn to fight,
Kokchykoz's spear was broken.
He pleaded Showtu,
To let him pick up his spear,
But he fled away in panic.

"Let Chuwak lead the troops to fight,
I will follow them tightly.
If the situation changes suddenly,
I will deliver the message in time.
I need measure the distance,
And watch the spring for drinking carefully.
If the battle cannot end soon,
We need herd the horses on the prairie.
I need check the prairie there."
Sirak put forward such a suggestion,
Stopping Manas from going on expedition.

Hero Chuwak and Sirak,
Vaulted into the saddle;
Two steeds galloped as if on wings,
Dust behind them flew all over the sky.
They whipped the steeds without stop,
Arrived at the place where the patrols appeared soon.

Clever Sirak observed carefully,
Did not find the trace of Kokchykoz.
"My respectable leopard Chuwak,
Those brothers should be punished,
They were cheated by Karamark,
Stand there still.
If you agree,
I can tell you my thought.

"I need go at full speed,
To look for the trace of the enemy.
Before he can meet with General Ayi,
I will capture him;
If he runs into the city,
I will follow him in tightly.
No need to wait outside,
There will be a battle in the city.

"Let enemies turn out in full strength,
Guide them here and then attack.
Lion has had no appetite for food for long,
Let him fight against the enemies freely,
It must smooth the depression in his heart.
You have four warriors who accompany you,
Look at me, the poor thing,
If I am plotted by Kangayi and cannot flee,
How can I die in vain among the strangers."

Sirak rode on steed Tilkezler,
Galloped without sparing the steed.
"I need find Kokchykoz,
Scoop his eyes out!"

He whipped the steed under him,
Went forward along the hill slope.
The hooves of Tilkezler,
Were heavier than the iron in blacksmith shop.

Rocks under the hooves dashed around,
Squeaked over the sky.

In the twinkling of an eye,
One sentence had not been finished,
Vast land was thrown back,
Dust was raised high in the air.
Brave hero Sirak,
Had already come to the side of Kokchykoz.

Hearing the sound of hoof prints,
Kokchykoz turned round and looked.
The figure of leopard Sirak,
Appeared from time to time.
He could not turn his horse round,
Dare not go and fight again either,
No one cheered for him,
He had no choice but fled away.

Kokchykoz staggered all the way,
His giant figure was shaking,
His legs rocked ceaselessly,
His eyes blinked rapidly.

What could he do at the crucial moment?
He had to nerve himself and continue to go.
Waved the whip and kept lashing the steed,
Kokchykoz rushed forward.

At the moment Sirak almost caught up with him,
Soldiers and horses had filled the city.
This Kokchykoz,
Was thought highly by General Ayi.
He constantly flattered General Ayi,
Finally he earned enough trust.

He spoke Karamark language,

Mixed with Ketay language:
"God, Sirak is going to swallow me!"
He shouted ceaselessly.
His courage was like flies',
Eye expression was as frightened as a bird's in the cage.

When hero Sirak took a look,
The troops had filled the city.
Shoulders rubbed, steps followed,
Troops swarmed forward,
Too long to see the end,
It was hard to describe with language.
Eight battle flags waved in the air,
Troops swarmed like flood;
Sixty heroes went on expedition,
Seemed to stamp the earth flat.
The earth was peeled,
Every corner was thronged;
On top of the heads it was more splendid,
Spear points were shinning the cold air.

Horsetails waved left and right,
Like a lake rolling in the storm.
Upraised spears stuck up in the sky,
Battle hammers were lying across the saddles,
Helmets were on their heads tight.
Riders pressed against horsebacks tightly,
The roar of the horses was earsplitting.
At the curve,
Many soldiers ambushed there.
Dust covered the sky,
The earth was in the dust.
Numerous soldiers came hurriedly,
Surrounded the single-handed hero.
Hero Sirak had an impressive appearance,
He was worthy of the name of hero.

He was well built with his symmetric figure,
He was a real hero;
He was as agile as a falcon,
He had uncommon strength.
His diamond-like spirit,
Would not be frustrated even face to a rock;
Red spear with long tassel,
Was held tightly in his hand;
Faced to countless enemies,
He showed no fear at all.

He shouted the name of "Manas",
Rushing into enemies with no fear;
He was like a bullet shot out of the gun,
Dashed among enemies.
Enemy came in his face,
Was killed by him with no return.
Fierce enemies,
Covered their faces and crept away in panic.
His spear was waving in his hands,
From left to right with no stop.
Heads of enemies were cut,
Fell off on the ground like apples.

He killed from inside the city to outside,
And thought again and again:
"If I pretend to be defeated,
They must take the chance and chase me.
Fellows coming to support me,
Must defeat these fierce enemies."

He nerved himself with full energy,
Pulled the halter and dashed into enemies.
The enemy coming in his face,
Was stabbed off and begged for mercy.
Enemies were mixed with the dust,
Like flies with no heads;

Sirak fought and retreated,
He tried to lead the enemies out of the city.

The noise from the city,
Ran into the ears of Chuwak continually;
Drum beating rent the air,
Hero Chuwak heard clearly.

He whipped Koktikai and rushed to General Ayi,
Four warriors whipped their steeds and went together.
They rushed on a hill,
Arrived at the hill in the wilderness,
Eight flags were waving with the wind,
A storm of troops swarmed toward them.
Among the flood-like crowd,
Hero Sirak was as outstanding as a dragon.

Hero Chuwak shouted loudly,
The name of Ayikoler shook the earth;
He rushed into the enemies without hesitation,
Making enemies run like flood in panic.
Four warriors followed tightly after,
They were energetic and excited;
With Sirak and Chuwak,
They felt they would never lose.
Enemies came like flood,
But were utterly routed.

Except soldiers and horses in the battle,
There were more fully equipped soldiers behind.
Countless common soldiers,
Waved the sticks in their hands,
They proceeded forward with heads wagged,
They approached arrogantly.

There were vigorous men who wore armors,
Heroes won all the time,

Knights were good at using spears,
Ambitious person good at fighting,
Skilled men good at shooting arrows,
And giants waved shovels.

Facing such strong enemies,
Black mane wolves fought with little resistance,
Hero Sirak, warrior Showtu,
Followed Chuwak and Sirak tightly,
Acting as their most capable assistants.

Erchywuler and Bozwuler,
Were great men in the world.
Since the heroes were fighting in the field,
They did not give any impression of weakness,
They also rushed into enemies and fought.

Six heroes drove straight in,
Cut enemies in the middle,
Descended disaster on enemies.
Sixty thousand regular soldiers,
Countless common soldiers,
Were killed by the heroes casually.
Six heroes fought two days,
Made corpses of enemies pile up as hills.

Heroes had been exhausted,
Their steeds were tied either,
Six heroes left enemies,
Whipped their steeds back to the hill.

Respectable elder Bakay,
Sent two warriors to ask for the situation again,
They were Argen's son Karakojo,
And hero Majik of Kara Nuoyi.
They whipped their horses in a hurry,
They saw what had happened with their own eyes.

They returned and reported to Manas,
Told what they saw in detail.
Uncle Bakay's white beard was shining,
"Please come here quickly!"
He called Kergelchal in the camp.
All warriors took action immediately,
Led horses on prairie and mounted.
They held the flag up high,
Led by giant Bakay,
Galloped into the battlefield.
The red flag of Manas,
Was stuck in on the top of the hill by Kergelchal.

Seeing the troop appeare suddenly,
Kangayi soldiers fell over each other for fleeing.
They lost the formation of the their troops,
Just fled back to the city hurriedly.
The leader went to see General Ayi in a hurry,
Reported the emergency to him.

General Ayi bursted into anger after hearing the report:
"Call Kokchykoz up here!
How many things has he told me?
Since I ascended the throne,
How could anyone come and stamp on my palace!
Who is coming to challenge me?"

The leader who came to report,
Responded him right away:
"I have already known who is that,
I dare not report if I do not know.
When I idled about the market two days ago,
Kokchykoz came up to me and cried,
He wore a waistcoat full of blood,
And it was unbuttoned.

"He shouted loudly but was short of breath,

I could not hear clearly what language he spoke.
I thought it is your order,
So I just stood aside silently.
He held eight flags up high,
Led sixty thousand soldiers,
Rushed out of the city to fight.
The person who was fighting with them,
Was a young man riding on a red steed.

"He killed many heroes in a row,
Running blood had converged into a river.
The young man had a ferocious expression,
Seeing the corpses all over that place,
People were all frightened.
It was such a hero,
Who cut us into several groups;
Heroes who went to fight him,
Were defeated and fled away;
The single-handed young man,
Was as fierce as a dragon.

"He is a guy facing death calmly,
Red eyes were like flames burning;
He is as agile as an eagle,
And braver than a lot warriors.
His spear never misses the target,
No one could flee away from his hand;
He is well-versed in Kungfu,
Anyone who fights against him,
Would definitely be defeated.
When he is fighting,
He always shouts the name of 'Manas'."

General Ayi opened his eyes wide,
Asking with great anger:
"What does Manas mean?
Is it all true?"

He stood up from his seat fast,
Even his fingertips turned stiff and began to shake.

The leader continued,
Had the rest things added:
"We used to trap him together,
But still failed to capture him.
He himself has been hard to deal with,
There were five more who came to help him.
One of them was so ferocious,
If anyone fights against him,
There is no other result except death.

"He is a tall and strong hero,
It is hard to find such a hero;
His shouting roared in the sky,
He is as redoubtable as a lion.
He rushed forward with shouting the slogan,
The name of Manas echoed among the mountains.
How could our troops contend with him,
We had to turn round and flee away.

"I wrote a letter and sent soldiers right away.
I chose common soldiers from ordinary people,
Thirty thousand soldiers were ready in an instant,
I sent them to the battlefield to fight.
Those six guys divided into two groups,
Killed us mercilessly.
They waved the knives in their hands,
Deprived lives of countless soldiers.

"Blood of our soldiers and horses,
Can converge into a running river.
Numerous soldiers played at least one role,
They made those six guys exhausted,
And climb on the top of the hill.

"I try to capture them all of one mind.
Arranged soldiers to attack from all directions.
Suddenly a small group appeared,
It was led by a white-beard old man,
Red flag was shining in the sunshine,
And waved with the wind.

"I took out my telescope and watched carefully,
That is a group of about five hundred people,
Warriors went in the front,
Each of them was brave and energetic.

"Seeing their power,
Our soldiers did not dare to stay,
They concerned their own life,
Tried to escape for saving their life.
I come specially for this reason,
Report the detailed information to you."

General Ayi said with his eyes opened wide:
"Hey! Kokchykoz, is it true?
You were stabbed by Manas,
Then you fled here for help!

"In the ceremony of Koktoy that day,
People swarmed there.
In front of so many heroes,
Manas defend the reputation of Kirgiz easily.

"In my memory,
There are only two persons who can compete with me,
Except them,
No others can come and challenge me.

"Almanbet who fled from Ketay,
Is a hero who can match with me;
When I heard a single-handed hero from you,

I thought it is him coming.
The other one is this person,
He is hero Manas.
Manas and I have no rancor against each other,
If he is not provoked by others,
He would never come to me without a reason.

"You said you robbed his horses,
Then lost them and had to flee.
Kokchykoz, listen to me,
They come here to get you,
I'd better hand you over to them,
To avoid the battle between Manas and me.

"You used to go to Khan Arokai for shelter,
You told him you would capture Manas,
Finally he was cheated and became desperated.
You said you robbed their horses and grabbed back by them,
And came to me for shelter.
Without my permission,
How can you presume to lead troops and go out to battle?"

Kokchykoz responded immediately:
"My respectable Khan and general,
Please listen to my difficulties.
You sent me on a patrol two days ago,
I started off right away without delay.

"There was no one when I got there,
Kirgiz people had killed all your soldiers,
They were ready to return.
I live by your grace for a long time,
I am always looking for the chance to repay;
I attacked them without hesitation,
It is all for your fame I fought.

"I fought against them regardless of my safety,

I poked two on the ground in the first round.
Sirak came suddenly and fought against me,
I had to give up and fled for my life.

"Sirak chased after me tightly,
Followed me into the city.
I was worried he would rush into your palace,
That would ruin your honorable fame.

"I had to give the order to fight,
Then came to your palace in a hurry.
If I interrupt your dream,
I am sorry for that.

"You are omnipotent in our hearts,
I cannot explain in front of your crown.
Today for my own fate,
I must explain to you in detail."
He heard the lie of Kokchykoz,
General Ayi's fury was still hard to die away.

Let us put this aside,
Talk about hero Manas,
How he defeated General Ayi.

General Ayi Suffered a Defeat and Escaped

After hearing all that Kokchykoz had said,
General Ayi could not cool his anger down.
Without considering the etiquette,
He shouted and screamed ceaselessly:
"Where is that Brute who comes to provoke?
Blow the horn and beat the drum now,
Ignite the powder and shoot the firelock,
Make earthshaking noise,
Boost the morale of the whole city.
All troops with no one stays,
Whip the horses and start off courageously.
Surround the swaggering Brute people tightly,
Leave no crack for them.

"Brute people are so rampant,
We must drive them out.
We need wipe out,
Self-glorifying Brute all.

"You have witnessed evil things Brute did,
Duohan, Khan Banus and others,
Sotoy, Sokso and other generals,
They consider me the same as them.
Brute people are unaware of their own limitation,
They never think they will lose their lives here!"
He shouted like a black boar,
Talked wildly with arrogance.
General Ayi's courage redoubled,

He showed great braveness;
He led hundreds of thousands of soldiers,
Swarmed out of the city.
Drums shaking the earth, horns blowing together,
The noise resounded in streets.
General Ayi led his troops,
Rode on his steed arrogantly.
The troop was like pervading fog,
Left the city and moved forward slowly.
White brocade streamer, blue battle flag,
Were waving in the sky,
Armors were shining in the sunshine.
Numerous mounted and foot soldiers stamped the earth,
The earth could barely sustain,
It seemed the earth was going to crumble;
Arrow bags with gold edge were shining,
Horsetails were shaking left and right,
Spear points were shining the red light.
"Be quick, do not stop!"
Headers urged the soldiers ceaselessly.
The stretching troop was too long to see both ends,
Dust flew in the air and covered the sunshine.

Kirgiz heroes, a few in number,
Were surprised to see so many enemies.
"It is the time to show our power and braveness."
Eagle Chuwak was excited to have a go.
Troops of two sides stood face to face,
Stuck their own flag in on the top of the hill.

General Ayi had a warrior,
His name Maluna was spread all over,
He was a warlike boor,
He felt agitated when there was no fight,
Anywhere he went would be suffered,
He was an impregnable hero.
He was like a towering mountain,

Whipped his black and white horse into the battlefield.

Maluna had strong muscles and extraordinary arm strength,
He was as ferocious as venomous snakes and scorpions.
He was proficient in,
All martial skills people could remember.

He was like a yurt,
Huge shield was on his shoulder,
If anyone dares to fight against him,
The only result was failure.

Maluna braced himself up,
Held a pine spear in the hand and talked wildly:
"Brute people look down their noses at everyone,
I will throw them off their feet and make them frightened.
Since I, Maluna, am capable of fighting,
Such battle never happened in my place.
As hearing my formidable name,
No enemy dare step on my place.

"On the ceremony of Kokotoy,
I wanted to go and punish them,
But General Ayi asked to garrison the city,
He did not permit me to go.
If I went to the ceremony,
The damned Brute people,
Must have disappeared from this world!
Even if they do not disappear,
They do not dare to look at us in the eyes."

He talked wildly of his self-glorification,
Vowed solemnly in front of General Ayi,
Whipped the black and white steed under him,
He was as tall as a mountain.

In the troop of Ayikoler Manas,

Kutunay was hot-tempered,
He was already itching for a fight.
He whipped the horse in front of Bakay,
Asked to fight and vowed to dye the gown with his blood.

Kutunay vaulted into the saddle to the battlefield,
The razor sharp long spear in his hand,
Laid across the saddle was shining.
Steed Kambilkera of Kutunay,
Was too fast to be caught up with,
On Kirgiz horse race,
No one would regret to ride it.
When Kutunay rode on this steed,
He showed the power of a hero.

Kutunay vaulted into the saddle to the battlefield,
Malula still talked wildly:
"No matter who fights against me today,
I am not willing to carry his head with me,
I have to stick it and throw back to where he comes.

"There are powerful warriors among Kirgiz,
It is said that they are Chuwak and Sirak.
On the bloody battlefield,
It is said that Manas is with the best martial skills.
I need fight against each of them three,
How can we stop if no one die?"

Hearing these words,
Kutunay could not bear any more with anger:
"Facing such condition,
I will not shrink back even an inch.
You, Maluna, such a mad dog,
Who will listen to your nonsense talking?
Chuwak, Sirak and the lion,
How can they pay any attention to you?"
Before Maluna responded to his words,

He waved his spear to attack.

The steed of Kutunay,
Champed the iron bit ceaselessly.
Regardless of his own safety,
Kutunay whipped the steed forward.

Kutunay took all his energy,
Stabbed to the side waist of Maluna.
Maluna was as firm as the iron,
He responded with a sneer.

Like flies alighted on,
The boar was safe and sound;
Kutunay's spear,
Had broken into pieces and fell down.

Brave Kutunay,
Drew out his axe and waved,
Nerved himself and slashed at Maluna.
The ax handle broke into two,
The ax head and the handle dropped on the ground.

How about Maluna now?
He was waving his long spear,
Lifted Kutunay up on the spear point,
Went around the field and put him back on his steed:
"You should know how can be a hero,
Go back to your camp!"

"Since I am still alive,
That is a big blessing."
Kutunay talked to himself,
Went back to the camp out of his wits.
Kepchak Bayi's son Aji Bayi,
Was at the end of his patience,
He whipped his maroon steed to fight,

Fury aroused in his heart,
People got excited for his action.
He watched Maluna in front of him carefully,
Maluna was really a brave and skillful hero,
But he was not ever-victorious.
"Now that I come and fight against him,
I must defeat him."

"Since he comes specially for me,
I will let him poke me first with his spear."
Maluna held the shield in his hand tightly,
Stood in the center still.

Honorable hero Aji Bayi,
Exerted his strength,
Stabbed the spear into Maluna's body,
The spear went through Maluna's kidney,
Got to the side of the hipbone.
The spear point pierced the kidney,
Swaggering Maluna,
Fell off from the horseback right away.

Respectable hero Aji Bayi,
Was brave but with more wisdom.
He galloped his steed like an eagle,
Cut the head of Maluna immediately.
Aji Bayi pulled the head,
Threw it under the flag of Kirgiz.

Maluna lost his life in the battlefield,
It made Karamark people very sad.
A hero named Dordona,
Shouted and rushed out of the camp.
With irresistible power,
He rode on the steed Donmanda,
The earth shook under the hooves.
Holding a long wolf-tongue spear,

He charged toward Aji Bayi fiercely.
Aji Bayi watched carefully,
The spear point was right pointing at his chest.
"I will pierce his lung!"
The enemy aimed at Aji Bayi with his eyes opened wide.

Aji Bayi had fought numerous tough battles,
He was with an easy grace.
When the spear of the enemy came,
Aji Bayi turned over to the side of the steed,
The spear did not pierce him,
Dordona failed to pull the halter of the running horse.

Donmanda was a violent horse,
No matter how the master pulled the halter,
It was still unwilling to turn round,
But continued galloping forward.

Aji Bayi's bay horse was matchlessly fast,
It was clever and agile,
No need of master's pulling of halter,
It turned round by itself,
Galloping its hooves as arrows,
It had an arm's length behind Donmanda in an instant.

Brave Aji Bayi,
Grabbed that Karamark in his hand,
Turned around and grasped the enemy's arms,
And pressed under the stirrup tightly.

He pulled Dordona off the steed,
Dragged Dordona back to the camp.
Flesh of Dordona like the bags on livestock,
Was peeled off and left on the way.

Kirgiz people did not notice,
Dordona's younger brother Otokai,

Was burning by the flames of revenge.
The boar opened his eyes wide and whipped forward,
He grabbed the collar of Aji Bayi,
Attempted to drag Aji Bayi off the horse.

Clever Aji Bayi sat on his horse firmly,
His bay horse did not move at all.
Aji Bayi pressed himself tightly on the horseback,
Otokai dragged with full of his energy.

When they were dragging and pulling,
Gulidur's son hero Alebye,
Could not bear any more,
Regardless of his fly-like life,
He shouted as loud as the thunder.
He waved his red-tassel spear,
With crescent ax hanging on him,
Whipped his steed into the battlefield.

He put down the spear and grasped the ax firmly,
Ferocious look was burning like flames in his eyes.
Aimed carefully and slashed at Otokai's nape,
Hero Alebye's ax,
Split the rival's flesh and bone,
And got stuck in the bone.
Otokai's brain burst out and he fell off the horse.
Coat edge spread over on the ground,
He died right away without making any sound.
Alebye was so proud of himself,
Drew up his horse and watched.

A Kara Ketay warrior named Kage,
Was famous and unusual,
His knife which descended disaster to countless people,
Was full of blood of his rivals.
He set his mind on revenging on Brute,
He whipped his horse into the battlefield.

The enemy coming in full fury,
Had drawn Alebye's attention.
He was right in high spirits,
"The luck is on my side."
Lifting up his ax to fight.
Kage dodged the coming ax,
Waved the spear in his hand,
Threw Alebye off the horse with slightest effort.

Aji Bayi stood aside,
Sent the horse back to Alebye,
Before Aji Bayi turned round,
Ferocious hero Kage,
Poked Aji Bayi off on the ground.

Kage's horse was a good one,
But it was hot-tempered.
Before his horse turned round,
Skillful hero Showtu came up,
Then Aji Bayi and Alebye got rescued.

Brave Showtu,
Had experienced countless battles,
Exploit-notable Showtu,
Had seen numerous warriors and powerful enemies.

Without waiting for Showtu to be ready,
Kage stabbed his spear to Showtu,
Showtu, with a big figure,
Fell off the steed on the ground.

Kergel shouted loudly,
Of the slogan "Manas",
Rushed in front of Kage with his spear.
Kage warded off the coming spear,
Leaned and stabbed out with a loud shout.
Kergel's spear fell off,

He tried but could not draw himself up.

Eraman's son Erchywuler,
Was a hero who moved with alacrity,
With the permission of Bakay,
He rushed to the battlefield without fear,
Aimed at courage-mounting Kage,
Attacked from the side of Kage.
Erchywuler fancied himself agile,
His attack failed either.
Heroes who went into the fight,
Were all defeated by the powerful enemies.
Forty heroes had to fight one by one,
To save each other's life.

"I am a warrior too,
I want to meet this bastard!"
Hero Sirak rushed to the battlefield,
Who could stop him?

Since he was filled with fury,
How could Kage escape under his hand?
Sirak came with his spear waving in the hand,
Self-glorified Kage was killed right away.

It was getting dark,
Horn of retreat sounded from General Ayi's camp,
Soldiers went back to their camp,
Like sheep going back to sheepfold at night.

The troop of black mane wolf Manas,
Pitched their camps in depression,
Sentries sent on patrol duty,
Stayed alert with their full attention.
There were good archers,
Famous eagle-like warriors,
At night without moonlight,

Many could still find the trace of enemies;
When enemies came as flood,
Many could withstand single-handed;
Mysterious, steady, resourceful,
Were the merits of many;
It was them who gave up their sleep,
Guarded the camp faithfully,
With spears and shields held firmly.
Sentries had taken turns for three times,
First rays of the morning sun just spread.

General Ayi was still in imposing manner,
Like the roaring peak,
Covering dust rose behind him,
Like the whirlwind which towered up to the sky.

From the side of famous Arashi,
Hero Sirak rushed out.
Many heroes were itching to have a go,
They all wanted to fight against the enemies.

The hero from Ketay who came to fight,
Was born in a place called Sazang.
If he did not have enough courage,
In this master-gathered battlefield,
How could he show his prowess before others?
Once he waved the spear to fight,
He was never defeated by others.
He got a nickname of "Mayterk",
Because of one of his crooked thumb.
His mount was an elephant,
No horses could bear his weight,
So he got a name of "Walking Mayterk".

To avoid him getting tired of walking,
Aisanhan presented him an elephant,
Aisanhan always praised him like this.

"Mayterk is the bravest hero."

He sat on the back of an elephant,
Holding an iron spear in his hand.
His mountain-size figure,
Made people scared.
He wore layers of armors,
Iron stick was laid across the saddle,
The war-hammer was carried under his armpit,
Chest-protector was shining in front of his chest.

He rode the elephant and rushed into the battlefield,
Pointed his fingers at Sirak and said:
"Do not come and fight one by one,
You come to fight against me together!"
Sirak dismissed his arrogance,
Stood there still with his spear.

The elephant under Mayterk swayed,
His hands and feet shook too.
The spear whirred as Mayterk waved it,
It had one hundred and fifty spans long.
He waved his spear and shouted,
Dust rose in the air and covered the whole valley,
Many people were frightened out of their wits.

Hero Sirak pulled out his knife from his waist,
Chopped the enemy's spear in two.
Waving his knife,
He aimed at the elephant under Mayterk,
Slashed its neck severely.
Who could survive under the knife of Sirak?
The elephant fell off right away under his knife.
With his thigh pinned by the fallen elephant,
It was impossible for Mayterk to escape.
Sirak lifted his crescent ax,
Honeysuckle was used to make its handle,

Cried out the slogan of "Manas",
Came up to Mayterk.
Mayterk was struggling on the ground,
Straightened his upper body, clenched his lower lip,
Read silently the magical words "God bless me",
Helmet had already fallen,
His head was exposed to his rival.
Sirak observed carefully,
Waved his ax high in the hand,
Aimed at the top of the enemy's head and slashed,
Mayterk's yurt-size head,
Was split into four and splashed afar.

Among the fights during the day,
Many heroes in the battlefield,
Lost their lives in his hand.
When the evening came again,
A hundred and fifty Ketay soldiers,
Pulled the iron nets and made an attack toward Sirak.

Seeing this,
Sirak turn round suddenly like a white tiger.
Magical mount Tilkezler,
Was as agile as a hare;
It was like mercury which fell on the ground,
Rolled back and forth.
In the time of boiling a pot of tea,
A hundred warriors that pulled the nets,
Had been killed mercilessly.
The rest fifty warriors were ready to flee,
Another one hundred warriors came to back them,
They shouted loudly and surrounded Sirak in the center.

Hero Sirak was single-handed,
Sixteen nets covered over his head.
Ketay warriors shouted their slogan loudly,
Pulled and dragged the nets with full energy.

Hero Sirak sat on his horseback firmly,
Stood still and did not move even an inch.
They failed to pull the powerful hero off,
They worried and shouted nothing but "he, he, he".

Akberita's son Chuwak,
Could not be completely indifferent to this!
He lifted the leather whip in his hand,
Lashed the horse rump severely,
Shouted loudly and rushed to the battlefield.

He waved the shining knife,
Slashed at the enemies who cast the iron nets.
Chuwak was like an eagle hunting wild ducks,
More than fifty enemies died under his knife in an instant.

Kangayi started another round of attack.
Six hundred soldiers to cast nets came out of General Ayi's camp,
Before Chuwak could settle down,
Sixty nets had covered over his head.

Chuwak and Sirak were covered by the iron nets,
Forty warriors led by Kergel,
Could not wait any more!
They shouted the slogan of "Manas",
Waved their spears and rushed to the enemies.

Ayikoler Manas did not care at all,
It seemed nothing had happened,
It was like watching a horse wrestling game,
He watched and waited calmly.
He was such a brave hero,
It was hard to find such hero in the world.

General Ayi shouted and rushed to the battlefield,
He trampled forty warriors at his will.
Kara Ketay and Karamark people,

Were good at casting nets to catch people.
To capture powerful enemies with iron nets,
No one could compete with them.
Nearly half of forty warriors,
Were covered in their iron nets.

Facing General Ayi's despotic power,
Lion Manas made a loud shout.
The hero's shout roared into the sky,
It was like the roar forty lions made together.

Lake waves rolled, peaks shook,
The earth quivered to turn over;
White clouds turned dark,
Then disappeared in an instant.
Dust flew and covered everything,
The earth cracked, spring water spouted,
Sirak and Chuwak exerted all their strength,
Shook the iron nets covering them off.

General Ayi's city walls collapsed in the shouting,
The old, the weak and the young were pressed under the walls,
Pregnant women gave birth prematurely in panic.
General Ayi was totally at a loss,
He ran here and there mindlessly.
After the time a pot of lamb cooked,
He concentrated and watched carefully,
It was dim without seeing sunshine,
Dust still covered the whole battlefield.

"This Brute is so ferocious,
The whole earth is shocked with his shouting.
Arokai, Karaday, Duohan,
Get frightened as hearing his name.
I cannot die in his hand,
I need circle round him with plots.

"Arokai's son giant Kunwuer Bayi,
Is the support of Kara Ketay and Karamark people,
Among Kakans of sixty cities,
He calls himself their backbone.

"Damned Niskara and Georoy,
Muradiler and Wusan,
Kartkalan's daughter Sayikali,
And unusual Bolanchu,
Among Ketay fellows,
Such heroes are beyond count.

"I can wait till the evening comes,
I will go to them for help.
No need to lose my life,
To fight against the powerful rival."
He talked to himself and sought chance,
And made Kokchykoz accompanied as his reflection:
"Kokchykoz, you are a path-breaker,
Stay with me all the time and do not leave,
You must learn a lot skills from me."

Thousands of thoughts went through his mind,
Which made Kokchykoz painful and worried:
"If General Ayi meets the danger,
He must throw me out first.
I had better go to Kunwuer Bayi for shelter,
And report what happened here to him,
Rather than waste my time here.
This General Ayi of Kara Ketay,
His father is not a native here,
He is cunning with suspicious nature,
I have no future here with him."
He did not respond right away,
But put General Ayi off with sweet words,
Then left the battlefield and fled away suddenly.

Manas was filled with great fury,
He watched carefully with his eyes opened wide.
He could not see lion Chuwak, hero Sirak,
The soul-stirring fight was still going on.

Hero Manas whipped his steed Ackura,
Fought his way out into the battlefield.
People opened their eyes wide in shock,
They were alive but did not move any more.
Karamark soldiers were all frightened to death,
They simply cared their own lives,
Giving no attention to their fellows' lives.

Forty warriors fought bravely,
Shouted the name of "Manas" loudly,
Swept away Kara Ketay and Karamark troops,
Like sweeping away the fallen leaves.

Seeing Chuwak and Sirak being safe,
Ayikoler Manas showed soothing smiles.
Shaking off from enemies' iron nets,
Chuwak and Sirak turned braver,
They drew out the knives angrily,
Slashed at lines of enemies mercilessly.

Manas did not stop his step,
Fearful fury was on his face.
The sword made by the lame craftsman,
Was waving in his hand.
The shining sword could stretch to forty spans long,
The flames shined brightly.
He waved the sword lightly,
Two hundred heads from enemies were cut off.
He rushed back and forth to fight,
Enemies were just like weeds under the sickle.

Bloody battle was incomparably cruel,

Blood ran like a river.
Both sides fought with no stop,
Till stars twinkled in the sky.

General Ayi blew the horn of retreat,
Soldiers survived luckily ran back to the camp.
Only General Ayi did not return.
"Kangayi, where is your direction?"
General Ayi fled away on his steed by moonlight.

According to the agreed terms of battle,
Both sides went back to rest,
The silence of cease-fire lasted till the dawn,
The troop of Manas went out for fighting,
General Ayi did not show up till noon,
Manas sent an attendant to ask,
But he got no news of General Ayi.
Two from enemies' camp came in a hurry,
Reported the truth to lion Manas:
"Hero Manas,
We have already had no master now.
General Ayi whipped his steed and went away,
We cannot find where he is till now.

"Hero, have you already captured him?
Did you kill him and throw him into the hold?
We are worried so much,
We do not know when your warriors attack us.
Why do not you send your troop now,
To take over this empty city of no commander?"

Having heard the news of General Ayi's fleeing,
Manas showed a despised expression:
"Such Khan had better go to die,
I wish he had sunk in swamp.
How could he abandon troops and flee shamelessly,
When there is a danger.

Left his troops in the wilderness,
Where is his self-esteem with his fleeing.

"Hero Kutunay,
Please go and take over General Ayi's city,
Mount the throne there,
And administer common people there.
The city will be called city of Kutubi,
Your name will last forever together with the city.

"In the wilderness,
Once I took a fancy to a place,
There is a running river,
We take over the city of General Ayi,
If this is true,
I will build a new city there,
Let Kirgiz and Kazakh be the masters."

Since Ayikoler got such a plan,
Who else could say no to him?
Sixty thousand soldiers of General Ayi,
Were driven to build the new city.

From Balikun, Altay to Terks prairie,
A lot soldiers and people were chosen to move.
In the wilderness of Manas river,
A new city stood in front of everyone.
"This is the city Manas built."
Then the name of "city of Manas" was passed down.

Mountain Karatao on salt lake,
Became the horse-herding place for Bogo tribe;
It was named mountain Bogo,
The name is still in use today.

The running black river,
It was the black oil that flowed in the river,

During the period of building the city,
Bayimart once stationed there.

"Bayimart of Mayburak",
From then on it was called "Mayburak".
On ridged of Turpan,
There was a lake surrounded by hills,
The crystal clear water was as high as the sky,
It was called "lake Asiman" ① and it is clear now.
Turpan and Pichan,
Used water from that lake.

"The city General Ayi once administered,
So called Begin is occupied by me,
I built Manas city nearby.
As long as I am alive,
No matter where Kunwuer Bayi hides,
I must trample him.
I have already known clearly,
Where Kokchykoz flees."
Finished what he wanted to say,
Manas turned round and started off.
Manas captured the manor of General Ayi,
And built Manas city.
The city of General Ayi,
Was renamed as Tukubi city;
The towering mountain out of the city,
Was also renamed after the warrior;
Bayimart stationed beside the spring,
"Mayburak of Tazbaymart",
Then enjoyed his reputation around.

Let us put this aside,
Talk about how the Khans,
Cherished evil designs and made troubles.

① Lake Asiman: Asiman means "sky" in Kirgiz language. Lake Asiman is "Heavenly Lake" today.

The Contradiction Between Manas and Six Khans

Six Khans wrote to Manas

In a remote place called Toyun,
During the hot summer,
Khan Toshtuk held the ceremony,
He wrote to invite Kirgiz for a gathering.
Honorable elders led by Koshaoyi,
Were all present at the ceremony.
"It is too far to go from Samurhan,
Do not need to attend."
Manas stayed at home without attending.

Khan Toshtuk was a hero known to all,
Lots of people came to attend his ceremony.
Toyun was a small place,
Guests swarmed there,
Jostled each other in the big crowd.
Khans did not leave after the ceremony,
They poured out their discontent one after another.

Khan Yurbi could not wait,
He complained first:
"Sage Koshaoyi is here today,
Nobles are all here too.
Koshaoyi was the leader in the past,
Others were young and did not understand;
Jagurp's son Manas,
Is thirty years old this year,
He is self-willed and cruel,
Does not care family bond with us at all.

"Ageshi and Kerkokuler,
Had given bride price,
To two girls of Karacha and karamark as fiancée,
Under the pretext of prisoner of war,
Manas forcibly occupied their fiancée,
He looks down his nose at everyone,
When did he say regret words?

"Koshaoyi is an old man over seventy,
Manas let you go to wrestling game barely,
Jump in front of every one,
Does it make you ashamed?

"Of course, he does a lot good things,
My eyes are useless if I do not admit it.

"In the ceremony of Kokotoy,
Ketay and Karamark scrambled the meat,
Forcibly asked for the magical steed Manikair,
You all present here dare not go and stop them.
Manas came in a hurry and hosted the ceremony,
Enemies' plot failed.

"We used to wander east and west,
Suffered every hell.
It is him who gathered us here,
But for the real equality,
We have not enjoyed it till now.
Featherbrained Manas does not treat us as human,
He does everything at his will,
He does not respect the elders at all.
He made me lose face in front of all,
Leaving an unforgettable scar on my face,
But no one of you,
Blamed and asked Manas about this.

"Toshtuk is our hero,

You stand here just like a high peak.
You used to roam underground,
You saw no sunshine at all during seven years.
You hold such a ceremony first time in your life,
But Manas does not come,
Even does not write a letter to you either.
Since he is heartless,
What else does he have worthy our support?

"Our elder Muzburchak,
Got an armful of white beard;
Manas gave him sorrow at his old age,
Manas sent people to ask for his battle gown,
The hereditary Akolebok battle gown was taken by Manas.
That son of Jagurp,
Never look at anyone straight in his eyes."

Kazakh Khan Yurbi,
Viciously slandered as he opened his mouth,
Made malicious remarks carelessly,
Lobbied the elders who attended the ceremony.

Sage Koshaoyi said to himself:
"It is nonsense,
His words are full of slander and instigating;
They are bunch of bastards,
They are sullying our beloved hero.

"I just listen to how they importune,
Do not argue with them,
Even though they talk so wildly,
I cannot take action rashly.

"If they really set themselves against Manas,
I will question them and show my attitude.
With the support of Manas,
I will play my role as an elder here.

If Manas send his army for a battle with them,
Then I will go to Manas and intercede for them."
Respectable uncle gave mature consideration,
To all plans for the future.

Five Khans agreed with,
Yurbi's malicious words toward Manas,
They planed to send messengers,
To question and denounce Manas.
They butchered white mare and allied and vowed.
They put both hands in the blood of mare stomach one by one:
"If anyone dare break the vow,
The blood will be his destination."
They six played evil together and wrote letters separately,
Sent six messengers out at the same time.
Asking messengers to start off right away,
They stayed there for the news.

The messengers galloped along Toyun river,
Took a rest in Kashgar.
Put on new horseshoes for their mounts,
Whipped their steeds along Yirkshtanm.
They inquired on the way,
Finally they arrived at Samurhan.

Crowded by twelve warriors,
Kazakh hero Bolanchy,
Carried the shield and guarded the city gate;
Suddenly he found a group of riders,
Behaved furtively out of city.

Seeing their strange expressions,
Bolanchy went to the palace hurriedly:
"Black mane wolf, our commander,
If you are angry,
We will be frightened as heavy snow descends.

"If you are furious,
We will lose our lives and die immediately;
If you show smile on your face,
It is like the sun shining down;
If you let us die,
We will go to die without hesitation.

"There is a group of people coming to the city gate,
I do not recognize them now,
I watched and observed them carefully,
They are totally strange to me.

"Watching their mounts,
The horses all have legs like argali's,
And camel palm-size hooves;
Riders on the horsebacks,
Are all with ferocious look.
If normal people fight against them,
I promise no one will not regret."

Having heard the report of Bolanchy,
Lion Manas had known who they were.
His beard trembled a little,
A faint smile played round his lips:
"If so, my Bolanchy,
You just exercise your right as usual.
Let them come in the city, no blame and beat,
But you need show them your power,
Make them feel frightened and desperate.
Some of the seven Khans feel resentful,
They try to provoke a dispute;
Some famous Khans,
Attempt to cut my head off to expose publicly.
The strange riders must be sent by them,
To come and inquire about my news."

Hero Bolanchy received the order,

Strode out of the palace,
And back to the high city gate;
He picked the drumstick,
Beat the crouched ox-like drum as earthshaking.

Hearing the drum of going out to battle,
Soldiers rushed to the front of the gate.
One thousand soldiers were dressed in red,
It was like a glow suffused;
One thousand soldiers were in blue,
The number of soldiers doubled suddenly;
One thousand soldiers were in white,
It seemed the earth was filled by the troops;
One thousand soldiers were in gold,
Samurhan city was crowded with people, horses and noise;
One thousand soldiers wore black battle gown,
The troop was colorful in an instant.
These brave soldiers,
Opened their eyes wide with fury.
Spears stuck up over their heads,
Daggers swayed on their waists,
Sabers were waving in their hands,
Axes were standing on their shoulders.
There were some soldiers,
Who cut off noses and ears of enemies,
Made into amulet and hung on their breast.
Drum sounded suddenly, firelock shot in the sky,
Warriors were powerful and brave,
They would rush to enemies with an order.
Six messengers on the horses,
Were quivering in panic.
Twelve soldiers camp up,
Dragged them off the stirrups,
Pulled them into a cell,
Prisoned them mercilessly.
Black mane wolf Manas,
Was known to all by his power,

He had an interrogation room,
Two pterosaurs crouched on each side.

Manas had strict discipline,
He never forgave any evil person.
Kirgiz was in a full flush,
Of its prosperity phase.
Butchered fat mares,
To treat guests who came for the assembly.
Horse meat was piled as high as Chechdobie hill,
Soup was as mush as rough water of lake Lop Nur,
All guests left after one week.

Six messengers sent by Khans,
Were prisoned in the cell for six days,
Then were taken to the interrogation room by Bolanchy.
There were two doors in the interrogation room,
One was for the soldiers,
The other was for prisoners.

The room was gloomy and awe-inspiring,
Spears were stuck in the ground densely,
Shining saber was hanging in the roof.
On two of the walls,
Iron nails were pressed in densely,
The nails were made from Kirgiz hematite,
Wolf tongue-like points were hardened in venom.

Six messengers were taken into the room,
They dare not look straight,
They were so rightened that their legs were shaking.
They were waiting for the death sentence helplessly.

"Do not grab grass from mouth of sheep."
Eloquent Aji Bayi interrogated:
"You, the bastards,
Like mummies dug out from tomb,

Bow heads, bend backs, turn your heads sideways,
What plot are you planning?
Why do not you open your eyes?
Why do not you explain your purpose to be here?"

Having heard the reprimand of Aji Bayi,
Messengers refreshed themselves with trepidation,
Without caring their regret and shame,
They put hands into pockets,
Took out letters from Khans,
Held in both hands in humble reverence.

For the time of one meal,
No one took the letters over.
They did not know how much time passed,
Khan Jagurp's son Sirak,
Wore a crown full of diamonds,
Accompanied by eighty attendants,
He reached out for the letters:
"Take them away and treat them,
Do not waste any time!"

Bolanchy led six messengers,
To back out of the door carefully.
Each messenger was given three servants,
They were all quick and diligent;
Male servant held metal wash-hand basin,
Carried a goose-neck kettle,
Poured water for each guest to wash his hands;
There was a young married woman for each one,
They twisted their waists like swaying willows.
Female servants made the beds,
And opened the doors for them in and out.

Clothes were washed clean,
Dried under the sun and packed well.
Messengers took bath in warm water,

Made them fragrant all over their body.
The messengers rested for six days,
They were treated sincerely and carefully.
"Respectable hero Manas,
His care for us is much more than his sternness."

Six days had passed quickly,
Messengers packed and got ready to return.
Each of them was presented with a fast horse,
And ten brocade robes.
There was one letter in the hand of each of them,
Bowl-size red seal was on each letter.
"Messengers go back right now,
All information is in the letter."

Folded the silk and brocade,
Carried the bags on mule's back.
"Black mane wolf hero Manas,
We are now out of his hand safely."

Messengers rejoiced to themselves,
Galloped day and night;
Returned to their Khan quickly,
Reported to their Khan:
"We have come back safely,
Manas showed his abilities,
No one knows what he is thinking.
He has forty warriors,
They prisoned us from the first day,
Death was just in front of us,
We were on the edge of it.

"He held an assembly there,
Horse meat cut was as high as Chechdobie hill,
Seasoning salt water was as much as the water of lake Lop Nur.
The assembly lasted for six days,
Then they interrogated us as prisoners.

Let us go through the narrow and low door,
Made our heads lower to the ground.
Two pterosaurs guard on both sides of interrogation room,
There were ninety nine Began sitting in the room.
The horrible atmosphere made us frightened,
Urine wetted our pants.
Mighty Suletan Manas,
Is in his prime time;
Kirgiz people gathered together,
Held the assembly and discussed the big event.

"After the time of one meal,
They came and took over the letters;
We were treated well,
Male and female servants were sent to each of us,
To let us order at any time.

"We waited another six days,
Finally we got the response.
Each of us got one fast horse,
And nine brocade robes and leather coats.
They said what Khan wanted to say,
Are all in the letter.
They asked us to start off immediately,
We dare not delay but rush back to your palace.
These are the letters we bring back,
Brocade robes and leather coats are here too.
We traveled to and fro between here and Samurhan,
We have reported what we wanted to say."
Khans took the letters over,
And could not wait to read them.
Creator Jiaretehan was mentioned in the letters,
Names of their ancestors were in the letters too.

Days had passed,
Ancestors left the human world one after one,
After mentioning the history and ancestors,

Manas wrote these words,
It was like receiving one thousand gold coins:
"You just come like the flood!
You just come like the wind blowing away the yurt!
You just come like wild wind blowing mountains over!
Do not support with fork sticks,
I will stop you with my wisdom.

"Just come like flood destroying everything!
I will lift up heavy mattock!
If you come in countless number,
I will not retreat an inch to stop you.

"Damned six Khans,
Talked nonsense wildly.
I will swallow mercilessly,
You and all your families.
Since you do not cherish your honor,
I will destroy your cities,
And kill all of you without sparing any one!
If you come together,
I will just weigh up your courage.
The beam you support your skylight will be my calling stick,
Let you remember it forever!

"It is said that evil Kunwuer Bayi,
Descended endless disaster,
To Kirgiz people in Daoboler.
They got the revenge this year.
It is the outpost city of Kakan,
He did not make trouble without a reason;
He occupied our land,
Unscrupulous Kunwuer Bayi,
Occupied vast Sarakoler then.
I watch them carefully for years,
And on guard against them all the time,
Finally they challenge Kirgiz this year.

It is a trouble made deliberately,
I must go on an expedition to let him repay.
You must come to me within forty days,
Otherwise your fate cannot turn to live!"

Six khans read through the letters,
Then lowered their heads with astonishment.
Commander Toshtuk glared,
At honorable Khans,
And shouted loudly to them:
"We acted rashly without thinking deeply,
Wrote to him and caused such trouble.
We displease this powerful tiger,
Our wives will become widows,
Children will be orphans with hard life.
You bring in endless troubles,
But you are frightened to say nothing."

Commander Toshtuk stopped talking,
All sounds were hushed.
Sage Koshaoyi continued the talking,
He said sincerely:

"No matter you live in the east,
Or the west,
Manas must not let you go.
You have stepped on the tail of the flood dragon,
As long as he rises his head to take a breath,
You will be sucked up to his mouth,
You have nowhere to hide and no power to resist.

"He calls Koshaoyi his uncle,
He will blame the frailness of Yurbi,
He will consider Kerkokuler as his younger brother,
He will punish Ageshi seriously,
He will call Muzburchak his big brother,
He will call Toshtuk the giant.

He will support Sarit people of Hohan,
Let you fight against each other,
He will conquer all of you easily.

"You are kept in the dark,
Do not know the superb power of Manas.
I will obey the call of lion Manas,
Lead my people to gather with him,
I will arrive at his place on time,
Is anyone here willing to go with me?"

Uncle Koshaoyi finished his words,
No one raised any objection,
They all expressed they would get there within forty days,
Led their troops to go without any delay.

They scattered and went back to their places,
Packed and prepared for the journey;
No one acted with his own mood,
They put their own honor aside.

Tied the moon and counted the days,
Lion Manas was very patient.
Forty days passed gradually,
The day of starting off was coming.

A pearly white appeared on the eastern horizon,
It was too dim to recognize a person.
Blue drum like crouched ox was sounded,
Loud crash roared to the sky suddenly,
The earth lost its balance,
Quaked and shocked the hearts of people.

"What is this sound?
What in hell happened just now?"
Giant Bakay mounted his steed Wularboz,
Chuwak mounted steed Koktikai,

Lion Sirak whipped magical steed Tilkezler,
Caught up with them hurriedly,
Left dust flying under hooves.

At Bozdobie hill,
In the morning with chilly wind,
Black mane wolf led magical steed Ackura,
Stood high on the top of the hill.

As people seeing his expression,
They discussed with their heads together:
"A glare of him will make you die,
A pinch of him will make you unconscious.
Angry look in the lion's eyes is burning,
Dense mane is growing on his back.
He is as cold as the chilly wind,
He is like a peak full of snow."

Bakay said to Manas:
"Powerful lion,
Your fame is known far and wide,
Your great achievements will be the history,
Passed down and praised by all people.

"Hearing the sound of drum,
I come with no delay,
What on earth happened?
I do not know and it confuses me.
We are free from care,
No word is for discussing;
Without any preparation,
I do not understand what you mean.
Six Khans with evil designs nurse a grudge against you,
You have fixed time with them,
Tomorrow will be the deadline.
Before having any discussion with them,
You beat the drum for expedition today,

What is your purpose of it?"

Manas continued with the talk,
His words were as clear as the moon:
"Faithless six Khans,
Make troubles out of thin air,
I have nothing to discuss with them!
We will start off tomorrow morning,
I will make detailed military disposition today.

"Erchywuler and Bozwuler,
Stay and guard here with another four warriors.
If those Khans come,
Do not go and welcome them,
Even do not treat them hot tea,
But urge them on to catch up with us as soon as possible."

"If it is appropriate, my lion,
You'd better send messengers to them,
Tell Khan Koshaoyi the reason,
Let him know the detail.

"Maybe Khans come with fear,
Great depression is filling them up.
Muzburchak, Yurbi and Ageshi,
You'd better ask them to go back.
You should take advantage of this chance,
To build uncle Koshaoyi up.

"If six Khans set out together,
That palm-size Kashgar city,
Will be stamped flat by their horses.
Let Senchybek act as a mediator,
Plead you to forgive Kerkokuler.
Toshtuk has too many achievements,
You must not cold-shoulder him.
The vast land of Kashgar,

Can be presented to him to administer.

"We need act in Sarikoler,
Drive away the yaks of Karacha people.

"It is said by the passers-by recently,
Arokai's son Kunwuer Bayi,
Acts rudely to Kazakh in Altay,
Collects heavy taxes and levies forcibly.
They carry on misdeeds freely,
We need go and put them down soon."
Ayikoler Manas,
Adopted the suggestions of Bakay,
They did not stay any more,
They whipped on their journey.

Sirk wrote a letter carefully,
Let Erchywuler deliver:
"Uncle sage Koshaoyi,
You need read this letter by your own.
Please do not delay,
Try to catch up with us as soon as possible.

"Once we pass Hohan,
It will be impossible to catch up with us.
Five warriors led by Bozwuler here,
Will stay here five days before they start off.

"Do not let Khans who arrived dismount,
Urge them to go on their journey.
Toshtuk and Kerkokuler are those who can come,
Yurbi, Ageshi and Muzburchak,
Cannot come so fast,
You do not need to wait and waste time,
Just whip your steed to catch up soon."

Manas Led Six Khans to a Punitive Expedition Against Kashgar

The lion went on the expedition,
Galloped the steed in a hurry.
"Kapchaque tribe sent messengers for three times,
I must ask the detail of it.
If bastard Karaday does evil things,
Plunder Kirgiz at his will,
I must punish him severely,
Rescue suffered Kirgiz people,
Take revenge for them.

"If he does not plunder and provoke,
I will not come to them;
Let others bleed and die with no reason,
It is a shameful thing."
Thousand thoughts went through his mind,
He whipped his steed forward.
Five riders came in his face suddenly,
They dismounted to welcome respectfully as seeing Manas,
Put their hands on chest, hung the halter on neck.

Seeing their expressions on the face,
The hero had too many thoughts.
Hero Bakay came up and asked actively:
"Which tribe are you from?
Who is your Khan?
You are all elders around seventy years old,
Why do you go fast in the wilderness?"

One elder with white hair and a youthful complexion,

Came up and answered:
"I am from Lopu,
They are from Hotan and Yarkant;
We are messengers sent by Khan Oboler Kapchaque①,
We are going to visit hero black mane wolf.

"Kunwuer Bayi of Kangayi,
Sent messengers to Kaleday and said:
'Lopu, Hotan and Yarkant,
You should conquer all three mercilessly,
If anyone dares to oppose you,
You cut his head off right away,
Do not hesitate at all.'

"He sent massive forces to Kashgar,
Gave Kaleday enough confidence,
Do not allow people herd on prairie,
Stop people from growing and harvesting;
Every year they collect heavy tax,
Heavy tax and levies three years in a row,
We cannot hear any of cow's moos.
They did too many evil things,
We presented a sheepfold of sheep to them,
They were not satisfied with it.
They were as greedy as a malicious wolf,
Do anything they want at their will.
We could not bear their insult and humiliation,
Then we nerved ourselves to fight against them.

"Kaleday, he is really an inhuman bastard,
He descended this disaster on us.
He obeys the order of Kunwuer Bayi,
To stamp Lopu, Hotan and Yarkant flat.
Their soldiers act like a tyrant everywhere,

① Oboler Kapchaque: Kirgiz language, the name of a place, it is near Kashgar. Kapchaque, is the name of a Kirgiz tribe.

Karacha led Khans to hide in the cavern,
Common people still live miserably.

"Damned Kaleday makes an enemy of us,
The troop of Kunwuer Bayi filled Kashgar city full,
He sends his soldiers here continually.
Akyinaik, Alai and Zhoku,
Are plundered and bullied by them every day.

"We could not bear any more,
We invited each other to start off together,
Gallop fast to plead the lion to rescue suffering people.
Vibrant black mane wolf,
You are like swaying willow,
Meet with us here."
Poor old man finished his words,
He choked with sobs.

Ayikoler lion bristled with anger right away:
"Evil Kunwuer Bayi,
Does not let Arashi live peacefully at any time.
He enticed Kaleday in Kashgar,
To make trouble and sorrow for people every day;
Lopu, Hotan and Yarkant,
Common people who lived there in peace also suffered.

"Elders come for the message,
Please return back soon,
Take the news back to the people,
That Manas is going to save them,
Let Khans go back to station in the city,
Do not need to hide in remote mountains anymore."

He saw off the elders and went on along,
Hero Toshtuk came in his face.
Lion Manas met with giant Toshtuk,
But he did not tell his plan directly,

Ayikoler hero just whipped his steed forward.

Senchybek who stationed in Hohan waited on the way,
Welcomed the hero into the city as he arrived.
Treating him warmly and sincerely.
Kerkokuler came in time,
Saluted to Khan Ayikoler Manas.
Manas discussed with Senchybek,
Agreed to Kerkokuler's appeal of returning back,
And let Aer Toshtuk hurry to Alai.
Black mane wolf hero Manas,
Led his troops to Kashgar directly,
Surrounded Kashgar stationed by Kaleday,
Watched the movements in the city from all directions.

Sentries saw some vague figures,
So he went to report to Kaleday right away;
Stupid Kaleday,
Was too confident about the crack troops of Kunwuer Bayi,
He hoped to climb over Oboler hill,
To plunder the territory of sage Koshaoyi,
Giant Toshtuk and Senchybek.
He was extremely rampant,
He hoped in vain to attack lion Ayikoler.

Kunwuer Bayi sent him massive forces,
Heroine Sayikali came to Kashgar in advance,
Muradiler would come soon,
Followed Sayikali.

Kaleday was highly delighted,
He was busy preparing:
"God, you are my spiritual support!
Do not need me go in person,
You will send Manas into my hand."

He led his large number of troops,

Rushed out of the city gate.
Karamark and Ketay mixed together,
Kaleday was their commander.
Heroine Sayikali was his backbone,
She had eighty thousand picked troops.
Flags covered the sky, iron hooves shook the earth,
The earth was almost stamped flat.
The guy was full of confidence,
He could not wait and marched forward.

It was a vast wilderness out of the city,
They went toward Yirkshtanm.
"Stop Manas from going into the city,
I will launch an attack first.
Since Manas comes to my hand,
I will let him know my power.
I will capture all his warriors,
Leave none of them to him,
Together with black mane wolf Manas,
Drive them to my city.

"I will pull out Koshaoyi's beard one by one,
I will conquer thoroughly,
Hohan surrendered to Manas.
I will destroy Tashkent city,
Then continue to march to Samurhan with singing.
Giant Garmgirchy, Berita,
Tikechy, Shihay and Jagurp,
I will descend disaster to them.

"I will march forward without returning back,
From Sara Arka to Karakerla,
Stamp over Alma-Ata and Kemin,
Then go through Yili,
For those who claim to be Arashi,
I will kill them all and plunder them.

"I will go into Begin city,
Present the best gift to Aisanhan.
I will administer these places by myself,
Then I have no need to listen to the order of Kunwuer Bayi."
Kalebay talked wildly,
Loudly but with no stop.
His spittle splashed,
Ferocious light was shining in his eyes.

Ayikoler Manas appeared suddenly,
Forty warriors guarded around him,
Illustrious generals were all present,
Prestigious uncle Bakay,
The elder Kelgelchal,
Held high the red flag of Manas,
Accompanied Manas to the battlefield.

There was a Gobi desert out of Kashgar city,
It was vast and uninhabited;
Troops of both sides placed in battle array,
A fierce battle was ready.

One of cruel attendants of Kaleday,
Was called Jilmalan,
His outstanding martial skills,
Were good enough to fight against Georoy.
He won in every battle,
Rivals either died or got injured in his hand.
Arrogant Jilmalan,
Whipped steed Shankerek into the battlefield.

Giant Berita's son Chuwak,
Did not put mountain-size enemy into his eyes,
Getting the permission of Bakay,
He went to meet the enemy single-handed.

He got much experience through numerous battles,

He was famous for defeating enemies too many times.
Strong Chuwak was like fierce wind,
He was worthy of the title of unbeatable hero.
Jilmalan and Chuwak were equal in match,
A thrilling fight began between them.

Jilmalan had steeled himself through battles,
His threatening manner made others fearful.
Sixty spans spear waved in the air,
Countless heroes and warriors died under his spear.

He was as ferocious as a boar,
He attacked Chuwak with no hesitation.
Chuwak poked the spear coming to him away,
The spear broke into many pieces and fell.

Self-glorified Jilmalan,
Pulled out his iron hammer,
The waving hammer was like a yurt,
It made every one frightened.

Fearless Chuwak measured the hammer with the eye,
The spear in his hand was waving whoosh,
He whipped the steed to the enemy,
The iron hammer had been coming to him;
Chuwak dodged it unhurriedly,
Stabbed the arm of the enemy brutally.

A piece of muscle of Jilmalan,
Fell off on the ground immediately.
The bones of his right hand was broken,
The hammer fell off from his hand.
One arm had lost the strength,
His right hand could not pick the weapon up.

Jilmalan lifted the hammer with his left hand,
Took another attack to Chuwak,

That swaggering guy,
How could he be matched with Chuwak!

Hero Chuwak was strong and energetic,
He was hot-tempered and ferocious:
"I have aimed at your vital part,
How can I let you be alive?"
With the spear pointing at enemy's neck,
He poked severely to the enemy.

Like the trees cut down on river bank,
Jilmalan collapsed on the ground like a mountain.
"Good, Chuwak is a real hero!"
Forty warriors praised wholeheartedly.

Dying Kaleday,
Could not hold his anger:
"Jilmalan has been defeated,
You must go to fight with no hesitation.

"We have more than eighty thousand troops,
We have enough to spare even our eight fight their one.
You go and tie all of them up quickly,
I will deal with Manas by my own.
Manas dare be called hero,
How could he compare with me, Kaleday!"

He waved the black flag and gave out the order,
Urged all soldiers to go and attack.
The look on his face was gloomy as cloudy sky,
Kaleday swayed his body to the battlefield;
Dust rose high on the dry saline and alkaline land,
The steed jumped excitedly.

Huge Kaleday looked left and right,
With ferocious look on his face,
Both feet were placed firmly in the stirrups,

The curved broad ax was shining cold light.

Drum sounded, horns blared,
Forty warriors rushed to enemies regardless of safety.
"Enemies have surrounded me,
I cannot see where you are!"
"I am dealing with many enemies single-handed,
I cannot find where you are!"

Hero Chuwak and Sirak,
Dashed left and right unopposed.
Every Kirgiz warrior,
Needs to deal with group of enemies.

Blood flew in rivers,
They made Karamark shout loudly:
"My stomach is stabbed and bleeding,
I am going to die!"
"My waist is broken,
Please come and rescue me!"

Some heads were split by axes,
Some arms were cut off by sabers,
Some eyes were whipped by leather lash,
Some thighs were pierced by spears.
Soldiers died in large amount,
Numerous warriors were poked off their horses.
Running blood was everywhere,
Miserable cry was everywhere.
Karamark, Kara Ketay and Kangayi,
Tens of thousands of soldiers died at once.

Ayikoler Manas was fighting against enemies,
Facing the power of the hero,
Soldiers of Kaleday,
Were utterly routed and fled in confusion.

Doughty and strong Kaleday,
Could not bear such complete failure,
Whipped the black steed under him,
Dashed ahead to bloody Manas.

He hoped in vain to come out from the side,
To stab and poke hero Manas with his sword and spear.
The guy took an attack suddenly,
Shouted the slogan of "Kangayi" loudly.

The steed under him got pure black hair,
It was as valiant as a black leopard.
Swayed its long tail hair,
Turned its ears backward.
Dust rose behind it,
Went up and spread in the air.
The ground stamped by the hooves,
Was flying big clots to the sky.

Arrogant Kaleday was regardless of his safety,
Showed the power as a beast,
Spear was made of pure steel,
Its tassel was swaying in the wind.

Lion Ayikoler Manas,
Had superb martial skills,
No one could compare with him,
His wisdom was matchless either.
He pulled the halter and stopped the steed,
Facing the mountain-like enemy general,
He poked the spear,
The enemy stabbed aside.

The spear got off and flew to the sky,
The enemy general was passing by,
Taking the great chance,
He whipped his steed Ackura,

Waved spear Sier in his hand,
Stabbed it into the chest of the enemy general.
As soon as Manas stabbed,
Kaleday, as big as a mountain,
Fell off the horse right away.

Before the hero turned Ackura round,
Kartkarlan's daughter Sayikali,
Whipped her maroon horse,
Dashed out from the side suddenly,
Waved her long spear and poked cruelly.

Her sudden attack,
Made Manas fall off his steed.
Before Sayikali turned round,
Hero Chuwak rushed to her,
Poked heroine Sayikali,
Off her horse on the ground.
Before Chuwak made a turn,
Sayikali mounted and fled away.

Chuwak held the halter of Ackura,
Turned and went to hero Manas.
Lion Manas fell on the ground,
Stood up with eyes looking around;
Kaleday was mounting his steed,
He was ready to get a chance to flee.

Manas placed his feet in stirrups and whipped the steed,
Seized the battle coat of Kaleday,
Pulled Kaleday off the horseback,
Embraced the enemy and pressed under him;
He took off Kaleday's battle gown,
And cut his head off.
The defeated soldiers scattered for their lives,
Kaleday's camp was empty and silent.

Heroes entered Kaleday's camp,
Sat down according to the order.
"Please let Toshtuk come!"
Manas sent a messenger to deliver letters to Toshtuk.
Yarkant, Hotan and Lopu,
Khans there were also invited.

In front of all Khans,
Hero Khan Manas announced seriously,
Handed Kashgar occupied by Kaleday,
To Toshtuk to administer,
According to the promise,
Khan Toshtuk passed it on to Arakun to administer.
All Khans united,
They were all completely convinced of Toshtuk.

"Kashgar is your city,
Toyun and Chakmark are your winter prairies,
Alai and Choku are as summer prairies,
Places within Lopu are all under your administration."

Hero Manas made all the arrangements,
Rode on Ackura and left trustingly.
He sent his warriors,
To take an attack of Qimkant Sarakoler,
Made six thousand yaks plundered returned to its master.

From then on, Manas once fought north and south,
Took Samurhan as his base camp,
Began his rest and strengthened building quietly.

Let us put this aside,
Talk about hero Almanbet,
The legend how Kokcher flushed him out.

The Brotherly Affection Between Manas and Almanbet

Almanbet's Distress

There are ditches on the plain,
There are boars haunting in the woods,
Please stretch out your hand,
Are five fingers different in length?

People are different from each other,
Human beings can be good or bad;
If someone is corrupted at heart,
He will bring troubles and worries to others.
At any time or any place,
There are countless good persons and a few bad persons,
Like the worms in apples,
They involve in many things.

Almanbet from Ketay,
Went to Kazakh for help sincerely.

Ten years had passed,
Since Almanbet came here.
Khan Ayidar's son Kokcher,
Regarded Almanbet as his backbone.
His abilities were appreciated by Kokcher,
Great joy filled him up.

"He gets full trust of Khan,
Any big decision has his involvement."
The evil villains in the palace,
Hated Almanbet so much out of jealousy.

They were not capable to compete with Almanbet,
They did not dare to attack him openly either,
They all puzzled their brains,
Still could not find any fault of Almanbet,
They had to put their reputation aside,
Made up lies to frame him up.

They were in collusion with Kokcher's concubine,
Fabricated the truth between Akeirkaichy and Almanbet,
And maligned them viciously,
They were waiting for the opportunity to hurt him secretly.

Khan Kokcher had two wives,
Akeirkaichy was the first wife.
"Akeirkaichy and Almanbet have an affair."
Brazen villains made up such rumor to mislead the public.

Budaybek was Kokcher's concubine,
Evil persons tried and colluded with her.
They gathered together and spread the rumor,
Endless rumors came out from their mouths.

Sixty Begans and rich men of Kazakh,
Gathered in the yurt of Budaybek,
They planned to make Kokcher drunk,
Then spoke the rumor out together,
They racked their brains and made the plot,
Finally they convinced Kokcher:
"Akeirkaichy and Almanbet,
Are a pair of lover now,
They collude together and are planning a bigger plot,
It is more dangerous if a wolf wears sheepskin,
But it is a pity that Khan Kokcher is kept in the dark."

The news was like a thunderstorm to Kokcher,
He did not respond in a while:
"I make us with profound friendship,

Does he have any uneasy conscience?
Does he nurse evil intention,
Is he an inch on my forehead to make me a fool?

"You said Akeirkaichy has fallen into a wrong path,
Then take Almanbet in front of me,
If it is true,
Please kill him for me.
Sixty elders present here,
Twenty are Begans, forty are rich men,
You can be judges here today,
Please try to punish Almanbet.
Since Almanbet has betrayed our friendship,
You can kill Almanbet,
You can wring his neck like wormwood.

"You need pull Akeirkaichy,
Cut her long plait off.
Let her wear felt coat Kemantai①,
Let her ride on grey mare②,
Send her back to his father Karahan's palace.
How can they be so vicious,
Make my fame dirty."
Kokcher broke out into curses,
Spirits made him lose his head and believe the lie.

"I will go to Manas for shelter!"
Since he met with Manas,
The idea had haunted in Almanbet's heart all the time.
On Kokotoy's ceremony,
At the time all people gathered,
Manas did not ask about steed Kelejeran,
Like a fellow known for a long time,
He pulled the steed out and rode on it,

① felt coat Kemantai: an insulting coat for lady who lost her chastity to wear among Kirgiz and some other groups.

② ride on grey mare: Wearing felt coat and riding on grey mare is the insulting punishment to the lady who lost her chastity.

Said hero and people are trustful with each other.
Almanbet was surprised at that time,
It was printed in his mind firmly.

Honeysuckle was luxuriant,
On the sunny side of Yonkur,
Almanbet chose this wood as the arrow shaft,
The straight shaft were from honeysuckle,
Gathered the honeysuckle cut every day,
Dried under the shade and sharpen them.
Honeysuckle was extremely hard,
It was like the quenched iron.

He invited craftsmen to process,
Pared and pressed straight and flat;
They were as straight as spear barrel,
Glued the end with gum,
Then tied tightly with silk thread;
Plucked the wing feathers of wild pigeons,
Smeared with bright paint to be arrow feather;
Found red steel of Ketay,
Made arrowhead like wolf tongue with noise.

Quenched arrowheads with poison,
Made bowstrings out of leather.
Giants looked carefully and praised,
Arrows were all put in bags.
Three hundred arrows quenched by poison,
Were all ready.

"I will go to Manas for shelter."
The idea was buried deep in his heart.
Steed Kelejeran brought from Ketay,
Was excited to go,
The magical look from its eyes,
Was like the light of burning candles.

Almanbet always praised it like this:
"It is really born for me."
Because he had such a magical steed,
He never rode the steeds from Kazakh.

Almanbet acted with his own opinions,
He rushed to places where enemies were.
He drove countless livestock back to village,
Divided the war trophies to orphans, widows and the poor.
Sixty Begans who administered people were jealous,
They slandered in front of Kokcher from time to time.

Grass tops came out of the dirt,
Green grass broke through the soil with its tender shoots,
The yellow horse Almanbet put on the prairie,
Was all strong and fat as wild horse.
It was the time for regaining the physical agility and speed,
The horse must be tied up to take care.
He thought carefully and made plans,
Tied his horse for fifteen days,
Fed and took care of it carefully as for eagle;
The horse looked around nimbly,
Eyes were shining as of an argali's.
Its belly was drawn in,
There was an apparent change every day.
The gold Karamark saddle,
Was put on its back.

"The descendant of Kara Kirgiz,
Is a bloody giant.
Jagurp's son Manas,
Arashi is his hometown,
I will go to visit and sound him out.

"If he is a real fair hero,
I will crouch like a camel to show my obedience.
If he is as bestial as Kunwuer Bayi,

I will fight against him with no hesitation.

"If I can defeat him,
I will lacerate his ribs mercilessly,
Drive him to the palace of Kokcher.
Follow brother Kokcher devoutly,
Support him for his achievements till I die.

"If he is a real hero,
I would rather die in his hand.
I am a lonely raven,
What should I bother about?
I would rather compete with a powerful person,
I will feel proud of myself even if I die in his hand."

Thousands of thoughts in Almanbet's mind,
Passed like the lake boiling with waves.
It was already near noon,
When he could not control his thoughts,
He was ready to mount and start off,
When Kokcher sent Tohtor and Chayan to find him,
They rode shoulder by shoulder to him,
And delivered such news to him:
"For two days, nobles gather together,
Discuss important issues in the palace,
They make many decisions,
Sharp axes and sabers,
Are put together;
Khan Kokcher asks you to go to the palace,
You cannot wriggle out of it.
They give the order,
Urged us to come immediately."

Hearing what the servants said,
Many doubts came to Almanbet's mind.
He felt a pain in his heart,
And lost the peace he usually had;

"When my father acted against me,
My heart experienced the same pain like this.

"Ketay people live in the places the sun rises,
The officials there are all barefaced bastards.
The news makes me worried,
Like leather lash whipping on me.

"Did they complain they cannot control me,
Complain about punishment I gave them,
And complain I send news secretly to Ketay?
They want to root me out,
Do they invite giant Kerzlwuyouk,
Ask him to lead forty thousand troops to trap me?

"I am a guilty person to my fellows,
I wander here and there for shelter,
Finally I find a home at the place the sun sets.
My ancestors lived in a place called Nubaska,
It was on the lake Muhbart.

"There my ancestors will back me up,
Also ghosts will haunt around me.
The road of life is rough and rugged,
Disaster will descend at any time.
My heart is beating fast,
Where is my sorrow from?

"Does Ketay send a warrant to Kokcher,
Let Kokcher arrest me now.
They will go to fight if they cannot catch me!
Did Kokcher call heroes of Yegay and Shihay,
Wait for me,
For executing the order of Ketay?"

Thoughts went up and down in Almanbet's mind,
He walked slowly to the palace of Kokcher.

Even if they did not come to invite,
Almanbet would go and visit him in person.

To show his respect to honorable Khan Kokcher,
Then he would start off.
Almanbet was full in confidence,
Kazakh were trying to kill him,
This was what he never imagined.

"If Karamark comes to invade,
Khan will dispatch troops;
If Ketay comes to invade,
Hero will give out the order.
Whether an expedition should be carried out,
Toward Ketay and Karamark?"
Almanbet imagined all possibilities in his mind,
Walked slowly to the yurt of Kokcher.

No one came up to lead his horse,
Almanbet had to tie his horse himself.
Tohtor and Chayan had already disappeared.
Almanbet looked around,
He felt a vague alarm.
Even facing such a difficult condition,
Almanbet still remembered their friendship.
Broad-minded Almanbet,
Greeted them as usual.
Begans and Beks stood up,
With flustered look on their faces.

Kokcher lay in his seat,
His face was in a ghastly expression,
He looked up and shouted loudly:
"You, stupid and inept bastards,
Why don't you just stay in your seats?
Why do you stand up hurriedly?
In a mess like ghosts haunted,

You are such shameless bastards!"
Sixty Begans sat down again,
Nervous air suffused the yurt.

Almanbet looked at every one surprisingly,
He did not find a seat for himself,
And did not find anything to put under him either;
Lonely and helpless Almanbet,
Walked to the side of Kokcher freely,
Pressed a mattress under his left knee and sat.
After the time of a meal,
He could not help asking the reason.

Kokcher had an ugly look on his face,
He poured all the dirty words,
On the head of Almanbet:
"Are you my reliable general?
I have not seen you for a long time,
Why do you come here today?"
He lifted his foot and pointed to Almanbet:
"Shameless Lackey, I am talking to you!"

The look on Almanbet's face turned,
He looked at Kokcher with his eyes opening wide.
Understood the ins and outs of the matter,
Almanbet began to argue for himself:
"Are you really respectable hero Kokcher,
Did you see by your own eyes what I have done?
Are you lion Kokcher,
Am I fallen into a wrong path to be with you?
All that you heard never happened,
Where are these rumors from?"
Kokcher sat straight and stretched out his hands,
Clapped hands with Almanbet seriously.

"Kokcher, my Khan!

How can I sleep in your bed shamelessly?
No one can forgive me if this happened!
If I betray you,
How can I face our vow?

"If I do evil things behind your back,
How could not the spirit of ancestors punish me?
If I hatch a sinister plot,
Our vow will be like the fallen thunders.

"Kokcher, you are my lion,
How could I act in bad faith to you?
I would rather die than betray our friendship,
Please believe what I said.

"Kokcher, you are my tiger,
How could I betray you?
I would rather die now than betray my friend,
Please consider my words.

"After I came here,
The poor become the rich,
Harnesses have all been changed to new,
I thought you were a lion,
Am I wrong to follow you?

"After I came here,
Harnesses are all made of silk,
Beggars become the rich,
I thought you were a tiger,
Am I wrong to follow you?

"Since I left home and came here for help,
I never do anything against you.
You only had six hundred horses in the past,
Now you have six thousand horses,
Your reputation of being rich has spread wide.

"One black dromedary with bell on the neck,
Is equal to one thousand common camels.
Now you have one thousand of them,
Your wealth piles in every corner.

"Spirits are made of wheat,
It is ok to drink a little.
If you make yourself drunken,
You will lose your reputation of a Khan.

"Horse milk wine is a fermented beverage,
It is better if you drink less.
But if you drink too much of it,
You will lose your throne too!"

Drunken Kokcher lost his mind,
He could not listen to Almanbet's sincere words,
Spirits swelled his head;
Facing those eager officials,
His words were more brutal:

"The lackey makes unwarranted charges on me,
Why are you all completely indifferent?
The lackey came from Kangayi for help,
Why do not let him get out now?
If he has any injustice,
Why do not let him speak out?

"The bastard from Ketay,
How can he be so arrogant?
Among us, strong Kazakh,
How can he be so aggressive?"

Right after Kokcher finished his words,
Almanbet responded with full of brotherhood love:
"My lion Khan Kokcher,
I wish you have no regret on what you have said.

Please let me wear the blue silk battle gown,
Let me ride on your black and white steed.
I do not need to be under your roof,
I do not need to boast myself here,
Let me go and kill enemies,
To strive for your grand honor!
Steed and battle gown belong to you,
You do not need to be disappointed,
I will make them bring their power into play!"

As soon as Almanbet finished his words,
Kokcher said with his teeth clenched:
"Black and white horses are full on the prairie,
I never want to present them to others;
Horses with white forehead are countless,
I never want to give them out.

"My yellow horses are in great number,
One thousand of each color,
I never put bridles and bits in their mouths,
Never let anyone ride on them either.

"My horses are full in every valley,
Which one do you want?
My horses never leave their group,
They will jump with a different rider.
Do not run off at your mouth,
Please come to the point!"
Kokcher was furious,
Turned round and vented his anger to his officials:
"Ketay people have been possessed,
You need tell them clearly.
What on earth this Ketay wants to say,
Do not let him talk nonsense.

"A lazy dog always glares greedily,
Wants to eat all food it never eats.

How could a pear-suited place grow rose?
Wolves and camels sometimes go in company,
This Ketay dares to ask for my steed,
How can I bear such insult?"

Hero Almanbet said at the moment:
"Fellows, please listen to me,
What I want is this black and white steed.
Its former master was Dierbish Bayi,
It is as strong as a doe.

"In vast Tashkent,
On the ceremony held by Bokmulon,
It became famous on horseracing when it was three;
It can run like the whirlwind,
It was praised by all the people.

"Kutman Bayi is the first person who found it,
Tirkechy is the first person who bought it.
From the slaves of Tirkechy,
Khan Kokcher uses ninety-nine stallions,
To make an exchange and gets this steed.
The black and white steed,
Is right the one I want!"

Kokcher continued the talk,
He asked with his eyes wide:
"Enemy comes in my face,
I am the lion, I will run for my life;
Even bear great pressure,
I am a mountain, I will not bend my knees.
Do you think I will agree once you ask?
I will not present my steed easily.

"You, a Ketay, ask for my steed, my battle gown,
Are you challenging me?
Can you use apple-head firelock Akbaran,

Shoot me to air your hatred?
How could the bank of growing bamboo,
Grow thistles and thorns?"

Having heard what Kokcher said,
Almanbet was furious:
"Are you prideful pear tree,
And am I the humble thorn of wild rose?

"Even if I was driven into a corner,
And came to you for a shelter,
Compared the martial skills and wisdom,
Do we have much difference?

"You said I make enemy of you,
I have evil intentions to my fellows,
You heartless Kokcher,
You are like a mad dog!
You spoke out such shameless words,
You'd better die now!

"I thought I found the family,
I can fight in the battlefield free from care;
I thought I found a trustful fellow,
I do not expect I am struggling in a cave."

Kokcher's hands,
Were painfully held by the hero.
Almanbet drew back his hands,
Vented his anger.

The black lynx hat,
Fell off on the ground from his head.
He lost his face in front of all,
Kokcher felt ashamed.

Kokcher drank a lot spirits,

His face was red and burning,
Hearing the provoking words,
He could not calm down any more.
"Catch this lackey, kill him!"
He gave out the clear order,
With elbrows pressing against the pillow,
Eyes were heavy with sleep.

Kokcher's wife Akeirkaichy,
Was clever in mind and pretty in appearance.
She had a maid servant,
Called Kuyitu.

Kuyitu came to the spring to fetch water,
She heard two giants were having a row with each other.
She put the buckets down and turned round slowly,
She wanted to send messages to Akeirkaichy,
Then she drew back fast;
She did not go to far,
The quarrel of the heroes flew into her ears again.
In order to make clear what happened,
She turned round and went to the yurt.

She looked inside of the yurt secretly,
She heard what she had never even heard of.
Budaybek was full of deceptive talk,
The slander to Almanbet was too ugly to hear.

Those furious Beks,
Surrounded Almanbet in the center.
Beks pulled and pushed,
Attempted to punish Almanbet severely.
Servant Kuyitu went back quickly,
Reported it to Akeirkaichy.

Akeirkaichy was shocked after hearing that,
Silk skirt Duryu was swaying:

"What damned lackeys they are!"
She strode out quickly,
She stood aside and looked in through door crack.

It was totally different in the yurt with normal days,
Sixty Begans gathered together,
Surrounded Almanbet in the center.

"Hero Kokcher,
What on earth happened here?
Where is your wisdom?
The person you are facing is a hero,
What a shame of you to do like this!
Everything Almanbet did here,
Is well known to all people.

"Although he roamed here,
He brought us good fortune;
He took back our livestock plundered,
The wealth he brought to you surpassed your father.

"When you roamed in Sara Arka,
He made Altay your hometown.
Except Almanbet roamed to your place,
What else did he do wrong?

"He made your enemies discredited,
He became a dependable hero.
Since he came here,
Servants all can wear brocade robe.

"Even dogs do not give look to milk,
Married ladies do not taste crème,
Old ladies do not want to look at fat,
The poor can eat fat and become rich.

"He made Kazakh get rid of the suffering,

And move to lush Kokjayk prairie.
They did not have even one calf in the past,
Now they have horses to tame.

"He made married ladies have Kaity silk to wear,
He made Beks have Supur silk to wear.
Self-glorifying Karamark people,
Had too many horses grabbed by him from their prairie;
He made common people have grey horses to ride,
It showed his kindness and generosity;
He made common people live a rich and peaceful life,
Made us have smoked meat to eat;
He fought against powerful enemies of many valleys,
Drove their herds of horses to our place.

"Kazakh had no ox saddles before,
Now aspen wood horse saddles are their common tools;
The steed even nobles did not have chance to ride before,
Now is the common horse for married ladies to go out.

"What does the poor guy do wrong?
Why do you prison him like to prison a wild goat?

"Karamark people once were insufferably arrogant,
Lashed other people on their will,
Cut halters and drove your horses away.
He punished enemies with his power,
Made Karamark frightened and hid in caverns.

"Your respectable Begans and Beks,
What missions do they accomplish for you?
Why do not you open your eyes to look,
Why do not you answer my questions?
I have seen clearly you are walking toward the failure."

Kokcher's eyes blurred with the result of spirits,
The great figure of Almanbet,

Swayed in his eyes like a child.
It seemed that the earth was shaking,
His feet were lifting up;
Like a small boat floating in the water,
Went with no purpose but followed the wind.

He opened his hazy eyes,
Seeing his wife Akeirkaichy's mouth was moving;
But her voice was as low as a mosquito,
He seemed to wake up to reality suddenly,
He opened his angry eyes wide.
Please listen carefully,
Kokcher said such words:
"Mare can not lead a herd of horses,
Woman cannot interfere in man's business.
You come in such a hurry,
Do you come to save your lover?

"I will pull out your tendon and skin you,
Like I butcher a goat!
You, such a bitch, make me lose my face,
Do I do anything you are not satisfied with?
You are my wife with formal wedding,
How can you be so mean and coldhearted!
I will ask them to tie you up,
Cut your cunt,
Make you ride on hairless horse and parade through streets,
Then you can know my power better!

"You pretend you are living in the dark,
What shameless words you said.
How dare you come to help your paramour,
The shameless thing you did has already not been a secret.
You, the bitch, shut up now,
Do not light the fire of fury in my heart!"
Kokcher finished his dirty words,
Then threw his head to the pillow and fell asleep.

Akeirkaichy understood clearly now,
This was a plot Budaybek planned.
She pointed at Budaybek and said angrily:
"You get your camels ready as soon as possible,
Pack your baggage and leave soon.
I have seen clearly the nits on your head,
You are such a humble lackey.
I helped you wash your nits off,
But now you bring disaster to our people.

"If Almanbet is killed,
You will be in power as you wished;
If this Ketay escapes from death,
I will just stand in front of you
To see how brave Kokcher is,
How can he cherish you then.
Kokcher should be punished by Khuda,
He is heartless and villainous."

Finished what she wanted to say,
Akeirkaichy left with great anger.
She was framed up for nothing,
Resentment in her heart could not calm down.

Kokcher opened his bleared eyes,
"He is too drunk to wake up."
Almanbet was broad-minded and kind.
Kokcher made a few coughs,
Lifted his head and said:
"You have seen Almanbet's way of speaking,
My blue lynx hat was near the fire,
Do not burn it;
Pick up my hat soon.[①]"
Kokcher went beyond his depth,
He gave a shout of killing Almanbet.

① Pick up my hat soon: In Kirgiz language, both Picking up a hat and taking off a hat mean cut one's head off. It is a code word that Kokcher will kill Almanbet.

Begans were in a great bustle,
Held sharp sabers in hands but dare not come up.
Facing with powerful and unyielding Almanbet,
No one dare stab the sword out.

Seeing the expressions on the faces of Begans,
Almanbet felt dejected,
He felt a deep desperation,
Like the day turning to night suddenly.

Black mane wolf Almanbet made a shout,
Bit his lower lip with greatest fury.
He frowned and looked around,
Powerful expression was like a tiger.

Seeing the power of the hero,
Kazakh were all frightened.
When his fury got to the highest point,
Even his father would be put aside.

His sharp diamond sword,
Once slashed to the head of Arokai.
He made swaggering Kunwuer Bayi,
Lose face and beg for life.

In those years, Single-handed Almanbet,
Defeated Karamark and made them run all over places;
He killed countless heroes,
Blood dyed the earth red.

He showed murderous look on his face,
No one dare look at him straight in the eyes.
Tip curved, handle straight,
Body thick, edge sharp.
He pulled out this diamond sword,
Shouted angrily,
Made people present feel their bones soft,

Did not dare to come up.

Almanbet thought about the result,
He shut down upon his rage:
"Kill Khan Kokcher,
Make red his palace with blood,
Cut off heads of proud Begans,
Like cutting the reed,
What is the use for me?

"Heroes cannot smear the vow,
I will prove the friendship one more time,
Do not let others make carping comments,
Blame me, Almanbet, as an unfaithful and disloyal person.

"Kokcher and Kunwuer Bayi,
Are mortal enemy to each other,
If I become the enemy of both them,
Where will be the place for me to live in?

"I am a tender shoot which just came out of the dirt,
Which will be broken before growing into a pillar.
Now he is like a mad dog,
I had better not act rashly.

"I will forgive his mistake first,
Why should I contest with him?
If I owe Kazakh with a debt of blood,
Do I bury the root of the trouble for me?
Forgive brutal Kokcher,
I will leave here and get rid of him."

When the quarrel got more and more fierce,
The curtain of a fight would pull,
Kokcher's servant Karakuler,
Came in hurriedly with a leather bag in the hand.

He observed the situation inside,
No matter the noble or the humble,
All stood silently,
With flustered expressions on their faces.

"I have blocked the door,
You go up and splash him!"
Karakuler shouted crazily,
He shut the door fast,
Stretched out his arms in front of the door.

Begans and Beks of Kazakh,
Looked at each other but did not go up,
They stood still and threw their swords,
Which were like hails shining cold light.

Swords did not pierce his armor,
Did not pierce his gown either,
Almanbet was safe and sound,
He was not hurt at all.

If the sword was sharp,
It could pierce through a person easily;
If a person was full of strength,
Rushed forward and the neck could be twisted off;
If they were brave enough,
Who would hesitate to press forward;
If it was a burning flame,
He could face thousand enemies.

Even if a hundred persons came up,
How could a brave tiger be frightened?
Even if facing the chilly wind,
Brave eagle would never draw back!

Swords were full on the ground and shone cold light.
Angry Almanbet,

Strode out of the door with an impressive presence.

He lifted his riding boots with iron shoes on,
Kicked in the belly of Karakuler.
Swaggering Karakuler,
Fell on the ground right away.
Karakuler's backbone was broken,
His urine flowed out all over the ground.
His ribs were broken,
Black blood splashed everywhere;
His head fell into the fire pan;
"Lift your head up!"
How could a person be alive kicked by Almanbet,
Karakuler was kicked into flat bread,
He reaped the fruits of his action,
Poor Karakuler finished his life this way.

The noise awakened Khan Kokcher,
He opened his eyes with vacancy of expression,
He scolded Beks and Begans in a loud voice:
"What on earth are you doing?"

"The crazy lackey made the trouble,
Kicked poor Karakuler to death here!
This Ketay lackey roamed here,
Made the murder and fled away."
Begans were still suffering from the shock,
Kokcher shouted at them loudly:
"Bury him under the cover of night quickly,
Do not let anyone see the corpse."

Almanbet vaulted into the saddle,
Whipped his steed to the west,
Kelejeran had hurried hoof-steps,
Its mountain-like figure faded away.

Almanbet was forced to leave Kazakh tribe,

Khan Kokcher lost a capable assistant.
"We get rid of this Ketay lackey at last!"
Beks with evil intents were very excited!

There was no room for Almanbet to hide,
No bed to stretch his arms and legs to sleep,
Hails came pelting down,
But there was no cave to hide.
Meeting with difficulties,
There was no place to go for a single shadow,
There was only blur in front of him.
Like the blood being sucked up,
Like being burned with charcoal,
His tears was hard to be controlled,
Every drop shone cold light.

Kazakh people were creating internal conflict,
Made Almanbet be at a loss,
He rushed out and made the door reddened with blood;
He left his allied friend Kokcher,
To look for his future.

Akeirkaichy looked at his figure,
Chased after him anxiously:
"Please turn round, my Ayasi[①]!"
She waved her arms and shouted.
Remembered his grace and achievements,
Sentiment filled her heart.

Almanbet left Ayinla,
Akeirkaichy was the saddest person.
The hope in her heart had withered,
Like melon seedling which broke off the vine.
Almanbet turned the head of his steed round,
It made her feel a little better.

① Ayasi: nickname for Kirgiz married person to call husband or wife's friend.

She was light-footed as an antelope,
Her bright eyes were shining.
Valuable Duryu dress was swaying with wind,
Black eyes were shining bright with tears.

Akeirkaichy came to the hero's side,
Spoke the most sincere words to the hero:
"Tiger-like hero,
You mounted on the silver saddle of Kelejeran,
It seemed something irrevocable had happened,
You have set your foot on the leaving journey.
If a son gets angry to his father,
Where else except home can make him relieved?
You came here at your will,
How can you leave freely?

"Even husband and wife have a conflict sometimes,
Catch hold of collars and fight,
When they calm down,
They will be closer than before.
Words have been said,
Just let them float away with wind,
Brothers turning against each other are common,
But the conflict will end in smoke the other day.
If one dies unfortunately,
The other one will mourn over his death.

"Families turn against each other,
Even catch a stick and beat each other,
But after the chaos,
Everyone will forget it.
You assist your friend sincerely and loyally,
Why do you go away for such a small thing?

"You know Kokcher like the back of your hand,
You know his behavior and his heart,

This big kid of my father [①] is bold but unskillful,
He is simple-minded like an empty leather bag.
Almanbet, please think carefully,
Is what I have said about the truth?

"Kokcher believed in slander easily,
He believes in everything he heard.
Besides, when he is drunk,
He got muddled up and made the mistake.
When he sobers up,
You can hurl a question at him.

"If you leave without saying goodbye,
He will fall in endless suffering.
Ayasi, a friend like him,
Where else can you find?"

Almanbet looked ahead,
Expressed his true feeling:
"I cannot change my mind,
I am not in the mood for staying here long,
If I go back I will lose my life,
I cannot go to look for the death.

"Even you consider me as Yiskander [②],
Even use gold bowl,
Filling with holy water Zhamzham [③],
To pour over me;
Even put death sword Azlait [④],
Across my neck;

① This big kid of my father: Kirgiz daughters-in-law and sons-in-law all avoid calling their spouse's parents and siblings' names as a taboo, to show the respect. Here Akeirkaichy uses "this big kid of my father" to refer to Kokcher.

② Yiskander: It refers in particular to Alexander in the third century BC.

③ Zhamzham: It refers the holy water takes back from the hajj.

④ Azlait: It refers in particular to religious celebrity.

Even present the throne of Suleman①,
Put honorable crown on my head,
I will not change my mind.
I cannot go back,
My respectable sister-in-law,
If god let my wish come true,
I have decided where I want to go.
If Khuda makes my wish come true,
I will walk freely,
Among six tribes Arashi.
I will start off from Ketay,
Leave Urum city,
I will go in company,
With pilgrims.
Swim in salt lake,
Wash off all dirt;
In the hot desert of Mecca,
Travel all cities of Shenwurmatna;
Like fruits low on branches,
Lower my head and cry;
Holy Khuda,
I will admire with my heart;
Even if I cannot fulfill this hope,
I will go to die with no regrets;
Ayasi, please do not stop me!"

Akeirkaichy opened her mouth,
Her words made Almanbet overwhelmed by grief:
"Almanbet, my Ayasi!
You are the lion, how can I stop you?
Since you escaped from Ketay,
Your road of life is long and hard.

"Fury is a devil, reason is a friend,
You can make a better judgment.
I am a woman, you are the lion,

① Suleman: It refers in particular to historical celebrities in hearts of Kirgiz.

What you concern is more profound than me,
In order to keep your promise,
How could life be so difficult?

"You lower yourself to take offense with a drunken friend,
How can I even not say some farewell words?
One thousand dead tigers,
Are inferior to one living cat;
One thousand spirits of dead people,
Are not as good as one living person;
Living in paradise for a hundred days,
Is not equal to living on earth for one day.

"A man without courage,
Is inferior to a lash;
How could the person you follow,
Have no faults?

"Men have a maxim:
Words men spoke out are like arrows shot.
How could this world be heartless,
Ayasi, I have been sick of men!"

Steed Kelejeran stood with head up and chest out,
But Almanbet was sitting on the saddle quietly;
The sad words Akeirkaichy said,
Became the maxim he would not forget forever.

Clever Akeirkaichy,
Pointed clearly to Almanbet his life road.
Her butter-like attractive words,
Resounded by his ears:
"Hero, since you will leave with all your heart,
I will tell you a reliable place;
Never wavers no matter what blows he meets,
Who I am talking about is a real famous hero.

"Fight against enemies regardless of his own safety,
Who I am talking about is a pillar who never feels tired;
Set up a great dream since he was little,
Who I am talking about is a lion like you;
Jagurp Bayi is his father Khan,
His heroic spirit is matchless in the world.

"He had a great figure when he was nine years old.
Looked far ahead with serious expression;
He went on battlefield when he was ten,
And shot the rival;
He won advent from both sides when he was eleven,
He defeated all enemies strove for supremacy with him;
It was his animal year when he was twelve,
He was shining as a ball of flame,
He was chosen to be Khan of Kirgiz,
Like an unshakable black-rock hill.

"No enemy dare challenge him,
Enemies opposed him were dead in battlefield.
Now he is thirty years old,
He is a Khan known far and wide.

"He is respected and supported by his people,
His fame has spread far and wide.
Kokcher, a nobody,
Was appointed as a Khan to administer a region by him.

"He is a Khan who cherishes your ability,
He is an example of kindness,
All nobles and Khans,
Group around him.

"He is a Khan who understands your characteristic,
You two can become close friends.
If you make great achievements,
He will give publicity to you everywhere.

If you win honor by killing enemies,
He will never be jealous and malign you.
He had a vision as wide as big rivers,
He is sincere and generous to others.
If you do something wrong once in a while,
He will forgive you.
Even sixty Kokchers are present,
He will not spare a glance."

Akeirkaichy talked a mile a minute,
Almanbet was dejected secretly,
Tears welled up in his eyes,
Sentimental expression was showing on his face.

"For the humanness of Manas,
I have heard others' praise.
Making blood redden the river,
He is a bloody person;
Rising up sky-high dust,
He is a revenge-holic;
He catches enemies like making dough,
Chases enemies like a lion.

"He is a king of hell who kills people like flies,
How can I fall into his hand?
Even my friend treated me like this,
How can I go to such a Khan for shelter?"

Akeirkaichy continued after his words,
Which made him more depressed:
"I cast a silk net,
For netting a flying high eagle;
I tried hard to console you,
Just want you to have a place to settle down.

"Goldsmith knows the value of gold,
Lovers know how precious the love is,

Wise men know how to appreciate a hero.
Please take care no matter where you will be,
I want to get your information all the time.

"I will inquire from the trade caravan,
I will ask about the detail from insiders.
You set yourself against stupid people,
My respectable Ayasi,
You make me sad about you."

Almanbet felt to be torn with grief,
Eyes were filled with tears:
"Like a white eagle with silver wings,
I want to hover in the sky,
I will alight when I see a willow twig,
As long as the twig can bear my weight,
I will rest there,

"Like a white eagle with steel claws,
I want to roar in the sky,
I will alight on the top of aspen,
As long as the aspen can bear my weight,
I will make my home there.

"Please do not worry about me,
Akeirkaichy, my respectable sister-in-law.
Manas, who you praised just now,
I will survey carefully,
If I cannot find a confidant,
I would rather roam till I die!"

Almanbet's voice choked,
Face turned pale,
Lips quivered,
Tears poured down his cheeks.

Like ribs which were broken,

Akeirkaichy burst into a flood of tears sadly.
Almanbet said goodbye,
Turned round and started his journey.

"I do not need to make her sad,
Just say goodbye and go on my journey.
Like a hungry wolf rending my heart,
I have left her Ayinla."

Lion Almanbet made up his mind,
Turned the head of his steed round firmly.
He had stepped on his nomadic way,
Whipped his steed Kelejeran.

Two people came in the door hurriedly,
Reported to Kokcher in detail:
"Ketay lackey was in a threatening manner,
Turned his steed round to force open our gate,
He whipped his steed ceaselessly,
Waved the sharp sword in his hand.
If this Ketay makes troubles,
Our last day will be soon reached.

"Hero Kokcher, please stand,
Wear your blue battle gown,
Must not let him approach Ayinla,
His furious face was like surging waves,
It seems he will swallow us in one gulp."

Facing the panic-stricken people,
Kokcher began to talk slowly:
"If you wear the armor and take up the weapon,
He will fight against us like ferocious leopard.
As long as we remain quiet,
He will not take quick action.
So he will not come rashly,
He regards you all as devils.

"You are haunted with fear,
Do not make your life lose instantly.
Please go back to your home trustingly,
Stretch out your arms and legs and have a rest.
Put arms under heads,
Rest heads against the hot wall,
Go into the dream with snore.
As long as you do not behave lightly,
Almanbet will not kill us rashly."

Those self-glorifying Begans,
Faces turned pale as frost casted,
They could do nothing except sleeping!
What could they do except frightening?
Their loud snore,
Made the ash in the fire pan flying out of the yurt.

"We set ourselves against him stupidly,
How can we save our lives,
If we are unfortunately stabbed on the back by him?"
They lay on the bed but could not sleep,
Recited silently the prayer,
Till first rays of the morning came out.

Wealth, people chase after you,
But you disappear from their sight soon.
You are like a pretty girl,
Always making people dazzled,
As long as you are still alive,
It is like sitting in a palace even if you are poor.

What should Almanbet do at the moment?
He only could wander aimlessly.
"Kokcher will wake up till tomorrow,
He must cry loudly when he gets the report.
He will ride the horse and catch up later,

Call me in this remote wilderness."

Almanbet went on for half a day,
Arrived at a valley full of walnut trees.
In the winding and rolling mountains,
He dismounted and grazed his steed.
The look on his face was like cloudy sky,
His heart was cooled as if it hailed,
He lay on the grass of valley,
Thousand thoughts in his mind made him annoyed.

Let us put this aside,
Talk about hero Manas,
How he can have a magical dream.

Manas Looked for His Dream Hero

On the night of fifteenth that month,
Black mane wolf Manas had a dream,
Changing plots could never be imagined,
The magical condition was fantastic:

He dreamed he rode on steed Ackura,
Wore his white battle gown,
Went on the road with himself,
He felt comfortable and relaxed.

A sword shining the red light,
Burst into his sight.
Manas picked up the sword and looked carefully,
Waved the sword and slashed at crouched ox-like rock.

The sword remained intact,
But the hard rock had split in two.
The blade pierced through the huge rock,
Stuck deeply into the dirt.

Lion Manas was overjoyed,
Hang the sword on the left of his waist.
Magical steed Ackura jumped,
Galloped its hooves forward.

He whipped his steed forward,
The sword became heavier,
Belt of the sheath became longer,
Sharp blade of the sword rubbed against the ground.

The earth was as soft as dough,
The sword cut a deep ditch on the ground.
In an instant,
The sword turned into a roaring tiger,
Showed its teeth and looked around,
Followed Manas tightly.

On the flat the boundless prairie,
A mountain stuck in the front,
Manas whipped his steed on the mountain top,
The tiger followed him tightly.

The tiger looked around,
Like a hound smelling the prey.
It crouched on the ground,
It seemed it was ready to jump on the prey.

Flames was burning in the eyes,
It made a mountain-shakable roar suddenly,
The roar quivered the earth,
And went up in the sky.
Valley was shaking in the roar,
Rocks rolled down from the top of mountain like hails.

The roaring tiger,
Turned into a white eagle right away.
Waved its white wings,
Its scream echoed among mountains.

Divine bird Aripkara led all kinds of birds,
Alighted by the side of the white eagle,
Greeted the white eagle,
With their silvery sound.

The white eagle alighted by the side of the lion,
It was a charming and magical dreamland.
The lion put the eagle on his hand,

Manas woke up from the fond dream.

"This is not a common dream."
Lion Manas was lost in thought.

Having a dream in the divine night,
Manas was eager to get an explanation.
He sent out invitations,
There were sixty-one messengers.

Dawn came, the sun rose,
Lion Manas stretched his back,
Gave out such order.

Andijan and Kashgar,
Samurhan and Tashkent,
Counting on fingers,
They had about fifty thousand rich households.
First rate rich people had five hundred mares,
Medium rate had three hundred mares to milk,
They lived a wealthy and happy life.

"Ask them to come within forty days,
And attend the grand ceremony,
Spread this news far and wide,
My sacred Kirgiz fellows,
We are families and connected with blood,
They must get the message.
They need move and gather soon,
Sit on the carpets for respected guests,
Butcher fat cattle and treat the guests.
Capable men need butcher camel calves,
Do not hesitate to butcher fat mares.

"Prepare cubic sugar and dried fruit,
We must not neglect our guests.
Do not let shepherd herd,

On the vast plain between Badak mountain and Samurhan,
Grass there is waist-high,
Shepherds can settle down at other places.

"Choose fat sheep to butcher,
Do not make guests feel disappointed,
At any time do not forget,
I, Manas, have the temper."

Sixty-one messengers,
Received their orders:
"People from south and north should all be invited,
Even Yindistan and Yisfahan,
Should get the message.

"Shankay are great in number,
A lot Tajik live,
In Badak mountain and Balerk,
Our Kirgiz people live,
On the banks of river Amu and Yulonpenchi,
Do not forget to invite them.

"Durben people in Barcha,
Keyima on Lamu ridge,
Keyiba set up felt yurt,
When they know Manas will hold the ceremony,
They must come if they got invited.

"Kirgiz in Huloshan,
And many Jedigair there,
Are administered by the elder Barshi,
You must invite them warmly.

"Kara Kalipali and Jurjut,
Buhara, Chanmbuli, Tukuman,
Zhuda, Karacha, Ayidenkoler and Nura,
Invite all of them no matter how far they are.

"Munar, Darkan and Susa,
Babili, Sarkan, Bariskon,
Do not forget to send invitation to Ayidarhan,
Then you can return."

Khans, Beks and common people,
Rushed on to come to the ceremony.
The giants of muscle carried iron hammers,
They were all in great state.

Khans administered the giants,
And awe-stricken nobles came in succession.
With Kumuz under the arms,
Erchys all came.

Judged horses and matters wonderfully,
Silver-tongued sages came early;
The poor who wore ragged clothes,
And lived in poverty were not absent.
Guys who made the trouble at their will,
Also seized the chance and came.

Guests who came from afar filled the prairie,
There were more than seventy thousand guests.

Blades of knives for cutting meat was duller,
So that even the fat could not be cut.
As guests were more and more,
Plates of horsemeat were carried out.

Fantastic games were organized,
People rejoiced with wild excitement.
Horse racing was the last one,
Horses participated were driven to the starting point.

On the plain Jiyidye,
Smart persons were counting the prizes.

Five hundred horses and one thousand fat sheep,
Were the prize of the first place.
There were fifteen steeds that could win,
Prizes reduced gradually according to the ranking,
But it still was satisfying,
The last one also could get the prize of forty-five livestock.

Immersed in an air of happiness,
People chattered lively.
Several days passed,
Horses came back in succession.

Barsh's mount grey-goat steed,
Ran fast as an antelope,
Like Kanbar Ata was leading its halter,
It galloped ahead and arrived at the finishing line first,
Took the symbol flag in the hand.

"This is the pride of Kirgiz!"
Barsh's excitement was shown on his face,
He put the prize in the center generously,
Let people present choose freely.

Shihay's son Chabak,
Made trouble out of nothing,
Words he said were like a storm,
He felt so resentful to the master of the steed:
"You, such a damned Jedigair,
Your steed got the first place in the race,
But you just act so stupidly.
That bloody bastard,
What a ceremony he is holding,
How can Kirgiz get all the prizes?"

Hero Manas was furious with those words,
He drew out his sword with a woosh.
He turned a sharp eye on Chabak:

"I will let his life be done!"

At the moment he lifted his sword,
He tried to press his fury down in the chest:
"I hold this grand ceremony,
It goes against my wish if it goes this way."
He gnashed his teeth in great anger,
The look on his face was like clouds covering the sun,
He made a long sigh:
"If I kill people in the ceremony,
It is against the rules of etiquette."

He tried hard and controlled himself,
Pale face was like a piece of old felt:
"I keep a good wish in my heart,
I will spare your life this time,
Chattering Chabak,
Why do you make trouble here?

"For the fond dream I had,
For a good wish,
I have to forgive you this time,
Do not force me to the cliff edge,
I will get even with you in the future.
Be moderate in drinking horse milk wine,
What a hero you are if you are drunk!

"I suggest you behave yourself,
Do not salt the itch.
If you do not kick your habit,
You must call troubles to yourself.

"You bite off more than you can chew,
To desire to excel the giants of unusual strength;
If you do not make me angry any more,
You will enjoy a happy life.

"Like a free colt,
Run and jump on meadow,
If you make me angry again,
You will die in my hand sooner or later!"
Furious lion Manas,
Controlled his anger and showed a smile.

Chabak recoiled in fear,
Ran away with his tail between the legs.
Guests came to say goodbye,
Then rode back to their homes.

Let us put this aside,
My sad voice,
Will sing the misfortune of Kanikai.

Karahan's daughter Kanikai,
Was the elite of women,
She was as holy and pure as a white dove,
She had a decisive character.

She experienced all hardships in the world,
Frame-up and persecution always got her into hot water.
Villains' conspiracies and plots,
Stabbed in her heart like a sharp knife.

"It is better to believe in my own threshold,
Rather than believe in my husband.
Life is as sweet as honey sometimes,
But it locks you up like chains at other times."
This is the maxim of Kanikai.

When Ayikoler was badly wounded,
Kanikai fed him medicine and water carefully.
Before she went back home,
Nakelai and Karaboruk,
Had spread rumors to frame her up;

"On the ceremony of Kokotoy,
When people gathered,
Koshaoyi prayed for her,
She got bless of Khuda.

"It is much more than this,
She took care of Ackura and made it enter the race,
She tried and tried to do this.
'Woman should be like this!'
She earned the praises of all people.

"Sage Koshaoyi gave her bless,
How can it be useless?
If she gets pregnant and bear a son,
How can Manas care about us again?"

Two dirty-hearted women,
Harbored feelings of dissatisfaction and envy.
They schemed secretly,
Nursed a vicious plot.

"Manas will not listen to what we say,
Do not believe in strangers easily either.
Only reckless Tazbaymart,
Can accomplish this mission."

They used the trick of presenting steeds,
To bring Tazbaymart to the lure;
They used the means of presenting battle gown,
To cheat and lure Tazbaymart.

When Tazbaymart came in unintentionally,
They stood up immediately and flattered him;
Put thick cushions for him,
Treated him warmly with salted horsemeat.

Nakelai was a shameless dirty woman,

In order to buy Tazbaymart over,
She presented not only steeds and battle gown,
But also herself shamelessly.

Tazbaymart was one of the forty warriors,
A bastard forgot his origin under the instigation.
He spread the rumor among people,
Framed an affair between Kanikai and hero Chuwak.

Lion Manas believed in the rumor he spread,
Turned Kanikai out of the door.
On the grand ceremony of the lion,
People did not see Kanikai.
Karaboruk's white yurt,
Was in majestic splendor,
Even if sixty people sat in,
It was still capacious.

Let the host and guests continue talking,
Let me describe this magnificent hall.

The yurt was constituted with twenty Kanat①,
The vault of the skylight was like an opened umbrella,
Ejector pins of the yurt were made of pure tin,
Rope bands for preventing wind were iron chains.

The lattice was painted with thirty colors,
Carved with many different kinds of patterns.
The magnificent white palace,
There were no proper words to describe it.

Respected Akberita and Berdikai,
Giant Garmgirchy and chief Bayi Jigert,
Khans Tirkechy and Shihay and others,
Forty warriors led by Kergel,

① Kanat: It refers to the rafters of the yurt in Kirgiz language. Twenty Kanat shows how the yurt is.

Were invited to the yurt of Karaboruk,
Showed the dignity and prestige of the Khan.

Intestines, stripes and neck fat of horses piled,
Huge wood bowls were full of honey sugar,
Lamb hipbones and lamb tails,
Were piled in a wood basin like a hill.
Servants carried forty leather bags,
The fragrant horse milk wine,
Was swirling in basin-size painted bowls.

People talked cheerfully and drank freely,
Shoveled and swallowed food happily.
Passed the wood bowls continually,
Competed their alcohol capacity with each other.

Everyone's face turned red with alcohol,
Their laughter filled the yurt.
Begans kept their spirits up well,
Indulged in loud and empty talk happily.

Right at this moment,
From the door opened yurt,
They saw lion-like hero Manas,
Walked out of the yurt of Nakelai.

He held the sword Achyalabars in the hand,
Silk cloak was over his shoulders.
The sword would get longer,
The point was burning with flames.

If the hero waved his arm,
Cast iron would be cut like willow twigs;
The hero turned up his nose at all people,
Wearing the golden crown,
The lion strode like a ferocious tiger,
To the yurt of Karaboruk with his chest and head high.

He stopped and looked around,
It became silent in the yurt suddenly.

For the cloak on him,
We need tell in detail:
No one could see the seam on it,
Dust never lies on it.

Even if three hundred kilograms of gold was paid,
It was impossible to sell it;
Even if four thousand sheep was paid,
It was impossible to get a piece of it.

The respect showed in its swaying,
It was colorful and changeable.
Along with every step of the hero,
It was attractively shinning.
Anyone who wore this cloak,
He was like a chief commander of all troops.

Ayikoler Manas began to talk slowly,
Serious expression made everyone present scared:
"Please listen carefully, everyone,
Think about what I will say carefully.

"I had a magical dream,
But I do not know what it means.
Please use your super abilities,
Help me explain the meaning of my dream.
If you cannot explain it correctly,
Do not blame me on punishing you severely!"

Since Manas said so,
A perfect silence prevailed in the yurt,
Jagurp Bayi restrained himself for a long time,
Then he told his son Manas the secret:
"Your wife Kanikai is going to have a baby,

Probably she will bear a boy!"
Jagurp stroke his bushy beard,
Showed a satisfied smile.
He stopped for seconds and was ready to say again,
Manas was filled with fury suddenly.
Lion Manas bristles with great anger,
Sparks of hatred were sprayed from his eyes.
Old Jagurp could say nothing,
He turned round and closed his mouth with fear.

"What on earth will happen?"
All people present were frightened with their eyes open wide.
Disaster descended suddenly,
All people present did not know what to do.
Horse milk spit out became a lake of milk,
Flooding the first row of lattice of the yurt.
They were all frightened with face pale,
Whispered secretly and complained:
"Bayi Jigert and Berdikai,
Aoshour and Saramart,
In such grand ceremony,
Send us delicious food continually,
Make us in an awkward position,
What in hell does he want us to do?

"We do not know the inside story at all,
Do not swallow the food any more!
We are all living in a drum,
Do not know how the matter will go.
He gathers us in one yurt,
Is he going to kill us all?"

As the generals were frightened to death,
Aji Bayi gave a glance to the lion.
Bold and smart Aji Bayi,
Was the son of Kapchaque.
Spoke the wise words to Manas:

"Oh, my respectable lion Manas,
You block in the door with your cloudy face,
You scare so many people out of their wits.

"If you scare us to death here,
Who else can help you with your dream!
You fly into a rage,
Do you want all us to die?

"Why are you so angry,
Let the angry fire burn in your heart?
Forty warriors who accompanied you,
Were all scared out of their wits.

"Please smooth out your worried look,
Tell all of us your dream.
You have not told us your dream,
How can we explain it clearly?

"Please tell your dream in detail,
Let us understand the reason of your anger,
No one knows your dream,
But will be killed by you."

Hearing what Aji Bayi said,
All people present agreed together:
"What Aji Bayi said is totally correct!"
Forty warriors shouted together,
Lion Manas was in a threatening manner,
Hair lifted the cloak up.

Lion Manas made a dry cough,
Began to tell his dream.
"That is a downhill road,
Apple trees were full on the slope.

"I was wearing my white gown,

Rode on magical steed Ackura,
Sauntered freely on the road,
There was no company but myself.

"I picked up a red sword,
On the road.
I waved the sword and splashed,
At crouched ox-like black rock,
The sword made a silvery sound,
Its blade was shining as the moon.

"The huge rock was split in two,
Just like cutting the soft lamb liver.
The sword has a thick back and sharp blade,
Straight body and curved handle,
I hang it on my waist,
Whipped my steed and go on my trip.

"Suddenly the sword became heavier and heavier,
Sheath belt became longer and the sword tip touched the ground,
Then a deep ditch was carved on the ground,
As easy as a sharp knife cutting dough.
In an instant the sword changed its form,
It became a colorful ferocious tiger;
Like a company on my journey,
The tiger followed me tightly.

"Then I arrived at a hill,
We climbed on the top together;
The tiger raised its head and looked around,
Made a powerful roaring.
All kinds of beasts fell over each other,
Came and gathered from all directions.
I stood on the hill by myself,
All beasts were around me and saluted me.

"The tiger turned into a white eagle suddenly,

Deep eyes were bright and piercing,
Talons were like iron, scream was earth-shattering,
No prey could escape under its talons.
It had eight steps-long legs,
Its tail showed good fortune,
Its neck was like pure gold,
White wings were like silver.

"It left the branch alighted,
Soared into the sky.
It stretched its neck toward the firmament,
Made a harsh scream.
Birds led by divine bird Arip,
Covered the whole sky.

"I stood on the hill by myself,
The white eagle flew to my side,
Birds came and saluted me.
The twittering sound they made,
Was too hard to understand.
Its tail and crest were shining,
Feather was whiter than a swan;
If it got angry,
Its expression was like that of divine bird Arip.
It was an eagle alighted,
The bell-like sound could split your brain."

Manas told all the things that happened in his dream,
His face was full of doubts:
"This is my magical dream.
I carried that eagle and then woke up,
Too many thoughts in my mind made me worried.
What do the sword, the tiger and the eagle mean?
Please explain the meaning of the dream to me."

"What a splendid dream!"
People with great wisdom were all surprised.

The dream of Ayikoler was like a mirror,
It showed clearly in the mind of Aji Bayi.

He knew hero Manas well,
His power could make others die.
If anyone made him angry,
Many more people would lose their innocent lives,
It should be cautious to read dream for him.

"Almanbet went to Kokcher for shelter!"
They had heard this for a long time.
Aji Bayi remembered this and told himself:
"What does the dream want to show?
Is he going to come to us,
Does not Kazakh make the eagle stay?"

Wise man Aji Bayi composed himself,
Spoke out his deduction quickly:
"If you were wearing the white battle gown,
If you rode magical steed Ackura,
If you were on the far journey freely,
That means you administer all Arashi by your own.

"The sword you picked on the road,
Seems the embodiment of a hero,
It indicates that the coming hero.
Is as sharp as that sword,
That is the invaluable treasure,
It shows the eternal promise,
Would ever be as solid as a rock.

"The sword became a ferocious tiger,
It is right the embodiment of this hero.
The rolling hills,
Dense fruit-bearing forest,
Are the charmed happy home for you,
There are your brave fellows.

What made the tiger roar,
Is your, black mane wolf's power and prestige.

"All living things on earth salute you,
Your enemies are like grass being cut,
The whole world is sincerely convinced to you,
They obey you.

"Relatives of the same clan from afar,
All will be your subjects.
This is not the whole content,
Please listen carefully;
There are gods around you to care you,
Sages of Kirgiz are blessing you.

"Since the white eagle is your favorite bird,
Your fierce fists must make enemies beg for mercy.
All your enemies,
Will burn in your power.

"Common people are all convinced by you,
Your endless good luck will be like the burning sulfur,
We will also live our happy moments;
Wedding in each month, ceremony on every day.
Our life will be happy,
Our good fortune is coming,
Our throne will be more stable.

"Since you are healthy and long lived,
The flower of happiness will not be broken;
Wish you be supremely fortune,
And last forever!

"The coming hero,
Should be Almanbet,
He is an unbeatable hero.

With powerful back and shoulders, thick chest,
Enemies dare not fight against him,
One will be smashed to pieces if catched by him.
He is the descendant of Solaba,
His father Sorandick,
Is the powerful Khan of city Begin.
Veteran soldiers and able captains in Begin,
All take orders from his father.
Almanbet started his fight single-handed,
His hometown was reddened with blood when he was eighteen.
No matter the generals or Khans,
He never bows down to them.
He chases after enemies like ferocious leopard,
Like tiger tearing its prey.
On the battlefield where sabers and swords wave,
No one could compete and match with him.
He is a daring general known by all troops,
No one ever escaped under his hand.

"In order to defend the interest of his hometown and people,
Ketay people with red tassel hats,
Many lost their lives in his hand;
Karamark people with black tassel hats,
Countless of them were killed by him.
In the fights of close combat,
No one dare compete with him.
His braveness is hard to find in this world,
His power surpasses all.
Heroes like Kunwuer Bayi, Georoy,
Never dare show off their skills in front of him.
Among heroes nowadays,
He has a great reputation of never losing a battle.

"Dust in Gobi desert rose up high in the sky,
He can make river rapids gush spring water,
Each battle ends with his victory.
Ketay and Karamark was expelled by him,

Kangayi and Tangut did not escape from his hand,
Running blood reddened the earth.
Many heroes were killed one by one,
He, an unyielding solitary hero,
Is still galloping across the battlefield.
He went and stayed with Kazakh,
Became a strong backing of Kokcher.
Kokcher only had six hundred steeds before he came,
Now Kokcher has six thousand steeds,
The piled wealth made others admire.
He is disappointed with Kokcher,
He has left Kokcher,
He must come to you for help.

"Wish your dream come true,
Wish good fortune fall on your eagle holder.
I read your dream like this,
Wish Azrit Jusup, the master of dream,
Help you fulfill what is in your dream!

"Sage Chayiyar is around you,
Wish you an infinitely bright future,
Make your enemies in jealousy of you,
Turn blind and live in the dark.

"Wish your livestock spread all over the prairie,
Wish your gold like endless running water,
Wish your people wealthy and happy with their life,
Wish your throne last throughout the ages!"

Aji Bayi lifted both his hands up,
The elders led by Jagurp Bayi,
Gave their blessings to the hero together.
The tiger quelled his rage,
Turned round and watched his fellows,
The lion soothed his brows,
Gave an order to warrior Aji Bayi:

"Your good fortune and dignity,
No one will contend with you.
This honorable brocade robe,
No one can wear it among Kirgiz people.
Oh, respected Aji Bayi,
You are our beloved Began!
Look! This is the brocade robe for Began!"

Collar band was made of red fox fur,
Black velvet was lined around the collar;
On each corner,
There were elaborate embroidered patterns;
Khan Manas presented in person,
The brocade robe to Aji Bayi.
What an exciting moment it was!
Fellows congratulated Aji Bayi together.

Manas showed a big smile,
Happiness was on everyone's face.
Happy games were going day after day,
People lived relaxed and happily.

On a Thursday morning,
Magical firelock Ackelaty shook suddenly,
Harsh noise of gunshot cracked in the air,
Along with the sharp gunshot,
Manas gave out the majestic order:
"Warriors of Ayinla,
Lead your horses and gather in my palace quickly;
Send message to warriors far away,
Please let the well-known hero start off as soon as he can!"

Uncle Bakay, hero Chuwak,
Heroes gathered in the palace,
Forty warriors whipped their horses and came,
Heroes from all places came in succession.

Heroes asked in one voice:
"Lion, what is your order?"
Lion Manas said passionately:
"From dawn to dark, only eating and sleeping,
You have dreamed away five months.
We have not gone on an expedition for six years,
Did not get even a copper coin of war trophies.

"It is full of groundless talk every day,
Everyone is shaken up with it.
You can sleep secure in Ayinla,
Just drink, talk and seek pleasure every day.

"War horses are fed too fat to move,
Fine steeds have become inferior horses;
We cannot shoot bullets when we fight against enemies,
Because our firelocks get rusty.
Our strongest warriors,
Have already forgotten the expedition.

"We did not hunt on the prairie,
Picnic and barbecue make people mouthwatering.
As a real man,
How can we just kill time at home.

"Since the summer comes,
We have got enough of the swelter of prairie weather,
Let us ride on our steeds,
Go hunting in mountains.
According to what passers-by said,
It is beautiful along the bank of Chu river.
I will go in person,
Check how people there live their life.

"If it is not Gobi desert or wilderness,
If there is a broad prairie,
If it can herd as many livestock as possible,

I will divide my tribes and send some there.

"If enemies scheme any plot,
I will experience their skills.
Lions, ride on your vigorous steeds,
We are going to start off soon."

Men above eleven years old,
Pulled the mane and mounted their steeds,
Fully armed, ready for setting out,
Whenever they started off,
The steeds were ready to untie.

Horse feed bags were made of silk,
The feed was ready and put closely to the steeds.
No matter in summer or in winter,
Lamb tail fat was stirred with horse feed together,
Kept the steeds plump and sturdy.

In the season of mares bearing colts,
Fed mares with horse milk everyday.
In order to make them stronger,
Salt was added in the feed.
Milled barley into bran,
And put on the back of strong horses.

Warhorses were all ready,
Sturdy and majestic,
Embroidered cloth was on their backs,
Whole-length armors were like fish scale,
Decorations were all made of pure silver except hooves.

Firelock could not shoot through,
Fire could not break,
Spear could not pierce through,
Saber could not split.

Battle robes on the generals and soldiers,
Were made of Burum cloth,
Every seam was fine and close,
Strong and tight with no crack.
Shining chest protectors,
Were made of pure steel.

Forty warriors all have both names and surnames,
Let me tell you one by one:
Majik of Kara Nuoyi,
Kangbar's son Chaliga,
Kaygawuler, Toroulchu, Bogaiwuler,
Were good at sending messages in difficulties,
And good at giving advice at critical moments.

Shinke's son Kairban,
Durben rode on white forehead steed,
Zhatay rode on yellow steed,
Atay of Alajan tribe,
Yumaitai of Wusan tribe,
Yumaitaler and Jayisan,
Bobek, Shabek and Showkur,
KaraKojoy of Argan tribe,

Zhoshao with superior intelligence,
Kalkaman, the head of them,
Tokonai, the commander of them.
Ailaman, the chairman of common people,
And Kazakh warrior Bolanchy,
Who was a singer with resonant voice;
Turna of Kara kalapaker,
Bad-tempered Kutunay.

Commander was Koshi Aladashi,
Captain was Kergelchal,
And young Aladashi,
Augur Kara Tolik,

His divination was extraordinarily distinctive,
Watched and observed with scapula,
He could predict everything.
Another warrior with ability to divine the unknown,
Was Arakan of Alam tribe.

Erchywuler, Bozwuler were smart,
Eloquent and good at singing.

Led in the charge bravely,
Tazbaymart was as sharp as a razor;
Gulidur's son Arabye,
Aramubye who participated in planning;
Began Aji Bayi,
Could reveal secrets in one's heart.

Wolf's trace could be found,
Kader, Tuman and Jayinak,
Were pearls among common people.

If the troop marched forward at night,
Tens of thousands of Arashi set off on the journey,
The trace of fox still could not escape his eyes,
He was outgoing and perspicacious hero Showtu,
He was one clever warrior in a million.

Jagurp Bayi's descendants,
Hero Sirk and Sirak,
Were warriors of high martial skills,
They were not among the forty warriors.

Uncle Bakay was the sage among people,
His talent praised by everyone;
Felt no fear when facing powerful enemies,
That was hero Chuwak.

Commanded the whole army to advance bravely,

That was Ayikoler Manas.

Ammunition and arrows,
Was abundant in bags;
There were cooks, grooms,
And chief commander of logistics.

Four hundred and eighty warriors,
Started off in array from Ayinla.
In the early evening,
They arrived at Badam Bashi.

Hunted in mountains and plains for two days,
Great noise came along with endless happiness.
More than five hundred wild goats were caught and killed,
Wild camels with crooked neck were shot,
And leopards and jackals too,
Seven crazy brown bears were killed on the slope,
Tigers and deer fell on the ground,
All became delicious food of heroes.

Enjoyed such beautiful time,
How could not they be happy?
Let steeds gallop in Arat forest,
Chose fast steeds to run.

Wrestled one for one,
Seized arms and dragged each other.
Went around the spur of the mountain,
They met flocks of argali.
Blackish argali had shining hair,
Fifty four of them were killed.
From then on,
That place began to be called Kara Kulaja①,
And came along with beautiful legend.

① Kara Kulaja: It means black argali.

No random shot,
Whipped the steeds and chased from back.
Skinned animals, rubbed and infused,
Then tied on the saddles of the steeds.

Free, unrestrained and leisure,
They spent a period of beautiful time.
They moved on to Kotuliac gradually,
With cheers and laughter along the way.

On the fifteenth day,
Manas, who led the group,
Announced they had arrived at Nalun city.

In those years, hearing Kirgiz coming,
Karamark in Nalun city fled away,
With city gate opened, city abandoned,
Wild dogs barked here and there.

Karamark abandoned the city in panic,
There had been a rush to flee toward Altay.
Karmark people fled to Altay,
But their livestock got plundered.

Almanbet and Kokcher advanced together,
Fought against Karamark regardless of their safety,
In the bloody battlefield,
Streaming blood like river was rushing.

They took away the gold Karamark extorted,
Made Karmark live in despair.
Distinguished Arokai,
Had to flee to Kangayi.

Now Manas who climbed over the mountains,
Came to Sariker hill of upper reaches of Chuyi.
Karamark scattered in all directions in those years,

Now only four hundred households still lived here.

Karamark's elder Kart Koshaoyi,
And Kirgiz Bayi Koshaoyi,
Both lived in mountain Mazhar till now.

His livestock were all plump and sturdy,
Fat in the pots were boiling and spilling.
Katagan's son Khan Koshaoyi,
Burst out of thought suddenly:
"Did not go across Nura river,
Had no exchanges of letters for long,
How can I just live here,
And make myself a wild man?
I stay close at the side of my wife,
I feel disconsolate at missing the leopard hero."
He prepared white rice,
Made six dromedaries carry it,
The mighty expression was like an argali,
Came to Ayinla where Manas was living,
To visit lion Manas.

He knew from fellow villagers,
Hero went on a hunting trip.
Food he took,
And heroes who went with him,
Were all left in Ayinla,
He only went on with two warriors.

"I need seek his footsteps,
No matter where he is, I will find him,
Then return home after seeing him."
Matchless hero Koshaoyi,
Together with Kart Koshaoyi①,
Drove six plump mares,

① Kart Koshaoyi: Kirgiz language, Kart is another form of address for the old people. Kart Koshaoyi means the elder Koshaoyi.

Took enough horse milk,
Finally they found the hero in mountains.

Karamark people once stationed here,
Their Turehot tribe,
Pitched camp here at one time.
Well-known Kart Koshaoyi,
Was the head of those four hundred households.

Khan Koshaoyi of Kara Kirgiz,
Kart Koshaoyi of Karamark,
Bayi Koshaoyi of Kirgiz,
Three Koshaoyi gathered right here,
The basin named "Yuchy Koshaoyi" ① was named after this.

Ayikoler and three Koshaoyis,
Walked on the hill and observed the terrain,
Lion Manas overlooked the broad prairie,
The excitement could hardly calm:

"Look at the vast prairie,
Listen to the quack of wild ducks,
Look at the rapids divided into pieces,
Look at wild geese flying in rows,
Look at gazelles running in desert happily,
Look at argali galloping on slopes,
Where do these animals come,
Why do they all gather here?"

Grass glittered, wormwood waved,
Tinkling spring flowed.
No rock was as big as kneecap,
No roaring river flooded.
Jettor pasture was in the upper reaches of Ashimura,

① Yuchy Koshaoyi: Kirgiz language, namely three Koshaoyi.

Looked by yourself if you did not believe.

Verdant grass was thick and flourishing,
Bright red flowers perfumed the mountain.
Dense reed and wheat-ear grass,
Changed the hue in breeze.

Lion grass, Jokazen grass and Mandlak grass,
Lamb ear grass, mare breast grass,
Kemzdek and Kemurchek,
Various weeds grew lushly.
Seeing the beautiful field,
Vast but no one lived there,
Questions came out ceaselessly.

Kart Koshaoyi explained:
"Here is our hometown,
Turehot are our people,
If anyone holds up the flag of betrayal,
Dolis must make him die out.
Here was comprised with many names in the past,
Under the administration of Dolis,
Now it is called by a joint name Kotolik."

Manas continued the talk:
"The meaning of Kotolik is not clear,
If you do not have any dissent,
We need rename it."

"Since they are Turehot people,
Dolis is their head,
If you all agree with me,
How about we name it after his name?"
One of the forty warriors,
Gave such a suggestion.

Bakay continued the talk,

What he said coincided everyone's idea:
"We do not use the place name of Karamark,
We'd better have a new name,
Let us call it Talas,
Khan rules Talas,
Is our lion hero Manas."

Upper reaches was Talas river, lower reaches was Chu river,
Different flowers blossomed with pleasant smell;
Manas once stationed here,
Butchered mares and danced and sang;
Chased after gazelles in the plain,
Whipped Ackura and galloped.

"Manas once stationed in Talas,
Built up his palace there."
The legend,
Passed down for ages.

Right at this place,
People pounded horse milk ready in leather bags,
Put in huge bowls and drank at one gulp.
No matter it was valley or hill,
Whipped horses through with no stop.

Right at this place,
People held the intoxicating wine,
Sang while drinking with joy.
Grabbed the long mane of two-year-old grey mare,
Butchered it with sword-like knife.

Right at this place,
Grand ceremony would hold,
Made people enjoy their happy life.
Thousand-layer fried dough cake mixed with crème,
Heroes would taste and comment;
Horse intestines with fat dripping,

Would be enjoyed by heroes;
A variety of Borsak were prepared,
Heroes would eat them here.
The red flag of Onuzdo,
Waved in the wind with silk ribbons tied on;
Uncle Koshaoyi would accept the flag here,
The battle flag would wave with wind on the high mountain.

Seeing three Koshaoyis off,
The hero would still stay here.
Extraordinary hero Manas,
Would like to stay two more days.

After the leisurely and carefree journey,
What would hero Manas do then?
Returning date was approaching,
He went and observed around again.

Manas was laden with anxiety,
His returning steps were heavy.
Khan led his troops to a journey,
Outwardly it was a leisurely hunting journey,
Actually it was for finding the dream hero.

Without finding the dream hero,
How could he leave in a hurry.
He said silently in his heart,
Almanbet, where are you?

Almanbet Went to Manas for Shelter

In the days when Manas thought about him,
Almanbet had already come near them.

Hero Almanbet,
Was whipping his steed into mountains,
He went through a walnut forest,
Coming into a mountain.

He dismounted for a rest and fed the steed,
While he remembered his sad and wronged past;
With tears full in eyes, his sadness deepened,
He made melancholy sighs constantly.

His face turned milky yellow like wheat straw,
Tears ran down along his beard,
He sat on a hilltop silently.

Right as what Almanbet predicted,
When Kokcher sobered up the next day,
His stomach cried out for food and he shouted:
"Hey, my old woman! Is any food ready?
Give them all to me now!"

He raised his head up and looked around:
Prepared inviting broth,
Put coat hem on table as table cloth,
Strong tea,
Butter mixed with sugar,
Chopped horse milk fat,

Horse intestines, stomachs and tails,
Had been put in front of him.

He stretched out his neck and adjusted himself,
Straightened his waist and sat up:
"Let a servant to invite Almanbet to come soon!
He does not eat usual food,
He only eats horse intestines, stomachs and neck fat,
And sweet honey."

He repeated for three times,
But no one took notice of him.
It seemed he knew nothing,
Of Almanbet's leaving.

"We both are the descendants of Kazakh,
Speak frankly with bold character,
Lion Almanbet is our Began,
Why does not he come?

"Our three days' gathering,
You all come and attend,
Butchered so many fat sheep and strong horses,
You ate and left nothing.

"If you do not invite wolf Almanbet to come,
How can I eat the delicious food?
I give the order to invite him but no one does it,
Who breeds enmity with him?"

Azmenkai was a Began,
Among the sixty people who hated Almanbet,
He played a vanguard role actively.
Facing Kokcher's question,
Azmenkai said first:
"Maybe you are confused because you are drunk, my hero.
Don't you know what you have said and done?

Have you not remembered,
What we told you?

"Since you were drunk,
Almanbet took the chance and made you angry.
He threatened to kill you,
And marry your wife Akeirkaichy.

"He threatened to take your black and shite steed away,
And rob your blue battle gown,
He would degrade Kazakh to slaves,
Shouting that he would administer all.

"He threatened to cut our cheeks,
If any of us dared to oppose him.
He pointed at your eyes with his index finger,
Said he would conquer your palace.

"What he said is impossible to forget,
He provoked you.
Your warriors did not watch aside,
They rushed on and stopped him.

"Your people are safe and sound,
Why are you still worried?
If we let you lose your life in his hand,
Khuda must punish Kazakh severely.

"Like a neighing steed,
Your people are unharmed.
If we let that lackey kill you,
Your people will suffer disaster.

"When he lifted saber to stab your belly,
When he was going to make you bleed,
When he was going to press you on the cushion,
And to cut your head off,

You should thank these warriors,
It is them who rescued you in the hand of that Lackey.

"Your Karakuler brother,
Lost his life for you.
This damned Ketay,
Should be punished for his words yesterday."

Azmenkai made mischief between them,
Made conflicts between them deliberately.
Kokcher did not believe entirely in his words,
Could not imagine what had happened the day before.

Kozbayi continued the talk,
Told the truth of what had happened.
"Let me say some fair words,
Please do not confound right and wrong,
It was us who provoked the trouble,
It was only Akeirkaichy,
Who was sober in mind and fair in judgment.

"Madam suggested you wisely,
But you did not care at all.
She could not bear your bad words,
Turned round and walked out.

"Almanbet was not here,
He did nothing bad and wrong.
He saw you were drunk,
He put forward to ride your black and white steed,
To fight against the enemies in battlefield.

" 'It is better to let Kokcher die first,
Rather than present my black and white steed.'
What you said was very unkindly and harsh,
He was helpless here.
Everyone can prove you said so here,

The hero rushed toward the door with fury.

"He poured out his grievance,
Sad and angered tears came out of the corner of his eyes.
Right as he was stepping out of the door,
Many people waved their fists and attacked him together,
Many of them stabbed their sabers out,
Others waved their knives for an attack.

"Almanbet was a real hero,
He was denounced by his master,
Was forced by many Begans,
He did not revenge on anyone,
But left the palace sadly with a false charge.

"He kicked the warriors who blocked him down,
Then left without making a fight.
My respectable Khan,
What I am saying is the truth."

Kokcher was suddenly enlightened with his words,
He covered his eyes and shed silent tears.
Hero Kokcher was furious,
Called Almseyt and others to question:
"Is Khan Almanbet an enemy to you,
Why do you drive him up to a hopeless situation?
I have predicted what would happen,
You forty people surround me,
Finally you will make a mess to my business.

"He is my sunny sky,
Enemies never escape from his hand alive,
He is my spring of energy,
He has endless courage as a dragon.

"Almanbet is a lion,
He always moves forward in difficulties.

In fierce battles,
He was always with me.

"I have been crying my heart out,
I know how stupid I am.
When my power is known far and wide,
When I become full-fledged,
When my cercus grow long enough,
You pretend to execute my order,
But make a mess of it.

"You make me break my legs,
You break my cane,
My wings have been cut by you,
My honor has been destroyed by you.

"You are so ignorant and stupid,
It is your common habit.
My soul has left,
My vault has collapsed.

"People who lose his eagle look up to the sky,
Look at willows on roadside from time to time;
Riders who care their steeds look at the ground,
Never lend their steeds to others.

"If he really wants my black and white steed,
I must present to him generously;
If he is sad and disappointed at me,
I will present him my blue battle gown.

"You are sure not to make Kokcher despair,
You'd better let me see the hope and brightness again;
Go and look for Almanbet everywhere,
Invite him to come back with sweetest words.

"I, Kokcher, will welcome him by myself,

Hope he can change his mind and keep his promise!
I, Kokcher, can never lose such a friend,
I, Kokcher, must not let the lion go and never back again."

There were sixty heads in Ayinla,
They always shared the same rotten tastes,
They schemed plots secretly,
Came to meet and discuss quickly.
They invited Budaybek madam,
And prepared good wine in a hurry.

They winked eyes at each other,
Took the strong spirits,
In order to make the wine stronger,
They added suitable amount of ephedra in.

"Let us make a toast first,
Then mount our steeds and look for him.
Please forget the worries in your heart,
Please cool the fury down in your chest."
The bastards made Kokcher drink two cups of wine,
They had encouraged the hero;
They made Kokcher drink three cups of wine,
The hero became excited and furious.

Then their words were more reckless:
"Let us whip steeds and go on the journey,
Find the lackey Almanbet;
Then invite all Arashi people,
Let that slave marry Akeirkaichy."

Hero Kokcher heard this,
His face turned and fury rose:
"Give me the wine, fill the cup full,
Be quick, no stop!"

Budaybek joyed secretly for his fulfilled purpose,

Made the hero drink all the wine.
Kokcher should be punished,
He was drunk again and sleepy again.

The evil people tried their best,
Made Kokcher drunk again.
"Just let him sleep!"
They turned round and returned.

Almanbet lay on his back on the hill slope,
With full of anxieties in his heart:
"On the slope where male antelopes eat grass,
I herd my steed while I am waiting,
Ayidarhan's son Kokcher,
Why he did not come and find me!

"On the slope where female antelopes eat grass,
I herd my steed while I am waiting,
My ally Kokcher,
Why he still does not come!

"I dig the roots of rhubarb to appease my hunger,
I thought my Ayasi father,
Ayidarhan would not abandon me,
I have been waiting for so many hours!

"I am looking for the roots of rhubarb to appease my hunger,
I thought we are bosom friends,
Khan Kokcher would not abandon me,
I always turn my head and long for several hours!

"I spent three days on a one-day journey,
I suffered the torments of thirst and hunger,
Khan Kokcher may come and find me,
I look far from time to time.

"What can I do with my tolerance?

My hope is extinct.
I only can assure the safety of myself,
Then roam to other places."
He was extremely disappointed in his friend,
His sadness rose like clouds covering the sky.
He nerved himself and started off again,
Decided to go to Manas for shelter.

Though Almanbet was smart enough,
He did not know the way to Samurhan.
Left Kazakh people,
Sadness and worry filled his heart.
Because of the frame-up of tribe leaders,
He lost the friendship with Kokcher.
He hurried to the west without stop,
Thirst and hunger grew worse.

Almanbet's stomach was rumbling with hunger,
His body shook and legs were numb on the steed;
Bright eyes became blurred,
Face was pale like he was dying.

Almanbet heaved deep sighs,
Endless sorrow filled his heart full:
"I helped Kazakh a lot,
But they made me so sad.

"I am a friendless and helpless unfortunate man,
Where will be the home for my life?
I suffer a lot in this wilderness,
I am like an orphan who lost his family.

"I am a lonely scattered wild goose,
In this dark world,
A poor man like me,
Who can give me happiness.
Almighty Creator,

Please listen to my tearful complaint.
Please save the helpless people,
Please care our sufferings.

"My heart is filled with sorrow,
Misery is coming like excessive rain.
My ribs have been broken,
I nearly cannot bear the pain.
I don't know whom I can trust,
I stand alone in desolation.
I have no friends and family,
Creator, who will care your servant?"

Almanbet thought back and forth,
Walked alone in the wilderness,
He pondered over but could do nothing,
Then he fell into profound melancholy,
Like a steed which got agonizing pain of its hooves,
Stopped its steps in Gobi desert.

Arakoler lake Almanbet passed,
Had a sea at its lower reaches.
The sun shined fiercely, sweat poured,
Disaster hovered over his head.

His heart was heavy loaded with sorrow,
Face seemed to becovered by snow,
Beard seemed like the ice melted.
Extreme hunger tortured him,
Belly shrank and sparks flew before eyes.
Arato mountain appeared where the sun rose,
Ridges were partly hidden and partly visible in the sight.

He turned the steed and went down the slope,
He arrived at a place.
There were dense grass, clear spring,
Meandering spring water,

A meadow was beside the spring.
He put his long spear in the water,
The spring was bottomless,
Water sprayed and splashed,
Like a big boiling pot.

Almanbet gazed at the spring fixedly,
All kinds of birds in the world,
Were gathering and hovering over the spring;
He looked at the swamp beside the spring,
Eagles soared in the sky,
Pelicans with crooked beak played around the spring.

Birds with four long feathers,
Sang and alighted beside the water;
Lapwings played in grass,
It was a paradise habitat for birds.

Almanbet whipped his steed across the prairie,
Flocks of birds were startled.
The birds flapped with a clatter of wings,
And soared high like an arrow.

Lapwing flapped wings and chirped,
Hovered over the head of the hero.
It was the habit of lapwing,
It would come when it saw a person.

Crossing the gurgling spring,
Almanbet was completely exhausted,
But the cloud in his heart was hard to expel.
Leaving his beloved friend,
He was swallowed by endless sorrow,
He left a family-like friend,
His lonely heart wandered.

Anger was written on his face,

Sorrow was buried in his heart,
Eagle Almanbet was black in the face,
He told the lapwing his profound bitterness:

"Lapwing, do not twitter,
Tell you the truth, I am annoyed.
Your twittering sound comes into my ears,
Like enemies who punch me with their iron fists.

"Lapwing, do not twitter,
Tell you the truth, the dust world is shadowy,
Your twittering sound comes into my ears,
Like putting salt on my wound.

"You are the loneliest among birds with wings,
Flying in hot wilderness;
I am lonelier in this world,
Roaming among strange people.

"You are the loneliest among birds with feathers,
Flying over white rapids;
I am lonelier in this dark world,
Wandering among alien races by myself.

"I have forgotten what is happiness,
I become more and more depressed day after day;
I have no company around me,
Even a hunting dog is not at my side.

"I do not care your habitat,
Do not move your nest,
Do not violate your babies;
I will not destroy your home,
Neither mess up your peaceful life.

"Fly at ease, lapwing,
Do not block my way.

If I fall and close my eyes,
Even no dog would come and accompany me.

"I only have an old and bony horse,
And a pair of tearless dry eyes.
I am not sick but have lost my mind,
Only sorrow and hatred fill my chest full.

"Lapwing, fly away,
Why are you hovering over my head?
"Fly away, lapwing,
Do not torment yourself and nag at me!

"Please be not like Ayidarhan's Kokcher,
Laugh at my loneliness and make trouble for me."

Almanbet finished his words,
Stopped his horse beside the spring.
He was hungry and exhausted,
His nerveless feet hang out of the stirrups,
A pair of eyes had been blurred to see.

As he was going to be faint and fall off,
Lapwing rushed on the body of the hero,
Said to Almanbet like this:
"In your hometown, you held the power of Begin,
But why you went to Kokcher for help,
And took his orders as a lackey.

"When you lived in Tonsha city,
Held the power of administering people,
Placed hope on Khan Kokcher,
Loyal to him, dictated to him,
You left your people,
Why do you come here?"

The bold lapwing flew round and round,

Hovered in front of Almanbet's eyes.
Tired and hungry Almanbet,
Was extremely angry but did not know what to do.
On the hot summer day,
Cold sweat ran all over him,
Dripped on the neck of his mount.

He breathed quickly with his disordered brain,
Lapwing's words,
Salted the hero's wound.
The hero went through untold hardships,
Showed his braveness of a man.
"Shoot this annoying lapwing."
He planned in his mind.

The famous archer,
Pulled out a sharp arrow from the bag,
Put it on his extremely solid bowstring.
Lapwing flapped its wings at the same time,
Hovered near the hero's ears.

He dared to wave saber to his own father,
How could Almanbet spare it!
He drew the bow like a full moon,
Shot the arrow with a Thwish.

The arrow shot the wing of lapwing,
The chirping lapwing fell in front of the horse.
Lapwing, flew freely,
Could not flap its wings and fly again.

Almanbet picked it up in his hand:
"A life is given by Khuda,
How could you come to annoy me!
I shot innocent you,
It is you that come to the trouble."

He finished his words,
Looked carefully at the poor bird,
Its small body was like a quail,
The wing was broken and its body quivered,
Tiny eyes could not open.

Almanbet told what was in his heart,
To this poor bird:
"Creator gives you the beautiful feathers,
Why are you so arrogant?
Though I cannot fly,
Wisdom can provide wings for me.

"You misjudged your power,
Dare get in my way.
Brought out my anger,
Then ended yourself up this way.

"I do not hurt you deliberately,
It is you who flew to me and blocked my way;
Your life is going to an end,
Finally you were shot.
You do not listen to my advice,
Came over and over again and blocked my way,
You opposed me, this is your poor end.

"You misjudged in the wilderness,
I am trapped in a net like a lion;
You will die in this hot wilderness,
I am like a tiger injured by arrow.
Wish Khuda bless you,
I will take off your coat of death;
I will cure your wing,
Wish Khuda give me power."

Almanbet had a variety of medicine,
He put the black medicine on the wound.

Put the broken wing of lapwing,
To its original place.
He drew out Altay silk string,
Tied the wing with great care.
Then he took out Kazler ointment,
Cast it on the wound of lapwing.

He treated the wound of the bird carefully,
Then tied with silk tightly;
In order to let lapwing fly again,
He held the bird in the hand and shook it slightly.
The bird flapped its wings and flew into sky,
But kept looking back.

Rode on steed Ackura,
Lion Manas stood on the slope and watched,
What had happened just now,
He saw clearly.

Lion Almanbet had a great figure,
He whipped his horse to a yellow beach,
That was the riverbank of Ashimula,
That was the valley of Ark Arman.

Wild horses ran in the wilderness,
Swans glided gracefully in the lake,
Argali were numerous in number,
No one herded their livestock here.

No camels walked in the valley,
No horses wandered on the slope,
Noisy cattle flocks and sheep flocks,
Did not appear in the lower reaches of river valley.

Colorful weeds waved with the wind,
The clear lake rippled on the surface;
Various birds flew in the sky,

No one could tell what were their names.
Various wild animals were full on the slope,
Pawed the ground continually with dust flying.

Along with the mountain breeze,
Almanbet left the rapids.
He wore the dark color battle gown,
Whipped the horse on the lonely mountain road.
He was conspicuous with his big and strong figure,
Rode on with great dignity.
There was no company around him,
He was lonely and felt miserable.

Manas felt quite emotional,
Too many thoughts went into his heart:
"The greatest hero in my dream,
Finally comes to my face.

"The magical sword I picked in my dream,
Must be the great power of Almanbet.
The black spots tiger I saw in my dream,
Must be the courage of Almanbet.
The white eagle I met in my dream,
Must be the shining wisdom of Almanbet.

"If he stands in front of me,
How can an enemy escape?
This intelligent and courageous lion,
Can take rank with black dragon.

He has an imposing appearance,
Anyone who sees him will cast a glance of envy.
If one day he gets lost on his way,
He must get on the right way with his wisdom.

"He can lengthen people's arms,
He can broaden people's field of vision.

Not only me, such a young man,
Even the ancient sages will bow to him.

"Look at his modest expression,
It could blend with anyone;
As long as you take a glance of his look,
You will feel comfortable.

"He is of medium height and broad shoulders,
Anyone who is caught by him would be pinched into powder.
No enemies will not be frightened as seeing him,
He deserves to be called hero.

"His raised head shows great heroic manner,
He is over thirty years old,
With leopard head, round eyes and silkworm eyebrows.
His ruddy face is shining,
He will be my life-long friend,
He will be my solid backing."

Manas indulged himself in a train of thoughts,
Turned the head of Ackura immediately,
And rushed ahead to the valley in the front.

As Almanbet saw the great figure of the hero,
He pulled the halter and was frozen with surprise.

Hero Manas observed carefully again,
His eyes were like the sharp eyes of hunters.

Almanbet stood there,
He was like a high peak;
His mount Kelejeran,
Was a fine steed hard to find in the world.
Its rump was plump and huge,
Like a red-hair elephant,
In the crucial battlefield,

It would stick with the hero and help each other.

The brave man on the horseback,
Was a hero hard to find in the world,
Firm and unyielding with great power,
He could defeat powerful enemies,
Killed enemies in fight,
He was a peerless hero.

The mount was like a high mountain,
It never let even one enemy off,
The rival with a smaller figure,
Would be swallowed by it with his horse together.

Lion hero Manas,
Could not find any defect of Almanbet;
He pulled and turned Ackura,
Whipped and galloped to the back mountain.
He had no time to button his coat,
Profuse robe edge was waving with the wind.

Manas came to the forty warriors,
Told them happily:
"I am coming to announce a good news,
Prick up your ears, my warriors!
I am telling you a good news,
My close advisers will be smiling!

"If he comes to us,
He will be your solid backing;
If he joins us,
It will be our good fortune.

"If we have battle of wits with powerful enemies,
He will be the knighting of superior intelligence.
His character and his power,
Can be a fierce match to ferocious tigers and lions.

"You should hold him in high esteem,
Never say he is a tramp.
Do not dig filth from a nail,
Pick on him and make him angry.

"Where is the river valley that never floods?
Where is the prairie that does not contain livestock?
If the flame of war rages everywhere,
Who will not suffer from the war?

"If hero Almanbet comes to us,
He can subdue enemies who come to invade.
You need make good preparation,
To defeat enemies he left at all times.

"If he gives out orders,
You all must be in unquestioning obedience.

"You hunt foxes on the slope,
You pitch camps in Kokzhayk,
Let him see your confidence,
Let him see your prestige.

"You two hundred act together,
To make a big 'Palace';
Forty or fifty of you start off shoulder by shoulder,
To herd the horses in the front.

"You forty gather together,
To make Chatresi① ready,
Divide yourselves into groups and shout loudly,
Set the game sheep-dung Sudoku ready.

"The forty people familiar with Kaisiti②,

① Chatresi: Kirgiz traditional folk game of chess.
② Kaisiti: Kirgiz traditional folk game with multiple players.

Go and set the game matrix;
And also play marbles,
Try to make the atmosphere more lively.

"You must have someone to play Kumz,
Have someone to sing beautiful songs;
Like a satiated leopard that lies on its back,
Everyone should look perfectly calm,
Should show the dignity of Suletan.

"In the lue tent,
Many self-glorifying generals,
Heard the name of Almanbet,
But you do not know his temper.
Do not go up humbly and initiatively,
Do not respond to his greeting,
Do not show any servility,
Do raise your head proudly as an erect snow-topped peak.

"Gulidur's son Arabye,
Kutunay and dragon Sirak,
Humourous Aji Bayi,
Akberita's son Chuwak,
Are all prominent Khans,
Not a halfpenny worse than anyone.

"Five heroes are like backbones,
Are in the prime of their life,
Ride on your fine steeds quickly,
Go and hide in the valley immediately.

"When he approaches you,
You just shout loudly together!
Jump out and go up,
Make a sudden attack,
Beat the drums hard and loud,
Shoot the firelocks and shock the ears;

Block his way in his face,
You five chase him together,
Drive him toward us;
You need chase behind him,
Try to get close to our troops,
Try as many ways as you can to threaten him.
Hold his mount firmly,
Drive him from the back and shout.

"Make him breathless,
Sound out how brave he is.
When climbing over Boto ridge,
Urge him to run faster.

"I should warn you,
Do not make me angry.
No matter how powerful the lion hero is,
No matter how perky you are,
Do not take him to me,
And greet me on his horseback.

"He must salute me with his feet on the ground,
I will understand how confident he is,
I will let him walk to me and salute me,
I will have my own idea."

Ayikoler made himself clear with orders,
Five heroes started off along the valley.
Five heroes hid behind the mountain,
Ambushed in Koytori mountain.

Almanbet came on his steed,
Lake disappeared and desert showed up.
He overlooked to the south,
Peaks disappeared and ridges showed up,
A fork road came up in front of him.

The deep sorrow in his heart was hard to alleviate,
Bursting tears could not be fully wiped.
No one could be asked for the road,
No one could point the direction of Ayinla for him.
Almanbet was as big as a mountain,
Stopped from time to time for he did not know the right way.
He had to risk going south,
Turned his steed and went straight to the left.

He was exhausted with profuse sweat,
Running down freely like being offended by god.
He cherished the piety to the Creator,
Recounted his secret to Khuda:
"I am a wanderer that roams the world,
I have lost my mother who gave me my life,
I have lost the land that raised me either,
Almighty Khuda,
Only you can protect me and help me.
My fate is depending on you;
I am a passer-by going to the death,
Only you can save me.

"You dominate everything between heaven and earth,
I never doubt about it.
Khuda, please bless me,
This is my only pleading and wish!

"The thirty seven parts of the world,
Are all created in your hands.
All living things on earth,
Are under your arrangement and guide.

"Among the thirty seven parts,
Ten are boundless Gobi, ten are vast lakes;
Things on Gobi know nothing about things in lakes,
Things in lakes cannot see anything on Gobi.

"Khuda, you are eternal immortal,
Who dare not be obedient to you?
I am just a poor baby camel,
Running in your storm.
Do not let your baby camel cry,
Please give me a guide of a home."

Almanbet shed flood of tears,
Pleaded to Khuda devoutly.
He went forward in low spirits,
Feelings mixed, he had no idea,
But just roamed ahead roughly.

Fives heroes who hid in a low-lying land,
Were all brave and famous,
They jumped out of the low-lying land together.
Beat the drums loudly,
Shot firelocks with loud cracks.

Five steeds galloped together,
Warriors shouted loudly!
Valiant five warriors,
Seemed to gulp him down.

Facing these five heroes,
Almanbet remained calm with no fear at all.
He had a heart as steady as black lead,
He had arms as solid as rocks.

Lone hero Almanbet,
Had a broad and bright forehead,
And dragon-like eyes.
He was not a hero people could provoke easily,
He was like a towering peak.

He sat on the back of Kelejeran firmly,
Like a thirsty and hungry lion,

He roared and made earth shake.

He waved the spear in his hand,
Stirred the wind howling.
Door leaf-size ax hang on his waist,
Shining under the sunshine.

He whipped the steed forward unhurriedly,
Greeted the people who came to him.
Remarkable disposition, powerful and firm,
His heroic spirit was full of praise.

If he fought in the battlefield,
He would kill all enemies mercilessly,
He was like a hungry tiger,
Fighting against him equaled to court death.

His appearance and expression,
Was like an extraordinary King.
They watched his figure carefully,
It was the same as that of Manas.

"He is really the gift of Khuda to us."
Sirk whipped the steed in the front,
Pressed the horse belly with his feet continually.
Four warriors followed him tightly,
Just like the bodyguards of Almanbet.

Till they climbed over a ridge,
No one dare ask Almanbet.
Seeing the expression of Almanbet,
These five arrogant warriors,
Were no longer imposing but in humble reverence.

Let us put this aside,
Sing the story of the alignment,
Between hero Almanbet and Manas.

Manas and Almanbet Became Sworn Brothers

Lion Almanbet,
Still sat on the back of his steed,
Only wanted to salute the host,
From the outside of the camp;
He did not even look at the soldiers on both sides,
Whipped his steed forward.

In order to show the power of Manas,
To show the respect to the guest,
Two soldiers strode ahead,
Like flying gazelle;
One of them arrived first,
Grabbed the halter of the steed.

Never yielding to others,
Never having people touch his halter,
Almanbet got angry immediately:
"Let your dirty hand go,
Do not shock my mount!"
He lashed the halter hard,
One hero gave out shrill cries,
His elbow disjointed at once and made him pain.

Wise Aji Bayi came up right away,
Spoke to him with honey-sweet words:
"Respected hero, please listen to me,
Your great figure is like a mountain containing gold;
You come from afar for a special purpose,

We wish you be crowned with success.
"Your heroic bearing is as powerful as Budayk①,
Your prestigious bearing is like the lion with iron teeth.
You left your hometown and your people,
Come to us Kirgiz through all kinds of hardships.
Your achievements will become the epic,
Handed down to generations.

"You suffered all humiliation and could not bear any more,
Then left hero Kokcher sadly;
On the ridges of Ashimura,
Lion hero looked for you again and again.

"He is a hero of his words,
He has Khuda's bless over his head.
Khan Manas has an aggressive personality,
If you fail to show restraint in front of him,
We will be doomed.

"His order is never changed,
Creator always shows special preference to him.
He is a quick-tempered man,
If you are arrogant and unyielding,
We are all going to be dead,
Everyone has only one life!

"He will redden the clear spring,
He is a bloody man;
He is a hero of solemn pledges,
Words can never be changed once he spoke.

"He is a hero fearing nothing on earth,
His name is spread wide and far;
He is a hero full of wisdom,
He is always thinking with no stop.

"He is an invincible hero who won in every battle,

① Budayk: A kind of magical bird in Kirgiz legend, it is also called the king of birds.

He never scares even if powerful enemies deployed;
He is a matchless daring general,
Like gentle wind that fan the army,
No one can escape under his knife.

"He speaks with authorities,
Full of wisdom and arrogance.
Sage Kerzir blesses him,
He got famous long time ago.
If you insist on riding your steed to him,
We five will have our blood drained away,
Our heads will be all cut,
None of us could be alive any more.

"Hero, you'd better take our suggestion,
Please dismount and then go to salute him."
Smart Aji Bayi,
His words were sweeter than honey.

Almanbet was so excited that tears fell like rain,
The grievance in his heart disappeared gradually,
What happened in the past came to his mind again:
"This false world makes me lonely and helpless,
Hard times make me suffer all hardships.
Friends' desertion descends on me,
I have no other choice but to accept it.
I have lost my seat of Khan,
I am a desperate man.
I am a poor Khan,
Who else can I complain about?
Long time ago,
The grand cause was destroyed,
I cannot accomplish my desire,
It is a choice by the fate,
I am willing to bear it.

"Lion Manas is a great hero on earth,

He has good luck and the mind of Khan,
My life, my fate,
Is it going to become sunny soon?"

Almanbet dismounted his steed,
Steps steady and speed lowered;
He was of elegant disposition,
He gave the salute to hero Manas.

Hero Manas blessed by gods,
Responded to the salute,
A big bright smile showed on his face.

Almanbet took a look to all heroes present,
He greeted uncle Bakay first,
Bowed and stretched out his hands warmly to Bakay.
Uncle Bakay seized his hands tightly,
Returned a salute sincerely to Almanbet.
Honorable hero did not hesitate,
Went up to the seat of honor and sat down.

Look at this sharp-witted hero,
He found the right place for himself at once,
Among those heroes,
Almanbet was a man of such outstanding disposition.

Manas got shocked for a second then recalled,
Stretched his hands out to salute.
Almanbet's lips chapped,
Lion Manas looked again and again.
He knew Almanbet came from afar,
So asked the cook to serve delicious food quickly:
"Prepare the delicious food right now,
Let our guest from afar eat and drink his fill!"

The lion just finished his words,
Majik brought them horse milk and stirred with honey;

He held gold bowl with silver edge in the hand,
The gold bowl was as big as a wood basin.

Horse milk filled the gold bowl full,
He carried the bowl to Almanbet with reverence.
Everyone present listens carefully please,
To see what actions the hero would take.
He stretched out his hands and bowed to give it away:
"Uncle Bakay, you eat first please."
The hero showed his quality of modesty and submission,
Bakay wetted his lips with the milk gently,
Aji Bayi bowed himself,
Took horse milk to honorable guests respectively.

In order not to show the hungry look on the face,
Almanbet took a sip slowly.
Now his head became heavy,
Eyes kept on blinking,
Rumbling sound came out from his chest,
Eyelashes stuck together.
Hunger tormented him to become very weak,
He could not control at all,
He enjoyed all kinds of food slowly,
Cold sweat wetted his robe.

Lion Manas said to comfort him:
"Respectable hero,
Why are you tormenting yourself like this?
Let hunger hurt your innocent body,
There are stoves and pots in every Ayinla,
Gazelles run in wilderness from time to time,
Why don't you shoot them,
But make yourself hungry?

"On the night of bright moonlight,
Let the steed rest on grass.
On rolling hills,

There are numerous argali running,
Why don't you shoot the argali,
Why don't you taste the argali meat?

"Put the steed in the stable,
Why don't you rest in Ayinla?
There are so many wild goats in low-lying lands,
Why don't you shoot the wild goats?
They are the delicacy our god grants to us,
Why don't you taste them?

"On the slope there are many deer,
In the wasteland there are countless antelopes,
Why don't you shoot them,
Why don't you taste their delicious meat?

"There are green islands on muddy wastelands,
There are wild deer on green islands.
Why don't you shoot them,
Why don't you taste their meat?

"Long horn elks with sixty tines on antlers,
Wander on the grass in valley.
Since you take bullets along with you,
Why don't you shoot them?
You are so tired,
Why don't you rest on the curved road?

"Miserable hero has his sadness,
But the sadness should have a sense of propriety;
Life is short,
Keeping yourself alive is a responsibility,
God left such teachings to sages.

"Your mount Kelejeran,
Seems a steed that comes from afar;
Firelock Alemabasi on your shoulder,

Seems an invincible treasure;
Curved bow and grey whistling arrows,
Make you so powerful.

"Your dressing and decorations,
Are very close to what Ketay use.
Your steed, weapons and your words and deeds,
Are very different from us,
Please tell me where you are from,
And tell me your name."

Lion Manas asked curiously,
Waiting for the answer from Almanbet.

Wise Almanbet,
Answered the questions from the lion:
"Your Ayinla has stoves and big pots,
Gazelle run freely on slopes,
I can shoot gazelle,
Then eat the fresh meat till I get full.
I can rest quietly on the ground,
Put my steed in birch forest.
To keep my life going in that way,
It is the same as eating my father's flesh!

"Male gazelles run freely on slopes,
Argali are as dense as sand there;
I can shoot the argali,
Taste their fresh meat.
I can hide under big rocks,
Spend a night there.
To keep me alive in that way,
It is the same as eating my ancestors' flesh!

"There are deer in low-lying lands,
I can shoot them,
And eat their fresh meat.

To bend down in wilderness,
Only for comforting my stomach,
It is better to eat my mother's heart,
But how can I have face to live in this world!

"There is a small island on the muddy riverway,
There are wild deer on the island,
I can shoot wild deer,
Taste their fresh meat.
It is better to cut my own flesh,
Rather than raise myself in that way.
To suffer such hardships,
It is better to die at once.

"Wild deer wander in valley,
I have gunpowder and arrows with me,
If a bastard does not know the injury,
How can he shoot a wild deer?
I do not eat wild deer,
It is better to let me starve to death in wildernes,
Rather than eat wild animals in that way.

"My ancestors of sixth and seventh generation,
Were all well-known Khans,
They never longed for the food.
If I consider myself a wanderer,
To do such stupid things mindlessly,
Almanbet will be too ashamed to show my face.

"My sixth and seventh generation ancestors,
Never lost their grand palace;
The thresholds of palace were made of brass,
They were all famous Khans.

"My ancestor's name was Silawa,
After him was Sulaba,
Then Sulala,

Then Sorandick,
I sprout from them.

"My formal name is Sulaler,
People all call me young master Su.
For a piece of land which belonged to us,
We fought against Kunwuer Bayi.

"Because of my bad luck,
I was expelled from my hometown;
From then on I was all on my own,
Like a lonely lion that left the mountain.

"I left my hometown and families,
Went to Ayidarhan for shelter.
Thought I bear disgrace and am cautious all the time,
I still lost my dignity at Kazakh people.

"I roam in the wilderness,
My tears are always dry up.
I am like a homeless eyas,
Fly over rolling mountains,
Wander everywhere, being exhausted,
But cannot find a place to settle down.

"I looked afar,
The future looks grim to me,
I left my parents and roamed everywhere,
Broke wings when I was flying.

"I am an aimless wanderer,
Climbed over the rolling hills,
Endured hardships of living in the wilderness,
But cannot find a lodge to put up for a night.

"I am a tramp wandering everywhere.
I set myself against my families,

My mistakes are countless.
Falcons have nests to rest when they are tired,
But I have no place to take a rest.
I am full of aspiration but hard to achieve.

"I am like a sharp mattock,
Digging the deep ditch without knowing the time;
On the black earth,
I reclaim white road.

"I taste the salt water ceaselessly
In the sweet life.
My own head,
Has the weight of millions of troops;
Now I have nothing at all in the world,
May this be the life."

Looking at deeply grieved Almanbet,
Lion Manas planned in his mind:
"Make him do what he never does,
We cannot embarrass him like this;
He was the Khan of Kakan,
Let him enjoy the dignity of a Khan."

He gave out orders to all present:
"Khan should be welcomed when he comes,
Horseracing should be a game for welcoming,
Go and make arrangements quickly;
We cannot have no gifts when Khan dismounts,
Go and prepare gifts now.

"Steeds led by Ackura,
Should be led here and lined well.
Prepare white silk battle robe,
Stick the battle flag up.
Bring steeds and battle robe here now,
Let Almanbet choose.

"Butcher yellow young goat according to the rules,
To drive evil spirits out for Almanbet;
For keeping the dignity of Almanbet,
Sadaha ceremonial is absolutely necessary.

"Change exalted clothes for him,
To show his dignity of Khan;
The old and the young all must serve him,
No matter how long he will stay here,
You all must stand aside with cap in hand."

White silk battle robe was put on Almanbet,
Battle flag waved with the wind,
Spear Sier swung left and right,
Ackelaty firelock was held on his shoulder;
Saber was hanging on the saddle,
Door leaf-size crescent ax,
Was tied on the leather belt of the saddle.

There were nine steeds behind Ackura,
Warriors drove them to start off.
Black steed of Kalkaman,
Maroon steed of Tolekman,
Brown steed of Aji Bayi,
Tilkezler of hero Sirak,
White steed Kukazker of warrior Sirk,
Magical steed Totoru of hero Majik,
Piebald steed Koycha Butar of Hohan,
Dark maroon steed sent by Koychuman,
Eight steeds all accompanied Ackura.

Chose some from steeds presented to Almanbet,
To follow those eight steeds tightly.
They were companies of Ackura,
Each of them was famous steed.
Strong chest was like blue sheep.
Tail hair was long as tassel,

It was like the fresco in tomb.
Looked at the straight nose bridge,
It was angular and exceptionally unusual.
Companies of Ackura,
Had hair color like velvet,
Had expressions like wild goats climbing rocks,
There were eighteen with Sarila,
All were magical steeds and hard to tell which was better.

Steeds entered the horseracing,
With the mane tied up and stuck up to the sky,
Tail hair twisted into strands.
Children of entering the racing,
All peed and dressed themselves up,
Tying towel on head,
Wearing soft leather coat.
One smart kid,
Mounted Ackura quickly.

"Ackura belongs to me now,
I do not let it enter the racing."
He asked others to drive steed Sariala,
Let it enter the racing.

People butchered yellow goat kid,
Held Sadaha memorial.
Manas gave out the order,
Asked the accountant to come to him,
To take out two thousand kilograms pink gold.
The accountant opened the huge bag,
In order to show they welcome Almanbet,
He cast the gold coins to the sky.

Let Almanbet wear the honorable coat,
To show the dignity of Khan to everyone.
Duryu and Karila silk robes,
Were draping over his shoulders,

Heels of the battle boots were one span high,
Which made him comfortable and powerful.
Lion hero Manas,
Fully showed his dignity and generosity.

When Almanbet saw it,
He was full of tears and thoughts.
Seeing this, people could not control themselves,
They laid their heads together and discussed:

"Steeds have started off to the starting point,
We do not know what are the prizes.
Manas does not bring money here,
Does not drive livestock here either;
If the horseracing has no prize,
We will be jeered and be ashamed of ourselves.
What on earth is his plan?
What on earth will he choose to be prizes?"
People asked each other,
One adviser nerved himself and asked Manas.

The hero was talking with Almanbet intensely,
He had already forgotten the matter of prize setting,
He heard the asking of prize,
Such thoughts came to his mind suddenly:
"If I set horse as prize,
There must be someone who wins the game;
The winner will keep other's horse as a prize,
It must make trouble.
If they quarrel like hungry wolves,
This is not what I planned at first!"

Manas were full of worries,
He did not make the decision yet.
Smart Sirk stood up,
He was big and tall like aspen,
Who can blow away the extreme heat in summer:

"Respected Khan does not need to worry the prizes.
Horseracing is held by ourselves,
If you agree with my suggestion,
We will set our warriors as prizes.
The competitors are all our people,
How can we worry our warrior will be taken away!
It is rare in the world to use living people as prize,
We will let Almanbet see new things."

What hero Sirk said,
Got unanimous approval from all;
Hero Manas lost in hard thought,
Also praised his idea:
"Oh! My Sirk,
You always have a brainstorm at crucial moment.
This idea is very appropriate,
I totally agree with you."

Hearing the praise,
Clever Bozwuler said first:
"For the prize, I am one of it,
Anyone else, come out quickly!"
Totally sixteen young men stood out,
There were seventeen heroes with Bozwuler.

Prizes were set according to the procedure:
Prize of the first place was seven warriors,
The second place was three warriors,
The third place was two warriors,
From the fourth place to the ninth place,
All got one warrior as the prize.

There were eighteen steeds entering the horseracing,
Only nine steeds could get the prize①,
Warriors as the prizes were one less.

① Only nine steeds could get the prize: According to the traditional custom of Kirgiz, no matter how many horses enter the horseracing, only the first place to the ninth place can get the prize.

"Add me in the prize!"
Hero Majik stood out from the crowd.

Right at the moment,
Streams of yellow dust rose up in the sky,
Steeds for the racing had come.
Steed Sariala ran in the front,
The steed of Almanbet was like a gust of wind.

Its bit touched the ground,
Its gazelle-like hooves stretched out and drew back,
Stove-size hole was dug out on the ground,
Dust rose behind it,
Was floating like dense clouds.
It ran in the front as it was flying,
Other steeds were left behind for quite a distance.
The steed dashed across the finishing line in an instant,
Forty warriors led by Kergelchal,
Jumped for joy with earth shakable shouting:
"Almanbet's steed got the first place!"

Depressed Almanbet,
Got soothed suddenly and became relieved.
Seven warriors as prizes,
All stood by the side of Almanbet:
"Our hero presents us to you,
From now on you are our master.
'Ayikoler is perfectly happy to present,
However, Almanbet is ungrateful to him.'
We cannot suffer such unfortunate fate.

"Wherever you go we will follow,
Oh Hero, we will follow you like your shadow."
Seven warriors twittered,
Requested Almanbet to accept them earnestly;
The spring of friendship,
Moistened Almanbet's heart gradually.

Majik's maroon steed got the ninth place,
He ran up and held the halter,
He became the prize of himself.
Uncle Bakay and other elders,
Heroes led by Kergelchal,
Smiled and congratulated him:
"Majik, are you proficient in horse language,
Do you decide the result before?"

This was the wisdom of Manas,
Only hero Manas,
Was the real Khan of Arashi.

Manas and Almanbet had a long talk,
The lion's sincere and emotional words
Struck a deep chord in Almanbet's heart:
"Respected hero Almanbet,
We welcome you in the wilderness in a hurry.
I presented my battle robe and the steed sincerely,
Whether you want to stay side by side with me or not,
I must not ask the gifts given out back.

"You come from the place sun rises,
To the place sun sets.
You gave up the position of Khan and come to Arashi,
You have no companies with you;
Now you have seven heroes protect you,
No matter where you go,
You need take them with you.

"Please ride on my steed Ackura,
Please wear my white battle robe.
My magical firelock Ackelaty,
Is the pride of all weapons,
Please take it with you well.
My sword Achalbaris,
Has pure gold cast its sheath,

Please hang it on your waist.

"I will not be stingy,
Please take my crescent ax with you;
Magical spear Sier,
Also can be put on your saddle please.

"I am your Arashi friend,
Please understand my sincerity.

"If you go to south,
To Yisfahan and Yindistan;
After one-month journey,
You can be out of the territory of Kirgiz.

"Here is no father let you act like a spoiled child,
No mother takes good care of you either;
Here is no hometown you dream about,
No Kakan city you enjoy your dignity either.

"Anything you need you just ask me,
I will try my best to get for you.
No matter where you go,
You should have friends look after you.
There must be a forehead since head is there,
There must be a throat since tongue is there.

"My friend Almanbet,
I am perfectly happy to be your bosom friend,
There is no importunity for you at all,
This is what I want to say, no restraint."

Hearing the words from Manas' deep heart,
Almanbet was like willow swung in wind.
He lost in thoughts:
"He presented without restraint,
His battle robe and steed to me,

What a generous action it is!

"His wisdom is like the water running,
He is a matchless hero;
He is so broad-minded,
Such hero is too hard to be found in the world.

"He does not move even slash with ax,
What a brave hero he is!
No matter what you want he will give you all,
What a generous hero he is.

"He presented battle robe and steed,
He let me take his personal warriors,
He is so loyal to the friendship,
Where else in this world can such a person be found.

"I set myself against my father and left home,
Could not stay with Kazakh any more,
Roamed here aimlessly;
If I leave here mindlessly,
Isn't it the beginning of a longer miserable journey?
I had planned to come to Manas for a shelter,
Now Khan takes me in sincerely,
If I insist on leaving,
I will bring him the shame!
I will be scorned by the world."

Almanbet's heart swelled,
He stood still and thought quietly.

Quick-witted and clever Aji Bayi,
The warrior never snatched grass from sheep,
Had a silver tongue,
He advised Almanbet in earnest words:
"You come to our Ayinla,
Only two days ago;

If you want to leave just tell us,
We will ceremoniously send you off.

"If you are inclined to stay also tell us,
We will hold a ceremony sincerely for you.
Respectable hero Almanbet,
How much Kirgiz people love you!
We must share out equally every grain,
Share with you the joys and sorrows of life;
What you order we will do,
We will follow your order with all our hearts.

"If you draw your sword to a fight,
We will stretch our necks out to you.
We will follow your lead,
With all our hearts.
Wish you and lion Manas healthy and long-lived,
Wish you feel young forever.
No matter you leave or stay,
We will follow your order."

Aji Bayi opened up his heart,
He talked sincerely and emotionally like a brother.
Heard his words,
Almanbet said earnestly:
"On the towering cliff,
I did not shoot wild goats;
I went on day and night on my journey,
I have been desperate to the life,
I made up my mind of never going back to the battlefield.
I have experienced separation twice,
It still makes me annoyed till now.

"It is said that 'Union is good luck.'
If we all unite as one firmly,
Wealth and good luck will be always with you.
For our unity and harmony,

Everybody, please raise your hands to pray."

People all opened their palms,
Shouted their wishes out,
The grand praying rite was holding:
"Wish you healthy and happy."
Almanbet wanted to leave,
But he changed his mind,
And decided to stay with Manas.

The elder uncle Bakay,
Led by Ayikoler Manas,
Started off toward Samurhan.
They sent four warriors first,
To send Jagurp,
The good news of Almanbet's coming.
Along roads they passed,
Flowers blossomed with heady scent;
On the field of Tuzbulak,
Grass rustled in the wind.
The story of hero almanbet went to Manas for shelter,
Passed down generation by generation.

The vast prairie Belsaz Kerchin,
Had fertile land and abundant water and grass.
Jagurp Bayi lived there comfortably,
Horses whinnied, cattle and sheep cried loudly.
The lion sent four warriors,
Galloped to the prairie.

"Suyinchy! Father Jagurp!
We report to you as things really are;
He was as ferocious as a leopard when he pounces,
He was like a tiger coming when he shouts,
No enemies could be alive in his hands,
Your child Almanbet is coming to you."

Heard the good news from the warriors,
Jagurp's spirits soared suddenly:
"Great, I will give you forty livestock,
As the reward for your good news!"

Heard the good news from the warriors,
Jagurp Bayi burst into laughter.
He changed his former days stinginess,
Became very generous.
He packed up hurriedly.
Rode on his grey small-ear steed,
Sixty elders were following him.
In order to welcome Almanbet,
They whipped their horses out of the village.

Qierdy rode on her grey flying horse,
Took fifteen old ladies and followed them;
Bakdolet got the news,
She also went to welcome Almanbet in person,
Twenty maidservants were around her,
White Alichek hat was high on her head.

Jagurp Bayi was hale and hearty,
White beard swung in front of his chest.
Aji Bayi strode forward,
Came to the side of Almanbet:
"Father Jagurp and his wife is in the front!"

Tears welled up in the lion's eyes suddenly,
The rosy cheeks turned pale immediately.
Almanbet jumped off the horseback,
He was too excited,
Tears poured down from his eyes,
Lips were quivering,
Strode toward Jagurp Bayi.

Tears flowed from Jagurp Bayi's aged eyes,

Beard was wetted with his tears;
They were like reunited father and son,
Hugged each other in great excitement,
Jagurp unbuttoned Almanbet's coat,
Kissed his wet and hot neck ceaselessly.

Right at the moment,
Madam Qierdy arrived on her horse in a hurry,
Grey flying horse made cloud-piercing neigh.
They were mares belonged to the same group,
Two horses met and neighed,
They almost knocked the colt down.

Madam Qierdy was overjoyed,
Like a young married just bore a baby,
Her breast swelled suddenly,
Then white milk splashed out.

Qierdy shouted to Manas loudly,
Her son came and stood in front of her:
"Hey, my son Manas,
Come and drink the milk I save for you.
The breast you sucked in the past,
Now you should suck together with Almanbet."

Manas held his mother's right breast,
Put the nipple in his mouth;
Almanbet held her left breast,
And put the nipple in his mouth too.

When Jagurp Bayi saw this,
He said to Qierdy surprisingly:
"Let thirty years old men suck your breast,
They are so tall, don't you worry others' laughing!"
Madam Qierdy's cheeks burned,
But she said to Jagurp excitedly:
"When Manas was two years old,

I had this dream and it comes today,
Almanbet leads the light yellow steed,
Talk and laugh together with Manas.
From then on, there is no milk in my breast,
But it splashes today."

With white milk flowing at the corner of their mouths,
Two sons felt sweet as babies.
"Though I was born in Begin city,
I think my real mother is Qierdy,
She saved the delicious and sacred milk for me,
I have her milk finally today."
Happy Almanbet,
Said such earnest words.

Bakdolet came and embraced him tightly,
Bean-size tears poured down.

Wise Abukai,
Was right fifteen years old;
The white magical steed under him,
Was right three years old;
He drove forty five mares to come,
Led every one to welcome warmly.
Welcomed the hero in the city,
In Jagurp Bayi's palace,
Treated sincerely to show the respect,
Grand ceremony was going in order.

Messengers Jagurp Bayi sent to all directions,
Delivered letters of Kirgiz to everyone.
Countless fat mares were butchered,
Grand ceremony was held again.
People got the news,
All came in succession.
The ceremony was an unprecedentedly grand occasion,
Happy smile showed on people's face.

Just one day and night,
They served mare meat for five times.
Horseracing was holding to add more happiness,
Horses for the racing were saddled up.
Skillful folk artists,
Offered up graceful dancing and singing.

Erchywuler sang an unceasing flow of words,
To announce the prize of the horseracing:
The horse got first place,
Would win three hundred horses and three hundred sheep;
Even the horse of the ninth place,
Would win twenty-five livestock.

Steed Malekari of Bayi Jigert,
Beat all and got first place;
Flagpole on the site was put down,
Bayi Jigert announced:
"I win in the horseracing,
This is the bless of hero Almanbet,
I will present the prize to Almanbet,
To show my sincere friendship to him."

Singers did the improvisation,
Expressed it through their singing.
Helpless poor people and lonely old people,
Got the shared prize.

Guests left, only families and relatives stayed.
They gathered together without prior consultation,
Came to Jagurp Bayi's palace.

Uncle Bakay, Jagurp Bayi,
Akberita, Garmgirchy and other elders;
Bayi Jigert and Berdikai,
Oshower, the elder Shihay,
Forty warriors led by Kergel,

And heroes like Saramart.

When generals came in succession,
In the yurt of Qierdy,
Wide tablecloth was spread,
All kinds of delicious food were on the cloth.
There were a hundred and eighty people present,
They were all warriors with full of wisdom and resource.
Hero Almanbet came in with them together.

Generals talked with great excitement,
It seemed they would throw the roof.
Bakay stroked his beard and said,
His words were very pertinent:
"There are six Khans present,
Please listen carefully to what I will say.
Materials can only support you to three days,
But the help for the soul can last for a life.

"Almanbet comes here,
It is the best return from the fate to Manas.
He is the happiness and the pride of people.
Sacred and powerful lion comes,
He is a matchless eagle hero.
When our hero is going to fall down,
He is the unshakable supporting backbone.

"Taras has abundant grass and vast prairie,
It is the hometown we are living.
Kirgiz scattered everywhere like sand before,
Gather here now.
Samurhan is our capital,
Pure gold throne looks splendid,
Now we can raise our heads proudly.

"Under the shield of Manas,
Yoghourt flows like endless water.

Children become choosy,
They even do not look at naan with creme.
Almanbet comes and joins in us,
It is like giving tiger a pair of wings.
In order to station and rest in Zhayik,
We need move to Taras.

"Do not fight for the domain against others,
To avoid provoke the pointless fighting.
Garmgirchy stations in Zhayilema,
Tirkechy lives on the shady side of the hill,
Jagurp lives in Zhaktasi.
Kangertu is administered by Shihay,
Karabula and Chatkaler,
Were given to Akberita.
I always contact with them,
So I live in Mayburak.

"We have observed by our own,
We have experienced Taras is rich and beautiful.
There are three thousand households on Jerga plain,
It is right suitable for Almanbet to live."

Akberita continued the talk,
He spoke out his own opinion:
"I have met Kotolik one time,
I thought at that time,
Who will come and station there.
Now my dream comes true,
Almanbet comes and joins in.

"Our divination is accurate,
He had become a great hero who can rule a place;
We follow Ayikoler Manas,
Our life is better and more comfortable."

Everyone present, the old and the young,

Said a lot sincere ideas.
Almanbet continued the talk:
"I have had mother's milk with the hero together,
I consider the hero and I have the same mother;
I don't think I have other hometown,
Arashi is my lovely hometown from now on.

"I am a warrior approaching death,
I thought my wings were broken once,
Now I feel satisfied,
Joyful emotion fills me up.
Respectable Khan Manas,
You are like my elder brother.
If you leave your mount Ackura,
You cannot give out your orders.
I wish Ackura accompany you all the time,
Wish Arashi people flourish,
Wish your people be prosperous.

"I wander everywhere,
The yellow steed brings me good luck.
For the dignity of white-beard father,
For the sacred milk of old mother,
I give you the steed, battle robe and weapons back,
You can consider they are gifts I give you."

Almanbet said in all earnestness,
His words were pleasant to listen to.
Wise and prudent Almanbet,
Won people's respect once again.
"This is a hero with matchless intelligence."
People present put their heads together and discussed,
Praised Almanbet together.

Let us put this aside,
Talk about the story,
How Manas and Kanikai reunite.

Manas and Kanikai Retied Their Marriage Knot

Almanbet was bored enough,
He tried to plan the future with hero Manas.
He rode to Ayinla Manas lives,
Stood out of the yurt of Nakelai and shouted:
"Is lion Manas at home?"

Noise came out of the yurt,
Then Nakelai walked out,
She stretched herself and said:
"He has lost all his enthusiasm to me,
He never cares about me for this whole year."

Almanbet had to turn his horse round,
Came to the yurt of Karaboruk.
Almanbet went near the yurt,
The sound of knocking things came to his ears,
Noise filled the whole yurt,
Other sounds were hard to be distinguished.
It seemed five or six Baksi wizards,
Were casting the spell busy in the yurt.
Almanbet sat on his steed,
Shouted to the yurt loudly:
"Is lion Manas at home?"
That Madam Karaboruk,
Shook her fat body:
"Your Khan,
Must lie in his Khatun's bed."

Almanbet did not know this was a sneer,

So he continued asking:
"Who is Khatun? Where is she?"
"Didn't you see her,
The appearance of your sister-in-law?
That Nakelai beauty,
That happy brassy woman."

"I think Karaboruk and Nakelai,
Are wives of lion Manas,
I finally get to know today,
Manas is living like a single man.
He is hot-tempered,
He speaks with great majesty,
But our hero cannot show on this side,
His power and heroic manner."

Respectable hero Ayikoler,
Did not succeed in his marriage;
In the limited years of life,
He buried the seed of annoyance in his heart.

Almanbet turned his steed round,
Sympathized with Manas' misfortune.
He came across Ayinla,
Hero lion Manas met him in the face.

Manas rode on steed Ackura,
White silk battle robe swung with wind,
Big and unyielding,
As agile as wild white gazelle.
"Hero, where did you go?
Why cannot I get your news for such a long time?
Almanbet asked worriedly.

Manas responded immediately:
"In order to find you a wife,
I ask everywhere about right beautiful girls;

I wander everywhere and ask,
It is all about this matter.
In order to find a right girl,
I gave out the order to Kirgiz people,
Sent forty warriors to Kapshaque,
To search in their Ayinlas."

Almanbet continued the talk,
And made comments on Manas' wives:
"I come here not long,
Do not make troubles for others;
I do not want to get married soon,
Because I do not want to be annoyed by woman.
Leopard, please do not care for my marriage,
Just think more about your own marriage.
Karaboruk and Nakelai,
Do you consider them as your wives?
Through my careful observation today,
I found you still live as a single."

Heard the words from Almanbet,
And his comments of those two wives,
Hero Manas pretended to be calm,
It was hard to answer right away so he turned round.
It was not good to go to the yurts of Nakelai and Karaboruk,
He had to turn his steed round,
To sleep in the palace of Jagurp.

Almanbet got up in the morning,
Overlooked the landscape on the slope,
He saw Akberita's son Chuwak,
Coming in slow steps.
He was a great hero in the world,
The edge of his silk robe swung with wind.
Annoyed Almanbet,
Asked Chuwak:
"Hero Chuwak,

How many wives on earth do Ayikoler Manas have?"
Chuwak answered immediately:
"Nakelai and Karaboruk,
They are Manas' wives;
These two you have seen,
I do not want to comment any for them.
There is another wife you have not seen,
She is the good example among ladies using thimbles.

"She can divide horse mane equally,
Pureness and faith will never cross the varicolored rope①.
For the matters of today and future,
She can predict and look far ahead accurately.
Her sweet words can unite and attract strangers,
She has done too many favors to her husband.
She has big bright eyes and date-like cheeks,
She has white teeth and slender neck.
Karahan's daughter Kanikai,
Is the wife with formal wedding of Manas,
She always dances to her husband's tune after they married.

"Among these wives,
She is as bright as the morning star;
Who can find out any of her fault flaw?
She is open and aboveboard and loyal,
She can sew the broken part back to its formal appearance;
She is clever in mind and skillful in hand,
She can raise the fallen,
She is smart and reasonable.

"On the ceremony of Kokotoy,
She also went with the hero.
Her contribution was praised by all,
Koshaoyi said blessing words to her.
Kokchykoz tried to kill Manas secretly,

① Varicolored rope: According the old Kirgiz customs, varicolored rope means the limitation of irregular behavior. Cross the varicolored rope means lose the chastity and cheat on her husband, which would be cursed.

The hero was at his last gasp after getting a poisoned shot,
She nursed carefully and made him fully recovered;
Among so many women in Arashi,
No one can ever compare with her.

"Nakelai and Karaboruk,
Both are bad women with evil intent,
They know the hero doesn't believe what woman said,
So they tried and roped Tazbaymart in.
Presented him steeds and leather robes.
Treated him with naan and horse meat,
Served horse stomach and intestines,
Took out wine from cellar to serve,
Made him drunk finally.

"They made him excited,
Used their sweet words to cheat him,
Sometimes they talked till midnight,
They even let Tazbaymart live in their yurt.

"They made up many lies together,
Like Chuwak and Kanikai had an affair.
They beat this in his head gradually.
They tried their best to cast a bone,
Finally Manas kept at a distance from princess Kanikai.

"How can I be so stupid,
To rest on the frame of eagle Manas.
If I cherish evil designs,
How can I get my happiness?
If I have any doubt,
How can lion Manas let me off?
How can he act like now,
Let me sit on the gold seat?

"He can not resist the sow discord of those two big mouths,
Manas was so angry,

That he sent poor Madam Kanikai,
To the bitter spring in outskirts of Samurhan.

"Let her live in broken felt house,
Let her ride an old ox with broken nose and lame legs.
Let her live in sunny side in hot summer;
Let her move to the shady side in chilly winter.
Madam Kanikai baths her cheeks with tears,
It is hard for me to suggest the hero."

Heard what Chuwak said,
Almanbet felt deeply the blackness of human's heart;
He was persecuted by evil person too,
He was doubted to have an affair with Akeirkaichy.
"No matter where and when,
We should keep watch the iron clamp that hurt you.
Hero's threshold is made of cast iron,
It needs time to melt;
Not only lion Manas,
Even common people have dignity like mountain;
I need try to eliminate,
The misreading between the lion and the queen.
I need avoid the eyes of other people,
To visit and observe Kanikai first,
If she is really an excellent woman,
I must let them become reconciled."

Right at that night, Almanbet cast a spell,
Made a heavy snow in fall when grass turned yellow.

Leopard hero did not go home,
Also stationed there too.
When the lion woke up in the morning,
The earth was in endless whiteness.
The young people were all busy,
Rode on their horses with great excitement;
Ayikoler Manas was awe-inspiring,

Forty warriors rode on horses and started off.

No hunting dog stayed,
Carried hunting eagle on the arm,
Put firelock and arrows on shoulders,
Warriors chased each other bravely.
Led hero Almanbet,
They went ahead shoulder to shoulder.

It was the season for migrant bird to come,
Birds gathered on the lake surface,
Groups of wild chickens were in the woods,
Wild ducks and geese swam in the water,
Stretched their feathers ceaselessly.
Lion hero Manas,
Led them to hunt in remote mountain.

Uncle Bakay, lion Ayikoler,
Heroes Almanbet and Chuwak,
Forty warriors led by Kergel,
Brave eagle Sirak,
Hunted along the river happily.

Hunter who led hunting dogs,
Went ahead on slope,
Forty warriors led by Kergel,
All need stay there.

Lion's white falcon was in its prime age,
It felt annoyed on the frame for eight months,
If it got only one day free,
It would chase the prey with no stop.

The waves roared high in the lake,
Birds chirped so loudly that could shake the sky.
White falcon flew over the lake,
Startled countless wild ducks and geese;

It flew around the lake,
Then it drove the birds to the plain.
It kicked and swooped ceaselessly with its talons,
Countless feathers flew in the air,
Flocks of birds were kicked down on the ground.
Ducks could not fly out of the lake,
Asiatic ducks and crows could not escape,
Huangbo birds, pelicans and herons,
Darted along the lakeside in horror.
Games tied on saddle rope,
The hero was happy till night.

Warriors turned their horses round to the forest,
Wild deer and brown bears,
Flocks of animals,
Did not escape at all.
The hunting went from the morning to the night,
Games were too many to carry for every one.

It was the time to go back,
Hero Almanbet,
Gave his opinion,
To Erchywuler and Bozwuler:
"Your hunting eagle is sharp,
It caught so many preys.
It is a pity that more preys,
Float along the river away;
If those dead birds and animals float on the bank,
It is said that the good fortune will float away too.
Please go along the river valley,
To find all lost preys."
Two warriors went along the river together,
Almanbet followed them;
They galloped ahead all the way,
To Tikteri of Sazdang.

Erchywuler and Bozwuler,

Made their way upstream,
Suddenly four yurts came into their eyes,
Each of them was as steady as a mountain.
The appearance and pattern of the yurts
Was totally different from Kirgiz.

Erchywuler and Bozwuler,
Showed an expression of thinking on their face:
"We came here many times before,
We never see this.
Who we will meet today,
Is human being or celestial being?
Does the celestial being in heaven,
Move to our place here?"

Seeing what presented before their eyes,
Warriors stood still in a trance.
Bakay and hero Manas,
Almanbet and hero Chuwak,
Came in front of the yurts soon afterwards.

At this moment, Karahan's daughter Kanikai,
Stepped out of the yurt to them quickly.
She did not come up to welcome Bakay,
Did not greeted Almanbet for the first meet either,
However she walked straight ahead,
Held the halter of Manas' mount in her hand.

All people dismounted immediately,
Came to the door of the yurt.
She lifted the door curtain and let them in,
Showed her generosity and virtue.
Diluted cheese and baked naan were ready,
Tablecloth was spread to put all food on.

Almanbet's sharp eyes,
Always cast on the face of the eagle.

The hero was like a hunting eagle on the frame,
He showed an expression of shame on his face.
"As long as Khuda has mercy on you,
You will never lose your happiness.
The eagle, please drink tea!"
Almanbet urged him in time.

"If I refuse to eat anything,
He will misunderstand it."
The lion respected the feeling of Almanbet,
He stretched his hand to the basin on tablecloth.

In order to treat the guests,
Kanikai walked to the kitchen.
Before she left the yurt,
She put cushion for everyone,
Put pillow ready for everyone,
And put soft backrest beside everyone.
Languid lion Manas,
Fell asleep as soon as his head reached the pillow.

Delicious food,
Was ready soon in Kanikai's hands.
When she returned back the yurt,
The lion was still wandering in his dream.

Almanbet was like a bosom friend,
Meeting again after a long separation to Kanikai,
They were like life-long friends,
Had understood each other deeply.

"I have prepared simple food for you all."
Kanikai looked at Almanbet,
Almanbet woke Manas up,
Forty-four warriors enjoyed the delicious food.

Please look carefully,

How wise Almanbet was:
"Erchywuler, Bozwuler,
You two heroes start off now please.
Prepare sixty camels ready,
Four woolen ropes for each camel,
And made those bags ready.
For strong single-hump camels,
Nose rings should be made of brass,
You should come back before sunrise.
The rest heroes here,
Please gather in one yurt.
You should put the cushion and cover by yourselves,
Do not let Kanikai be too busy and tired."

Uncle Bakay and Almanbet,
Eagle Sirak and lion Chuwak,
Ayikoler Manas and Kanikai,
All stayed in that yurt without moving.

Almanbet sincerely talked to Manas,
Asked him for forgiveness.
Almanbet talked openly,
Let Chuwak explain sincerely,
To speak it out for counterview,
To wipe the doubts in the hero's heart away.

Almanbet, Chuwak, Sirak,
Were the powerful witnesses.
With the fair judge of uncle Bakay,
Manas dismissed the doubts in his heart.

They four walked out of the yurt,
Came to another yurt and slept.
Ayikoler and Kanikai,
Stayed in that yurt by themselves.
After six-year departure by the frame-up of evil people,
The couple reunited and loved each other as before.

Almanbet Married Arukai

Then the morning came quietly,
Almanbet got up early,
He observed the yurt of Kanikai carefully,
All her collections made him curious,
And added the respect to her at the same time.

He called those warriors,
Folded the felt carefully;
Each yurt,
Was carried by fifteen camels.
"Go on the journey day and night,
Climb over two big mountains,
Tomo and Dolan."

The camel group of sixty camels,
Led by Tazbaymart;
Sirak would be in charge of,
The security of camel group in journey.

Heroes returned Belsaz prairie,
Went back to the home of Jagurp;
Feet of hero Manas never stepped on,
The flower carpet in the yurts of Nakelai and Karaboruk.

Venerable Bakay,
Berita and Garmgirchy,
Qierdy and Bakdolet,
Were all waiting in the room,
Sage Koshaoyi came to discuss for the matter.

Jagurp said first,
Put his opinion forward:
"Almanbet served Ayidarhan,
For the whole ten years;
Instead of making the hero stay,
They expelled him out of the home.

"What happened at that time,
Who can tell it clearly?
Like the crest of a tree,
Like a jade hide inside of a rock.
He flies here from far away,
He is like a lark alighted on the branch.

"The poor wanderer,
You cannot see any evil intentions on him.
We just found a new place Talas,
We will move there following the order,
Our life will be comfortable in Talas;
When we get settled and arrange well,
One year will pass.
Elders, you are all here,
I need your opinion on how to arrange for Almanbet.

"He cannot be always single,
Where can we find a wife for him?
If you do not have courterview,
We need act as soon as possible.
Almanbet came to us,
We must make him be willing to stay."

As soon as Jagurp finished his words,
Manas stepped in,
Khatun accompanied him.
The elders said together:
"Thank you, Jagurp Bayi!
What you said is very pleasant to the ear.

Your words are like fat oil,
It is better to decide by yourself.
We help him get a wife,
We need comfort his broken heart.
If we have daughter,
We must let her marry hero Almanbet.

"Busy Kakan city,
Has beautiful landscape.
Ketay people live in a corner of the world,
The person ruling there is Barburchin.
Almanbet was right from there,
Left his families angrily.
He left alone,
With great hatred in his heart.
Because he admires lion Manas,
He came to Kirgiz for help.

"We should prepare right now,
Do not hesitate any more;
We need ask all around,
To see where the right beauty is?"
People present had lively conversation,
But no one mentioned where the beauty was.

Kanikai stood up right away,
Knelt down before the elders to salute,
Mother-in-law Qierdy smiled,
And listened to Kanikai's words carefully.
"My respected two mothers-in-law,
Your wisdom is our good fortune.
Your life is rich and happy,
Happiness is always with you.
Please listen to my suggestion.
Almanbet came from Kakan,
He was elbowed out by enemies to here.
Father thinks highly of him,

Prepares to hold wedding for him.

"How can a person come actively,
To recommend his own unmarried daughter?
Karakal Paker, Tukuman,
Six tribes like Baran, Shankay, Kalecha,
Were conquered by Mangat,
Jurjut, Juda swagger before all others,
People could not suffer the disaster,
Six tribes all came and asked for help.
Your child Ayikoler went to help,
He saved people from the suffering,
And killed fierce Badikoler.

"My uncle Shatmir,
Rescued a girl,
From the palace of Badikoler.
Uncle told me she is a daughter of Kirgiz,
He sent her to accompany me;
Her name is Arukai,
She becomes my intimate sister.

"If you calculate her age from that year,
She is right twenty-one years old this year.
Watch from every aspect,
She is alert as a lark.
It is not good I praise her too much by myself,
She has a moral quality several times better than me.
Buhara's Dur silk is magnificent.
It is said that all this silk,
Is all Arukai's conceit.
I made Kanidahay leather pants once,
I heard she made Erapis[①].
She makes everything in order,
She is proficient in all in the world."

① Erapis: Kirgiz language, it means splendid leather coat.

"But till now,
People still do not know her background.
It is just my suggestion,
Do we need get that girl marry Almanbet?
I have married more than eight years,
First two years I got infinite care;
Because of shameless servants' plots,
I suffered merciless cold treat.
I suffered for six years in wilderness,
And come back only a few days ago.

"I do not go back to my parents' home for eight years,
But I suffered the cold treat from my husband,
If people in my hometown know it,
They must sneer at me.
If father goes in person,
To discuss with my father Karahan face to face,
We must achieve what we wish,
Let Almanbet marry Arukai."

"The talking to the fence of the yurt,
Is to daughter-in-law;
The talking to the frame of skylight,
Is to son."
Just like this old saying,
Kanikai brought out her idea,
It seemed it was a talking to Qierdy,
It is actually to let others hear and remember clearly.
The comfortable words,
Rang in the ears of all present.

Jagurp Bayi was busy rushing,
He got up to put the saddle at dawn;
Invited augur Tolik,
Called fortune-teller Arakan who watched scapula,
He led these two companies,
Whipped their horses toward Buhara.

People knew the details,
Heard Jagurp Bayi was coming,
Put their heads together and discussed,
Their curiosity was aroused.
Asked which Ayinla Jagurp was living,
Sent people to watch outside of the door.

They worried if the guest came at night,
And they did not arrange well of the welcome.
In order to show the respect to Khan,
Colts and baby camels were ready;
Some chose fat and strong colts,
Some ready to start off prepared sheep.
People spread the news again and again,
Jagurp Bayi was father of lion Manas.

People in Buhara,
Prepared everything well and waited the guest.
Khan Jagurp came in person,
Showed Karahan got favor.

According to the appointed time,
Jagurp Bayi arrived at Karahan's palace.
Karahan sent out six servants,
To welcome Khan Jagurp's coming.

Servants held the Jagurp's mount,
Led him in the hall to receive honorable guests.
After two days' rest,
The tiredness of the journey was cleared away.

Jagurp Bayi went with head high and chest out,
His energetic-looking showed high spirit,
Waved his two empty sleeves,
Walked into Karahan's palace gaily.
He walked up with light pace,
To greet and salute Karahan.

Karahan raised his arrogant head,
Looked down his nose at Jagurp.

Jagurp Bayi had no time to mind this,
Said to Karahan in this way:
"I come from afar,
To meet you on purpose.
Please listen to me,
There is one thing I need discuss with you.

"Almanbet from Kakan,
Now becomes my valuable son.
His braveness is hard to be found on earth,
I also have good son like Manas.
My respected relative Karahan,
You have Arukai as bright as flowers,
If let me say the purpose of this visit,
It is for aspiring your daughter.

"I know you have secret agony in your heart,
Many things had annoyed you much;
I beg your forgiveness for your anger to me,
I have nothing else to say except this."

Karahan took an angry glance at him:
"Jagurp, you are so shameless!
I let my dear daughter Kanikai marry Manas,
But he abandoned my daughter mercilessly.
How can I let Arukai,
Marry that lackey fled from Ketay!"

Karahan went black in the face,
Swung his arms and walked out of the palace.
Jagurp Bayi was standing in a trance,
Too many thoughts went through his mind:
"It is really what we did in the wrong,
But how can I return without an approval?"

Jagurp thought over and over,
He returned the place where he lived:
"Tolik, please practice divination now,
Let us see it clearly,
Let us see, what is in front of us.
Arakan, please take out your scapula,
You do not have to hide, just tell me all truth."
Tolik began to divine,
Arakan took out his scapula.

From back of the yurt,
Girl's laughter and talking came out suddenly.
That was the laughter of Arukai,
She had already known Jagurp's purpose of visit:
"Jagurp Bayi is treated coldly,
I need take the initiative by myself.
If he is satisfied with me,
He must try his best to make the marriage come true.

"Famous Almanbet,
He is the descendant of a Khan,
He is so perfect that with no flaws,
He is really a well-known hero.
He is about twenty-eight years old this year,
He is a mountain peak never collapses."
When Akeirkaichy went back to her parents home,
She mentioned hero Almanbet to Arukai.

Arukai pretended to know nothing at the moment,
She led two personal maids like a reserved goddess,
Stopped laughing and kept serious,
Walked into the yurt Jagurp living.

Jagurp Bayi opened his eyes secretly,
Observed the girl carefully:
Her body was as slim as the pheasant,
An unbelievable beauty was in front of him.

Slim and graceful,
Long eyelash, bright and big eyes,
Kind and loyal,
She was like a peony among flowers.
She was clever in mind and skillful in hand,
She would make man have no cares at home,
On her,
People could not find any flaws.
Any man on earth married her,
He would be happy for the whole life without any regret.

All aspects satisfied Jagurp's regard,
Except one point made Jagurp doubt:
Her hips were flat and legs were long,
Did not know whether she could bear a child.

Arukai did not show her intention,
It seemed she came in to look for something,
Then she turned round and walked out quickly,
Went straight to the palace.

Jagurp was very satisfied with this girl,
He turned and asked these two augurs:
"Take out your divining equipment,
Divine for the future right now."

Tolik mumbled in his mouth,
Fiddled with pebbles in his hand happily;
Arakan watched the scapula in his hand,
He said to himself as a conversation was going:
"Father, you should be happy,
The person as your relative by marriage must be Karahan."

Tolik interrupted:
"If hold the wedding recently,
Karahan will not agree easily.
Please bring your venerable friends,

Please bring companies of your age;
Please do not come with empty hands,
Abundant gold and silver must be brought.

"Please follow the old customs,
Present enough betrothal gifts.
Tie a lucky white brocade flower on the forehead,
Of Almanbet's magical steed Kelejeran;
Ask Manas to visit his parents-in-law,
And Khatun visit her own parents.
Then the matter of Arukai's wedding,
Will be as easy as taking off a hat."

Arakan continued the talk immediately:
"My respectable father, please listen carefully,
Do not believe all that Tolik said.
He only knows half of the fate,
He is not capable to divine the other half.

"I see something from the scapula,
Please remember what I am saying clearly.
Tomorrow morning,
You go to the palace of Karahan.

"You should talk in full confidence,
And in loud voice.
Let him get ready to welcome guests,
You return back to your place in a few days,
Daughter Kanikai and son-in-law Manas,
Will come and visit in person.

"You said when Kanikai got married that year,
Countless livestock were driven as betrothal gift,
But the relative by marriage could not herd,
So numerous livestock died and lost.

"Single-hump camels with cleat will never get lost,

This time gold and silver should be presented.
You just tell them as long as Almanbet and Manas are alive,
All heroes on earth will droop sleeves and lower heads to take orders.
There should be a grand and magnificent wedding,
Then his accumulated anger will be expelled.
You talk like this and then return,
This is the wisest thing you need do."

Arakan urged Jagurp Khan,
To discuss the wedding on that day.
Heard Arakan's words,
Made sure about marrying Arukai;
With explanation from Tolik,
Got the result of divination,
Jagurp was unable to contain his excitement any longer,
He took Tolik with him went to the palace of Karahan.

Arukai and her two maids,
Came to Jagurp's yurt again;
Only Arakan was there,
He was feeding their mounts.

Arukai opened her eyes wide and watched,
Gold earrings with diamond were sparkling;
She revealed a charming smile,
Her voice was like the sound of silver-made Kumuz:
"You are unusual with energetic looking,
You are a strange man,
Your mount has flowing long mane,
Where on earth do you come from?
You do not belong to Buhara city,
Please tell in detail,
You come here after a long journey,
What do you come for?
We want to know the detailed information,
Please explain to us clearly.

"Which tribe do you belong to,
Where is your hometown,
Who rules people there,
Who is your ancestors?
Young man, do not hide anything,
Please tell everything in detail."

The company of Manas,
Never separated close friends,
If he could not answer it,
How could he be the company of Manas:
"Samurhan is where we are living,
Famous Nuoyi is the one from our clan;
Peerless hero Manas,
Is like the leader of argali.

"Pull lead and iron like pulling a dough,
Chuwak is our hero;
Sensible beacon light,
Is our elder Bakay.
Aji Bayi and Almanbet,
Are our Bek and Began,
In order to choose a wife for Almanbet,
We ride thousand miles for it.

"Jagurp Bayi is our father,
We are going to discuss the wedding with Karahan.
Kanikai is your elder sister,
We respect you as to our sister-in-law.

"My name is Arakan,
Do not doubt our sincerity.
If it is for a nobody,
For some trivial matters,
We will never waste our effort."

Clever Arukai,

Listened carefully what Arakan said,
She got to know her future husband,
Was right hero Almanbet.
Her trembling heart then calmed down,
She buried the seed of love in her heart.
Kept the expression of dignity and nobleness,
She did not show her true feeling immediately.
She used simple words to hide her excited feeling:
"Almanbet and Manas,
Are your support,
Their background is known by all.
Your true identity and purpose in coming,
We have known,
You are a sincere young man,
What you said has no omissions,
Your words are sincere and skillful."

Her bracelet encrusted with diamond,
Reflected the light of the sun;
Her apple-like charming face,
Had shy blush spread gradually.

Arukai turned round and left,
From the side of Arakan without a backward glance.

All listeners,
Please listen to the case of Jagurp.

In front of Karahan's magnificent palace,
People thronged and bustled with noise.
Jagurp Bayi led Tolik,
Came to the palace in full confidence.

Hundred officials of the palace came up,
And saluted him to show respect;
Karahan still ignored him completely,
Looked straightly as if no one was nearby.

Jagurp forced himself to come up,
Sat beside Karahan,
Began to complain:
"Karahan, I come and visit in person,
I have something to tell you:
Please let me return with satisfaction,
Do not make me disappointed.
I have put it forward the day before yesterday,
But you put all the mistakes on me.
You cared nothing to save my face,
However hurt me with a lot arrogant words.
For the happy marriage of our children,
I have to take on the mistakes.

" 'A person who has a daughter always acts.'
I will accept the lesson you gave me anyway.
The ancients said: 'in order to make things right,
Would rather get sticks on the back.'
For the marriage of my son,
No matter how bad your words are,
I will still show my respect to you.
For the face of us, the relatives by marriage,
I have endless patience today.

"You insulted Almanbet as lackey,
It is too sharp to ears.
A hero who can be counted on,
How cannot you see his value.

"Kanikai is still Khatun of Manas,
Our relation as relatives is still keeping.
If it is not of such relation,
How can I come and plead you?

"I am waiting for your clear response,
My relative, do not go too far.
Karahan, I once came for Kanikai,

But got your merciless sarcastic remarks;
You shot off your mouth with massive betrothal gifts,
You attempted to scare me away for no marriage.
Heard your harsh requirement,
I even did not frown;
According to our traditional customs,
I brought countless livestock and gold and silver,
But you thought I came to invade you.
I used my countless livestock,
Filled your boundless wilderness.
I came with betrothal gifts more than your requirement,
And lived in your palace.

"When a good boy grows up,
He is like wings to his father;
Satisfied daughter-in-law,
Is a good fortune for mother-in-law;
If your daughter grows beautiful,
That is the pride of your tribe.
To find a well matched son-in-law,
People gather together and hold the wedding,
The old custom passes down till now.

"Khan Ketay's son Almanbet,
Now becomes my child.
Arukai is wise and clever,
She is a pearl in your palm.
To speak frankly, my relative,
Such son-in-law is unique in heaven and on earth.

"When Almanbet was eighteen years old,
He split up with his hometown Tongsha.
Facing flood of enemies,
He showed his great power and braveness.
In the cut-throat battlefield,
He raised his head proudly and looked death calmly.
Kunwuer Bayi, Georoy and Niskara,

Muradiler, Wushan and Balanchu,
Strove with him for many years,
Shed countless blood and sweat.

"My son Manas had a dream,
Magical things appeared in his dream.
For the majesty of Almanbet,
He held grand ceremony.

"You should know you are also his father,
Aren't you father-in-law of Manas?
Whether you agree to marry your daughter or not,
I am going to return to my home soon.

"I will announce to my people,
We have let them become engaged formally.
Ninety days later,
I will come back to your palace.
Honorable daughter-in-law Kanikai,
Will come and visit you;
Generals led by Ayikoler Manas,
Will arrive at your Buhara city in streaming columns.

"Sixty single-hump camels will carry gold,
To your palace.
Khan Bakay, Garmgirchy and giant Berita,
Sage Koshaoyi and Eir Toshtuk will come too.

"Fork-beard Senchybek,
My Sart people will come too,
Hero Barsi of Jedigair,
Akunhan from Dayur Kanichy river,
And Kerkokuler from Ketmandobe mountain.
These famous heroes are rulers of one place,
They will whip their steeds,
Come and gather here in succession.

"Warrior Ageshi from lake Yisaik,
Has full of strong muscles all over his body,
Muzburchak from Alma-Ata,
Will all come to your palace.

"Magical steed Kelejeran from Ketay,
With bowl-size brocade flower on its forehead,
Will appear at your door.
Ninety camels,
Carry fried salt cakes and borsak,
And pieces of yellow crystal sugar,
Janbaciterk presented to sister-in-law,
With fresh meat of nine colts in it,
Also will be brought here.
Good wine brewed by pure wheat,
Has the pure flavor,
It is made specially by burning wheat straw,
In order to let your people taste,
Such wine will be sent here.

"Karahan, please make preparation,
This is my promise to you.
Kanikai is still my perfect daughter-in-law,
Why are you still worried?"

Jagurp said all these in one breath,
He was going to return with his excitement.
Karahan thought over and over,
Worry and annoyance were filling his heart.

When he heard the guests would come,
There were seven big names of Khans,
Like thunder piercing the ears.
Except these people,
Akunhan and Barsi were also well known.
Karahan told himself:
"If I keep angry on them,

It is too hard to predict the result.
If the good fortune goes,
It will never come back like a bird;
If I miss the great chance,
It is like poured food never comes back to your bowl;
If I make them unsatisfied and angry,
Do my fellows suffer from disaster?

"The Khans he mentioned just now,
Do they all accept his invitation?
Does Manas let me achieve what I wish?
If Khans all come,
Is there anything unexpected happen?
Since Koshaoyi and Bakay will be present,
They will not make me fall into dilemma."

Karahan made up his mind when he thought this,
Jagurp Bayi stood up too,
Shatimir kept silent,
Followed him tightly.

Jagurp Bayi raised his head proudly,
Gave out order to Arakan:
"Lead me the steed quickly!"
Arakan waited outside the door,
Led the steed and ran to him.
Tolik came with the saddle cushion and stirrup,
From the yurt where he was resting.

Shatimir was short of breath,
Followed tightly after Jagurp:
"Jagurp Bayi,
Brother Karahan has agreed the marriage,
Please go back at ease.
You said you will come back here in ninety days,
Is it a little hurry for this?

"I have a special request,
For the number of invited guests,
Please consider carefully again.
Please convey our greeting and respect,
To Kokcher of Ayidarhan.
He cannot say we do not tell him,
Make us regret and depress;
Do not let him reckon we do not invite him,
And think we refuse Akeirkaichy to come."

Jagurp was filled with joy,
His excitement was hard to hide.
He was like a naughty boy,
Embraced Shatimir tightly,
Repeated the words of appreciation:
"I knew your kindness,
I must convey the news to Kokcher.
I must bring Akeirkaichy,
To you to congratulate."

Shatimir invited the relative by marriage again,
Food was abundant, host was hospitable,
Showed the guest in hand by hand,
Helped the guest on the mount politely.
Everything was as Jagurp wished,
He whipped his steed forward fast.

Jagurp had no time to rest at night,
He returned by traveling day and night.
He was so excited,
Asked to butcher four mares,
Ordered to treat people in Ayinla,
When the evening came.

Akberita, Garmgirchy and Shihay,
Sensible Bakay, Tirkechy and Kanaat,
And swaggering Manas,

Bayi Jigert and Saramart,
Berdikai and Oshower,
Lion Almanbet and Chuwak,
Forty warriors led by Kergel,
They were all well-known heroes,
Jagurp Bayi invited them all,
Treated them with fresh horsemeat.

After the praying and blessing,
Folded Dastorhan tablecloth,
Bayi Jagurp raised his head proudly,
Made a dry cough to clear his throat,
Then began his unceasing flowing of words:
"The elder Bakay and others,
Please let me tell you one matter.
I specially went for a visitation recently,
I have something to explain to you.
Since you are all safe and sound,
What do I need to regret for?

"I have orally promised Karahan,
Return to his palace in ninety days.
My son Manas,
Please deliver letters to seven Khans right now.
Barsi and Akunhan,
Their names are still in my mind;
Do not make them wait too long and disappointed,
Do not care horses but whip them to run fast.

"Please send out messengers now,
To all directions in great hurry.
Almanbet is my son,
Is a colt I care very much.
When he comes from afar,
No one around him help him put harness in order;
When he was sick,
No one around him could take care of him;

When he was suffering,
No one around to cry for him;
Three meals a day and laundry,
No wife can help him do it.

"My poor son Almanbet,
I will take ninety-camel wedding food,
I will take sixty-camel gold, silver and jewelry.
I will tie the white brocade flower showed respect and luck,
On the forehead of Kelejeran.
I will choose pure-color maroon horse,
With same color and same size.
Must not make the leading steed solitary,
Let one thousand horses accompany it.

"Janbaciterk bag presented to sister-in-law of the bride,
Should be filled with fresh meat of nine colts.
Chuwak and Sirak, my children,
You two act as best men for Almanbet.

"Since Kanikai came to my family,
She never has complaint against anything.
Eight years passed quickly,
She never goes back to visit her parents.
Is there any hero not missing his family on earth?
Mother's grace is incomparable.
I am very grateful to this daughter-in-law,
She suffered from injustice here.
It is reasonable she goes with her husband,
Back to visit her parents shoulder to shoulder;
My son also should visit his parents-in-law,
It conforms to our rules of etiquette."

Heard the words from Jagurp Bayi,
Heroes present were all excited.
Heard the news of wedding in ninety days,
Guess and discussion was aroused among them,

Kirgiz people were having their blood burning,
Every one burst with great joy and was excited.

Those Khans got the invitation,
Who could refuse this invitation?
Each of them did according to their capacity,
Prepared the gifts which were carried by groups of camels.
Khans started off one after another,
Guests on the way to Buhara were in a continuous stream.

After Jagurp Bayi left,
Karahan commanded Buhara people,
Discussed the wedding several times,
And invited guests of all directions.

After the endless noisy arguments,
The process of the wedding was confirmed.
They listed the guests,
And sent messengers to nine Khans.

They put up rows of yurts,
Through the skylights were blue sky and white clouds,
Diverted running water with pipes.
"This is the best way,
We only can show respect to each other.
For Manas from Kara Kirgiz,
Even if with full of iron will,
Who is capable of competing him?

"Among heroes on the earth,
Manas is as powerful as the lion;
The diamond which came from afar,
Becomes his fellow and brother.
Chuwak and Sirak,
Are waving like an ocean.
Now he is in his prime age,
No one in the world can resist him.

The person who can be our support,
Only is son-in-law hero Manas.

"Manas took away the yaks,
Of Kunwuer Bayi and Georoy.
Neither of them dare resist him,
But kept silent dejectedly with their necks stretched.

"Manas has god Shayily's blessing,
And gods of Kirzir also accompany him.
Six Khans once resisted him,
Finally they still became his appendages.

"Buhara people should be happy,
These elites in the world,
Can be the son-in-law of us,
Good fortune has descended on us."

Buhara people were busy with wedding preparation,
They were profuse in praise when recalling the past wedding:

"When Kanikai got married,
Countless livestock thronged the streets;
The big Buhara city,
Was almost filled full;
Yellow earth rose, dust filled the air,
A disaster almost descended;
So many livestock,
Do they do the same like last time?

"Every one came to the wedding,
Karacha got material benefit.
They drove tens of thousands of same-colored colts,
To present to every guest attending the wedding.
Buhara has ten tribes,
No one went back with empty hands.
Do they still bring,

So much gold and silver this time?

"The dowry Karahan prepares for Arukai this time,
Is much more than that for Kanikai."
People put their heads together and discussed,
Gathered together in Buhara from all directions.

Jagurp Bayi came at the moment,
Young men rushed up and took the halters,
Tied their steeds on the posts one by one.
After nine giants got the news,
They all came with no one absent.

Nose ring was made of pure gold,
Leading rope made of silk,
Was on every camel,
Bright-colored tapestries were attractive.
Bells of dromedaries were sounding silvery,
Bags were filled with gold and silver.
One thousand steeds led by Kelejeran,
Were all strong and well-balanced in figure.

None of promised betrothal gifts was lacking,
People opened their curious eyes.
Janbaciterk bags were filled with nine colts meat,
They had no fault to let others discuss.

Senchybek from Hohan,
Brought gifts by thirty camels.
The gifts he presented to Manas,
Was convoyed by fifteen people carefully.
It could not be put aside,
Piled up like a mountain peak.
"Do not mind the gifts are too few, please kindly accept them,
These are the gifts from Hohan people."

Someone presented first class silk,

Someone led fat white horses,
Someone drove big and fat sheep,
Standing aside with sheep horn in the hand.
Gold was as much as scattered sand,
The door of the coffers could not be closed.
The old, the sick, orphans and widows,
Each of them got more than one thousand sheep.
Some put glittering gold in the pockets,
Some squeezed it in the boots,
And some hid it in their clothes.

The wedding was held for thirty days,
People were happy and excited,
No one quarreled,
No one made troubles.

Dowry Karahan presented,
Need two hundred camels to carry.
Married women like blossoming flowers,
Treated the bridegroom hospitably.

Almanbet, Chuwak and Sirak,
Were handsome and charming,
Some women glimpsed them,
They could not help praising them emotionally:

"Figures of these three heroes,
Are as high as three big trees;
Arukai finds a good husband,
It is the kindness of the god.
She can share the same bed with him,
She will have no regret if she dies!"
Facing what was happening in front of them,
Endless praises were going on.

Seeing Kelejeran tied on the post,
People of forty Khans,

Asked Karahan curiously about its master.
Karahan took this steed,
As a marriage gift to present,
To Khan Olus of Wurum.

Khan Timir's son Esmayler,
Was just five years old;
The princess of Khan Olus,
Was named Wurpark.
Magical steed Kelejeran,
Was presented by Karahan generously,
As a gift of engagement.
Being the engagement gift of the princess,
Showed the unusual value of Kelejeran.

Arukai made two leather robes,
"Erapis" was the pet name she gave to the robe.
The leather robes were not in the list of dowry,
Its value only could be known when it is worn.
The leather robes, more valuable than battle gown,
Such robes were hard to be found on earth.
One was presented to Chuwak,
It was the honor of the warrior.

In this grand wedding,
Almanbet saw Ayasi's uncle Ayidarhan,
In the first glance:
"Because Begans sowed discord,
I part from my friend Kokcher,
Please present this leather robe to Kokcher!"
He gave the other leather robe away.

Almanbet was so wise,
In the guests gathered wedding,
He showed his respect,
To Chuwak and Kokcher.
The Erapis leather robe of hero Chuwak,

Is a rare thing praised till today.

Ceremony held by Buhara,
Kanikai took care of it and gave orders.
"It is said that she was abandoned by Manas,
Is it nonsense?"
Seeing what happened in front of them,
Buhara people were all in great surprise.

Hero Manas visited parents-in-law,
Kanikai went back to meet her parents.
Her parents presented countless livestock,
Dromedaries with bags were totally one hundred.
The dowry of Arukai,
Also need two hundred camels to carry.

The camels of Manas were two hundred,
Khans presented gifts to show their respect.
Five hundred camels united one after one,
They did not go to Samurhan,
But marched toward Talas.

Kainikai and Arukai, two sisters,
Stayed together less than two years.
Then a splendid palace was built there,
No palace in the world could compare with it.
Best craftsmen were chosen,
The palace was painted in a riot of color.
From then on till today,
The good name of "Sirkorran" palace,
Is still fragrant on earth.

Let us put this aside,
Tell the story how Chinacha went beyond his depth,
And brought destruction on himself.