国家出版基金项目
NATIONAL PUBLICATION FOUNDATION

THE KIRGIZ'S HEROIC EPIC OF CHINA

ماناس

MANAS

BOOK FOUR

KENAINYM

Volume Two

Singing: Jusurp Mamay

Editing: Chinese Translation Committee of Manas

Translating: Linghuan Ma Xiao Lin Gregory·B·Meeks

XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING GROUP
XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING HOUSE

THE KIRGIZ'S HEROIC EPIC OF CHINA

ماناس

MANAS

BOOK FOUR

KENAINYM

Volume Two

Book One

Manas

Book Two

Semtay

Book Three

Seytek

Book Four

Kenainym

Book Five

Saiyit

Book Six

Aslebacha and Bekbacha

Book Seven

Sombilek

Book Eight

Chigetai

ISBN 978-7-228-18712-6

¥ 150 RMB (Two Volumes)

THE KIRGIZ'S HEROIC EPIC OF CHINA

مانا سس

MANAS

BOOK FOUR·KENAINYM

| Volume Two |

Singing: Jusurp Mamay
Editing: Chinese Translation Committee of Manas
Translating: Linghuan Ma Xiao Lin Gregory·B·Meeks

XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING GROUP
XINJIANG PEOPLE'S PUBLISHING HOUSE

Volume Two

Kenainym Confronted with Timirbek

Fifty Thousand Woldiers Expedited westward Along with Kenainym 523
Chounalep Invaded Kirgiz 547
Bagetebay Killed Musahan in Rage 567
Kenainym Defeated Timirbek 587

Timirbek and Chounalep Left No Means Untried and Died

Chounalep Escaped with Bare Life 615
Kenainym Killed Timirbek 635
Kirgiz Defeated the Enemy from Three Sides 653
Chounalep Died under the Spear 668
The Son of Qiktay and the Son of Chounalep Died for Revenge 681

Khorasan Allied with Isfan to Invade Kirgiz

Keslety Befell Disasters to Talas Folks 691
Talas Folks Expected for Kenainym's Triumphant Return 711
Kenainym Fought against Keslety for the First Time 721

Kirgiz Folks Defended Homeland in Joint Forces

Two Heroes Sacrificed in the First Battle against Khorasan 737
Kenainym Defeated the Allied Troops Three Criminals Fled for Lives 764

Salamart Betrayed and Was Killed

Dabbitay Raked up the Past to Instigate Salamart to Betray 787
Kenainym Killed Salamart with Rage 809

Kenainym defeated the Army of Khorasan again

Kenainym killed Keslety 835
Kenainym Speared the Giant of Khorasan Talana 855
Dabbitay was Defeated and Escaped 873

Dabbitay Attacked Talas in Stealth

Dabbitay Striked Talas Heroes rose to Resist 895
Exasperated Dabbitay Slaughtered Kirgiz People 916
Kenainym Came Back to Talas Dabbitay Escaped in Haste 930
Stray Dog Dabbitay Hatched a Larger Plot 953

Wicked Dabbitay Deserved more than Death

Invaded Talas again Dabbitay Escaped in panic after Defeat 969
Dabbitay Lured Autor to Send Troops to Invade Talas 987
Perverse Autor Worked His own Ruin 1006
Dabbitay Strook the Harem of Autor Six Princesses rose up in Resistance 1019
Culpable Dabbitay Lost His Life after Three Attacks on Talas 1029

Postscript 1047

Kenainym Confronted with Timirbek

Fifty Thousand Woldiers Expedited westward Along with Kenainym

Kenainym rested in situ for eight days,
Ordered his man to sound the drum and summon the public.
All the Kirgiz of Jetitor came to the camp,
On hearing the sound of drum.
They sat in the shape of ox horn,
And the Khan Kenainym came straight to the point:

"When the enemies invaded the village,
I protected all the villagers regardless of my own life.
The arbitrary Karamark,
Went against their words again and attacked us.
They are malicious and full of cunning tricks,
Intending on rope in every one of us at one haul of the net.
At night Karamark soldiers surrounded our village from all directions,
They wanted to slaughter all of us.

"I dispatched fifty relived men,
Ordered them to lead the soldier from seven sides,
Go to their homeland over night,
And hold all the crosses in case the enemies pass by.
They captured fifty captains of Karamark,
And surrounded and annihilated numourous enemies in parts.

"Neither did you ask nor listen to all this affair,
As if nothing has happened,
You kept inviting others to meals and enjoying kumiss.
Oh, my Kirgiz compatriots,
How leisure are you,
It is a habit developed over time.

"The arrogant Karamark Khan,
Lost many captains and heroes,
His thousands of soldiers were captured and surrendered.
Shalekmat died in Atebash,
Kekmat also lost his life in Talas.
Big ears Chounalep,
His heart is bleeding,
Indignant and sorrowful,
To revenge for the departed,
He led the troops to fight against us.

"And also the Timirbek,
The two men will launch attacks to our land together.
They have eighty thousand soldiers and horses at least,
Which one among you are capable of facing the attack?

"Confronting with the fierce enemy it will still be me to mount the steed,
I shall go on a punitive expedition to Dushanbe of Tajik.
The place is surrounded by isolated gobi,
Right there Chounalep and Timirbek are assembling their armies.

"I shall dash to Dushanbe directly,
And give Karamark Khan a lesson in my way.
I shall let those zombie-like Karamark soldiers,
Scamper off like frightened rats.

"After I set off from this place,
Do not panic,
Nor do you act seperately,
Wait for me till I return triumphantly."

Hearing the words of Kenainym,
All the Kirgiz with white felt caps replied in one voice:
"In our homeland Kankole and Talas,
The spirit of Manas will prove for you,
Early since childhood,

You have been fighting for the interests of Kirgiz folks.
For our well-beings,
You expedited east and west,
And fought north and south,
You swept away all obstacles,
And never lose one battle.

"Oh, our hawk,
For the Kirgiz folks,
You fought alone while charging forward.
To relive us from the sufferings,
You went through fire and water without begrudging your life.
All you did for Kirgiz,
We will always keep in our minds!

"Oh, our heroic khan,
Today you proclaimed,
That you will expedite to Dushanbe by yourself.
If you really will go alone,
If the multitudinous Kirgiz,
Will not accompany you,
It will become a joke to all others.
They will think the Kirgiz,
Never obey your orders.
When the rick is at the corner,
If we seek ease and comfort at home,
Will not God severely punish us?

"Oh, our Lion!
Even though you do not take us to the expedition,
We will still accompany you with great force.
Dushanbe is just close at hand,
To us it is no more than a horse-racing course.

"Tajik has been one of our tribe,
Taking Kirgiz as its prop.
Now it defects to Karamark,

Selling its soul and is ordered about.
If we are still lying at home,
Aloof and indifferent to all these happened,
Sneers will come throng to us.

"Karamarks will say:
'Arashi people have been split,
Kenainym is utterly isolated.
He has no power to manage Arashi.
Kirgiz also do not follow his command,
Kenainym fights alone,
For maintaining the honor of Manas.'"

The public of Jetitor,
All of them were galvanized.
The striplings offered themselves to join the fight,
They walked out of the crowd and stood to the other side.
The expanse meadow
Was filled with over forty thousand Kirgiz.

Kenainym thought to himself:
"It seems that the loyal folks will not allow,
if I go alone to the expedition,
I have no choice but to let them accompany."
After a discussion,
They decided to assemble and set out after ten days.

Kenainym made his order:
Release all the captured Karamark soldiers,
Let them back to their homes.
Kenainym repeated to the soldiers:
"Do not harass the folks on your way.
If any trouble is caused,
I will punish you,
With no mercy!"

The Karamarks were overjoyed,

And thrilled,
Chanting "Burhan" without stop.
Like wakeful ashy pigeons flying down to drink the river water,
They jumped on the horses.
The heels of their boots clashed with the horse bellies,
And they dashed all the way when fleeing away.

Many brave men applied to expedite,
One after another they signed up.
Gradually the troop expanded,
With great strength the soldiers and steeds were ready to take the road.

Bagetebay of Atbashi,
Did not seek ease and comfort.
Silently he sent someone to inquire about news in Talas,
Knowing that the Khan Kenainym was planning to lead a huge troop,
Knowing that Chounalep and Timirbek,
Were also going to lead the troops to expedite westward.

Bagetebay assembled five thousand five hundred soldiers,
And counted the date on which Kenainym arrived.
He and his troop waited at the way the former must pass,
Intending to join Kenainym's troops.

Ten days passed,
Kenainym with his forty thousand soldiers,
Began the expedition to Andijon.

On the way of marching,
Kenainym saw the banners and flags ahead were flaunting in the wind,
Crowd was gathering in front of him.
The tall and strong Bagetebay,
Led five thousand soldiers and steeds to join his troops.

Seeing Kenainym,
Bagetebay reported to the khan with great respect:
"I act alone without the permission of khan,
If there is anything inappropriate,
Please kindly give me an advice,
And forgive what I did!

"I sent someone to Talas to inqurie about news,
Knowing that you are going to send a punitive expedition to Karamark.
I shall go along with you.
I am willing to serve you,
To fight side by side with you,
Like a shadow I shall never leave you.

"I also heard that,
The Kirgiz in Talas,
Came forward on their own accord,
To accompany you on the way.
You agreed to lead them to the fight,
That is a far-sighted decision.

"Our Kirgiz compatriots,
Lying at home all day long.
They should be taken outside,
To see what a bloody battle is!
To see for the well-being of the folks,
How do those warriors fight to death!"

As soon as Bagetebay stopped,
Kenainym replied:
"It is the folks who have fed the hero,
Without the folks there will be no hero.
If a hero does not bleed and sweat and expedite,
His life will not be deemed completed.

"I let the public to choose on their own,

They did not want to stay at home,
Volunteered to set out along with me.
I saw you also brought many warriors,
To conquer the hand-sized Andijan,
How can we take all our troops?

"I have never been to Dushanbe,
While I know the local conditions and customs.
It is said that the region is narrow,
Sparsely populated,
All over the place are gobi and gravels,
Not even a blade of grass grows.
On such a badland,
How can Chounalep assemble his troops?

"We do not know in Khotan, Yarkant and Kashgar,
How do the people survive?
Lop Nur, Aziq and Arele,
Kirgiz living there,
What torment are they suffering?

"They were the folks of Jodar Khan,
Now these places are occupied by others,
What kind of humiliation they have been suffered?
It has not been long since they migrated there,
Are they living a tranquil life?

"The old Galgezak of Kapchaque Tribe,
Is in his seventies,
Since he learned how to mount a horse by grasping the mane,
He never experienced such a plight.
Our fellows are ravaged by enemies,
We can not lose time here,
Hurry up to keep forward with whip and spur through day and night."

After hearing the words of Kenainym,

The troops of Kirgiz set out with great vigor and strength.

The young striplings mounted the horse and shouted,
Leaping their steeds and racing each other on the grassland.
The martial horses burst with passion,
The steeds were well bred,
Unable to hold back the urge of galloping.
The riders wore Brum leather pants,
The loose trouser legs waved in the wind.

The war flags fluttered in the wind,
The crescent battleaxes glittered like snow and frost.
The sabres rattled in the scabbard,
The spears and steeds were numerous,
The warriors' belts inlaid with silver sparkled.

Wearing yellow Jargak pants of ram skin,
The striplings seemed crack all the more.
Their white felt caps were unbroken expanded,
Like flowers all over the mountains and plains.
When it rained,
They all have Kemantay raincoat to wear.
Kirgiz loving to sing,
Always hang ditties in their mouths.
They sang loudly during the march,
The singing resounded through heaven and earth.
Manasky was more sentimental than cuckoos,
Slightly he plucked the strings of Kumuz.
The tweedle of his Kumuz was clear and melodious,
Reverberating through the prairie with the vigorous singing.

People who played Polta were by no means rare,
The sound of Polta stroke a chord among the troops.
Many other men fluted,
The whistling rose and fell on the prairie,
Soldiers could not help listening.
Some people also played Kejak,

The wonderful music was smooth and attractive.

The Kumalak Chess were taken in the pouches,
Convenient to be carried with.
Many people liked to play Keshtie Chess,
The "Khan" was put in the middle when playing,
The "Chiefs" guarded on the four sides,
The "Soldiers" made up the matrix,
As fighting a great war the game needed wits and courage.

Some people liked to play Qiatlash Chess,
Whenever it was over meals,
Or during graze,
They could not miss any chance to play the chess,
Even competing all through the night.
Some others enjoyed Kanimdat Game,
Anyone who lost had to be drawn a black line on his brows.

The Kirgiz lonesome for long,
Did not seem as to join a life-or-death war,
But like visiting relatives and friends with endless joy.
Talking in a jovial mood all the way,
They were thoroughly delighted,
Arriving in Hohan with excitement.

Knowing the coming of Kenainym,
The khan of Hohan waited at the cross each day.

The troops were to quarter in Hohan,
The striplings requested to hang out.
Bagetebay ordered repeatedly:
"Four men shall be one group,
Each group shall not have over four men.
Do not dazzle your eyes be the prosperity of Bazar[①].
Think twice when you decide to buy,

① Bazar: Kirgiz term, street market.

We are in the march and going to fight,
We can not take excess stuff.
If our troops have to bear the purchased loads,
We may lose our lives on the battlefield!

"When coming across the aged,
Place both of your hands on your chests,
To show your respects with greetings.

"People are hurrying to and fro on the streets,
If someone bump into you,
No matter man or women, old or young,
Do not cast aspersions.

"Among the bustling crowds,
Do not dust off yourselves.
Do not molest women,
Do not go beyond yourselves on front of girls.
Do not imitate people with flat nose,
Do not ridicule bald heads.
Do not look straight into their eyes,
Do not damage your reputations.

"No matter you are young or old,
Think a little harder when encountering problems.
Especially the young lads,
Do keep my words in your minds."

After enjoining those soldiers,
Bagetebay allowed them to hang out.
And dispatched many elders,
To follow and supervise.

Bagetegai called in Hohan's chieftains,
Asking if they know,
The situation of Karamarks.

Kozubiek answered:
"Young Tore[1] Bagetebay,
Please listen to me with care.

"The hero Kenainym,
Has saved us from the hand of Kekmat,
From the iron cage of our enemy,
We can not forget his kindness at all times.

"Hearing the khan planned to conquer Karamark,
Expedite towards Dushanbe's enemies,
We acted immediately and without a stop.
We got rid of the lock of Karamark's iron net,
Along the willow woods at the edge of Kankole,
We hurried day in,
And day out,
Without dismounting,
We kept moving ahead,
Approaching to you as fast as we could.

"We also agreed to hold an assembly the next day,
All the fifty khans shall present.
We will mobilize all the folks to start off,
And tread down Karamark and Tajik.
We will let them scream under our iron heels,
We will let their tears fall like rain.

"But the only problem is the Big ears Chounalep,
Where is he at this moment?
We have got no reliable information yet.

"Samarkand, Tashkent, Namangan,
Six City and Andijan,
The folks except Isfan,
Have been living a peaceful life for years.

1 Tore: Kirgiz term, a high-ranking official.

The grain harvest has no place to be stored,
Even the cellars can not contain that huge amount,
Not a few foods are rotten in the yards.

"We welcome guests from afar with open arms,
With plenty of food to treat.
Our lambs are fat with tails about to fall apart,
They lie on the ground,
Feeling hard to stand on feet.
Out horses are fat with round hips,
They roll about on the ground,
Feeling hard to stand on feet.
Our camels are fat with dragging tails,
Feeling hard to prop up their plump bodies.

"Let us wait here for three days,
Tomorrow the khans shall arrive at this place,
Let us see if they have some ideas.
Our dispatched scouts should be back soon,
We shall listen to the news they bring to us.
And then,
We shall follow the order of our hero Kenainym Khan,
Without any reservation.

"Oh, hero Bagetebay,
Are you satisfied,
With our arrangement?"

Hearing the words of Kozubiek,
Kenainym frowned without a word,
While Bagetebay criticized him severely,
Telling him the reason:
"You have dispatched scouts to various regions,
This is the right thing you should do.
But summoning all the khans to this place,
This is not a proper deed.
Whenever it is and Wherever you are,

Visiting the Khan Kenainym is not difficult,
There is no need to raise such a big rumpus,
This is indeed an unnecessary move.

"You said that your food is too abundant to be stored,
You sang your own praises as if you are the richest.
You feel free and easy and drop your guard,
Unguarded to the invasion of enemies.

"When Kekmat invaded your land at the first place,
You allowed yourself to be seized without resistance,
Being subjected to all kinds of sufferings.
If the hero Kenainym did not rescue,
Your entrails would have been taken out,
Your eyes would have been dug out by Kekmat.

"Oh, my old brother Kozubiek!
If so you would never see the sun,
Besides yourself alone,
Your whole tribe would have been at risk.

"Before the storm brews,
The yurt shall be prevented from being blown down.
We should anticipate and think over,
On the basis of our talents.

"The presidial borders,
Should be patrolled every ten days.
You should patrol the borders in person,
Do not indulge in the life of pleasure and comfort.

"Do not forget the common saying that,
'Without tending,
Livestock will be lost,
Without feeding,
Wives will leave.'
The more wealth you have accumulated,

The eaSire your future life will be.
The beasts with bare four legs,
Sometimes will be plundered by enemies,
And sometimes will suffer from natural disasters.

"Kozubiek,
You shall remember to stock food,
So that the lives of folks can be assured.
You shall be on a firm footing,
Do not always show off.

"Once encountering any trouble,
People will not blame on others,
Except you.
Only being prepared for danger in times of safety can make you safe,
False pride will bring disasters.

"Your people supported you as a leader,
Choosing you as respected khan.
If they suffer from famine,
And seek food all around,
Your prestige will be ruined.

"We can stay in Hohan for two more days,
Wait for scouts to come back,
And get the accurate information.
We shall figure out the position and arrangement of Karamark,
And lead the troops to launch an attack at once."
When Bagetebay said that,
All those present did not utter a sound anymore.

Kenainym stayed in Hohan for five days,
Many people came to invite,
Planing to hold a feast of fifty thousand participators,
All those invitations were politely refused by Khan.
Kirgiz at this place,

Had only accepted one invitation to the banquet.
All the other beastd and lodging expenses,
Were paid by themselves.

Previously when Karamark had occupied this place,
Women and girls had been afraid of showing their faces,
Hiding in the dark cellars.
Now they obtained freedom,
Acted with ease,
Radiant with smiles.

When the set time came,
All the dispatched scouts returned.
Not a single courier was absent,
All of them came back safe and sound.

The lofty khans of all tribes,
Arrived with their steeds.
They paid a formal visit to the hero Kenainym,
Cheerful,
And jubilant.
Folks were eager to see Kenainym,
Striving to crowd around.
The khans merrily wandered about the streets,
With their heads high and bellies protruded.

The scouts reported in details,
About what they had saw and heard.
The scouts dispatched by Kozubiek,
Got the most detailed information:
"I went to Kashgar from this place,
And met the Old Jodar.
I told him how I started off from Kebzit Mountain,
How I went to Talas and back home.
I told him all I had experienced,
From beginning to the end.

"The Old Jodar was very satisfied,
He replied as follows:
'Kenainym is the fortune of our people,
I benefited a lot from talking with him.
Since that time,
I can clearly tell good from evil.
"'I dispatched some scouts to various places,
And got the information of Karamark,
They take Timirs, Aziq and Arele,
As their own courier stations.
They heavily levy the folks,
People there can not bear the load.

"'Karamarks also went to Lop Nur,
Crossing borders to plunder livestock,
And harassing the region almost day in and out.
Kirgiz folks suffered unspeakably.
As for the Karamarks heading for Khotan,
There has been no news yet from them.

"'In Yarkant and Kashgar,
Karamarks dispatch five hundred camels each day,
Carrying food eastward.
They said that they were delivering food to Tajik,
While the food were headed for Kuran.
They also send food to Dushanbe of Timirbek,
Day in and day out without intervals,
Almost looting all food in this place.'

"According to uncle Jodar,
Big ears Chounalep,
Has arrived in Dushanbe yesterday.

"Uncle Jodar also suggested:
'Along the route of the eastward delivery,
On the way to Jildez,
On the daban of Yechkerik,

On the ridges of Kezritay,
On the bank of Yarkant River,
We have to make an ambush in three sections.
Do not let them cross the interceptions with even half a step,
Capture their looted food and wealth.
As for the Karamarks who come to rob,
Wipe them out,
Kill them all.
With regards to expedite westward,
I dare not say much at the moment,
I am only afraid the giants Timirbek and Chounalep,
May attack our troops from both east and west sides.'

"Uncle Jodar asked me to come back,
And send his message,
To Khan Kenainym,
Without missing a single word.
Oh, khans,
You have heard,
All the information I have."

The lofty khans,
Had no ideas and kept silent.
Only the son of Galgezak, Bagetebay,
Cast a look at Kenainym,
He licked his lower lip.
And expressed his thought after pondering a while:
"If we are at the side of khans,
We will not be afraid of the death.
Rather than crowd here,
It is better to act separately.

"Khans of Namangan, Tashkent and Samarkand,
You should return as fast as you can.
Do not bide your time and deliberately dodge.
As for the roads of the Badak Mountain, Barik and Yarkant,
Block them and make an ambush.

Seize all their camels carrying the food,
With not a single one left.

"According to the news,
In Iran and Iraq,
The wilds are full of dead bodies of the starved.
Could the black-hearted Karamark,
Really mean to deliver the food to Timirbek,
Instead of selling them to those places?

"Once you capture the camels and food,
Transfer them to Kashgar as soon as you can.
Karamark has occupied that place,
For over an entire year time.
People in Khotan, Kashgar and Yarkant,
Are still having a rough time.
The captured food should be quickly sent to them,
To solve their present difficulties,

"As for uncle Jodar with long hair,
Brother Kozubiek, please look after him.
Do not let Karamarks levy there,
And keep that place safe.

"No matter how many Karamarks come,
All of them shall be released,
Without any blocks.
If they want to put up for the night,
Offer them accommodations in the town.
All in all do not startle them,
Make them feel free to come and go.

"Send the people knowing Karamark language,
To negotiate with them,
Ask them to stay for not too long,
And indicate them the direction of Timirbek troops.

"When they leave the crowds,
Up hill and down dale,
Block off all the mountain passes of the valleys,
Cut all their routes of retreat.
Seize their robes and steeds,
And send them under a unified guard.
Before receiving Khan's order,
Make them reclaim on the salt marshes.

"Brother Kozubiek,
You and uncle Jodar,
Shall be aware of the east.
Be observed and alert,
Do not let the enemies find our secret.
Even the stealing rats,
Shall not allowed to take away one wheat bran.

"As for Lop Nur and Khotan,
I have other arrangements,
You do not have to scout these regions.
We will dispatch some messengers,
To spread horrible rumors.
Karamarks hearing the rumors,
Shall not reassuringly guard the regions anymore.
They will go to Chounalep for shelter,
Gathering around to wait for our siege."
People all agreed on Bagetebay's words,
Thinking his plan was deliberate.

In Namangan, Tashkent and Samarkand,
Khans returned to their land,
And led the troops in person to lock all the crosses.
They detained all the passing Karamarks,
With no lamb,
Food,
Nor cloth left.
Those captured Karamarks,

Were escorted to the wilderness unable to be irrigated,
They were forced to dig canals,
And waited for the hero Kenainym's disposal.

The khan of Hohan, Kozubiek,
Led one hundred soldiers and horses,
To get to the place of Jodar in haste.
He delivered the words of Bagetebay,
Saying he had greatly benefited,
And could not agreed more.
While Jodar did not say a word,
Without explicit consent.

Kozubiek and Jodar,
Were both aged,
Not that energetic,
While they had a group of fierce soldiers,
Loyal and obedient to the khans,
Ready to rush to the battlefield.

In the hillside pasture of Kebzit,
They stayed for two days.
The two old men led the troop in person,
Spurred the horses on with great strength.

Seeing Khan Jodar expedite himself,
The folks eagerly joined the troop,
And arrived in Yarkant and Kashgar posthaste.
They drove away the Karamark invaders,
And recaptured Kashgar.

They locked up the chieftains of Karamark,
In the basements already dug.
And made the ordinary Karamark soldiers,
Constantly wave the heavy Kantuman[①] in the day,

① Kantuman: It's a kind of farm tool that is made of iron plate, which it has around head.

And locked by chains at night.

Bagetebay then dispatched four hundred soldiers and steeds,
Asking them to patrol separately on four roads.
Along the bank of Yarkant River,
At the cross of Kezritay,
On the ridges of Yechkerik,
At the entrances of Aziq and Arele,
They discharged all the Karamarks,
Who wanted to pass through.

Karamarks did not know the secret,
Allied with the people of Kangayi,
And dispatched many caravansaries,
While no one could come back.
Those Karamarks intended to flee,
Were beheaded with no mercy.

At the same time,
Bagetebay dispatched two young warriors,
To each region of Lop Nur and Khotan.
They were astute and undaunted,
Savvy and competent.
They were courageous and wise,
Resourceful and brave.
They were well-known sharpshooters,
No shot missed its target,
They were unfearing heroes,
Unflinching before the death.

The warriors quietly came in front of the native khans,
Telling them what happened outside.
The khans were closely guarded by Karamark,
Scared all day long and wetting their pants.
Hearing the report of the messengers,
Their hearts were all stirred,
Their vigor was recovered.

All the warriors mastered Karamark language,
They forged a letter.
They disguised themselves,
Looked the same as Karamarks.
They came in front of the Karamark chieftain:
"We were dispatched by Chounalep,
Trekked all the way to come to you.
We can not stay for long,
And shall be back in no time."
Then they delivered the forged letter,
The Karamarks read the letter in great care.

"Shalekmat and Kekmat,
Were all defeated and killed.
The damned Kirgiz,
Have been approaching from all sides,
Arousing our fiery wrath.
I have Timirbek as the ally,
I shall fight against Kirgiz to the death.
Rather than scatter and wait for the death,
You had better gather to my side,
Unite as one and fight a bloody war."

After reading the forged letter from Chounalep,
The Karamarks discussed together,
They decided to transfer to Chounalep.
Accumulating power and waiting for the chance,
They decided to fight against Kirgiz to the end.

Just at this moment,
The native khans summoned their folks,
To pursue and attack the fled Karamarks.
All the folks in Lop Nur and Khotan,
Started off and stirred themselves.
Not a single Karamark was let off,
All the plundered stuff was intercepted.

Among the Karamarks in Kangayi,
There were five heroes.
From the Karamark folks,
They recruited ten thousand men and steeds.
Then from the people of Kangayi,
They recruited five thousand soldiers.
Led by these five heroes,
The fifteen thousand men began to expedite.
They were to cooperate with Chounalep,
To launch an attack to Kirgiz.

Getting to know the news,
The Kirgiz rapidly sent the message to Kozubiek and Jodar:
"The five heroes of Kangayi,
Summoned fifteen thousand soldiers and steeds from four tribes,
To support Chounalep's troops."

Knowing the enemies' intelligence,
Kozubiek and Jodar,
Plotted to lure the enemies in deep:
"Induce them to climb over Qimkant,
And make an ambush in Keptash,
Annihilate the enemies deep in the mountain."

There was a Karamark been a khan in Kashgar,
In his name,
Kirgiz forged a letter:
"No matter who came from the east,
Do not traverse from Kashgar and Yarkant.
Keep away from the interceptions of the folks,
You will be safe only if you climb over the Qimkant Mountain.
Receiving the letter,
The Karamarks led the troops deep into the Qimkant Mountain.

In front of them was the ice peak daban,
Behind their backs was the Keptash Alp,

The Kirgiz made an ambush to cut the road.
Before and behind the Karamark troop,
Suddenly a rain of bullets came,
For half a day a fierce war lasted.

A small group of Karamark slid over the sight of the heroes,
Fleeing into the deep mountain.
In the mountain lived fifty Sart households,
They were tricked by Karamark's gold,
Deceived by the embroidered dresses,
And hid thirty Karamarks in their home.
Since then these Karamarks never returned,
They married Sart women,
Their children were called "Sart-Karamark".
This name has its source,
"Sart-Karamark" lived there and prospered ever since.

Kozubiek and Jodar,
Set a line of defense in Kashgar.
The Karamarks from east and west,
Unspeakably suffered and were stuck in a plight.

Bagetebay made an order,
To drive away the remnant troops of Shalekmat.
Those troops fled back to the yellow hirst of Kuran,
Illustrating their experience.
Hearing these,
Karamarks dare not sleep with face pointing westwards.

The folks of Kekmat,
Also came to take refuge.
Since then people came to realize,
That Kekmat and Shalekmat,
Have already died one after the other.

Let us put these to one side,
And sing about the fierce battle between Kenainym and Chounalep.

Chounalep Invaded Kirgiz

The flippant Chounalep,
Said these to Timirbek:
"Hey,
My tiger,
Timirbek,
My reliable friend.
If you do not mind,
I have an idea to share with you.
Kekmat and Shalekmat,
Were not heard from until this days,
And had lost contacts with us.

"Yellow-faced Death Kenainym,
Is just like a vital bullet.
Khorasan and Isfan,
Are expected to dispatch their troops.

"Dabbitay of Khorasan,
Has hatred to Kirgiz in his heart.
Although simmering with rage,
He is always unwilling to disclose it.
It is said that he has many powerful giants,
Heroic, brave and battlewise,
Never retreat even they may be beheaded.
They are preeminent,
And highly skilled.

"We have one hundred camels in Khorasan,
Carrying superior tea leaves and pure silk satins.

I shall send these wealth,
To invite Dabbitay to assist our fight.

"Dabbitay may not come in person,
He might dispatch Keslety to support us.
Only in this way,
Can we defeat Yellow-faced Death Kenainym.

"In those days when Manas fought against Afghan,
The fierce Acha Khan dispatched troops to support Afghan,
And was bloodily beaten by Manas,
Close to being killed.

"At the place where Karamarks live,
We have one hundred and eighty camels,
There livestock bestrew the hirst and meadow.
Once we destroy Kirgiz,
The livestock way more than that,
Will be caught at ease.
Now we send out one hundred camels,
In the future we will get paid back many times over."

Hearing the words of Chounalep,
The sniffy Timirbek,
Popped his eyes out:
"Ouy,
Choun the Giant,
My friend,
I have seen countless wise men,
None of them is as astute as you.

"Birds have to have tails to land,
And wings to fly.
We will not suffer losses to present our gifts,
And will take the Kirgiz's livestock also as gifts.
Choun the Giant,
If you agree,

Let us take Karakalepak, Tukuman.
And Jedigair contiguous to Khorasan,
Also as gifts to send.
And the livestock in those places,
We can drive them here,
And send to them as well.

"Once both of us write the letter,
And make them arrive in haste,
Without any delay,
Without hesitation Dabbitay will definitely come.
For I am his uncle and he is my nephew,
We have a close tie of blood.

"Acha Khan of Isfan,
Invincible and magnificent,
It is said his mother is a Tajik.
I will show my tender akin feeling,
And you shall write about the presentation of camels in details.

"I presume that after receiving the letter,
The two khans will rapidly take an action.
No one can resist to get Kirgiz's wealth and livestock,
With no effort.

"Since Manas was born,
Kirgiz have accumulated the most wealth in the world.
They always uniformly guard the wealth,
Never letting one part of it run off.

"Is there any one Kirgiz,
Who has never charged forward?
Is there any Kirgiz sabre,
That has never been dyed red?
Is there any valley,
That has never witnessed their fight,
And passed through by rivers of blood?

Is there any willow on the hills,
That has no trace of being hacked?
Is there any jagged highland,
That has never been trodden by their hooves?

"Since Manas was born,
Is there anyone who opposed Kirgiz,
Has the chance to survive?
Is there any tribe which fought against Kirgiz,
Has ever won for once?
I have never seen this before,
Nor have I heard such a thing,
Could there be such a miracle in this world?

"Now there is no time to delay,
Our iron heels shall tread on the Kirgia land,
They shall be at their wits' end,
They shall have a dead end,
They shall tearfully suffer a crushing defeat.

"We have to quickly send a letter at once,
To Khorasan and Isfan.
We can not act as slaves,
And suffer in deep anxiety as before.

"Kekmat and Shalekmat,
Are probably torturing Kirgiz.
The leisured Kirgiz,
Are at a loss and falling into panic.
We have to take this good chance,
To add insult to their injuries."

Timirbek and Chounalep,
Wrote letters as khan.
And to Khorasan and Isfan,
Respectively dispatched five messengers.

They suggested in the letters:
"Respected two khans,
If you agree to dispatch the armies,
Please directly march to Talas.
Let us tread down Talas,
And utterly beat up Kirgiz,
Making them as our slaves.
Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
The camels sent to your yards,
Along with all those carried cargoes,
Are all gifts to you two.
After we loot Talas,
Most of the spoils,
Will belong to you as well.

"Since Manas was born,
The Kirgiz wealth was only increased but never lost,
The tribe has accumulated countless golds.
We fairly divide them into three parts,
Each of you will get on part,
And become an owner of all those treasures.

"You will freely chooze the most beautiful women of Kirgiz,
You will marry pretties with thimbles;
You will get male camels with plump humps,
You will make them carry golds;
You will obtain fine horses,
You will never see a ripple even to place a bowl of water on their heads;
You will gain the satins exclusively for belles,
You will obtain the steeds that have won in matches;
You will capture hounds that never let preys slip,
You will have falcons with strong wings.
Besides,
You will take over Karakalepak, Tukuman,
And also Jedigair."

They also generously allotted,
The spoils they had not yet got,
And wrote down their wills as follows:
"Do not be mad at us,
For Timirbek and Choun the Giant,
Went to the expedition without informing you about these.

"We know that to Kirgiz,
You have your bosoms filled with rage.
In those years when Manas conquered Afghan,
The latter was supported by the adjacent Isfan,
Those Isfan who had gone to support,
Were almost wiped out by Kirgiz.

"Since Kirgiz mounted battle steeds,
They have seized hereditary land at the edge of Khorasan.
Baran and Shankay,
Jurdget and Juda,
Also fell in their hands.
Every place trodden by Kirgiz hooves,
Was harassed and ruined.

"They started a feud with Karamark and Khitan,
And also with Kangayi,
They expedited far to Begin to launch a fight.

"Since Kenainym mounted his steed to march,
There was no peace for the whole west.
You should know more than we do,
About what happened to the west.

"Oh, respected khans,
If you agree to dispatch troops,
Please appoint the date of departure,
And let our messengers to bring the letter back.
Before hearing from you,
We will bide our time.

"Six City and Andijan,
Namangan, Tashkent, Samarkand,
We have the hero Kekmat staying there.
Katmandob and Jaz,
Naryn, Chumgale, Atebash,
We have Shalekmat guarding there.
Aziq and Arele,
The vast Kashgar,
And fertile Yarkant,
Are all in our hands.
In Khotan and Lop Nur,
We have many troops stationing there.
We blocked all the roads,
No one can go to support Kirgiz."

They finished the letters,
Ordered attendants to send them to Khorasan and Isfan,
Proud and self-satisfied,
They forgot everything in their joy,
Planning to massively attack Talas.

The hero Kenainym,
Led forty-five thousand five hundred soldiers and steeds,
To cross lofty mountains,
And trudge towards Dushanbe.
The way to Andijan,
Was the untraversed torrid dessert,
They had to go through the Shabirhan River Valley,
And then climb over the steep daban.

Even the inexhaustible steeds,
Felt the strain and fell down by the road,
Even the unyielding men,
Were whacked and unable to hold on.
But all the Kigiz soldiers and steeds in the march,
Advanced bravely,

No one worried and no one was afraid.

There was only five-day course,
From Dushanbe,
They suddenly came across,
Forty patrolling enemies on the way.

Bagetebay was alert all the way,
Intending to find a passerby to make inquiries.
Abruptly he discovered some figures in the distance,
And left the troops to inspect by the road.

The patrolling forty enemies,
Also discovered the figures at this side.
They all raised their clairroyants,
And inspected carefully,
With fixed eyes.
They saw a man approaching on steed,
Although his appearance was still vague,
His stature was surely stalwart and his steed lofty,
Awe-inspiring,
And nerve-wracking.

The patrols gabbled:
"We only heard of the hero Kenainym,
While never see himself.
The comer's steed lofty as a mountain,
Is a genuine divine steed.
It can be easily seen from its walks,
That even a nine-day course,
Will not make it sweat and exhausted.

"The rider must be a doughty warrior,
We shall hide here and inspect in great care.
If he intends to offend,
We shall use the Ochigur Gun to shot him down."

The moves of the enemies,
Were all seen by Bagetebay.
As a herd looking for his camels,
He disappeared and reappeared again like smoke.
He walked forward along the gully,
Not giving the chance for the enemies to flee,
All of a sudden he appeared in front of them.

The forty enemies were struck with panic,
Holding on to their steeds at once.
Bagetebay gave a shout,
Harshly stopped them from mounting the horses and fleeing

Some men lost their wits,
Thinking that their doomsday had come,
Losing their spirits and sadly cried.
Some men winked and make signs,
To grasp the bow and arrow to prepare for the shoot.

Seeing this,
Bagetebay shouted with great rage:
"Drop the bows in your hands,
Drop the arrows on your backs,
If anyone dares to resist,
He will never return home alive!"

Hearing the reproach of Bagetebay,
The enemies were afraid of his stateliness.
The cowards shook their legs and almost fell down,
The bold ones were also half dead with fright.
The stateliness of Bagetebay,
Forced the enemy soldiers to look at each other and dare not speak,
Afraid of being beheaded.

"Which one is your chief,
Come out and come close.
Speak your own language,

Let me figure out which tribe you are from."

One of the men came forward,
And gave a salute to Bagetebay.

"Where did you come from?
Where are you going?
I can understand your language,
Tell me,
What do you want?"
Bagetebay asked.

The enemy dare not stay silent,
And began to reply with a hubbub of voices:
"We came from the west,
We live in Dushanbe,
That is the homeland of Tajik.
We are all Karamarks,
Dispatched by Choun the Giant to patrol this place.
If you have any problems,
Please ask the people of Tajik."

"Oh,
So all of you,
Are respectively from Tajik and Karamark.
Even though you do not disclose,
I have already figure out the fact,
Without making an effort."

He asked those Tajiks and Karamarks,
To elect one person from each tribe to reply:
"Chounalep and Timirbek,
What are they doing at present?
Tell the truth,
And only in this way you can keep your lives.
As for what you have seen and heard,
You still have to report to them after you get back."

Among the Tajiks,
There was a man named Qinebay,
Flippant and glib,
Holding a grudge against Karamark.

At the beginning in that local place,
Qinebay had been from a huge family.
Since Chounalep's arrival,
His stature went downhill to a slave.
Thus he nursed hatred in his heart,
While just had no chance to wreak.
Now he stood out to answer:

"We are patrolling on the road,
By the order of our khan.
Who are you if I may ask?
I want to know your identity as well.
No matter you believe or not,
I will tell you the truth and my anguish."

Bagetebay stated outright:
"Now that you want to know who I am,
I will tell you straightforward,
We are Kirgiz from Talas.
We are to send a punitive expedition against Chounalep and Timirbek,
Giving them a death warrant.
Kekmat and Shalekmat,
Were all defeated by us,
Our sabres are all stained with their blood.
Aziq, Arele and Lop Nur,
Kashgar, Yarkant and Khotan,
Were all back to our hands.

"Karamarks and people of Kangayi,
Acted in collusion with each other.
Five heroes led fifteen thousand soldiers and steeds,

Launched a surprise attack to us.
But were ambushed on the Qimkant Daban,
And were captured altogether with their weapons.

"We are on the way to Dushanbe,
Hero Kenainym is our khan,
My name is Bagetebay,
And I am his pathfinder,
We led troops to expedite forward,
So that Chounalep does not need to court death that far to Talas.

"Big ears Chounalep,
Timirbek of Tajik,
I will see where they can hide,
And where they can flee?
All the mountain passes were already blocked by us.

"If they have the courage to compete,
Then we are waiting for the combat.
I dare they to have such guts,
They have no way to survive from our hands.
If they over-confidently withstand,
Their blood must be drained,
And their lives should be lost.

"If Timirbek folds his hands for capture,
We can spare him a life.
If he is dead set on following Karamark,
We will tread down Dushanbe.

"You shall keep my words in your mind,
And tell your chief,
From beginning to end.
I have finished my words,
Now you shall tell me your stories."

"I have known your name as Bagetebay,

Now I want to tell you the situation of this place.
Chounalep and Timirbek,
Are speeding up preparations,
And busy in contacting all the tribes.

"Dabbitay of Khorasan,
Has a feud against Kirgiz.
Karamark sent him one hundred camels,
Along with carried tea leaves and satins.
And Karakalepak, Tukuman,
Baran, Shankay, and Juda,
Were also taken as the remuneration for their marching troops.

"If Dabbitay does not come in person,
Keslety will be dipatched to lead the troops,
He is a peerless hero,
No one will survive from his hand.
Kenainym and you, Bagetebay,
Have no capacity of fighting against him.

"Acha Khan of Isfan,
Heroic without equal in strength.
In Khorasan, Afghan and Hindistan,
He is praised by all the folks there.
To draw Acha Khan over to his side,
Chounalep prepared for him one hundred and eighty camels,
Along with all the carried cargoes.

"Besides, Timirbek and Acha Khan,
Also have the blood tie of uncle and nephew.
Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Are bound to come to support.
Kirgiz,
Please be heedful to my advice,
Do not parade your abilities,
Hurry up to withdraw your troops.

"They have dispatched five messengers to each of the two places,
Allotting a time of three to five days.
Now a few days have passed,
The messengers are soon to be back."
In no hurry and unreserved,
Qinebay told the truth from beginning to end.

Bagetebay gathered the patrols,
In case they would flee,
He twined their bridles around the horses' necks,
Tied them on each back of their steeds,
Let Qinebay host the poling in his hands,
To escort and drive them back.

Bagetebay escorted all the captured soldiers and horses,
In front of Kenainym.
And reported all the intelligence he got,
In all perspectives,
With no detail left.
Kenainym listened in patience,
And make a clear decision:
"Bagetebay,
Just handle it as you wish!"
He authorized Bagetebay.

The son of Galgezak, Bagetebay,
Adaptable and full of resources.
He found a watery place,
And let the troops station beside.
The captives,
Were fettered by handcuffs and shackles.

The troops stayed there for two days,
He dispatched some smart youths,
To every intersection,
To patrol the roads towards Khorasan and Isfan.

The messengers of Chounalep and Timirbek,
Came back from afar one after the other,
All the letters were all sent to him in two days.

The messengers confessed all they had known:
"After the winter ends,
The reinforcements will come in the next spring."

Another day passed,
Bagetebay released the messengers and patrols,
Asked them to faithfully report,
What they had seen and heard to their khan.

The released messengers and patrols,
Wet with sweat,
As sparrows,
They chirped and fled away.

The arrogant Qinebay,
Reported after his return as follows:
"Chounalep and Timirbek Khan,
You are under the smiles of fortunes,
And your fame spreads far and wide.
I, Qinebay, am your servant,
I flaunted your dignities in front of their faces.
When hearing your names,
They even did not dare to keep marching forward.

"They stationed there for two days,
And came across the messengers on their way back.
Hearing the information about reinforcements,
They were in a mortal funk,
Trembling with fear.
They felt that they came to seek their dooms,
And staggered there with worried looks.
Kirgiz were afraid and timid,
Otherwise they would not have behaved like this.

"We often heard previously,
Of all rumors about Kenainym.
It is said that wherever Kenainym is,
He is all by himself
Always fights alone.
He is called the Yellow-faced Death,
Defeating his rivals and triumphantly returning for many times.

"This time he allied with Bagetebay,
Leading forty-five thousand five hundred soldiers and horses,
The morale of the troops were sinking lower.

"Only Bagetebay was perky,
Commanding and dispatching the troops.
Kenainym was like a walking dead,
Depressed and remained silent."

Chounalep suddenly got angry:
"Ouy,
Qinebay,
You are so glib-tongued,
And smooth-spoken,
You can whistle for cheating me with your lies.
You are cunning as a fox,
Today do not imagine that you can survive from my hands!
You talked intimately with Bagetebay,
Not only telling the patrolling things,
But also revealing all the secrets about messengers,
What is your purpose of doing these?

"Kirgiz has no talent,
Afraid of marching forward after hearing my name.
After getting your information,
Bagetebay full of cunning tricks,
Sent people to guard the crossings for two days,
Intercepted and captured our messengers to interrogate.

Knowing that their departure is in next spring,
Their frightened hearts were soothed for a little bit.

"Shalekmat and Kekmat,
Always acted without scheming,
And died together as a result.
Only a man of crafty plan like me,
Will land on his own feet,
On the safe side."

After Chounalep finished those words,
He ordered someone to torture and interrogate Qinebay,
Making Qinebay suffer a lot and cry out grievances.
At this moment,
The people fled from Khotan and Lop Nur,
Came in front of them.
Chounalep and Timirbek,
Were utterly discomfited when seeing those men.

The brave man Qinebay seized the chance to speak:
"Chounalep,
I forget one thing,
I have other words for you:
Karamarks and people of Kangayi,
Formed a troop of fifteen thousand men,
Led by five heroes,
To come to support you.
Jodar and Kozubiek,
Besieged them in the Qimkant Mountain.

"I want to ask you and Timirbek:
Had ever the descendants of Manas,
Kirgiz with white felt caps,
Felt afraid in front of the enemies?

"Choun the Giant,
You just came to Tajik for taking refuge,

Do not become too rampant.
You asked Khorasan for support,
You begged Isfan for help.
Do not shout and get up on your hind legs,
Make it clear how weak you are."

To save face of Chounalep,
Timirbek ferociously rushed over,
Putting on an act of whipping Qinebay for few times.

When the dusk came,
Qinebay pretended to flee to his homeland,
While went to Kirgiz for shelter,
And met with Bagetebay.
The neighbors of Qinebay,
One hundred and eighty households in total.
They all followed Qinebay,
To flee to Tashkurgan.
Since then,
They lived there, worked and prospered in peace,
Never turning back to Dushanbe.

Big ears Chounalep,
Summoned Timirbek to discuss:
"I am a Kangayi,
And you are a Tajik,
Kenainym coming to invade,
Is our common enemy.

"Kenainym has gone to the ends of mountains and rivers,
Occupying all the lands he has stepped.
Kenainym waved his sabre and spear,
Conquering all the tribes he has met.
Kenainym killed without batting an eyelid,
Draining the rivals' blood.
Kenainym enslaved the folks,
Killing all the heroes daring to resist.

"Shalekmat with Iron armor,
Kekmat with bronze breastplate,
Were killed in succession by him in battlefields.
As long as we fight side by side,
Kenainym won't return his home alive.
People in Isfan and Khorasan,
Will not either let Kirgiz off.

"We have to fight alone against him,
We have to fight at close quarters.
If we can stab him down to the ground,
Kirgiz with white felt caps will be carved up by us,
And become our lifelong slaves.

"If we are defeated by him,
We shall plot against him with our intelligence.
Make an ambush at mountain passes,
And cast the iron net to capture them in.
If all our plots fail,
We shall flee to Khorasan and Isfan."

Timirbek refuted when hearing those words:
"Big ears Choun,
How dare you such wishfully think and wildly talk,
Your thoughts are beyond comprehension.
Even before fiercely fighting against rivals,
You have been thinking about fleeing.
I will summon up all my courage,
I will never escape,
And I will bravely launch attacks,
I will tie up Kenainym and drag him back home.

"Me and Kirgiz,
Originally had no reason to meet on the battlefield.
As the people of Arashi from time immemorial,
The sixty tribes lived in harmony on good terms.

The complexion at present,
Was made by you who led me in front of death.
But do not think that I am regretted,
A real man never goes back on his words.

"If I die in Kirgiz's hands,
Kirgiz and Tajik,
Will start an irreconcilable feud.
There will be endless further troubles,
Until the end of the world.
To revenge,
The two tribes will kill each other with no cease.

"My only child Kokbrew,
Will mount a horse to expedite once growing up,
Bounding to meet them on the battlefield.
Kirgiz will also not act without leader,
Neither will they hang back.
Once the two tribes assort to arms,
Innocent folks will bleed,
The Arashi Tribe will have a fratricidal fight.

"Regret is forbidden at this point,
Let us stop to talk nonsense.
Prepare the weapons,
Equip the steeds,
In case falling down from the bridles during the fight."
Seeing Choun not willing to accept unpleasant advice,
Timirbek turned around and left.

Big ears Chounalep lost his head,
Yawned with the mouth opening wide,
As an upset male camel in a despondent mood.

Bagetebay Killed Musahan in Rage

The next day at dawn,
When the sky turned bright,
Big ears Chounalep,
Woke the soldiers up.
He ordered someone to sound the drum,
The deafening tum wafted across the air.
He then ordered someone to raise the war flag,
Shouted to urge the soldiers to mount the steeds.
The Death held his collars tight,
To eagerly drag the soldiers to their dooms.

The beast Big ears Choun,
Led all the Karamarks to turn out in full force.
The flag waved high in the wind,
The drum thundered loud.
Timirbek led the Tajiks,
To act alone as one troop.

Among the troop of Chounalep,
There were three heroes,
One of them was named Badra,
With whom no one dared to measure his strength.
Over the armor he wore a red cloak,
Urging his horse forward to the battlefield.

Suyin led by Bagetebay,
Shined with exploits.
He mounted his steed to meet the attack,
With radiant smile on his face.

Badra and suyin met,
The battlefield resounded with shouts,
The two heroes attacked with spears.

The beast Badra,
Shouted as thunder.
Rushed towards Suyin with all his strength.
Suyin had experienced several fights,
Not taking Badra into his account.

Facing with the dashing Badra,
Hero Suyin bristled with wrath.
His face clouded,
Sometimes he was like raging flame,
And sometimes like rainstorm weeping the earth.
Hero Suyin was full of resources,
In front of the powerful enemy he fought firmly,
Grappling regardless of his own life.

The two heroes attacked and warded,
Neither giving way to each other in the first round.
They moved about freely and quickly on the battlefield,
Trying to figure out the rival's flaws.
They made the earthshaking shouts,
Chasing each other at all costs.

The two steeds chosen out of hundreds,
Raised a roll of dust behinds.
The heroes glared at each other,
With eyes opening wide,
They seized the chance for combat,
And poked the spears.

Both of them were covered with iron armor without any crack,
Would not be punctured by the spearhead.
The battleax fell on the helmet,
Rebounding aside as crashing a rock.

They fought fiercely till nightfall,
And returned to the camps of their own.
Except for the patrols and scouts,
All of the others slept for the next day's war.

The sky turned bright in the east,
The war drum was sounded and the horn was blown,
The soldiers mounted the horses towards the battlefield.
Badra was ahead of the troupe,
Shouted the name of "Burhan",
And urged his steed towards the battlefield.

His behaved with more insolence than yesterday,
Riding a yellow horse with white mane,
The horsetail was knotted and raised upwards.
Outside of his armor,
He wore the Olebok Robe.
A sharp spear was held in his hand,
Shining with blades at the end.
He was regardless of his own life,
And tied it to a mane.

Warrior Suyin came to meet the attack,
In the face of vicious Karamark,
He was calm and fearless.
He shouted the name of Manas,
The sound was enough to wake the dead.
His yellow steed,
Raised the dust under its feet,
Making it as clouds pervading the sky.

Hero Suyin launched a fierce attack,
Badra urged his steed to meet the charge,
He warded off Suyin's spear.
The battle-scarred hero Suyin,
Like an agile hawk,
Kept away from the frontage of Badra,

Detoured to his one side.
Suyin rushed to the mountain-like Badra,
Piercing the spear towards his waist.
The spear impaled the armor,
The robe was stabbed into pieces,
Badra's kidney was penetrated.

The wound of Badra's waist split,
Blood spattered from the rip.
Darkness came over this Karamark,
Seized with panic,
He could not have another fight.

Hero Suyin rushed forward again,
Stabbed down this tall beast,
From his horse's back.
Badra as mountains fall,
Suddenly punched into the dirt.

Among Karamarks there was another hero Tatan,
Braver and stronger than Badra.
Big ears Chounalep sang the praises of him a lot,
Claiming they were well matched in strength,
And praising him for his skills in fights.

This arrogant idiot,
Walked on air after being praised,
And marched forward like a moving hill.
He shook his fist to punch a rock,
The hard rock turned into pieces at once.

He held a spear with blood to enter the field,
Even Kenainym could feel his momentum.
Tatan was cold as piercing wind,
Even his eyes projected cold light.
His mount was his swift horse,
Like a bird flying in the sky.

The stones stepped by the hoods,
Turned into powder and swirled in the air.
He shouted the name of Kangayi,
Rushing towards Suyin bravely.

The Kirgiz Tiger Suyin,
As firm as a rock,
Remained calm in the face of the enemy.
He shouted the name of Manas,
And waved the angular spear to meet the attack.
The spears collided together,
Attacks were launched one after another.
One was a Karamark warrior,
The other is a Kirgiz hero,
The two men met on the battlefield.
Neither of them was willing to give way.
From noon to the dusk,
Neither of them slackened off,
And neither of them ceased to fight.

The two men rolled up their sleeves,
Not sparing their whole efforts,
To clutch each other's clothes,
They wrestled, pushed and shoved,
Like twisted roots and gnarled branches,
In a tangle,
Neither could get the upper hand.
Olebok Robe and armor,
Were torn into pieces.

Hero Suyin's courage mounted as the battle progressed,
He hold the battleax up and chopped towards the rival,
While overexerted himself,
The handle of the axe suddenly cracked.
When he grasped his spear,
The vicious rival grasped the chance.

This dark-minded Karamark,
Used his bloody sharp spear,
To stab Suyin's ribs.
Wounds appear on Suyin's waist,
His feet left the stirrup and his hip off the saddle,
The man fell down from the yellow steed's back.

Seeing Hero Suyin falling from the horse,
Bagetebay had no time to delay,
He urged the dark brown horse with buckle-like ears,
As rapid as to compete with whirlwind,
As fierce as flash floods after melted snow and ice,
Before Tatan could approach,
He saved wounded Suyin out of risk.

Letting others to rescue the failed rival,
Is a shame to a hero.
Tatan boiled with anger,
This bastard urged his horse to march fast,
Chasing close after Bagetebay.

Bagetebay escorted Suyin,
Back to the camp of Kirgiz.
Turning his horse's head to meet the attack,
He was filled with rage,
With darkened face.
The enemies even dare not look up at,
Bagetebay's angry face.

Facing with Tatan rushing over,
He swiftly warded off the coming spear.
How many giants like Tatan,
Had been killed by Bagetebay.
Bagetebay was furious at this point,
He aimed his spear at Tatan's back,
And launched a straight attack,
Tatan fell from the horseback.

Kangayi's warrior Saraph,
Came to rescue in haste.
To save Tatan's head,
Saraph rushed straight towards Bagetebay.

Tatan wanted to mount his horse once again,
Ran his eyes over in panic.
He was too weak to set feet on stirrups,
Only clung his chest to the horseback.
He shouted in despair,
The bald head without helmet staggered without stop.
Bagetebay aimed at Tatan's neck,
That was his soft spot.
Bagetebay aimed at Tatan's sturdy neck,
Stabbed his spear along with his horse's pushfulness.
The neck was crushed into over thirty pieces,
Tatan was killed outright.
Saraph coming for rescue,
Could not help Tatan cheat death.
Saraph bridled up,
Turned his horse's head around to catch up Bagetebay.
He summoned all his strength to launch an attack,
Stabbed Bagetebay down from horseback.

Atker was an Alban① Kirgiz,
Ajibayi was his root,
And he was the offspring of Kirgiz.
He whipped his horse to gallop forward in haste,
Desperate to save Bagetebay,
Using his spear to grapple with mountain-like Saraph.
He rushed over to stab once,
And turned around to attack once.

The mountain-like Saraph,

① Alban: Name of a region.

Turned around,
Angry with staring eyes.
He adjusted the spear in his hand,
And poked towards Hero Atker.
Stabbed by Saraph's spear,
Atker fell off his saddle.

The son of Galgezak Bagetebay,
Took no account of his own life.
He remounted his dark brown steed,
Rushed towards Saraph and launched another attack.

Atker seized the chance,
Mounted his gray horse,
Rushed back without looking back.

Bagetebay and Saraph fought for another time,
Both of them were bent on ending each other's life.
Waving the bloody spear,
They spared no effort to kill and fight.
The field was enveloped in dust,
The dust raised into the sky.
It was dark all around though there was no cloud.
If you looked around,
You could see nothing but a blur.

Saraph and Bagetebay pitched the battle,
The shouts resounded through the sky.
Spears clashed together,
Spurted the sparks to brighten the ground.
They shouted and exerted all their strength,
Waved their spears to stab each other.

The end of the spears hit the chest plates,
And made a noise.
The battleaxes stabbed the helmets,
And gave out the cracking sound.

They waved sabres to chop each other,
Showing the momentum of giant dragons,
Smoke spread all over the field.
They sometimes turned to right,
Some other times turned to left,
Adept to war tactics,
Highly skilled.
The armors were tattered,
Robes were torn into pieces.
The iron chains tied around the waist,
Were all snapped off.
The reticular armors,
Were cut a slit,
No longer complete.

The beaten ground cracked,
Rocks were stepped into pieces.
The fragile limestones under feet,
Had already turned into dust and drifted away.
The splendens grown for years were uprooted,
The giant stones underground were stepped to outcrop.
The center of the battlefield turned into basin,
And the lifted mud piled into a mountain.
Hills were razed to the ground,
Even the land under feet suffered,
Let alone the both sides at war.

The nightfall came,
It was getting dark,
The two sides recalled their troops.
And met each other in the battlefield next morning,
Bagetebay and Saraph kept fighting.
The two men attacked each other at one sight,
Neither of them said a word.
They waved spears and launched attacks,
Shouted furiously and rushed over.

They held up iron hammers to hardly thump,
Aimed at each other's upper head.
The two heroes wore the armors and war robes,
Their courage mounted as the battle progressed.
The soldiers of both sides were all brave men,
Even them watched the fight with mouths gaped.

Saraph seized a chance to launch an attack,
His shout shook the ground.
This roaring Karamark,
Held the spear and stung Bagetebay.
Bagetebay fell from the horseback,
Plunged into the mud.

The observant Atker,
Whipped the horse to rush towards Saraph.
Bagetebay was rescued and rode back.
Saraph was outraged,
And sent unbearable plagues,
He stabbed Atker rushing over,
Down from the horseback.

In the camp of Kirgiz,
There was a hero called Barta.
Whoever dared to compete with him,
Was overwhelmed with no exception.
Whoever dared to incur hatred,
Was defeated with no exception.
Barta had experienced many wars,
No one could overcome him.

Barta usually wore two war robes,
He can beat five thousand soldiers by himself.
He is tall and stout,
Able to attract others' sights from afar.

He urged the steed to rush over,
Held the sharp spear tight.
He shouted the name of Manas high,
Towards mountain-like Saraph,
Launch the attack without thinking twice.

Saraph did not let Barta hit him,
Warded off the spear to the sky.
To Barta Saraph launched a counterattack,
And his spear did not miss the target.

The arrogant Barta,
Fell down from the horseback into the mud.
Before Barta could stand up,
Saraph hit him once again.
Hero Barta under the hooves,
His heart was pierced and blood spurted.

Tabald was a Kirgiz hero,
He lived on the Talas grassland,
And was the chieftain of six thousand households.
He was heartbreaking after seeing Barta died,
And urged his horse forwardly to fight against Saraph.
He thought Saraph had no ability,
Riding his purplish red horse,
The dense horsetail was raised upwards,
He rushed forward regardless of everything.

The war became extremely violent at this moment,
The rampant Karamark Saraph,
Stained with Barta's blood all over his body,
He urged his horse to meet Tabald's attack,
Planning to stab him as stabbing Barta.

Tabald and Saraph were at the war,
The two men simmered with rage,
Itched to drain each other's blood.

They waved the spears in their hands,
Competed with each other regardless of their lives.
As the forgers at dusk,
Their faces were ghastly pale,
Dusty and miry.

Before the rival's spear touching the target,
Each of them warded off the attack.
They roared loud,
Even the black ground cracked.

When it came to afternoon,
Saraph suddenly stabbed Tabald,
From the horseback.
In order to save Tabald,
Kutukay urged his horse to arrive.

Once Kutukay arrived,
Saraph stabbed him down.
Tabald and Kutukay,
Died one after another.

Among the troop of Bagetebay,
There was a hero named Choulfanbay.
He was strong,
Full of vigor,
Like the burning fire.
His was between thirty-five and forty,
Just at the height of his youth.
He had slender legs,
Wide chest,
Characteristic of a powerful giant.

Choulfanbay's fine steed,
Was called Kalasur.
Now hero Choulfanbay,

Shouted the name of Manas.
Praying to the spirits of the brave departed for blessing his descendants,
And bravely launched an attack towards his rival.

Saraph did not take Choulfanbay into account,
And still imagined to treat him as treat Tabald, Kutukay and Atker,
To kill him with one stab.

Before Saraph could exert his spear,
Choulfanbay whipped his horse to brush past.
Without looking back,
Choulfanbay urged his horse to rush straight forward.
Saraph turned around and chased behind,
Seizing the chance to stab his spear.

From its early years,
Kalasur had been trained by Choulfanbay.
While been pulled by the bridle,
It would get down at once.
When the spear came,
Choulfanbay pulled the bridle hard,
Kalasur steed got down on the spot.

Slave[1] Saraph aggressively rushed over ,
Missed the target however.
Before he could turn the horse around,
Choulfanbay chased close behind.
Saraph's helmet,
Had fallen behind his head.

Choulfanbay aimed at the braid at the back of Saraph's head,
Without hesitation he waved his sword.
Raising his sword and chopping towards the rival's ear,
Saraph's skull suddenly flied off.

1 Slave: The "slave" here indicates the hatred, hostility and curse to Saraph.

Choulfanbay's braveness,
Won the praises by all the soldiers.

It was in the same day,
That Choulfanbay killed five enemies besides Saraph.
When the midday came,
Choulfanbay reversed the war situation.

Karamark suffered great losses,
No one would like to meet the attack.
Tajik dispatched Musahan,
He ranked only second to Timirbek,
As a prominent hero of Tajik.

Choulfanbay and Musahan,
Was stranger to each other,
And met for the first time.
All the warriors daring to fight,
Would leave their lives behind.
They started the fight face to face,
Benting on defeating each other,
No one wanted to be stabbed down.
They respectively shouted the names of Manas and Timir,
Their heroic postures,
Dazzled the onlookers.
They were like devils,
Murderous with furious faces.

Musahan roared,
Shouting the name of Timirbek.
Their voices continued,
As if to destroy all the lives.

Choulfanbay was fearless,
Staring at Musahan.
He exerted all his strength,

To shout the name of Manas,
He aimed his speart at Musahan,
And rushed over to launch a fierce attack.

Musahan was agile and quick,
Warded off Choulfanbay's spear.
Waited till Choulfanbay brushed past,
To hardly attack his soft spot.

Choulfanbay's armor,
Was impaled by sharp spear.
A large stream of blood,
Spurted from his waist.

The dark brown horse carried Choulfanbay,
Turned around and galloped away.
Like a flying bird he ran,
Like a flying stone he swirled.
Before Musahan could catch up,
Choulfanbay returned to the camp of Kirgiz.

Hero Suyin returned to the battlefield after bounding up his wound,
And caught the bridle of the steed.
Suyin escorted Choulfanbay back to the camp,
And turned around to stop Musahan by his spear.

Musahan and Suyin pitched a battle,
The two heroes were engaged in a fierce fight.
Fearless in front of death,
The spears were broken in the war,
Sabres turned into pieces,
Battleaxes were split into half.

They stepped on stirrups with bodies upright,
Tearing each other with bare hands.
When they were almost dragged down by each other,
They held the horse mane tight in their hands.

The two sides could not fight with bare hands,
Simultaneously making gestures to the people of their sides,
Soldiers sent them new weapons.

The two sides went into battle once again,
Ceaselessly urged their steeds to rush over.

Soldiers watching the fight,
Were dazzled by the hot battle.
Who would die and who would survive,
It was hard to predict.

Two heroes' sweat streamed down their backs,
The sweat ran down like raindrops.
Even holding the collars of each other,
They could not drag the rival down.
The buttons were all torn off,
The armors and chest plate,
Were mangled into pieces from stitches.
Their bodies had nothing to cover,
Naked in the air.

Suyin's beard waved in the wind,
He clenched his teeth and braced himself.
He exerted all his strength,
Exhausted to lift his arms.
He could not grasp his weapons,
Drenched in sweat.

While Musahan was in spirits,
Full of energy.
Musahan clearly understand,
That Suyin was worn out.

Musahan thought to himself:
"Except Bagetebay,
No one can match me in strength.

Suyin has wobbled his stubbed stature,
To fight against me for a few days,
I will chop his head off like killing a goat.
Bagetebay will rushed over at that time,
And I will kill them all at once.
I will humiliate Kenainym to his face,
And revenge for my departed brothers."
Musahan was puffed up with pride,
Imaginary thinking in this way.

Seeing Suyin was exhausted,
And could not ward off the coming spear.
Musahan was swollen with arrogance,
Commandingly poked his spear.
Warrior Suyin was stabbed,
Falling off from horseback.

Bagetebay was worried upon seeing this:
"Suyin is worn out and beaten to the ground,
Brutal Musahan is going to chop off his head.
Suyin can by no means die,
I have to rescue at top speed."

Bagetebay whipped the button-eared steed,
The dark brown horse stringed its ears and started to gallop.
Bagetebay held the sharp spear in his hand,
Stopped Musahan and forgot his own,
Rescued Suyin back to the tent.
Bagetebay shouted the name of Manas,
And launched a fierce attack to Musahan.

Musahan could not kill Suyin,
Suddenly he was controlled by the random heart.
Furious Bagetebay,
Exerted all his strength,
Gave a punch from Musahan's back.
Mountain-like Musahan,

Fell down from the saddle with face towards the ground.

It was at this moment,
Timirbek stopped standing by.
His livid steed,
Was also a preeminent horse.

He urged the livid steed to gallop,
As if to trod down everything in the world,
Fierce and tough.
His spear whistled,
The Dovlebas war drum behind him,
Sounded in the wind.
The hapless man,
Rushed towards Bagetebay.

Bagetebay as the son of Galgezak,
Was like the Death who could not wait.
He did not take Timirbek's attack into account,
And was regardless of his own life as well,
Staring fixedly at Musahan on the ground.

Musahan was struggling to stand up,
Bagetebay's wolf tongue spear,
Impaled Musahan's back.

Timirbek arrived just then,
Stabbed his spear to Bagetebay.
The button-eared steed was astute,
Eluded to the other side upon seeing the risk,
Timirbek's spear poked into the sky.

When Timirbek brushed past,
Bagetebay caught the chance,
He urged the dark brown steed,
The end of his spear was aimed at Timirbek's shoulder.
The spear stabbed the shoulder of Timirbek,

It was a pity that he was not stabbed down to the ground.

Timirbek did not even care,
He deemed Bagetebay,
Even inferior to his trouser legs.
He thought Bagetebay was not that great,
Not taking him into account at all.

Timirbek was the chieftain of Tajik,
Bold and powerful,
Of no ordinary talent.
He was an hero without equal in strength.
His heroic spirit was extraordinary.

He turned the horse's head and met the attack,
Malevolently poked his spear,
The spears clashed together,
Warding off each other for a million times.

Timirbek thought to himself:
"I am disgraced,
To fight against an impudent teen,
My dignity is being diminished."

Timirbek boiled with rage upon thinking this,
He whipped his horse and charged forward:
"I will devour you even if you are a hill,
I will not let you go,
I will stab you down all at once!"

Bagetebay turned around to meet the attack,
Timirbek warded off the spear.
He bent on devouring Bagetebay,
His frontal assault was even more rampant.

He urged the horse to rush with body close to the ground,
And severely stabbed his spear to Bagetebay.

The teen Bagetebay was unlucky to suffer an attack,
His haunch was stabbed, blood dripped.
He bent over and got off the saddle,
Supporting himself with two hands on the ground.

Kenainym went to rescue upon seeing this,
It was just in one second,
That he arrived.
He caught Bagetebay's shoulder,
And dragged him on the saddle of button-eared steed:
"Go ahead,
Hero,
Hurry up,
Return to the Kirgiz camp to evade this plight."
Kenainym saved Bagetebay,
Turned around to fight against Timirbek.

Kenainym Defeated Timirbek

Timirbek shouted:
"I was about to chop off that teen's head,
And drain his blood,
Where did you come from to intercept me,
Tell me your name,
Timirbek does not kill nobodies!"

"Kenainym is my name,
I am the Death Sarik,
I came from Kankole Talas.

"You should know the bygones:
Duo Khan occupied Aranick in those years,
Banus Khan took up Tashkent,
Arokai settled in Naryn,
Shawruk ruled Sari Arka,
Dolias Khan seized Talas,
And changed its name to Kotuliac.
Big Kontoy embezzled Kokoydon,
Badikole looted Chambura Daban,
Kaleday gobbled up Kashgar.
All these people were descendants of Moguls.

"In Badak, Barik, Buhara,
Baghdad and Egypt area,
They did whatever they want,
Guilty of the most heinous crimes.
All the splendid and warm robes were worn by them,
All the beautiful girls were chosen by them,

All the fine horses were ridden by them,
While all their expenditures were assumed by the folks.

"Sixty tribes' Arashi,
Karakalepak, Tukuman people,
Tajik and Kalcha people,
As well as other people from many tribes,
Fell apart because of Karamarks,
Descending to their slaves and suffering all kinds of bitterness.
All the year around,
They forced the folks to cut firewood and to serve with no stop.
Hearing that Hero Manas was about to be born in Kirgiz,
They slit Kirgiz women's bellies,
Vicious and cruel.

"Since Manas has grown,
Since Hero Manas was successful,
Khans got rid off the slavery of Karamark,
Gained freedom, liberation and equality,
And reigned the folks of their own.

"Badak, Balik and Dushanbe,
All the Tajik was in your hand.
But now you listen to the assignment of Karamarks,
Waving sabre to fight against us.

"Why you are obsessed with this?
It is indeed contrary to reasons.
You should think about the past,
How did you become a chieftain of the tribe.
If you are fooled today,
It is hard to tell your fate.

Now you want to be an enemy of Kirgiz,
To fight against Kirgiz.
Kenainym will not concede,
You should understand my advice,

Do not act rashly on any account,
Or your death is at hand."

Timirbek is the chieftain of Tajik,
He breathed heavily with wide-open nares:
"You said Manas gave Tajik equality,
I can not understand your words.
Is there anyone having seen,
That Tajik has left their homes?

"Is there anyone except Tajik,
Who has ever conquered Baghdak Mountain,
As well as the high mountains and lofty hills of Barik and Dushanbe?

"Is there anyone who has protected Tajik?
It was ourselves who lived and worked in peace.
Is there anyone who keeps observing this world?
There are so many changes and constant disputes.
Do you know more than I do?
Are you more informed than me?
Am I such silly as confound black and white?
Was I cheated by Karamark to fail to distinguish right from wrong?

"Kenainym,
If you are frightened by Karamark,
If you are half dead with fright.
Do not hide,
And do not praise Manas to embolden yourself.

"Those shouting Karamarks,
I can make them not march towards Talas,
I can let you be safe and sound,
I can let them withdraw and return."

Timirbek was arrogant,
Teaching Kenainym a lesson from beginning to the end.
He thought he dominated in a locality,

And made such a crazy speech.
Hero Kenainym did not get angry after hearing his words,
And tried to persuade him in a few words:
"Timirbek,
Listen to me,
The reason why you call yourselves Tajik,
Is not senseless.
Do you know when Tajik became an independent tribe,
And when you became an hero seeking supremacy?

"Your young people at the beginning,
Were forced to till the land,
Others could only gather ears of wheat to make a living.
Your children and women,
Were forced to cut firewood in the hills and on the slopes.
While your aged,
Had no firewood to burn and were frozen to death.

"Timirbek,
Do not forget,
Karamark's insult.
Do you Tajik understand,
Who gave you independence and liberty?

"Manas was only eleven in those days,
And was supported as the Khan at that time.
He defeated Kontoy,
And stabbed Shawruk down from horseback.
Kaleday, Arokai fled in panic,
Duo Khan got away over night,
And went to Sokso and Sotoy for shelter,
Banus Khan was routed and ran away,
Fled to Tashkent to take refuge.
Tajik had no status at all in those days,
Let alone honor and fame.

"Kaerlif as the son of Nasala,

Acted in collusion with Banus Khan.
Hero Manas went on a punitive expedition,
Killed Banus Khan in one cut.
He defeated Badikole,
Captured Kaleday of Kashgar,
Stripped off his robe,
And chopped his head off.

"From Barkol and Altay in the east,
To Khotan and Kashgar in the south,
Including Six City and Andijan,
Namangan, Barik, Buhara,
All the places within Chambura,
Were all in the control of Manas.
Aykoler Lion was kind and generous,
To every tribe's khan and their descendants,
He fairly assigned territories.

"He gave flourish orchards and splendid palaces,
Along with the cities to those khans.
He gave Tajik independence,
Manas gave Baghdak Mountain, Barik, Dushanbe,
To your grandfather Tabildy with his own hands.
Since then,
You had all these cities and lands.
Now you should know who,
Has given you the privilege of charging these places!

"Timirbek,
You shall change your mind at once,
You shall listen to my advice!
If you Tajik never change until death,
If you turn away and refuse my honest words,
And go your own way straight to the grave,
I will help you to shorten your way.
I will break your waist,
I will let your folks scream with tears,

I will let you lose your dignity.
I will trod down your cities,
And let the retroactive Karamark and Tajik,
Enter the graves dug by themselves.
It is only after you leave this world,
That Tajiks can get rid off misfortunes and sufferings.

"I can see all of you,
Are inferior to Kalbek on the black dapple.
'Crude and rash will cause blood,
Frame will bring punishment.
Sinner will not own a thing in the world.'

"Karamarks have evil intentions,
Timirbek,
Listen to me,
Wake up at the last moment,
Change your mind right away!"
Kenainym said with all his heart,
Advised in earnest.
Timirbek refused to come to his sense,
Reluctant to change until death.

Timirbek aggressively shouted:
"Kenainym,
Your eeriness,
Has made you talk about nonsense,
I already knew that you dare not to fight against me.
Kenainym,
You started to say at the beginning,
That you were the descendant of Manas.
Kenainym,
Do not rise above yourself,
Those were all bygones.
Manas who is enough to make you proud,
Can not match any hero among my forefathers."

Timirbek was angry with staring eyes,
Shouting the name of Tabildy.
This Tajik stamped with fury,
Intending to show his power and prestige.
The spear of six Alsions long,
Was waved in his hand.
The ground thundered.
He roared as a rutting male camel,
Froth spurted from mouth.
Teeth were gritted with creaking sounds,
Eyes ejected raging flames.
He waved the vital spear,
Rushed towards Kenainym.

The noble black mane wolf Kenainym,
Saw Timirbek did not listen to his advice.
He urged Kankura Steed to gallop,
Shouted the name of Manas,
To bravely meet the attack.

Spears clashed together,
Irons collided with each other,
Flames and sparks spurted.

Kenainym and Timirbek,
Rested for a while after the first round.
They wreathed their bodies like snakes,
Their spears lunged straight toward sky.
Their steeds,
Could not help rushing forward.
They stared at each other with rage,
And started to engage in a fiercer fight.

The breast protectors,
Cracked when hit by spears.
The helmets,
Tinkled when cut by battleaxes.

Heroes shouted in unison,
The sound reverberated in the sky.

Kankura and the livid steed,
Rattled the ground with their hooves.
The dust raised,
Pervaded in the air.
The robes were torn into pieces,
The earth cracked.
The ground turned into dust,
The stones underground outcropped.

Iron weapons crashed each other,
Neither would concede.
They grappled and forgot about their own,
No one would bear such a tough fight,
War-horses were entirely involved into the war.

While they were grappling on horseback,
Kankura and the livid steed,
Could not separate them apart,
No matter how much power the steeds exerted.

They extracted sabres,
And continued to fight,
The shouts crushed stones on the surrounding mountains.
They had already left their short lives behind,
Regardless of death and beheading,
Immersed in the desperate duel.

They were all too exhausted,
To grasp their arms.
They used all kinds of weapons in turns,
Locked together in this struggle.
They continuously fought for two days and nights,
No one was weary of the fight.
The two sides returned to their tents after sunset,

Preparing for the war tomorrow.

They sank the end of spears in venom,
Platened axe blades with a file,
Sharpened sabres with a knife grinder,
Straightened spear poles by pressing a stone.
Let the craftsmen sew the tearing armor,
And elaborately fix the damaged helmet.

Filled bullets in firelocks,
And prepared kindlings;
Recolored spear poles,
And reinforced axe handles,
To make them tight and firm.

The next day at sunrise,
Dovlebas war drum had already sounded.
They waved the spears in the hands,
And urged the steeds towards the field.

Timirbek thought to himself:
Today I shall beat Kenainym,
Let him suffer a crushing defeat.

Hero Kenainym and Timirbek,
Continued to fight with high spirits.
They stabbed each other with spears,
They chopped each other with battleaxes.
The war robes were torn into strips,
Hanging on their bodies.
The buttons of robes were snapped off,
Scattering on the ground.

They stretched out sturdy hands,
Alternatively grasped the rival's belt,
To vigorously pull with raising head.
And torn the rival's clothing bottom,

To press and drag it below saddles and stirrups.
Their heels constantly bumped against the horse bellies,
They hurtled down along the river valley.
Sometimes they headed for the narrow paths on the slopes,
And killed on the hillsides.
Even when encountered six gullies in succession,
Their steeds would gallop over.
Even when came across unattainable cliffs,
Their steeds would leap across.

They alternatively dismounted horses to grapple together,
Unable to tumble each other.
And picked up spears,
Starting to have a trial of strength.

The Tajik Timirbek,
Pressed his helmet tight with his hand.
Thinking it was a life-and-death struggle,
And he would fight at outrance.

Seeing Timirbek's act,
The black mane wolf Kenainym was filled with anger,
His furious face made others tremble with fear.

The roaring Timirbek,
Ferociously stabbed his spear,
Kenainym stroke back with battleax.
Who would bear Kenainym's attack?
Timirbek's spear,
Broke off into forty sections and fell to the ground.

Kenainym put his battleax away,
And waved the sharp spear.
He seized the good chance,
To fiercely stab towards the soft spot.
The extremely arrogant Timirbek,
Fell down from horseback like grass.

Timirbek's livid horse,
Was an intelligent fine steed.
It escorted Timirbek,
And climbed over his body,
It used its body,
Warded off the spear stabbed again by Kenainym.

Kenainym took the chance to rush over,
Before he could turn around,
Timirbek suddenly stood up from the ground,
Turned over to mount his steed.
Timirbek raised his horsewhip,
Kept waving over his head.

Seeing Timirbek waving his whip,
His subordinates would not sit by.
Masses of Tajiks,
Whipped horses to turn out in full strength.

Thirty thousand Tajiks in total went into the battle,
Shots and sparks were all around.
Bullets flied and smoke flied over the battlefield,
Flames lightened the sky.

Kirgiz were impatient,
Shouting the name of Manas to request for charge.
Black mane wolf Kenainym,
Was a hero having a ready plan.
He turned his head around and said to the soldiers:
"My Kirgiz,
Hold your horses,
Do not blindly go into the war.

"I know you want to support me,
And join the battle in full force.
We shall not act on impulse,
And make a meaningless sacrifice.

They have thirty thousand soldiers and steeds,
We do not need to worry too much.

"Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
You stay here and be ready,
Do not let them break through the defensive line of Kirgiz.
Do not let Tajiks rush over and across,
To bring the folks chaos.
Do not let Karamarks surge forward,
And send disasters to our people of Kirgiz.

"The war-horses without owners,
Will run about with dragging bridles,
Do not capture them.
To obtain few spoils,
You will lose your lives.
If your dead bodies are thrown in the battlefield,
Who will take the risk to identify?

"Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
You shall keep an eye on Kirgiz under orders to stop them from rampage.
For those striplings itching to fight,
You shall stop their reckless behavior."

Facing with overwhelming Tajiks,
Kenainym fearlessly rushing forward.
He was a courageous lion,
He was an indomitable and gritty hero.
He waved the spear with blue tassel,
Bravely dashed into the crowds of enemies.

He was a hero fearing nothing on earth,
Able to fend against thousands of enemies with one spear.
Wherever he dashed,
Like reaping grass,
Masses of soldiers would fall to the ground.

His spear danced in the wind,
Tajik soldiers were scared to death.

Kenainym only used spear but not sabre,
He did not want Tajik soldiers to give their lives' blood.
He would frighten the enemies with his superb military skills,
To let them open their muddled eyes,
And see the true color of a hero.

He rushed into the dense swarm of enemies,
The foes were like crows chased by an eagle,
Falling down one after another with nowhere to hide.
When he dashed to the downhill,
Over fifty people were hit to the ground in one strike.

Hero Kenainym was invincible,
The swarm of enemies expelled and stricken by him,
Was like hypnotized sheep,
Unable to support bodies but to fall to the ground.
Kenainym's spear was not stained with a drop of blood,
He expelled tens of thousands of armies without killing one.
The bloodthirsty hero who was called the Yellow-faced Death,
Was actually a merciful khan.

Karamarks did not came in great numbers,
They did not support Tajiks.
Timirbek stood by,
Helplessly observing the scene.
Seeing his tens of thousands of armies retreated as flood,
He was at a loss,
In a despondent mood.

"Since I Timirbek was well-known,
No one could match me in strength.
Today's encounter with Kenainym of Kirgiz,
Could it be that my troops will suffer a crushing defeat like this?"

Timirbek did not give in,
And got up his courage once again.
He held his steel spear tight,
Returned to the battlefield again,
Launched an attack to Kenainym:
"Oy!
Kenainym,
Where am I Timirbek inferior to you?
Tell me the truth,
When will you match me in strength?"

When Timirbek rushed over,
Kenainym was filled with rage,
He put forth his strength to ward off the spear,
And fiercely stabbed towards the rival's waist.
The mincing Timirbek,
Like crimpy bowler fur cap,
Fell to the ground from horseback.
Kenainym seized the chance,
About to approaching Timirbek,
While Karamark Barta,
Dashed towards Kenainym,
And stabbed his spear towards his waist.
Heroic Kenainym,
Suffered from precipitate sneak attack,
While just skewed a little and sat firm on the horse.

Before Barta turned the horse's head,
Choulfanbay arrived to the spot.
The conceited Barta,
Was stabbed down by Choulfanbay.
Choulfanbay's end of spear,
Lunged for a span.

How could it possible to survive after being stabbed by Choulfanbay,
And who could stand up again after his attack?
Barta fell to the ground,

And left the world forever.
How did he die,
The people around could not see more clearly.

Timirbek rode the livid steed,
He was overconfident.
Just now he was stricken down from horseback,
And thought to himself at present:
"It seems that I am rendered powerless,
If continue to confront him face to face,
I will be doomed for certain."

Timirbek was flustered,
Staggered,
Stumbled,
Having no idea even racking his brain.
He was at a total loss:
"Kenainym had said a lot,
I did not accept his advice.
I thought Khorasan and Isfan,
Would always by my backers.
I wrote to them in vain,
Chounalep for whom I was anticipant,
Did not take pity on and support me.

"If I make peace with Kenainym,
They will think that I am forced to give in.
Isfan and Khorasan people at that time,
Will burn and devour my folks.

"I shall run for my life before it is too late,
Regardless of how much money I should pay,
I shall go to Iran for shelter.

"While I heard in those years,
Iran and Baghdad were besieged by Shermat Khan.
Kenainym was happened to encounter.

He killed Shermat Khan,
Saved Iranian and Baghdad khans,
Khans were extremely grateful.

"If I now go to Iran for shelter,
They will not only refuse me,
But also capture and repatriate me.
If I displease them,
They will peel off my skin alive and that is even more wretched!

"I would better to seek refuge with Karamark,
And live among them.
I will refer to Chounalep,
For those heroes that I have never known.

"Khorasan has a hero called Keslety,
If he can be invited to this place,
He will make Kenainym exhausted.
Dabbitay and Keslety,
Acha Khan and Kamtur,
Along with me and Chounalep,
If six people make concerted effort,
How could the single-handed Kenainym,
Be equal to us!

"The glorious world is unpredictable,
And people's minds are even more subtle.
It seems that they are all running about interests of their own,
Who can be in the same boat with me is hard to tell.

"Kirgiz may be proud and arrogant now,
But once they lose the hero Kenainym,
Who will protect themselves?

"If I leave Karamark this day,
Might my misfortune be reversed?
Anyway I can not go to Kirgiz for shelter,

Kenainym will not be my backer forever.

"It seems that I can not leave Chounalep yet,
And to seek another refuge.
I can not either fight myself to death for Karamark,
Now I should leave the battlefield and avoid sacrifice,
Maybe this is my only way out,
It seems that this is my intelligent foresight."

Thinking of this,
Timirbek ordered someone to blow the horn,
To deliver the command to Tajiks:
Soldiers and horses of our side shall retreat the chaotic battlefield,
Hurry up to return to the tents.
Timirbek's heart still fluttered with fear,
Panic and intranquil.

He let the troops line up,
Checked the remain numbers of soldiers and steeds.
Thirteen thousand people died in the battlefield,
Seventeen thousand people were still alive without hurts.
The living outnumbered the dead,
He rejoiced for not losing all his troops.

Hero Kenainym,
Did not want to kill masses of Tajiks.
His spearhead was flipper-shaped,
Which could only strike down the enemies from horseback,
Without hurting,
Nor bleeding.

Not a few people were at a loss,
Fell down from horses themselves;
Not a few people were confused,
Collided with each other to death;
Some people only broke their arms,
With legs safe and sound;

Some people got intact hands and feet,
While were just injured in head and eyes.

Kirgiz people cleaned up the battlefield,
And captured all horses with no owners.
The enemies lost thirteen thousand soldiers and steeds,
Timirbek bugged out.

Hero Kenainym at this moment,
Instructed Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay:
"Among the lying Tajiks in disorder,
The living outnumber the dead.
Timirbek did not remain faithful to brothers,
Left them and escaped in panic.

"You are three humanistic heroes,
Make a thorough investigation of them.
As long as there is anyone alive,
Take in every one of those living men.
As long as there is someone who can walk upright,
Escort him here to this place.
Those whose eyes are still moving.
But lives are in danger,
Do not abandon them at will."

The three heroes move at once,
Bagetebay ordered after they arrived:
"Everyone with intact hands and feet,
Do not lie down,
Stand up and walk on your feet.
Those wounded unable to walk,
Do not hide yourselves,
We do not want your lives!"

They found a place for those who could not stand,
And concentrated those who could walk.
After registering the death toll,

Three heroes returned and reported on completion of their task.

According to their record,
The death toll just reached five hundred.
People disabled in action mounted only to one thousand,
The dead and the wounded aggregated one thousand five hundred.
Those who walked themselves to concentrate,
Summed to seven thousand five hundred and forty.
Including one thousand serious injuries,
It was eight thousand five hundred and forty people in total.
There were other four thousand four hundred and sixty people,
Fled and were never seen again before counting.
To those living seven thousand five hundred people,
The three heroes sent horses and clothes one by one,
And released them back to their homes.

Those fleeing four thousand forty hundred and sixty people,
Had a leader named Turum.
He summoned those escapees together,
Let the horses graze on the slope,
Made soldiers sit around on the grassland,
And said to them in these words:

"As for what happened in the past,
I heard people always saying like this:
All the corners in the world,
Were in the hands of Karamarks in those days.

"In the age of Karamark's reign,
Tajik had no status at all.
They called Kirgiz Brute,
And let Brute fight and die for them.

"Fortunately the presence of Manas,
Changed this evil world.
You should listen to me carefully,
And keep my words deep in your hearts.

"When the entire Central Asia,
Was retrieved by Manas,
He did not forget the suffering folks,
He brought every tribe interests.
He assigned territories to every tribe in fair,
And appointed their chieftains.

"Among Tajiks there was an intelligent youth,
His name was Tabildy,
He was born in Dushanbe,
And lived in Baghdak Mountain.

"Manas assigned Baghdak Mountain,
Along with Barik and Dushanbe,
To Tabildy to administrate.
Manas gave him territories,
Manas gave him castle and grassland,
Since then,
Tajiks started to have their own domain.

"There have been three generations since Tabildy,
Now Timirbek was the chieftain.
But he was bribed by Karamarks,
And becomes an enemy of Kirgiz nowadays.

"We had thirty thousand people at the beginning of expedition,
Now only a small part of us left.
Tajiks consist of four tribes,
One of them are us,
The four thousand four hundred and sixty people here,
Were led by me to escape from danger.

"Karamark's augur,
Was Erankdukmordo.
He was the company of the Devil,
He had said in those days,

'Until the seventh generation of Manas,
No one can match Kirgiz.'
Now this Mordo's prediction has come true.

"Kenainym is the fourth generation,
No one has ever defeated him,
Timirbek's competition with him,
It was impossible to defeat kenainym,
Will only cut his own throat.

"To Khorasan and Isfan,
To Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
To those khans in charge of folks,
He sent people to deliver letters.
He sent caravans of dromedaries,
With gold, silver and jewelry.
The one who should sent gold and camels,
Should have been Big ears Chounalep,
Why should Timirbek pay his addresses!

"The arrogant Timirbek actually promised:
'If Kirgiz is defeated together,
And Kenainym is killed,
All the captured Kirgiz livestock,
Will be sent to the people of Khorasan and Isfan.'
This ignorant idiot,
He has been tricked by Karamark.

"The four thousand four hundred and sixty people here,
You are all lucky and alive.
If you think my words have reasons,
You shall listen to my plan.
As the old saying goes that:
'You can marry a wife and have a son even in travel.'
We shall transfer towards Afghan,
And make a living by any means.

"If Kirgiz are defeated,
We shall find Timirbek.
If the Lion Kenainym,
Defeats Karamark and Tajik,
We shall seek refuge with him,
And rebuild our homeland to prosper.
We shall be like eagles stretching out necks to look around,
And find a backer between the two powerful sides."

The four thousand four hundred and sixty people,
Supported Turum as officer,
As their chieftain.
Turum took up the post of officer on the way of fleeing,
This brought him not a few troubles.

Turum summoned Kozhokledy,
Eloquent Akuy,
And Atake,
In front of him and make orders,
Sending them to meet Kenainym.

"We do not go to Timirbek,
If he knows we are still alive,
He will still make us fight and court death."

Atake, Kozhokledy and Akuy,
Sniffled their long noses,
Pretending to be pathetic.
Traveling day and night to reach Kenainym,
They expressed their purpose.

Kenainym discussed with Bagetebay and Suyin,
Wrote a letter for the messengers,
And tell the three of them:
"You shall send this letter,
To Jodar Bsym.
Between Dushanbe and Tashmalik,

There lies a mountain.
Previously your folks,
Have also fled to the latter for shelter.
As long as you climb over the mountain,
You will safely,
Find your children and wives.
Then you can settle down in Tashmalik,
And take charge of Tashkurgan."

Kozhokledy, Atake and Akuy,
Returned to Turum,
And submit Kenainym's letter.
Turum was skeptical that Kenainym,
May use secret languages to instigate Jodar Bsym,
And bring disaster to Tajiks.
He opened the letter and read it carefully,
And then securely let Atake, Kozhokledy and Akuy,
Send it to Jodar Bsym.

Three messengers came to Kashgar,
And sent Kenainym's letter,
To Jodar Bsym.
Jodar read the letter in great care,
And said to Atake, Akuy and Kozhokledy as follows:
"Previously among Tajik,
Not a few refugees came to this region,
Including many women and kids,
They put cradles before saddles.
I assigned Tashmalik, Mentiek and Qimgen,
To them as homeland.

"Now Kenainym asked you to come here,
You can move to that place,
Join your folks who came first,
Live there together and take care of each other.
Tashkurgan is a narrow river valley,
After your population increases,

The only thing I am afraid is that the pastures may be insufficient."

After receiving Jodar's consent,
They returned to Officer Turum,
And reported thoroughly,
In great details.
Turum led the troops,
Transferred along Pamir Mountain Chain.

Since the age of Kenainym had started,
Tajiks lived in Tashkurgan,
Those brothers and folks living there,
Were never forgotten by Kirgiz.
There were another group of one thousand survivors,
Including over five hundred wounded soldiers,
They returned Tajik,
Tottering and staggering,
Experiencing an arduous time.
The wounded spread the news that Kenainym did not kill them,
And released them to safely return.

They stayed in their own troops,
For only two days.
After a secret discussion,
The one thousand five hundred men fled all at once.

Timirbek led someone to chase after,
And intercepted them on the way.
Timirbek broke into a furious rage:
"Who took the lead to run away?
I will kill all of you!"

They thought to themselves:
Fleeing leads to death,
Staying also leads to death.
Thus they were dead determined,
To flee towards canyons respectively.

Those who had no time to rush,
Some of them were beheaded,
Some of them were laparotomized,
Some people's entrails were pulled out,
And some people's eyeballs were bloodily dug out.

Those Tajiks fleeing into the deep mountain,
Hid themselves respectively since then.

This Timirbek never reconcile to his failure,
He dare not compete with Kenainym,
Had no choice but to rest in the military camp,
And started to crafting another plot in his heart.

Let us put this to one side,
And sing about how Kenainym and Chounalep,
Repeatedly fought attles of wits and courage.

Timirbek and Chounalep Left No Means Untried and Died

Chounalep Escaped with Bare Life

Seeing Timirbek hiding in the camp,
Tajiks were reluctant to keep fighting on the battlefield,
Big ears Chounalep,
Had no choice but to lead Karamarks to go into the war.
He let the drummer sound the war drum,
Conducted twenty-six thousand soldiers,
To counterattack towards the battlefield.

There was a giant called Tobay,
He was a running dog beside Chounalep for many years.
Tobay wobbled his giant body,
Walked at the head of the troops.

Tobay's head was as big as a yurt,
Brows were like stray dogs lying on the forehead.
His teeth were like tusks of a starving tiger,
His lofty body was like an iron tower,
His arms were as sturdy as trees.
His two eyes sparkled ominous glint,
His bridge of nose was like prominent mountain ridges,
His face was bleak as gobi dessert.

Tobay stood upright as a hill,
Iron clothes and weapons of numerous putes[①] were on his whole body.
He wore chest protector and armor of nine layers,
Carring several shields that were orderly arranged.
Only those who faced death unflinchingly,

1 Pute: Ancient Kirgiz unit of measurement, one pute equals sixteen to seventeen kilograms.

Dared to grapple with this heartless and cruel evil.

Tobay's steed,
Was a livid swift horse that never sweated.
He was furious with grim face,
Stretching his tongue to lick lips and nasal tip without stop.
He held a sharp spear,
Self-importantly urged the horse forward.

"Kenainym is about to be killed,
Brute people will be annihilated."
Karamarks led by Chounalep,
Shouted loudly to encourage Tobay.

This mad beast Tobay,
Wore a helmet tight on the head,
Shouted the name of Kangayi,
With fierce momentum,
Making others tremble with fear.
He came to the battlefield to show his strength.

Kenainym urged his steeds,
And got out of Kirgiz camps.
He boiled with anger,
With furious face,
Even kind people dare not look at him.

Kenainym as the descendant of Manas,
Wore a yellow robe,
With chest protector beneath.
He seldom wore like this,
This set of clothes had special indications.
Once he wore this set of clothes,
He would leave no mercy on any rival.

Hero Kenainym was aflame with indignation,
Kirgiz were clear in their minds without saying a word.

All of them concentrated,
And expected for Kenainym's triumphant return with full confidence.

Tobay and Kenainym,
Started a fierce fight.
Karamark Tobay,
Shouted to launch an attack.
He rushed over and stabbed his spear,
And the spear was warded off by Kenainym to one side.

Kenainym did not counterattack at once,
He opened his bright eyes wide,
And watched the movements of his foe.

Tobay held his spear tight,
Bending on stabbing Kenainym down.
He whipped his steed,
To approach Kenainym step by step.

When his spear stabbing forward,
Kenainym did not blink his eyes once.
He grasped Tobay's spear by the chance,
And put his strength to seizure it.
He mercilessly threw the spear,
Onto the rock.
The spear collided with the rock,
And broke into eighty-one sections to the ground.

Tobay lost his spear,
Was shamed into anger,
And boiled with rage.
He picked the iron mace,
The mace-head was as large as a yurt.
He urged Tirdibis[①] Steed,
And waved the mace in his hand,

1 Tirdibis: Kirgiz term, name of a horse, means a steed that never sweats.

Smashed it towards Kenainym's head.
The fearless Kenainym,
He was an eminent hero,
Even poets could not find a word to describe his momentum.

When the mace fell down,
Kenainym grasped his battleax,
And hit toward the mace from below upward.
The mace as huge as a yurt,
Fell off Tobay's hand into the sky.
And dropped down at last,
Before it touched the ground,
Kenainym counterattacked with his battleax,
And the mace-head turned into pieces on the ground.

The utterly discomfited Big Karamark[1],
He seemed to get tired of living,
Exerting the sabre from scabbard.
He grappled again regardless of life,
The sabre glittered cold light,
His shouts reverberated in the sky.

Seeing Tobay's imposing vigor,
Masses of people felt hopeless.
His roaring frightened heaven and moved the earth,
Soldiers' heads were shaken by the shouts.

Kenainym was preemptive,
Waving his spear to stab Tobay.
Tobay's right arm was impaled,
A muscle of a two-year-old calf-size,
Fell off from his arm to the ground.
A stream of blood thick as the wooden handle of a whip,
Flew from the wound with no stop.
The land under Tobay's feet,

1 Big Karamark: Here refers to Tobay.

Turned into red mud mixed by blood.
Kenainym hit Tobay severely,
Masses of Karamarks on the scene,
Thinking they were driven to the last ditch.
Big Karamark Tobay,
Lost his spear, sabre and mace.
He groped the handle of battleax,
The wounded right arm brought him unbearable pain,
Making him unable to pick up the battleax.
May God bless us not seeing such a stubborn enemy again.

This Karamark was born a lefty,
While got used to using right hand to hold battleax.
He could not help but raise the battleax by left hand,
And was about to chop toward Kenainym.
Kenainym waved his spear,
And fiercely stabbed upwards.
The spearhead impaled Tobay's palm,
And the end of spear showed up on his back of the hand.
The battleax fell off from Tobay's hand,
And rattled on the ground.

Kenainym turned his horse's head,
And held Tobay's arm tight,
His feet firmly stepped on stirrups,
Sparing no effort to haul and pull.
Tobay was like being pulled out his tendon,
Lying still on the ground,
And left this world forever.

Kenainym that day,
Without using any weapon,
Wiped out eighteen arrogant Karamark enemies.

It was not until dusk,
That Kenainym came back to the tent.
The next day at sunrise,

Kenainym urged his Kankura Steed,
To return to the battlefield once again.

Tajik and Karamark discussed together,
Big ears Chounalep started to talk:
"We have fight for several days,
Timirbek did not defeat Kirgiz.
Countless powerful giants of Tajik,
And Karamark heroes headed by Tobay,
Were killed in the hand of Kirgiz.

"I decide to go into battle in person,
And completely destroy Kirgiz,
I shall bury all of them.
I will not forgive Kirgiz this day,
No matter how many people come to fight,
I will step them into muddy flesh.

"I will chop off Kenainym's head,
I will tie up Bagetebay,
Escort him to Talas,
And use his blood to stain my sword.
I will chop off Suyin and Choulfanbay's heads."

This arrogant Karamark,
Forgot himself and was extremely rampant.
He shouted in his tent,
as loud as flood.

Chounalep ordered someone to lead his steed out of the stable,
And saddled it in Karamark style.
He wore nine layers of iron overcoat,
Mounted on the horse and drew himself up,
Just like an erected scarecrow.
He carried his idol in his clothes,
And swaggered forward on the horse.

He ordered someone to sound the drum,
And let all soldiers and steeds start off,
With great strength behind him.

Kenainym had already waited on the battlefield,
Chounalep insanely shouted upon seeing him:
"You Brute man,
When did you became well-known?

"Your ancestor Manas madly dashed around,
Insufferably arrogant.
While he was sunk into blood by Kaleday,
And left the world in the end.

"I have heard that you Kenainym,
Consider yourself no ordinary and a minor famous man.
I left it alone on purpose,
And saw how far you could reach!

"But you were even more arrogant,
What you did has been beyond my imagination.
When you expedited westward,
You killed all the people who resisted.

"I thought the westerners,
Could not offend the east with no reason all the time.
Therefore I did not interfere,
Rather I praised for what you did.

"It seemed that you occupied the whole west,
Flattering yourself as being unmatched in strength.
And you had not resigned to stop conquering yet,
Starting to expedite eastward with overweening arrogance.

"You were like to have a deep hatred,
And provoked Qiktay Khan,
You fought against him for many years,

When you broke your leg,
Having no food to eat,
And no shelter to stay.

"You lay under a spine tree,
Exposing to the weather.
Qiktay Khan of Kangayi at that time,
Showed mercy and did not hunt you down.

"You stayed there and healed your wound,
Collected Balejuran[①] and Ishkan[②] to satisfy your hunger,
You ate your fill and recovered your strength,
And secretly returned to your homeland.

"You took the advantage when Qiktay Khan was sleeping,
Killed him mercilessly,
And showed off your triumph to your folks.
If Qiktay did not sleep,
How could you compete with him?

"Shalekmat wearing the Iron overcoat,
Copper navel the Hero Kekmat,
I asked them to stay with me,
Who knew that they insisted to fight alone.
They two had valour but lacked strategy,
Fought against you alone,
And were defeated to death one after the other.

"I have foreseen that,
Timirbek's capacity was limited,
Beaten by you and daring not to show up.
As for all these debts of blood,
Only I can be the man to let you pay!

"Do not expect for someone coming to rescue you,

1/2 Both of the terms are the names of wild fruits.

Even though you have superhuman powers,
You can hardly keep your life.
You will not return to Talas again,
I will not let you live another day!

"I allow you to turn your head around,
And tell your Kirgiz folks,
About your last words.
If I let you come back alive,
I will have no face to live in this world."

Chounalep confronted with Kenainym,
Arrogantly shouted for a while.
Facing with Chounalep's roaring,
Kenainym as the descendant of Kangkoer,
Leaned back and laughed without casting a glance at him.

His mustache was yellow as wormwood under the blazing sun,
He stroke his amber beard with might.
He showed his huge front teeth,
And indignantly denounced Chounalep:

"Oy!
Karamark,
'Seducing and cheating,
Picking quarrels and making troubles,
These are your customary tactics from ancient times,
The traditional customs left by your ancestors.'
The words of my deceased Khan Manas,
Seem to be quite correct,
With absolute properness.

"Karamark's khan Kunwuerbayi,
Khitan's khan Aisan Khan,
Karamark's Wusun and Ourank,
And also Nieskara and Georoy of Kangayi,
Muladle as the son of Kermzisha,

Sorandik as the son of Soraba,
Sharp Archer Elama and Shipshaydar.
And a great many powerful warriors,
General Ael and General Kun,
Chief Beshkurak in Sazand,
Chief Makely Giant of Sazansha.

"They united together in those days,
And could not keep out the expedition of Hero Manas.
Bilmiskale as the daughter of Aisan Khan,
Burulcha as the daughter of General Ael,
These two unrivalled beauties,
Along with Aisan Khan's throne,
Were lost in the hero's hand.

"As early as that time,
Their good lucks had exhausted,
They lost everything,
With bare hands.
You ugly Karamark,
What made you think you can show off your skills in front of me!

"They made the ambush,
And dug the tunnel in secret.
They stroke a vicious blow behind Manas's back,
Using poisonous axe to slash his neck.

"Oy,
Karamark,
Could these be heroic acts?
I did not mean to mention these,
While you force me to speak out.
Shameless Karamark,
You shall think about it by yourself!

"Tit for tat,
Is fair play,

This is the rule we followed from ancient times.
If someone dare to provoke,
We will certainly not show mercy.

"It was not us having marched towards Kangayi,
It was your Qiktay having launched an attack to Altay.
They even traversed,
Invading the Ili folks who had lived in peace.

"When I broke my leg and healed my wounds,
Qiktay Khan was like a black bear,
Daring not to trace the tiger.
He had no guts to chase me,
So he went to the yellow benchland of Kuran,
Planning to make you be his accomplice.

"Kekmat and Shalekmat,
Along with you Chounalep,
Once hearing my name,
You can not fall asleep,
And will tremble with fear.

"You hypocriticly welcomed him,
Readily promised to dispatch your troops,
While hid in the tent and not daring to go out,
And more reluctant to expedite with him.
He was such mad as wanting to die of poison,
In a pet he was dead determined,
To brace himself to attack me.
Thus I was forced to counterattack,
To let your Qiktay disappear from this world.

"It was not me having owned Qiktay a debt of blood,
It was you having the obligation to pay with your lives.
Why do you think,
You have the face to provoke me in this place?
You Karamarks,

Are always like insidious women plot in the shade.
In fact you did not understand at all,
About what wonderful foresight really is.

"You are like trapping a chukar,
Setting a springe for others;
You are like setting a steel trap for a fox,
Making a snare for others;
You are like those people digging a hole for storage,
Digging a pitfall for others;
You are like a herdsman lassoing a horse,
Throwing a prolonge towards others.
Kekmat and Shalekmat,
They all have engaged in such deals,
Chounalep,
Think about it,
How dare you stand here in arrogance!

"If you have enough courage,
Why did you seduce Timirbek of Tajik,
To associate with you and attack me?
Chounalep,
If you really have guts,
Why did you order the pack dromedaries,
To carry that many golds, silver and jewelries,
Heading for Khorasan and Isfan,
And to request them to dispatch their troops against me?

"Khorasan and Isfan,
Are all friendly neighbors of our Kirgiz,
While you lured and drew them to your side,
Provoked dissensions.
Let neighbors grapple with each other,
You vainly hoped to take advantages from these.

"Timirbek following you,
Will definitely end with being killed in Gobi;

People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Will have nowhere to be buried.
Those staggering Karamarks,
Will definitely be killed by me!

"Kunwuerbayi played tricks in those days,
And died on the riverbank of Amur.
Those who go in for intrigues,
Will never get luck,
And are doomed to a bad end.

"Muladle broke his faith and died in Hasan,
Nieskara died in Sayilam,
Wusun also died a tragic death in Naryn.
All those people died in wildness,
And became the feast of crows and vultures.

"People who did evil can not be infused into soil after death,
And can not go back to the earth as well.
You made riots all around,
No one is more hateful than you,
No one is more damned than you!
You did not peacefully live in Kangayi,
What do you want in this place?
Is there any relations between this place and your forefathers?

"Chounalep,
You idiot,
You brought so many troops,
Vainly imagined to conquer the heroic Kirgiz,
How wishful your thoughts are!

"I did not invade your territory,
Nor did I accept your silver,
I did not loot your horses,
Nor did I spend the gold in your pocket.
Karamarks with evil intentions,

Do not think about flee from death!"

Getting the sharp denounce of Kenainym,
Furious Chounalep did not speak a word.
He bitterly slashed his steed,
And launched an attack towards Kenainym.

Kenainym urged his Kankura Steed to gallop,
His heels bumped against the horse's belly.
Courageous Kenainym,
Fearless before the strong enemy.

The two men waved their spears,
The whistles of arms were enough to wake the dead,
They fought at close quarter,
On the battlefield.
They concentrate all their power to stab the spear,
The firm armor and chest protector,
Warded off the coming spear.

Chounalep's spear was broken,
He had nothing in his hand at that moment,
Only depended on his layers of iron overcoates and armors,
To ward off Kenainym's spear.
Constantly colliding with the rival's armor,
Kenainym's spear handle was broken in half.

Suffering from Kenainym's unceasing attacks,
Chounalep could not feel anything.
Choun firmly sat on the horseback,
As if he was made of iron and copper.

Choun was like a rutting male camel,
Shaking his body all over,
Poising for attack with overweening arrogance.
He wore his helmet high on the head,
His beard was curled on his furious face.

He angrily stared at the rival with eyes opening wide,
Stretching out his tongue to lick lips and tip of nose.
His sparse hair stood upright,
Every single one of them could be seen clearly.
This vicious Karamark,
Ghastly paled his face,
And angry looks.

He rapidly held his battleax on his waist,
Vainly imagined to chop off Kenainym's head,
And tie it to the back of horse saddle.
Then he planned to take all the Kirgiz,
As his captures;
To turn all boys of Arashi,
Into his own slaves.

Chounalep darkened his face,
In a great rage:
"I will take all your girls as my maids,
I will make you alive worse than death.
I will make your tears flow in streams,
I will make you utter sad calls!"

This beast flared up in a fighting mood,
As if to step down the whole world.
He thought Kenainym could not match him in skills,
And madly rushed towards Kenainym.

Kenainym was a valiant hero,
He had unparalleled heroic spirit.
His eyes were clear as a mirror,
And staring at the strong enemy before him.

The two men fiercely fought,
Like the murky sky over the dark earth,
Like lightening flashed and thunder rumbled.

Their sweat ran down like raindrops along their necks,
The eyelashes stuck together and could not even blink.
The heels of two steeds trod down the earth,
The ground violently trembled,
As if to subsided.
The lake raised great waves,
And sank the beach and mountains.
Chounalep and Kenainym,
Kept killing and shocking all others.

Big ears Chounalep seized the chance,
Held the battleax to chop with a bounce.
Kenainym was swift,
Counterattacked with battleax.
The two battleaxes clashed together,
Flames sparked,
The battleaxes abruptly turned into scrap irons.

The heroes darkened their faces,
Their beards seemed as being frosted.
Both of them were experienced warriors,
Advancing bravely,
Trending irresistibly.
They had all kinds of arms with them,
Able to reequip anytime.

Smokes rose from the nares of the heroes,
Red flames sparked from their eyes.
Their hair on the faces stood upright,
Teeth creaked when being gritted,
Every single one of their beard erected.

Their brows knitted,
With sullen looks,
Like black clouds gathering overhead.
They boiled with anger,
Constantly launched attacks,

Fierce as eagles.
They waved their weapons,
Showing the manhood as warriors
They bravely grappled time after time,
The armors were all turned into pieces.
They could not fight with bare hands,
And returned to the camp to reequip.

The two fully armed heroes came back to the battlefield,
Chounalep roared:
"Kaleday,
Kaleday,
Kaleday!"
Kenainym also shouted the name of Manas.
They waved the spears,
And made the whistling sounds.
Both of them wanted to kill each other,
Unceasingly launching violent attack.

They aimed their spears at each other's heart,
Just as the falcon staring at its prey,
Without blinking its eyes.
When the spearhead was about to stab the foe,
The spear was abruptly warded off.
Flames sparked from the pure steel spearheads,
The spears fended against each other,
No one could stab his foe down.

The two skillful warriors,
Were like flying falcons,
Showing their extraordinary military skills.
They fought even braver as the battle progressed,
Like vapor and scorpion,
Madly wreaking of no scruples.

Chounalep eager to win,
Did not manage to kill the foe,

He was utterly discomfited.
He was ashamed into anger and ground his teeth,
His eyes ejected flames of hatred,
Sputtering all around.

He slashed his steed,
And launched another attack.
He held the spear with blue tassel,
His ferocious face,
Scared everyone who saw that horrible looks.

The doughty Kenainym,
Showing his scornful face.
Karamark in his eyes,
Was just a dissolute female ghost.

Karamarks stabbed his spear again,
When the spear about to hit,
Kenainym picked up his battleax,
To ward off the coming spear.
When the rushing Chounalep,
Brushing past along with pushfulness,
Kenainym rapidly turned around the Kankura horse's head,
And aimed at the waist of staggering Karamark,
And impetuously stab his spear from the back,
Chounalep wore seven layers of iron overcoates,
The spearhead impaled the five layers,
Two layers of iron overcoates were not pierced.

The ignorant Chounalep,
Fell down from the horseback,
On his face.

The rushing Kankura Steed could not stop,
Over his body he jumped.
Before Kenainym could turn the horse's head,
People of Kangayi had already swarmed from all sides.

The hero cherished his steed,
The steed would save its owner from risk.
Chounalep's charcoal grey horse,
Made an amazing move at this point.
It griped Chounalep's collars with teeth,
Dragging him up from ground.
It lowered its body with bendy forelegs,
And lowered its back to the greatest extent.
Chounalep mounted the horseback,
And fled away for saving his life.

This time the troops came in great numbers,
The rising shouts seemed to deafen the dead.
The sweats sprinkled by troops,
Turned into fog and rose in the air.

Chounalep crossed the crowds,
And fled without a trace.
The descendant of Manas Kenainym,
Was a broad-minded hero.
He thought to himself:
"If the impulsive Kirgiz folks,
Grapple with the swarms of Karamarks,
Blood of both sides will flow as stream,
Kirgiz will make meaningless sacrifice."

He summoned Bagetebay,
He summoned warrior Suyin,
He summoned Choulfanbay:
"You need not worry about me Kenainym,
You should not attack Karamarks,
Do not let our folks bleed in vain,
And lose their lives under other people's knives!"

He dissuaded Kirgiz folks,
Whilehe himself was like a starving tiger rushing forward.

Facing with the dense mass of Karamark soldiers,
He reminded himself at the same time:
"Although Karamark is my enemy,
The ordinary soldiers have no responsibility.
They have to listen to the khan's order,
I can not let these innocent soldiers die!"

His appearance was majestic like lofty mountains,
He held a flipper-shaped spear,
And rushed towards the enemies.
The Karamarks outflanking,
Lost their faith of living,
Upon seeing the momentum of Kenainym.
They dare not turn around,
Being afraid of the khan's punishment.

Kenainym urged Kankura Steed,
To gallop to meet the attack,
He waved the spear in his hand,
Stroke down over forty enemies in one time.
Karamarks finally knew the boldness of the black mane wolf,
And scared to wet their pants,
No one dared to rush over,
And all of them scampered off like frightened rats,
The army is completely routed.

Kenainym Killed Timirbek

The ignorant Karamark,
Big ears Chounalep,
Was at their wits end,
Utterly confused.
He invited Timirbek to meet together,
And deliberate the countermeasure to defeat Kirgiz.

The Tajik Timirbek,
And said to Chounalep:
"Our Tajiks,
Since our ancestor Tabildy's period,
Have always been occupying Dushanbe,
We lived in peace and prospered.
Ay, Big ears Chounalep,
It was you who evoked this war.

"Kirgiz are ferocious indeed,
They fear nothing,
Daring to fight to the end.
Although Manas had died since long ago,
His descendants continuously bred.
They are like wild fire burning ever more brightly,
What we saw today were only a small part of them.

"Semtay was a lone hero,
When he was only twelve,
He only led two warriors,
Regarding Qinkojo and Toletoy,
Even as inferior to his trouser legs,

And took Ayichulek as his wife.

"I also heard from the old that,
The well-known Kunwuer Giant,
Led Nieskara and Muladle,
Accompanied by Wusun and other powerful men,
The five tribes of Big Begin,
Attack Talas in unison,
While did not win victory at the end.

"Aureker as the brother of Kunwuer,
Nieskara and Muladle,
Along with the Karamark Wusun,
Except for Kunwuerbayi,
All of them were killed.

"Kunwuerbayi did not take the blame and commit suicide,
Neither was he willing to let it go.
On the prairie underneath the Kezrakia[1] Cliff,
Kunwuerbayi made an ambush.
While he did not succeed,
Not only failed to achieve his aim,
But also lost his life in the Amur River.
People attributed the success of defeating Kunwuerbayi,
To Semtay.

"Kairimubayi broke his faith,
Summoning the evil Kezileuyok of Jafan,
And one-eyed Giant Madhan,
His second brother Usangan and third brother Zubatay,
Karatay as the son of Muladle,
And the Monget Madykole,
Had launched attacks towards Kirgiz one after another,
But ended in failure and lost their lives.

1 Kezrakia: Name of a region, means red cliff.

The Kirgiz hero Semtay,
Even won the reputation known all around.
"People of Baran and Shankay,
People of Jute and Talsa,
People of Juda and Halecha.
Karakalepak and Keyba People,
Were all saved by him from plights.
It was only when Kanchorao betrayed,
That he suffered the disaster.

"Among the Jedigair folks,
On the land of Jetsu,
Semtay's beloved wife Ayichulek,
Did not let Kiyaz approach her,
Conjuring to let a siren substitute.

"She not only guarded her loyalty to husband Semtay,
But also kept the posthumous child of Semtay,
In her belly for three years and six months,
The son finally came to the world.

"When Seytek grew to his twelve,
He started to miss his homeland.
And avenged himself,
By killing mountain-like Kiyaz.

"Kuturgur who deserved to die for his vow,
Arrogant and ran amuck.
He went to have a trial of strength with Seytek,
But was defeated and lost his life.

"How many arrogant giants,
Had died in Kirgiz hands.
Kenainym as the son of Seytek,
Expedited towards the sunrise,
Wiped out seven giants at one stroke.
Foiled their courage and drive,

Since then they dare not be rude anymore.

"Iranian and Quddus people,
Were all scared to death.
Jurendo having lived for eight thousand years,
Was also overthrown by him.
Rashly defiant Qiktay Khan,
Was also killed in Kangayi.

"Shalekmat with Iron overcoat,
Copper navel Kekmat,
Were all defeated and passed away.

"You and I untied together,
While fell on such hard times.
Though people of Khorasan and Isfan arrive,
They maybe can not get rid of this dangerous situation.

"The angur Erankduk,
Has told Qingersh Khan that:
'Till the eighth generation,
Manas can not be overthrown by others.'
His prediction has came true.
The Death has grasped our collars,
We are at the end of our wits.
Even though we press our suit,
How could the Yellow-faced Death Kenainym,
Forgive us and let us survive?

"Dabbitay personally commanded Khorasan people,
Hero Keslety and Acha Khan are coming,
What plan is in their minds,
To defeat Kirgiz?

"Maybe Kirgiz will be like a python,
Devouring us with one bite.
Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,

Strengthened the power of Kirgiz.
Now the might of Kirgiz,
Is threatening our lives.

"You saw them defeating our troops,
The battle horse became their spoils.
Countless Tajik and Karamark soldiers,
Escaped in disorder,
And fled for lives.

"Kirgiz people seriously announced:
The khan is to be blamed,
While soldiers have no duties.
Give steeds and robes back to them,
And allow them to return to their homeland.
The survived soldiers were drawn over to their side,
They will not fight for us ever again.

"Chounalep,
We can not be frustrated and willing to let go,
We can not die in vain,
We have to use wisdom to get out of the trouble.
If Tajik and Karamark allied force,
Are defeated by Kirgiz,
We will be satirized by the world.

"I sent to Khorasan and Isfan,
That many strong dromedaries,
And that many chests of gold.
We used this way to incite them,
To loot and rob Kirgiz,
To capture the land of Kirgiz,
To carve up Kirgiz property at their wishes.
Now these illusions can not be realized,
We shall ask ourselves,
If we are too stupid or dump."

Timirbek just finished his talk,
Chounalep responded at once:
"Timirbek,
You just expressed your innermost thoughts,
It seems that you are afraid of Kenainym,
And thus nervous and disturbed.
This situation we are faced with,
Is not a big deal in my eyes.

"Timirbek,
Your troops,
Have fled without a trace.
You do not need to be angry with this,
You do not need to worry about such a trifle.

"Although we have lost many warriors,
We still have many other soldiers.
Although the soldiers are weak as lambs,
Our Karamarks will overwhelm with numerical strength.
To confront with the arrogant Kenainym,
I will fight against him the next day by myself.

"I shall peel off his skin,
Lay it on the flagstone and expose it to the sun and rain.
I shall take his Kankura steed,
As my spoil of war.
What kind of hero am I,
Timirbek,
You will find the answer at that point.

"People of Khorasan and Isfan,
If they do not arrive in two days,
I will invade their gates.
I do not care about anything else,
I shall rush straight to their palace and pee in their saline vat[①].

1 Saline vat: Rock salt and local salt were generally used for food, being soaked in a vat or pot of water to be prepared for usage.

"Timirbek,
You should understand,
What I said is what I meant.
I will do as I said,
And will not put my words on airs."

Look,
This arrogant Karamark,
Unable even to protect himself,
Had nowhere to hide himself.
Still dared to yell and shout,
And rudely speak.
The offensive Karamark,
Mumbled and sputtered,
In a towering rage.
His brows knitted,
The face was like black clouds rolling in the sky.

Chounalep was utterly discomfited,
Slashed his Sur Steed,
He determined to fight against Kenainym to the death.

At this moment Khan Dabbitay and Keslety,
As well as Acha Khan come to assist.
If you continue to watch,
The following story will have more climaxes.

Seeing the reinforcements approach,
Chounalep was audacious in the extreme,
Murderous as if to shake the earth.
He carried an iron rod on the shoulder,
Held a shovel in his hand,
The sabre hummed in the scabbard,
Crescent axe shined at his side.
The spear whistled as it was waved in his hand,
The iron mace was beneath his thigh,
The mace head was huge as a yurt.

The golden helmet was on his head,
The iron armor shined blue light.
His eyes wore a pair of goggle,
A breast protector hung before his chest.
His shield on the back was extremely thick,
Beneath which were net armours,
Five layers of them did he wear.

Kneecaps on his knees,
Leg guards on the stirrups,
Zoykuma Sword on the waist,
Along with over six double-aged swords.

Seeing this crazy man,
Everyone was scared to the death.
He just sang his own praises before Timirbek.
In order to prove his words,
He was regardless of anything and meant to kill to the end.
This mad wild beast,
Prevailed his intellects with daydreams,
He was recklessly arrogant.

His tongue was tough as losing control,
No one could tell what he just spoke.
And his vicious eyes,
Made no one dare to look squarely at his face.

His roar reverberated like thunder,
Almost blasted people's brains.
The sharp spearhead in his hand,
Radiated burning flames.
The hooves raised wind from the earth,
A huge cloud of dust rose behind.

Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
And other heroes stood side by side,
People were startled when seeing his vicious face.

Now before people composed themselves,
Kenainym had urged Kankura to launch an attack.
Clouds of dust was raised behind,
Flying to the sky and rose upwards.
His yellow cheeks,
And blue eyes,
Turned into grey and became fiercer.
His long beard waved in the wind,
He held the spear with blue tassel in his hand,
And rushed straight towards the enemy,

Kenainym shouted the name of Manas,
Filled with rage and forgetting about his own,
He urged the steed to rush towards the foe,
Terrifying all the enemies.
His eyes ejected flames,
He was born to be a hero.

Big ears Chounalep,
Rushed to stab his spear.
Kenainym made him miss the target,
And used the battleax to counterattack.
The spear was seriously hit by the battleax,
Turning into pieces and falling on the ground.

This Karamark did not give up,
Picking up his crescent axe to chop down.
How could Kenainym let him hit,
He used battleax to ward off the crescent axe.
Chounalep's crescent axe,
The back of the axe blade was hit into pieces.

The bloodthirsty beast Chounalep,
Extracted his sabre out of scabbard.
He waved his sabre in his hand,
Shouted himself hoarse,
And launched an attack from the side.

Kenainym put his axe down,
And pressed his spear close to his body,
In face of Chounalep's right hand holding the sabre,
Aiming at his muscle of the arm,
And severely stabbed his spear.

Suffering from the bitter attack of spear,
Chounalep's sabre,
Flew far away from his hand and fell on the ground.
Big ears Chounalep,
Wounded his arm and unable to hold the mace,
His death was at hand and destined.

The descendant of Manas was a tough man,
Swift, powerful and brave.
Look at his moves,
Like a black mane wolf,
He made the Karamark Khan calling himself invincible,
Fall from the horse and down to the ground.

When Kenainym was going to extract the spear,
Timirbek came to rescue.
Timirbek was here to court death,
Kenainym drew out his spear,
And fiercely stabbed towards Timirbek.
The spearhead impaled his entrails,
And pierced out from his spines.
Timirbek could not turn around,
He had already been seized by the Death,
Chounalep seized the chance to escape.

This arrogant Chounalep,
Still suffering from the shock,
Like being chased by a hound.
Having no time to sort out his clothes,
His feet had left the stirrups,

The bottom of clothes waved in the wind,
Loose sleeves constantly swung.

He could not stop crying out,
And could not open his tearful eyes.
He was scared to death,
Only absorbed in keeping his life.
He fled to the side of Dabbitay,
And finally uttered a sigh of relief:
"Keslety and Acha Khan,
My peer Dabbitay,
I came here to meet with you,
And shall not lose anything.

"You have seen Timirbek died,
I am in immeasurable pain.
I also was stabbed by that bloodthirsty ghost,
My waist is unbearably painful,
I am afraid that I have broken my ribs,
Which press and stab my lung and heart."

Kenainym stood in the center of the battlefield,
Did not concede facing with the enemies,
Like a lofty and rugged mountain.

Acha Khan as the chief of Isfan,
Told his attendants Uda:
"Go quickly to report to Kenainym,
And tell him our intentions.
Just tell him that Acha Khan and Dabbitay,
Along with Hero Keslety come to match him in strength."

Acha Khan turned around and said to Dabbitay:
"Let us settle down here,
Chounalep is at a critical juncture,
Fleeing to us in panic for his life.
Tell Kenainym first,

That we shall fight since the next day,
And we will see who is going to die on the battlefield."

To follow the order of Acha Khan,
Uda came before Kenainym,
And conveyed his words in details.

Magnanimous Kenainym,
Listened to him carefully and responded at once:
"Messenger,
Be quick to go back,
And tell your khan,
About my words:

"Acha Khan and Dabbitay,
Lead your people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Turn out in full force.
Do you feel too boring at home?
Are you here specially for finding rivals to compete with?
Do you want to expel our livestock?
You ignorant khans,
Receiving money and being cheated,
Aren't you afraid of losing your lives for just a tiny profit?

"You seem to get tired of living,
Rashly invading our territory.
I shall make you bite the ground,
Like drawn rats,
And have nowhere to hide yourselves.
I shall let you bleed in streams,
Do not try to flee from my hands!

Aykoler Manas in Afghan in those years,
Fought against Qinacha.
People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Were induced by Kunwuerbayi,
Going there to support Qinacha.

The magnanimous khan Manas,
Pardoned their sins.

Now you khans of Isfan and Khorasan,
Could not afford to the seduction of Karamark,
Follow the same old disastrous road,
And rashly invade us.

"Tajiks were also deceived,
Bled in vain and suffered a lot.
Timirbek has already died,
Is there anyone who did not see his end?

"Acha Khan and Dabbitay,
Did you listen to the advice of the old,
Or did you resist to listen to those advice?
You two dippy khans,
Took your own course and took risks.
The Death has already seized your collars,
You are struggling from the brink of death.

"We Kirgiz did not dispatch troops,
Nor did we invade Khorasan and Isfan.
You accepted the camels from Karamark,
And then led your troops to invade us,
Is there any extra profit that you can get?

"If you have no steed to ride,
I can send you horses,
If you have nothing to wear,
I can send you robes and fine clothes.

"If you are starving,
And have no money to survive,
I have conquered Karamark and Tajik,
I can assign those land with all those folks to be in your charge.
If you two khans think it is fair enough,

You had better lead your people to leave here at once."

Kenainym let the messenger return,
Uda came back before Acha Khan,
And told what he saw and heard,
From the beginning to the end.

Acha Khan's troops settled down,
Pitched camps and cooked foods,
Soldiers lay down in disorder after the meal.
After the soldiers fell asleep,
And conquered by sleepiness.
Facing with Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Including Hero Keslety,
Chounalep said what he thought:

"You have seen,
And you have heard,
The words of this bloodthirsty Kenainym,
You have to make it clear.

"His eyes harbor malicious intentions,
His words were full of cunning tricks.
He has all kinds of conspiracies,
What he says is vicious and tart.

"As for the relations between me and you,
He is obviously sowing discord.
His enumeration of the wars in Manas Period,
Means that he shall repeat the same tactics.

"You one hero and two khans,
Shall understand the meaning of his words.
He is showing off his force,
And there is not any goodwill.

"He committed all manners of crimes at his wish,

And killed all his rivals with no one left.
He wiped out all his enemies,
So that he could become what he is nowadays.

"'Kirgiz people conquered the world.'
Their fame was spread all around.
No matter a thing is good or not,
It must be complied with their decisions.

"I considered the future things,
And decide to attack Kirgiz.
I sent the news to all of you,
And hope you can support me.
You have led thousands of military,
Arriving here in great force.

"I offered advice,
Openhearted and leaving no leeway.
If we fight alone,
It must be hard to defeat Kenainym,
We have to concentrate all our wits,
Defeat him by a surprise move,
And doom him to the death.

"We shall separate from tomorrow,
Expedite in three directions.
To the Kirgiz of all places,
We shall launch attacks.

"I lead my troops,
To punitively attack the enemy of Kashgar,
To capture Jodar alive,
And peel off his skin.

"Let a part of the troops,
March towards Atebash and Naryn.
No matter how many Kirgiz there are,

Kill them with no one left.

"And let another part of the troops,
March towards Talas.
Destroy their castle,
And loot their properties.

"Let me lead the troops to invade Kashgar,
Let Acha Khan march towards Naryn,
And Dabbitay towards Talas,
Let Keslety fight against Kenainym."

All the people said with one voice:
"Ay, hero,
Your idea is so brilliant.
Every person calling himself Kirgiz,
Will be killed by us with no one left.

"We will branch out into several parts,
And launch attacks towards every direction."
They followed their own customs,
To ally with a vow.

They also came to an agreement,
To destroy everything on their way,
And join forces in Samarkand.
After their discussion,
They returned to their own camps in darkness.

The next day the sky just turned bright,
The noise came in a hubbub,
Tajiks started to flee.
The evil-minded Chounalep,
Slashed Tajiks:
"Who incited you?
I will wipe you out,
And drain your blood!"

When he was boiled with rage,
To save those people without chief,
Kenainym dispatched someone to declare:

"Crazy Karamark,
You have to stop this stupid move!
Timirbek died in our hands,
His troops are my spoils,
I have already pardoned all of them,
You have no rights to take any actions to them.
Karamarks do not need to hide if not afraid of death,
Come to fight against me at once!"

All the Karamark Chiftains,
Hearing the statement of Kenainym,
Knew that it was the rule of a fight,
And stopped the persecution to Tajik soldiers.
Tajik troops,
Towards Baghdak Mountain and Dushanbe,
Fled without one trace.

After hearing Kenainym's response,
Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Big ears Chounalep,
Make all the commanders,
Concentrate with no one left,
Chounalep make the orders from khans:

"You shall make full preparations,
And depart to the appointed directions.
Do not sound your horns,
Or your zurnas;
Do not sound your drums,
Or delay your moves.

"Dabbitay leads the troops of Khorasan,

To march towards Talas;
Acha Khan with his people of Isfan,
Is about to occupy Atebash;
A part of my Chounalep's Karamark troops,
Stay here in the charge of Keslety,
And wait to fight against Kenainym.

"I shall lead the large troops to march towards Kashgar,
I shall capture Jodar alive.
And seize all those Tajiks of Kashgar back,
To punish them severely!"
People followed the khans' plan,
And acted separately after night fell.

Kirgiz Defeated the Enemy from Three Sides

In the troops of Bagetebay,
There was a men called Sadakay.
He often did amazing things,
He was a rational hero.

In the troops of Kenainym,
There was a men called Sariayar,
When defending enemies,
He acted observantly.

Sadakay and Sariayar,
Discussed together.
Sadakay wore the clothes of Isfan,
Sariayar wore the clothes of Karamark,
They disguised as cooks,
And sneaked into the enemies' camps.

They seized the chance of serving tea,
Detected the enemy intelligence of expedition from several directions.
The two of them came before Kenainym,
And reported in great details.

Knowing the intentions of enemies,
Kenainym started to dispatch troops:
"If what you said is true,
If the enemies will attack from three directions,
Then we will be in grave peril.
Suyin and Choulfanbay,
You are in charge of dealing with the enemy attacking Talas.

If he arrives in Kashgar,
I will assist Jodar in person.
Once I succeed,
I will join your force at once.

"Atebash is your homeland,
Bagetebay,
You go to defend the folks there,

"You shall attack in darkness,
All of the troops mount their steeds,
And launch an attack towards their camps.
Shout the name of Manas,
Have a free hand to fight,
And pull out all their hearts.

"If they have already moved away,
You should try to intercept them.
Never let their conspiracy prevail,
Otherwise, people of Kirgiz will be attacked.

"If our enemies get together,
We shall concentrate our forces.
When they walk away from the wild in divided forces,
We shall intercept on their way and deal them head-on blows."

Kenainym made a careful arrangement,
Hero Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Divided the troops of Talas,
Letting them saddle their horses.
Prepare the arms,
Take the cookers,
Hold the bridles,
And wait for the order to attack at any time.

Lofty Bagetebay,
Ordered someone to saddle his dark brown steed.

And let people of Atebash and Naryn,
Prepare all the necessities,
And be ready for the departure.

The black mane wolf Khan Kenainym,
Also saddled Kankura Steed.
He was filled with rage,
And swollen with anger,
Making such a decision:
"The bastard Chounalep,
I shall not let you arrive in Kashgar,
I shall peel off your skin and pave it on a rock,
I shall chop off your yurt-like head,
And throw it at the cross passed by pedestrians.
Let kids pee into your eye holes.
After I kill you,
I will see how powerful,
The people of Khorasan and Isfan really are!"

Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Arrived at the Shabirhan River Valley,
And waited at the only way which must be passed by enemies.
They asked the troops who arrived later,
To catch up with them and delay the chance of combat.

When the troops of Khorasan just departed,
They came across Kirgiz troops.
Choulfanbay straightly walked out,
And inquired their origins.
The leading person,
Completely ignored with head high.

Choulfanbay bridled up,
And stroke him down at the spot.
A bloody battle started at once,
Hubbugs thundered,
Blood flew as red flood.

The troops of Khorasan marched in the wild,
They had not reached Talas yet,
But came across Talas soldiers.
Fatally fell into the hands of Suyin and Choulfanbay.
How could these two men called the Deaths,
Easily forgive their crimes.

Suyin and Choulfanbay shouted the name of Manas,
Bravely dashed into the enemies.
Whoever met the two of them,
Would be utterly routed and beaten to death.

Kirgiz soldiers had not been called out yet,
Only the two heroes Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Had made the army in disarray,
And fled to Dabbitay.

Now Big ears Choun mounted his horse,
And galloped towards Kashgar.
He did not go far away,
And encountered Kenainym on a narrow path.

In the darkness he seemed to see the shadow of the black mane wolf,
Chounalep trembled with fear:
"If he intercepts me on the way,
He will by no means let me survive.

"I always hold the sway over this place,
This time I have to escape from the disaster.
I can not fight here with him,
I had better flee to the yellow river valley of Kuran.

"Kenainym is about to fight against Khorasan and Isfan,
He will be doomed at that time,
I will be assured once I hear the news of his death.
If Kenainym is still alive,

Before he launches an attack,
I can still strive to extend my life."

He turned the Sur Steed around,
And escaped backward,
He fled into the troops,
And disappeared without a trace.

The defeated army of Khorasan ran to Dabbitay,
Dabbitay then started to understand,
Kirgiz people had acted in advance,
Intercepting his troops at first.

Khan Dabbitay and Keslety,
Mounted the steed to meet the attack.
Just when they walked out of the camp,
They came across the soldiers fleeing back with Chounalep.
They thought that Kirgiz were coming to attack,
And went forward to grapple with the coming troop.
Between the soldiers of Khorasan and Karamark,
A tangled warfare was aroused.

Acha Khan of Isfan,
Abode by the common promise.
He mounted the steed and departed,
In the direction of Atebash.
The vanguards walked at the front,
Acha Khan brought up the rear.

The troops of Acha Khan passed by Ineksay[①],
Bagetebay suddenly showed up,
And intercepted their way.
Bagetebay was full of courage,
He was the bravest one among his peers.
He held the spear and stood on the middle of the road,

① Ineksay: Kirgiz term, the name of a region, means a river rapids of dairy cattle.

Asking the identities of them,
And their destination.

Acha Khan's officer,
Staggering his body and shouted in the dark:
"Who are you,
How dare you ask us questions?
We are Acha Khan's troops,
You should open your eyes,
And stop gabbling here,
Get away and make way for us!"

Seeing them about to leave,
Bagetebay inquired minutely:
"You are Acha Khan's troops,
Why do you come to this place,
Where are you heading for?"

The chieftain responded:
"We are going to Atebash and Naryn,
There are ancient towns built by Koshaoyi.
We are going to loot the folks of Koshaoyi,
Only which can make us delighted.
Do not gabble anymore and make way for us!"

Bagetebay stretched his arms,
And grasped the chief's shoulder,
He held him high from the horse's back,
As if seizing a sparrow.

"I will make you delighted!"
He clutched the chief's neck with might,
The chief died before he could make a sound.

Suffering from Bagetebay's strike,
People of Isfan turned around to get back,
And happened to encounter the fight between Karamark and Khorasan,

They were confusedly drawn into the war.

People of Khorasan, Karamark and Isfan,
Their blood flew as streams.
The battle lasted until the next day,
Khan Dabbitay and Keslety,
They turned their heads to observe.

At this time they found,
Countless soldiers fell in the pool of blood.
Soldiers of Khorasan, Isfan and Karamark,
Their corps lay in the barren mountains,
While Kirgiz could not be found anywhere.
Seeing this cannibal scenery,
They were deeply distressed.

The next day when the sky turned bright,
Kenainym as the descendant of Aykoler,
Found that Choun did not go to the battlefield.
He carefully checked the trace of Sur Steed,
And finally knew where Choun went,
He concluded that this dark minded man,
Had fled towards Kashgar.

He knew that this Karamark,
Was a ghost like an enchantress,
With a yellow green flat face.
He knew that this shameless person,
Was propped by his masses of troops.
"Can his troops catch up with him?"
He looked at the way he had fled.

The sun gradually radiated its light,
The morning fog gradually disappeared.
People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Could not find Chounalep,
Where did he go?

They saw those Kirgiz,
Take no action and rest to the spot.

People of Khorasan, Isfan and Karamark,
Killed each other and suffered great losses.
Dabbitay dispatched some soldiers,
To find Chounalep all around,
And intended to ask him for an answer!
While unable to find him out in the crowds.

Dabbitay dispatched a messenger once again,
Inquiring Kirgiz as follows:
"Do you know Chounalep's whereabouts?"
Kirgiz said:
"We do not know anything at all."
The messenger did not continue to ask anymore.
People of Khorasan and Isfan had no choice but to gather remnant troops,
And to march towards Talas.

Kenainym thought to himself:
"Bagetebay, Suyin,
And Choulfanbay,
They can protect our folks.
Big ears Choun of Karamark,
Is my biggest enemy,
I shall not let him go at all costs."

He whipped Kankura Steed,
And chased along with the hooves of his foe.
Kankura Steed galloped all the way,
Sweating profusely all over,
No matter plain or gully how it was,
He could always jump over,
And keep galloping.

The dark-minded Chounalep,

Led his horse and hid beneath the cliff,
In order to escape from Kenainym's sight.
After Kenainym galloped over,
He finally mounted the horse's back.
The lofty body was like a black peak,
He turned the horse's head to the opposite side.
And urged the steed to return the same way he came,
To keep colluding with people of Khorasan and Isfan.

The enemies attacking from three sides,
Besieged Kirgiz.
They did not dispatch warriors to challenge Kirgiz,
But used firelocks and arrows,
To launch a fierce attack.
The guns made cracking sounds,
Arrows whistled over heads.
The stone thrower bags swished to throw the stones,
Clouds of dust was raised in the sky.
Kindling burned and sparked flames,
Bullets screamed and growled.

Kirgiz doggedly resisted,
Exerting all their strength and forgetting about their own.
Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Fearless and bravely grappled.

Look at this fickle world,
It makes you suddenly up,
And suddenly down.
Bagetebay mounted the horse to launch an attack,
He shouted the name of Manas,
Hero Suyin also roared and charged forward,
The sounds frightened heaven and moved the earth.

Choulfanbay brought of the rear,
And shouted to Kirgiz:
"You can not diffusely flee,

In case not to let others think you are afraid of the death.
All the Kirgiz you shall listen,
If our banners fall,
The enemies will think that we are about to escape.

"I shall firmly guard the banner,
And protect Kirgiz heroes' fame.
We can not wait to be killed,
We shall turn out in full force,
And take the initiative,
To let our enemies know our might!"

All the Kirgiz roared with one voice,
Shouting the name of Manas,
The sounds even shook the earth.

The two sides fought at close quarter,
The flashes and shadows of swords were everywhere,
There was a prevailing thirst for blood,
As if the doomsday had come,
May God bless us not to see this scene anymore.

The Lion Bagetebay and Hero Suyin,
Stained their blades with blood,
And completely routed the army.
They did not take the people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Into account at all,
And urged the steeds to rush into Karamark armies.
They used spears to stab and pierce,
The sharp spearheads impaled the enemies' chests.

Seeing Hero Suyin rush over,
Chounalep hid in the crowds,
When Suyin passed by,
He suddenly stabbed the spear from the side.
Suyin on the faint yellow horseback was hit,
Flew away from the saddle like a weed.

Bagetebay had his heart in his mouth upon seeing this,
Urged the horse to gallop forward,
And fiercely stabbed towards Chounalep's waist.
Chounalep was attacked,
Falling off from Sur Steed.

The young hero Bagetebay,
Had no time to attack the defeated Chounalep,
And lifted up Suyin right away,
Suyin mounted the faint yellow steed to get rid of the danger.

The Acha Khan of Isfan,
Rapidly approached Chounalep,
Saved him along with his steed,
And fled back to the camp.

Choulfanbay was like a flame,
Firmly guarding under the flag,
No one dared to fight against him.

The hot-blooded Kirgiz,
Never grudged their own lives.
No one turned around,
Everyone was passionate with such thoughts:
"As long as I am alive,
I shall grapple with the fugitive Karamark,
At least to perish together with six of them,
How I wish I could kill sixty of them by myself."

The powerful ones pulled those flabby ones,
Off horseback and bitterly beat them.
The stronger ones bled the weaker ones,
With their spears.

Those who injured their heads,
Swelled like a barrel growing on shoulders,
Everything turned black before their eyes.

They grappled together and kept fighting,
Locked together in a struggle.

Kenainym chased after Chounalep,
When Choun climbed over Kalaker Ridge,
He was nowhere in sight.
Not knowing what Chounalep would do,
He was filled with rage.

He urged Kankura ran as quickly as a flash,
And rushed towards Kirgiz folks.
He saw the banner of the hero was stuck on the highland,
He saw the folks bravely and firmly killed the enemies.

The Lion Kenainym did not rest,
Shouted towards enemies with rage:
"Big ears,
Where are you?
No matter what tricks you play,
You can not flee from my hand!"

Kenainym furiously roared,
Shouting the name of Manas,
Like an eagle diving for a prey,
He charged towards the enemies.

Big ears Chounalep,
Summoned Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
And told them like this:
"You have heard his shouts,
It is the Death Sarik coming to the field.
Everyone who confronts with him,
Will break his waist and lose his life.

"From those days till nowadays,
Kenainym and I started a feud,
Only by me fight against him myself,

That you can get away from this place.

"When I draw him away,
Do not stop and depart at once,
Do not scatter and act at once,
Trod down Talas straightly.
Capturing Talas is as break his waist,
You have to make clear of this point."

Chounalep rushed forward after finishing his word,
Trying to stop Kenainym on the way.

Facing with Chounalep,
Kenainym turned gloomy and dreadful.
He was cold,
Cold as frost,
He was furious,
Furiously raised his eyebrows,
Somber as the blacksmith's face at dusk.
His eyes viciously glittered like snow and frost,
His beard seemed to frost.
Everyone who saw his momentum,
Would be frightened and awe-stricken.

Seeing Kenainym coming in great force,
Chounalep was terrified in his heart:
"No matter how I show off my military skills,
He can chop my head off.
People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Are all keeping their watchful eyes.
I can not act like Timirbek,
Stepped by others and died before their eyes.

"It is getting dark,
I shall forestall the enemy,
And insist till the nigh fall,
Then I shall run into the deep mountain for my life."

This cunning man,
Planned to save his life.
He swayed his spear in hand,
Waved the sabre with streamer,
And rushed straightly towards Kenainym.
His spear missed the target,
And passed by Kenainym.
He sometimes suddenly dodged to the right side,
And sometimes abruptly dodged to the left side,
Finally persisted to the dusk,
And fled to the crowds of troops,
Under the cover of darkness,
He quickly disappeared without a trace.

The Lion-like hero Kenainym,
Determined to find his foe,
He ordered Bagetebay in a hurry:
"Chounalep from Karamark,
I will definitely cut his chest,
Otherwise,
I will not dismount my Kankura Steed.
People of Khorasan and Isfan,
I have no time to badger with them,
Until Chounalep is wiped out,
I will not return to Talas.

"If the people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Resist to withdraw,
And keep challenging us.
You shall think other ways,
To deal with them with schemes.
Do not let them realize your intentions,
Reinforce Talas on the quiet.

"Do not fight alone in turns,
Once Keslety starts a fight,

All those mortal people can not afford.
His tactics are extremely malicious,
Anyone who shows off his skills and fights against him alone,
Will shed his blood and lay down his life."

Kenainym finished his words,
And whipped the steed to gallop away at full speed.

Chounalep Died under the Spear

Dark-minded Chounalep,
Climbed over the peak in a great rush,
Secretly walked in the mountains.
He went towards the sunrise,
Flustered and pressed for time.

Chounalep contemplated in his heart:
"There are so many people in red robes,
With bare chests,
They are of the same origin as me.
Now if I go to them for shelter,
Will they take me in?
I heard they have been on their guards against the easterners,
Once encountering Kenainym,
Will they hand me over as a favor?"

Chounalep filled his mind with a myriad of thoughts,
Played a lone hand,
All on his own.
The vicious idea swarmed in his heart,
He was in low spirits,
With a heavy heart.

He crossed the rolling mountain ranges,
And climbed over daban of jagged rocks.
He treked for six days,
And finally came to the border of Kashgar.
"Six days have passed,
No one is chasing after me.

Kenainym did not find my trace,
And has been misled by me far away.
I do not need to fear for attacks from behind,
And have a free hand to kill Jodar."

Chounalep fled from Dushanbe,
Rushed about wildly in great fear.
He whipped the horse to arrive at the bank of Gaz River,
And encountered Jodar head-on.

Once seeing Jodar,
Chounalep put himself on airs and shouted:
"Oy,
You old man with rough beard,
Where are you going with your shaky body?

"I just came from Dushanbe,
I have killed all the Kirgiz there,
And drained all of their blood.
Kenainym and his attendants,
Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay's corps,
Have already been eaten by vultures and crows.

"Now you have lost your backer.
I am here to find you,
And chop your head off your neck,
You are here to court death just in time."
Chounalep said,
And at the same time picked up his spear in his hand.

The Old Jodar calmly said in return:
"Kirgiz can not be wiped out,
You can not either drain their blood.
You hastily looked back from time to time,
You are fleeing in panic.
I shall chop off your head and tie it behind my saddle,
To welcome our tiger's arrival,

Karamark,
I will let you see what I got!"

Jodar pick up his spear,
Plucked himself up and gained vigour with age,
His hoary hair shined silver light,
His face was ablaze with rage,
He was as cold as marble.

The big Karamark was ashamed into anger,
"You think I am a fugitive,
Do you think that you can chop off my head?
You damned old man,
I will kill you on the broad way,
And rip your belly to put your corp before the public.
I will let those men who chase me see clearly,
I will make them half dead with fright,
And tremble with fear.
I will let them know,
That this is done by me Chounalep!"

Hearing these wild languages,
Hero Jodar sneered and showed his teeth:
"How could your father bear a bastard like you!
Oy,
Karamark,
You just confessed without being pressed,
You came here is to save your life.
You just said that you will let those men who chase you see,
These words are the proof!

"You still sang your own praises,
As if ejecting shit from your mouth.
There is an old saying among the old:
'Even a women calling up her courage,
Can defeat a fleeing foe.'
You are on your way escaping,

I have seen that clearly."

Jodar the old hero at this point,
Waved the spear with tassel,
Like a vigorous man at his young age,
Rushed to fight regardless of his oldness.

He did not let Chounalep hit him,
And warded off the coming spear.
He pulled Kelkara[1] Steed to the right side,
And turned around to launch another attack.

Facing with the strong enemy Chounalep,
He was fearless and never gave in.

Jodar the Old stabbed the spear,
And was fiercely warded off to one side by Chounalep.
Chounalep urged his horse to march forward,
Trying to grasp Jodar's collars.
He planned to realize his words,
To kill Jodar in the middle of the road.
He harshly slashed the steed,
And approached Jodar aggressively.

Jodar was nervous when seeing this,
Whipping his Kelkara Steed,
To be close to the ground,
And flee at the full speed,
He climbed over two ridges of Koshkezaik[2].

On his way of escaping,
Jodar came across the Lion Kenainym.
Exhausted Jodar was burned with anxiety,

1 Kelkara: Kirgiz term, the name of a horse, means black steed.

2 Koshkezaik: Kirgiz term, primarily means the twins, here the meaning is transferred as the name of a region, indicating a mountain pass between two hills.

Kenainym sent his respects to him,
While Jodar had no energy to respond.
Kenainym asked in anxiety:
"Uncle Jodar,
What happened to you?
Why did you bustle about?"

Before Jodar could respond,
Chounalep showed up,
The Lion Kenainym rushed over straightly.
Chounalep had no way to retreat,
As his collars were grasped by the Death,
He was forced to keep going forward.

The furious Kenainym,
Encountered his foe on a narrow path,
He thought that was a gift from God.
He opened his eyes wide to fixedly stare at his foe,
And waved his spear with red tassel,
To engage in the battle face to face.

Kenainym concentrated himself,
To closely watch the foe's actions.
He coldly faced with the rushing Karamark,
And warded off Choun's spearhead.

Before Karamark could adjust his body,
Kenainym pulled his Kankura Steed's bridle,
To the staggering Karamark,
To the swaying Karamark,
To the fluttering Karamark,
He launched a fierce attack.

Kenainym held his Sear Spear tight,
Like a gazelle chasing by a hound.
The struggling Karamark,
Seemed unable to tidy his collars;

The swaying Karamark,
Looked like a mad beast.
The rampageous Karamark,
Fiercely stabbed towards his rib,
His spear impaled his bladder and showed the cutting edge.

The Karamark stabbed by Kenainym,
Bled and stained the black earth.
Behind Kankura's saddle,
His head chopped off was tied.

Kenainym sent Sur Steed,
To Jodar the Old:
"Uncle Jodar,
Please listen carefully,
What I tell you should be kept in your mind.
The region in your charge is larger than others',
You shall regularly patrol in those places.
Yarkant,
Khotan and Lop Nur,
Aziq, Arele and Kum River,
These places are all in your charges.
You shall follow my advice,
And adjust the chieftains there,
Every three years.

"For those who value and feed his folks,
You shall continue to reuse them.
For those who arouse discontents,
Do not indulge and yield to them.
If you do not patrol every three years,
They will forget who is their real master.

"I have always allied with Hohan,
You shall not either separate from them.
Bagetebay is your junior,
You shall discuss with him if there is any trouble.

"When Aykoler Manas was living,
Toshtuk was at his side.
Grand old man,
I will respect you more than ever.
For we are far from each other,
Incapable of meeting very often,
Please do not complain about me too much."

Kenainym and Jodar were having a chat,
Before they finished their talks,
A cloud of black smoke rose from the east.
The dust kept soaring and rolling,
And then a black flag was seen waving in the smoke,
The troops came one after another in great force.
A stalwart giant,
Wearing layers of iron clothes,
Showed up in the smog.

Jodar and Kenainym,
In order to see the identity of the comer,
Turned the horse's head around and hid aside,
To watch the move of the comer in the dark.

They saw a hero coming alone,
Riding a brown steed at the front.
His steed was like a racehorse,
Its tail was split and knotted,
The braids of tail was straight into the clouds,
He wore an iron armor,
Which was shining under sunlight.

He was tall and strong,
Looked like a black mountain.
The brown steed under his hip,
Galloped forward as a fireball.
His yellow copper arrow,

Shined dazzling light.
His red copper drum,
Would sound even touched by a fly.
His handle of the crescent axe was twined with silver wire,
Glittering under the sun.

The two heroes observed carefully,
And still could not know his identity.
At this point,
That giant suddenly saw,
Chounalep's corp lying by the road.
He waved his horsewhip to make the order,
Five people rapidly came to him.
One of them rushed over and knelt,
Cried and shouted in great pain.
His tears flew like flood,
Rolling down along his clothes.

"Why can't I see a living you?
Who killed you,
And made you die like this,
I will avenge you and kill all of them!"

Other people came to lift up and comfort him at this time:
"Ay, hero,
Do not cry anymore,
The one who died can not revive."

The old Jodar insisted to see it clearly,
And figured out who they really were.
Seeing Jodar approaching,
They besieged the old man.

The one in blue iron clothe asked:
"Tell me,
Who you are?"
The old Jodar responded:

"I am just an old man,
Passing by for my own business.
Having seen this scene,
I was terrified and hid in the valley.
I see your martial looks is out of the ordinary,
Tell me,
Who you are?"

"Now that you want to know who I am,
Please remember,
Sakta is my name.
My father is Qiktay Khan,
His blood debts has not be repaid by Kenainym yet.
I am going to ask him for payment of the debt,
And just passing by on my way.

"Big ears Chounalep,
Copper navel Kekmat,
Shalekmat wearing Iron overcoat,
They three were full brothers.
They got up the courage and decided to avenge my father.

"That youth crying there,
Is the son of Chounalep.
His name is Saranja,
He has been looking for his father all around.
We happened to pass by,
And found the corp of Chounalep.
We do not know who killed him,
Could you answer my doubt?"

Hearing Sakta's words,
Jodar spoke athrill.
He had oppressed himself for a while,
And finally started to speak:
"Sakta,
You Karamark,

I have already known your name.
You forced your folks to expedite,
From Koktukat.
You departed in great force towards Kenainym,
And vainly hope to avenge Qiktay.

"You have seen it by yourself,
Chounalep for asking for the payment of blood debts,
Has died by the road.
Shalekmat has also died in Talas,
Kekmat in Atbash.
These three Karamarks died one after another.
It was the Yellow-faced Death Kenainym,
Who killed them to honor the spirit of Manas.

"You Karamarks,
To Khorasan and Isfan,
Have sent numerous gold, silver and jewelries,
Including the dromedaries who carried them,
To ask for their military support.

"Timirbek of Tajik,
Could not yield your temptation and led the troops to fight.
Although he exerted all his strength,
He was killed by Kenainym at last.
Each of them died lying in the wild,
Turning into the feasts of vultures and crows.
You Sakta and Saranja,
If you dare to offend Kenainym,
He will dig your eyes out as well!

"Maybe what you just said,
Was a joke.
But this joke can not be made at will,
Otherwise you are asking for trouble.
If you two accept my advice,
You had better return to your homeland as soon as you can.

"If you insist in fighting against Kenainym,
He will chop off your heads as killing a sheep.
He will split your bellies as cutting a melon,
And all what you have will vanish within a blink.

"He will break your waists,
He will make you fall off your saddles,
Your kids will become orphans,
And your wives widows.

"Kenainym is coming right now,
He will launch a war against Khorasan and Isfan.
It is too late for you to regret,
The Death is expelling you.
If you do not turn around and escape,
The Death will befall in front of you.

"My name is Jodarbsym,
Coming here to patrol the borders,
I met Chounalep in this place.
He said that he had killed all Kirgiz,
And drained all their blood!
Just at this moment,
Kenainym chasing behind arrived.

"Once seeing Kenainym,
Chounalep put his helmet on his head.
He held his spear on the saddle-bow,
And started the fight with great rage.
Your Karamark Khan,
Has just perished from this world in this way.

"Kenainym is right there,
Grazing his horse on the grassland beside the river.
You came to provoke in such a way,
He did not realize at all."

With regards to Jodar's advice,
Sakta responded as follows:
"Old man,
Although what you said is true,
What kind of hero Kenainym is,
Why he dares not to fight against me?
If he sees us coming,
He will definitely be scared to death and hide himself."

Sakta turned around and said to Saranja:
"As long as one is alive,
Why would he cry for help as calling himself a hero?
Asking Khorasan and Isfan for support,
This is a mistake.
Giving his own property to others,
This is also not a better move.
By doing such things he disgraced Karamark,
And also courted a dead end.

"If the people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Sacrifice any of their giants or heroes in the war,
Their brothers will think,
That he dies for Karamarks.

"They will send someone to our door,
And make troubles to make a claim,
This will add to our calamities.

"The situation is tough enough at present,
We had better take our own responsibilities.
Now that we have started a feud with Kirgiz,
We are not afraid of sacrificing during the fight.

"I will depend on my own might,
To fight against Kenainym by myself.
I have already had no regard for my life,

And shall grapple with him to the death."

Once again he shouted at Jodar:
"You said it was Kenainym,
Who had split Chounalep's belly,
And satisfied his desire of defeating enemies.
So where is he hiding now?
Come to fight against me if he dares!
I will mercilessly punish him,
Pull off every single one of his hair!
I will peel off his skin,
Make it into a bag for ryegrass,
And hang it high on the wooden shaft!

"I will dig out his eyes,
And drain his blood like drinking beverage.
If I can not make it,
I Sakta would rather die!"

Sakta talked wildly,
Led the vast troops,
To raise soaring dust,
And gallop forward.

The Son of Qiktay and the Son of Chounalep Died for Revenge

Jodar the Old rode back,
And no one asked for his whereabouts.
Sakta and Saranja,
Did not put him in their minds.

Jodar came to Kenainym,
And reported what he saw and heard,
In details.

At this moment Kenainym said to him:
"Uncle Jodar,
Please go there once again.
And explain to those idiots,
That Kenainym is coming,
He is the Yellow-faced Death.
He is not coming for paying the debt,
But for demanding your life."

Jodar urged his steed to run forward again,
And warded off those striplings,
He told his intentions,
And Kenainym's words,
To them without missing a word.

Sakta and Saranja,
Ordered the troops to stop after hearing his message,
And pitch camps to settle down,
They discussed about the next move:
"We shall go into the battle one after another,

And fight against him alone.
Even though Kenainym is an elephant,
He will be exhausted till that time."

Seeing the Karamark banner,
Jodar stuck Kenainym's flag,
High in a conspicuous position.

Sakta and Saranja,
Strove to be the first to fight.
Quarreling to scramble for the meritorious service,
And could not decide after a long while.
The intelligent Karamarks,
Mediated and intervened.
For the deceased Qiktay Khan was the father of Sakta,
They decided to let him be the first.

The Karamark hero Sakta,
Lofty as a hill,
He carried a full arrow case on his arm,
And held a bow in his hand,
He took all the weapons,
And rushed to the field in great force.
He begged for the bless of God,
And carried the sculpture of the God.

Sakta carried a mace on his back,
And wore layers of iron clothes.
The chest protector was made to order,
The black belt was tied to his waist.
He raised his brows and stared in anger,
Urging the black dapple to march forward.
This damned Sakta,
Showed off his power and prestige,
Rushing towards the battlefield by himself.

Where they fought was a stretch of wasteland,

The terrain was unfavorable to the both sides.
Sakta vainly hoped to stab down Kenainym,
He slashed the black dapple,
And launched an attack towards Kenainym,
The fierce momentum scared everyone.

They fought at close quarter,
Piercing the spears from time to time,
And warding off each other by his own spear,
The spears clattered with collided together.

They held the axes to vigorously chop,
The blades crushed when clashed together.
Then they extracted their sabres,
Shouted and attacked towards the rival.
The robes were torn into pieces,
Cracks presented on the armors.

They grappled by any kind of means,
Waved the sabres to stab towards the foe,
And spared no effort to engage in the war.
Their muscles seemed to be split,
Their ribs seemed to be broken,
The pain was unbearable and spread over the bodies.

They stared at each other with anger,
The hostile eyes ejected flames.
Weapons clashed with clangs,
Echoing with the harsh shouts.

The cold wind suddenly rose,
The fierce wind made people tremble with fear.
It was so strong that they could not open their eyes,
It was so cold that they shivered and numbed their arms and legs,
It was so fierce that their beards stood upright.
The bottom of clothes swayed in the wind,
As about to throw people down from the saddles.

All the beasts alive on the earth,
And countless insects,
Went into the caves in coldness and panic,
Hiding there without a move.

Sakta as the son of the Qiktay Khan,
Was so mad and bit through his lips,
He seemed to torture his short life,
Waving the spear in his hand,
And launching another attack with shout.

The commanding Kenainym,
Highly skilled in military drill,
He warded off the spear by the battleax.
How could one easily stand Kenainym's attack?
The spear warded off by the battleax,
Was broken into tens of pieces and fell into grass.

Sakta was shamed into anger,
And picked up the battleax with him.
Kenainym did not wait for him to wave the axe,
But used the spear to aim at his shoulder,
And fiercely stabbed.

Sakta's arm,
Was attacked by the spearhead,
He bled with unbearable pain,
The axe fell onto the ground.

The two heroes on the battlefield,
One was wounded,
And the other safe and sound.
This damned Sakta,
Confused and panic.

How could Yellow-faced Death Kenainym,
Stop at this point,

He aimed at the throat of Sakta,
And straightly stabbed his spear.
Sakta fell from the black dapple,
Like a straw thrown away he lost his life.

The beast Saranja roared,
Whipped his horse to go to the battlefield.
The beast shouted once he approached,
And posed several conditions to Kenainym:
"We shall not exhaust our steed,
There is no need to waste our time.
We shall not play all kinds of tricks,
We can not fight as we usually do.

"We shall not ward off each other's spear,
And shall not hide when the battleax comes.
We shall try our best,
To smash the mace onto each other's head.
Let us roll up our sleeves and the bottom of clothes,
Strike each other down justly and fairly.

"If the result is still uncertain,
Then let us attack in turns.
Kenainym,
Let us see who is at the dead end,
Let us see who is on the broad way,
Let us see who is the brave,
Let us see who is the coward,
Let us see in the duel."

To Saranja's proposal,
Kenainym agreed with a good grace,
And said that he would fight to the end.

They respectively picked up the spear with long tassel,
And stabbed toward each other with shouts.
Neither of them warded off the coming spear,

And let it pierce towards their own chests.

The chest protector of Saranja was hit into pieces,
While his body was safe and sound.
He stabbed his spear towards Kenainym,
The spear stroke Kenainym's chest,
And broke into numerous sections flowing in the air.

Saranja picked up his axe once again,
Exerted all his strength,
And chopped towards Kenainym's head.
Kenainym's helmet,
Sunk at the top.
Saranja's helmet,
Was stricken into pieces by Kenainym.

Saranja extracted his sharp sword,
Desiring to cut Kenainym into half.

Kenainym's sharp sword,
Was the heritage from Jurendo,
That was a real treasured sword.
Kenainym waited for the foe's attack,
He was going to make this Karamark die without anything to regret.

Saranja held his sword high,
The cold light dazzled and glittered.
Saranja's steed,
Rapidly rushed forward with quick short steps.
Saranja sinisterly smiled,
Staggering his body to rush towards Kenainym.

Saranja shouted himself hoarse,
Holding the sword high and fiercely chopping downward.
Saranja was extremely confident,
Thinking that Kenainym would be cut into half.

Kenainym's armor,
Was left by Akemdo.
This armor was invulnerable,
Saranja's sword cutting on the armor,
Was broken into over forty pieces.
The tiger-like hero Kenainym,
Did not bat an eyelash.

Saranja lost his sword,
Astonished by the miracle before his eyes.
The commanding Kenainym,
Aimed at the foe's waist and fiercely waved his sword.

Saranja originally intended to stand up,
And ask why his sabre was broken.
But Kenainym's sharp sword,
Had cut him by the waist into half.
He was like a sycamore tree chopped down,
Falling to the ground in two sections.

Big ears Chounalep,
The son of Qiktay Khan Sakta,
The son of Chounalep Saranja,
They filled with hatred and rage,
Rashly challenging Kenainym,
While lost their lives one after another.

Each of them had twenty thousand soldiers,
The cries of lamentation rose to the sky.
They hung the bows on their necks,
And pathetically went down on their knees.

They constantly kowtowed,
And tearfully begged for their lives.
Kenainym declared his decision at once:
"You are all soldiers forced to be here,
You have no responsibilities.

I will let you return by the way you came,
Do not hurt the folks on your way."

The Karamarks set off for home,
They did not get back to the yellow vally of Kuran.
They were worried that when they arrived Kangayi,
They may suffer prejudice and expelling.
They went to three Hoshos① and Jelidez②,
Lived long and prospered ever since.

Let us put this to one side,
And start from how Kenainym and Keslety,
Came across each other.

1 Hosho: A name of a region.

2 Jelidez: A name of a region, means stars.

Khorasan Allied with Isfan to Invade Kirgiz

Keslety Befell Disasters to Talas Folks

Kenainym rushed all around and experienced several wars,
It had been a long time since he left home.
He was concerned about Kirgiz folks,
And decided to return to his homeland.

When Kenainym chased after Chounalep,
The hero Keslety of Khorasan,
Led his army to attack Kirgiz.
He shouted and provoked,
Choulfanbay of Kirgiz,
Rushed out of the camp to meet the attack.

Facing with Choulfanbay,
Keslety was defiant.
Those conceited ones,
Would always be insolent and rude.
He loudly asked for the foe's name,
Choulfanbay's response was also blunt:
"My name is Choulfanbay,
Everyone who has fought against me,
Felt it was too late to regret it."

Keslety nursed a grudge after hearing that:
"Where is Kenainym?
I will compete with Kenainym.
You such a nobody dare to badger with me,
Go back to your camp rapidly."

Choulfanbay did not care at all,

He waved the spear in his hand,
And fiercely attacked Keslety's waist.
The spear broke into two sections,
While Keslety still firmly sat on his saddle,
The lofty stature did not move,
Just as a high hill.

Choulfanbay continued to fight,
Holding the door-like crescent axe.
Keslety did not move,
No matter how he had chopped.

Choulfanbay exerted all his strength,
Severely cut towards Keslety's head,
The helmet was hit and cracked.

The ashamed Keslety,
Waved his horsewhip to slash the steed,
And approach the robust Choulfanbay.
He stretched his powerful arm,
Cuddled Choulfanbay's waist,
Dragged him down from horseback,
And he fell to the ground.
"Who is the next!"
He complacently looked around.

Hero Suyin whipped his steed,
Courageously rushed to the battlefield.
He rapidly caught up with Keslety,
And stabbed the spear in his hand.
But Keslety caught the spear by the arm,
His spear was taken with the flow.
Bare-handed Suyin was swept by the spear,
And fell down from the horseback.

While Keslety spared both of them,
And said to Choulfanbay and Suyin:

"Hurry up to stand on your feet,
Return to your camps.
Except for Kenainym,
All the others do not come out to court death."

Choulfanbay and Suyin returned to the camp,
And reported the words to Bagetebay.
Bagetebay boiled with rage after hearing these,
Whipped his steed to rush towards the battlefield.
He dashed before Keslety,
And stabbed his spear when the foe was not noticed.

Keslety was attacked,
Thus thought Bagetebay was highly skilled in military drills,
And decided to compete with him.
He bumped against the horse's belly with his heel,
And launched an attack to Bagetebay.
His beard was of four spans long,
Swaying in the wind as the steed ran.

He warded off Bagetebay's spear,
And suddenly punched Bagetebay's back.
The lofty Bagetebay,
From the button-eared dark brown horse's back,
Fell to the earth at one blow.

Keslety shouted at him:
"Ride your horse quickly back to your camp,
And remember my name Keslety!
Kenainym is afraid of my power,
Daring not to come to meet my attack,
How could he send you to court death.

"I shall depart tomorrow,
Straightly attack Talas.
If Kenainym come to intercept,
I shall split his chest.

I shall capture the throne of Manas,
All of you shall follow my orders in the future,

"I will not negotiate with you,
Or waste my time in this place.
Today I will not take your lives,
When Kenainym reaches the battlefield,
I will let him see by himself,
That how you three die together.

"I will dig out your eyeballs,
And throw your corps on the bench land.
Only in this way can I set up,
My Keslety's heroic fame!

"I will go straight to Talas,
Every man from Kenainym's tribe,
Will be killed by me without one left!

"Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Go quickly to the tribes,
Go to find Kenainym,
And let him summon the troops to meet the attack."

Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
After escaping from the hand of the Isfan man,
Were in low spirits,
Deeply depressed,
They kept discussing all the way in a low voice:
"We can not stay here for long,
We shall withdraw backwards to Talas.
We shall wait for Kenainym's return,
And do as what he says."

They led the troops to depart,
Not on a large scale as previous days,
Hurrying on with their journey cautiously.

Let us put this to one side,
And talk about Salamart.

Salamart was the son of Sartbayi,
He came back to Talas from west.
Since Uncle Bakay, Khan Semtay,
Grandmother Kanikai and the Lion Krichorao,
Along with his moon-like wife's mother Ayichulek,
Had perished from the earth,
He did not return to his homeland the Big Talas[①].

Salamart thought to himself:
"The old died one after another,
I did not go back since then.
I shall go to Talas,
To the Aykoler Lion's tomb,
I shall honor him and pray,
I shall pay my respects."

He took his wife Jezbliek,
And two kids to Talas.
He heard others say:
"Hero Kenainym Khan,
Led the elected strong armies,
Went to Dushanbe of Tajik,
And fought against Karamarks assembled there."

Salamart thought when hearing this:
"Kenainym will not do such a thing,
From his youth,
He always fought on his own.
What happened to him nowadays,
Why did he mobilize the large force,
And create tension?"

① Big Talas: In Kirgiz term, adding a "Big" before a noun is a way of expressing greatness and admiration.

Salamart felt puzzled,
And stayed in Talas for a few days.
The news arrived at noon,
There were troops approaching the Sear Castle.

Salamart turned out when hearing the news,
To greet the respected Kenainym.
On his way to meet Kenainym,
He encountered Bagetebay, Suyin,
And Choulfanbay.

They saluted and greeted each other,
Salamart eagerly asked:
"Where is Kenainym?"
Bagetebay explained to him,
About how Kenainym chased his enemy and left,
And why they returned to this place.

Salamart said after hearing these:
"Warriors,
If it is true,
Please do not be anxious to dismount,
And do not either dissolve and go back home.
People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Will arrive soon afterwards.
Once they enter the town,
We will lose everything we have got,
And Talas will not be our home anymore.

"Keslety harbored evil thoughts,
Letting you lead the way to march towards this place.
We four are all warriors,
If Sear is captured by enemies,
The spirits of Manas would punish us."

The warriors coming back from afar,
Were sincerely convinced and followed Salamart's arrangement.

At the margin of Jilgendo,
Next to the basin of Yuchkoshaoyi,
They ordered the troops to pitch camps,
Ready to take actions.

The next day at noon,
People of Isfan and Khorasan,
Bustled and hustled to Talas.
They seemed to see numerous tents,
Thought it was a way of welcome,
And straightly went towards the camp.

Salamart knew their intentions,
Dispatched messengers to intercept.
They heard the name of Salamart,
Eager to fight against him.
People of Isfan and Khorasan,
Sounded the war drum loudly.
The arrays of soldiers walked in the battlefield.
Banners fluttered ahead of the troops.
All the weapons needed in the war,
And all the spears and sabres that could bleed the foes,
Were fully prepared with nothing left.

Among the troops of Acha Khan,
There was a powerful giant named Isken.
He was a devil devouring human heads,
And rushed to the battlefield in the first place.

Choulfanbay of Kirgiz,
How could he stand by when seeing this?
He wore a red robe,
Fierce like a starved tiger going downhill,
And attended the fight in the name of Kirgiz.

Choulfanbay and Isken encountered each other,
The powerful giant Isken,

Bent on stabbing Choulfanbay.
Choulfanbay firmly believed,
Salamart's idea was brilliant.
He launched an attack by himself,
And killed Isken within one round.

Do you want to know how they had fought,
And why did Isken died at once?
It was Choulfanbay's spear,
That impaled Isken's armpit and chest.

Choulfanbay in the same day,
Stabbed down seven warriors of Acha Khan,
They all died on the ground.
Including Isken eight men in total,
These highly-skilled heroes,
Ate their own bitter fruits and perished.

The troops ceased to fight and turned back at dusk,
They respectively dispatched guards and patrols.
To guard the soldiers and steeds,
To patrol until the daybreak.

The whole Talas folks,
Knew the news of invasion.
All the Kirgiz folks,
Grasped their collars,
And loyally prayed to Manas,
For blessing the peace of his descendants.

The next day the sun rose and lightened the earth,
The two sides started a new fight.
Choulfanbay rushed out of the camp,
Continued to fight alone.

Among the people of Isfan no one dared to meet the attack,
Among the people Khorasan a warrior dashed out,

He roared in the battlefield.
The man's name was Tepkay,
This hero was battle-scared,
Having killed countless enemies.

Choulfanbay and Tepkay encountered each other,
They ground their teeth and bit their lips.
The spears they held tightly in hands,
Were aimed to the vital part of each other,
And were stabbed forward from time to time.
The spears clashed together,
Making cracking sounds.

They weighed and considered,
The power of each other.
The situation became even more intense as the war progressed,
Both of the two heroes did not fear death.

Choulfanbay warded off with all strength,
The coming spear stabbed by Tepkay.
Choulfanbay seized the chance to counterattack,
And thought:
"God sends this slave to my hand,
I can by no means let him go."
He aimed at the rival's exposed armpit,
And vigorously stabbed his spear.
The sharp spearhead impaled the foe's chest,
Tepkay fell from the horse and died,
The black blood flew along the spearhead.

Five warriors of Khorasan,
Were stabbed down by Choulfanbay.
The sun moved to the west,
No one dared to fight against him anymore,
Choulfanbay drew the rein to return to his camp.

Facing with the large amount of enemies from Isfan and Khorasan,

Kirgiz folks had no peace.
They fought against the invaders in the day,
And guarded the safety of livestock at night.
Choulfanbay did not fall asleep,
Keeping his eyes open till the daybreak.

The war continued to the third day,
People of Isfan and Khorasan,
Started to loot all around,
And rushed straightly towards the pens of Kirgiz.
Women were raped,
Hiding at home and dare not go outside.

Salamart, Bagetebay,
Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Facing with the provocation of Khorasan and Isfan,
Anxious and indignant.
The four heroes decided to bitterly hit enemies and fight hand-to-hand,
The folks could not been harassed and looted as the enemies wished.

Salamart as the son of Sartbayi,
Was a genuine doughty warrior.
He shouted the name of Manas,
And rushed into the troops of Khorasan,
Grappling and madly dashing around,
The roaring even thundered the heaven.

His spearhead was stained with blood,
Khorasan soldiers were beaten to lose their bearings.
Keslety could not stand anymore,
Retreated to a side of the troop.
Salamart shouted the name of Manas,
And rushed to Keslety.

Heroes Salamart and Keslety,
Fought at close quarter.
They exerted all their strengths,

Violently stabbed the spears toward each other,
The sharp spears glittered in their hands.

People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Stood by and watch the fight.
They vainly imagined:
"Keslety is about to stab Salamart,
Down to the ground."

The two of them held sharp spears,
Shouted and pierced towards each other,
Clouds of dust were raised behind.
Seeing their intense fight,
All others were panic and scared.
In the field that they grappled,
Weapons clattered,
Red flames flickered in the air.

They warded off the coming spears,
Turned the horse's heads around and launched another attack.
The two prominent heroes,
Seemed so well-matched that neither could gain the upper hand.
These two heroes were highly skilled in military drills,
Neither would be hit by the spearheads.

Their shouts was fierce like lightening and thunders,
Their sweats flew like a heavy rainfall.
They tied their short lives,
To a thin horsehair.

The spearheads clattered when hitting the chest protectors,
Battleaxes crackles on the helmets.
The spears were broken into several sections,
And flew far away with whistles.

The soil blocks raised by hooves,
Splashed on heads and faces,

They frowned with straight faces,
As the gloomy sky would befall snow and frost.

They stretched arms,
Picked up sabres,
And wrestled at full split,
Torn the robe of each other with full strengths.
The armors cracked,
The Brum underclothes were torn into pieces,
They waved spears to kill without stop,
Not giving a chance for the rival to rest.

They fought on horseback,
Grasped collars,
plucked the front of clothes,
Pressed the clothes on the saddles,
And tuned the horse's head to fiercely drag.

Chasing behind closely on the downhills,
Grappling on the hillsides.
They furiously stared at each other with wide open eyes,
And gave vent to their anger by attacking each other.

They kept plumped the horse bellies with heels,
Urging the steed to chase on the slopes.
The air in Kankole was thin,
The steed ran out of breath,
Their ears crossed as scissors.
Kept jumping and stepping,
The two men urged horses to pursue closely.

When the two steeds approached,
The two heroes fought on horseback,
The stirrups clattered.
The sunset glow gradually faded,
The two sides returned to their camps.

Kirgiz took Salamart back,
Took a good care of him,
And laid him down to heal his wounds.
The wounded skin of Salamart,
Was smeared by badger's gall.
They brought the straw pulp made from nutgrass in spring water,
To apply to the wounds after cleaning.

They also dispatched someone to go by riding horses,
To find the gall of wild wolves and vultures,
They made these into medicine soup,
Then fed it to Salamart.
They also found some gall of bears,
And applied all of them to the wounds.

It was at dawn,
That Salamart started to stop painfully moaning,
And tranquilly closed his eyes.

Seeing Salamart was seriously wounded,
Kirgiz people were deeply worried:
"When Keslety comes to challenge again tomorrow,
Who can meet to attack?"
Everyone who knew better,
Would be anxious when Keslety was mentioned.

They tossed and turned through all the night,
Begged for blessings from Manas,
And expecting hero Kenainym,
Arrived at an early date to protect his folks.

Kirgiz believed in their hearts:
"Talas is a Saint place guarded by divinities,
Since Manas became its owner,
Every enemy who came to invade,
Never managed to occupy it.
The spirit of Manas,

Will definitely help Kirgiz get rid of the plight."

The old shed tears silently,
Women could not help crying.
Striplings sighed,
Young married women trembled in fear,
They were afraid of being spoils of enemies.

Girls tearfully burned with anxiety,
As drinking strong arrack,
Burning pain spread inside their bodies.
There were only cries instead of laughters,
From every household,
The sounds of praying Manas came out,
In great pain all the folks got over a night.

The sun rose to lighten the earth,
Kirgiz with white felt caps looked around,
Seeing that the divine aura appeared on the tomb of the lion.
At this point among the gathered crowds,
Someone suddenly shouted to announce the good news.

The lad was called Tuktay,
He excelled at practicing divination by using pebbles.
He earnestly declared:
"I used the pebbles to make a divination,
Knowing that Kenainym is on his way back.
If he can not arrive before dusk,
I would rather be killed!"

Kalbay using shoulder blades to predict also shouted:
"The respected aged,
Listen!
Sucking youths,
Listen!
Responsible adults,
Listen!

Kirgiz of the world,
All of you listen!
If my prediction is wrong,
You can even club me to death.

"I carefully observed the shoulder blades of female argali,
I know everything about what happened;
Kenainym killed Chounalep,
This indeed gladdens our hearts.

"At this time at the margin of Kangayi,
Masses of troops arrived.
Six powerful giants took the lead,
Each of them was strong and young.

"They led the troops to challenge,
To take revenge on Kenainym,
They did not realize their wish,
And were killed one after another by Kenainym.

"Kenainym expelled the enemies,
And also returned himself.
He kept thinking about Kirgiz folks,
Fluttered,
Pressing forward day and night.
As quickly as a flash,
Kankura Steed sweated without stop.

"When Khan Koshaoyi was alive,
He already arranged everything behind him,
What he did still benefit the folks nowadays.
Bagetebay among us,
Is the descendant of Koshaoyi.
He will hinder Keslety from harassing the folks,
And surely will keep enemies from moving a single step.

"Since Kenainym was born among Kirgiz,

He opened a gate of heaven for us.
People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Rashly offended Kirgiz,
The Death is summoning them.
They will be defeated by Kenainym,
Bleeding all around and like a drown rat."

When Kalbay just finished his words,
All those presented praised with one voice:
"Kid,
Thank you for your good words!"

Khorasan people dispatched an undercover man,
Sneaking into these folks.
He heard the prediction of the augur,
Thinking now that the augur could foresee,
Then he certainly could recognize himself,
Thus he fled in panic as quickly as he could.

At this time Kalbay told the people:
"Khorasan's undercover man is among us,
Eavesdropping our discussions and prophesies.
We pretended as not seeing him,
To let him think we did not recognize him,
So that he could convey our words."

That Khorasan's undercover man,
Returned to his master,
And reported the augur's words,
To his master in details.

Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Fell in panic after hearing the report.
Keslety was indignant upon hearing those words:
"Today I will not go to fight,
I shall stay in the camp and prepare for the war.
I swear that I shall stab the giant Kenainym,

Down from the saddle by my spear,
And chop down the flagpole of Kirgiz!

"Ay, warrior Acha Khan,
Today you shall go to challenge them!
Salamart could not go to the battlefield today,
His has already used up his strength.
Except for him,
No Kirgiz can match you in fights."

Following Keslety's words,
Acha Khan rushed to the battlefield.
He wore a shiny helmet,
A bulky iron rod was laid in front of his saddle.
He waved a spear with shouts,
Swaying the flag and challenging by himself:

"Come to this battlefield if you can fight against me!
If you are afraid of fighting alone,
Coming here with other two or three men is not a big deal.
My name is Acha Khan,
I have defeated countless strong warriors.
If anyone whose death is approaching,
Just come here and accept his destiny!"

The Kirgiz tercel,
Courageous Choulfanbay,
Shouted the name of Manas,
Fiercely went forward to meet the attack.
Knowing the news of Kenainym's return,
He firmly believed that he would win this war.

Acha Khan and Choulfanbay,
Fought a round face to face,
And warded off the spear of each other.
It was just at the moment of turning the horse's head,
That the battle-scarred Acha Khan,

Steered by Choulfanbay's spear.
His well-trained steed,
Like a fish swiftly swam in water,
Rapidly ran to the back of Choulfanbay.
Acha Khan seized the favourable chance,
Stabbing the spear towards Choulfanbay's waist.
The highly skilled warrior Choulfanbay,
Was carelessly attacked and staggered on horseback,
Falling to the ground with feet left the stirrups.

Suyin was furious upon seeing the scene,
Urged the steed to rush for rescue.
The damned Acha Khan steered by the attack,
And when Suyin turned around,
Acha Khan stabbed Suyin to the ground.

Bagetebay as the son of Galgezak,
Intelligent and courageous,
Decisive when dealing with troubles.
He did not gaze around,
Regardless of his own life,
He firmly urged his steed to move forward,
And saved up Choulfanbay and Suyin.

Acha Khan's stabbing down Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Emboldened himself.
Bagetebay and Acha Khan,
Had not fought at close quarter on the battlefield,
Today they pitched a fierce fight when they encountered for the first time.

Bagetebay's button-eared dark brown steed,
Tactful and experienced.
Even there were interlaced gullies,
It would always run as on the flat ground.
Facing with high mountains and lofty hills,
It would also gallop over with body as light as a swallow.

No matter how Acha Khan's steed,
Dashed all around,
The dark brown steed chased close behind.

Although Bagetebay was still young,
He towered above the rest in height of intellect,
And was highly skilled in military drills.
The two heroes could not find any flaw of each other,
Unable to stab the other side down after a long while.

Acha Khan whose misfortune was at hand,
Treacherous and crafty,
Weird and cunning.
He held the bridle tight and dodged around,
Dazzled Bagetebay,
And seized the chance to stab his spear towards the waist.
Bagetebay was almost hit,
And grasped the horsehair and firmly sat on the saddle.

"How can I Bagetebay be deceived by his tricks?"
He kept up his spirits and stared at Acha Khan,
Straightly stabbing his spear towards Acha Khan's broad chest.
The spear was harshly pierced forward,
Acha Khan was hit and staggered on horseback,
He adjusted himself at once and firmly sat on the saddle.
It was a pity that Bagetebay did not put forth his full strength,
And failed to stab down Acha Khan.

Although Acha Khan was not stabbed down,
His belly was already full of blood and his ribs broken.
He had no choice but to ask Bagetebay for a truce:
"I Acha Khan have fought north and south with world-wide fame,
No one has been like you,
To have wounded me by a spear.

"Today is our first fight,
I have seen your power and skills.

I came to the battlefield in haste and did not eat breakfast,
Now I am starving with no strength.

"I shall go back to have a meal,
And change a new armor,
We can continue to fight after I come back.
These are all I want.
Can you allow me to leave this battlefield?"
Acha Khan pretended to be poor.

Bagetebay was magnanimous,
Generous even on the battlefield,
He did not put the past on his mind.
He said:
"Just go if you want!
Do not pretend yourself at this place!"

Talas Folks Expected for Kenainym's Triumphant Return

When Acha Khan returned to his camp,
Hero Kenainym returned to his homeland.
Kirgiz people jumped for joy,
The red tiger[1] they had expected for so long,
Finally returned to their side.

Someone urged the steeds to ran around,
With yellow lambs at the front of saddles,
To drive out evil spirits for the hero and do Sadha.
Someone selected and killed a white mare,
To honor Aykoler Manas.
Someone was busy with killing cattles,
Giving the meat to the folks along with skins.
Kirgiz people loudly prayed:
"We pray the spirit of the Lion Manas,
To bless for the peace of his descendants,
To bless for the triumph of Kenainym!"

People rushed about telling the news:
"We were narrowly driven to the last ditch,
It was our tiger running back home,
That we were finally rescued."

People told the earth:
"Talas,
Kankole Ata[2],

1 Red tiger: The laudatory title for Kenainym.

2 Ata: Kirgiz term, father.

Look,
Your son finally come back to you,
He is such lofty,
Tough and strong."

People told the lakes:
"Ay,
Your water was on the brink of being drained,
We nearly died because of the draught,
But now you are still watery and rippling."

People told the wild deer and argali:
"You verged to die in the dessert,
Now no one will chase you,
No one will shoot at you,
May you joyfully gather on the green hills."

People told the swans and wild ducks:
"You swam in the Karasu River,
Having faced with death.
Kenainym returned to his homeland,
Now you are all saved,
You can sing loud under the sky and in the waves."

People told the horses:
"The invaders rode their steeds,
Holding whips and long loop bars,
They ruthlessly expelled you,
You have suffered a lot of bitterness.
Now you can gallop and gambol as you wish,
Dash about on the vast prairie!"

People told the camels:
"You were narrowly put on mountainous goods,
Lining up and forced to exotic places.
Now you can ramble on the prairie at ease,
To graze and to drink,

To fill your bellies."

People told the cattles:
"You were nearly beaten with skin cut open and flesh torn,
Forced to leave your homeland.
Now you can walk along the grassland,
And securely graze as you wish."

People told the sheep:
"You are the fortune of Kirgiz,
You made Kirgiz prosperous.
You were almost looted by enemies,
And were protected thanks to the hero's arrival.
May you spread all over the hills,
And graze beside the river to your heart's content.
May you be light of heart and strong,
Bringing wealth and happiness to Kitgiz people."

People told the mountains:
"You stood upright with towering stature,
Proudly shouldering to the sky.
Your serried peaks,
Can be seen from three-day-walked distance.
The well-known Talas Mountain,
Your son Kenainym got back to you,
The disaster of invasion was about to over,
You will hold your heads high forever."

People told the rivers:
"You are narrow and torrential in the middle,
And broad and flat as lakes on both ends.
You glitter silver light and slowly flow in daily life,
Every time when the tide rises,
The sound of water was like the laughter of girls.
You are at a stride as a galloping horse,
The vapor you breathe pervades the river banks.
Your son Kenainym has returned to your side,

You do not need to howl because of the invasion,
Now it is time for you to gallop and sing!"

People told the valleys and slopes:
"You embrace the dense forests,
Blow the soft wind along the valleys.
Countless cattles, sheep, horses and camels,
Are fully spread in your arms,
Your master Kenainym has returned,
You should present your prettiest image."

People told the pastures in romote mountains:
"Your sunny slopes are growing mountain ashes thistles,
Along with cypresses and bristle grasses,
Argali grasses spread in the woods.
Silver birches meet the clouds,
Wild willows and flower branches bend down to the earth.
Your shady slopes are growing dense pine trees,
Each of the trees is like a girl slim and graceful.
When people look around on the ridges,
The beautiful scenery will be breathtaking.
Talas as the homeland of Manas,
Is the most pretty Saint place in the world.
We were almost punished by God,
You were narrowly helplessly invaded by enemies.
Fortunately Kenainym arrived in time,
Please open your arms and embrace your child."

People told the wetlands:
"Wild ducks and wild gooses echo,
Singing in your broad arms.
Reeds grow all over your fringes,
Softly waving in the wind.
Flocks of water birds sing in chorus,
The ringing voice is charming and sweet.
To quench thirsty by your pure spring,
Is like to drink mellow kumis.

You were almost trodden down,
Thanks to the hero who arrive in time,
You can assuredly stretch your broad hearts."

People told the rocks:
"You shine under the sun,
You glitter in the rain.
Sometimes the thick moss grow all over you,
As soft carpet spreading out.
You are superior to gold although you are rocks,
Yesterday you were almost suffered disasters.
Fortunately your master Kenainym came back,
So that you are protected to be sage and free!"

People prayed to the spirit of Manas:
"Talas is the homeland of Kirgiz,
Sear is the proclose protecting Kirgiz.
Ay, Aykoler Khan Manas,
May your spirit,
Bless Kirgiz with white felt caps!

"Your name has been spread for a long time,
Who will protect Kirgiz if you do not?
May the spirit of Khan Manas,
Bless Kenainym to expel the invaders."

People had told the earth and lakes,
People had told the mountains and plains,
People had told the rivers, valleys and wetlands,
People had told the pastures in remote mountains, grasses and woods;
People had told the rocks and livestock,
People had told all the wild beasts.

All people regardless of age and sex rushed about telling the news:
"Hero Kenainym comes back!"
Kirgiz with white felt caps widely knew that news.
When the attacking army reached the city gates,

They lost their bearings and were in a swivet.
After Kenainym got back,
They were overjoyed.

People could not help congratulating each other,
Tearfully vented their grievances to God,
And pray for deceased Manas,
To pray for his bless.
They poured out their difficulties, sadness and troubles,
Chattering without stop,
Repeating over and over again.

Knowing the enemies invaded Talas,
Kenainym boiled with rage,
Aflame with indignation.
He saw the Kirgiz with white felt caps,
Either young girls or lads,
Were covered with tear stains on the withered faces,
Sallow like autumn grasses.

People gathered white horses,
Yellow cattle and goats,
Ready for doing Sadaha.
Thousands of Kirgiz folks in Talas,
Prayed to the spirit of Manas.

For protecting the peace of compatriots,
For guarding the Big Talas,
Confronting with the rampaging enemies,
People did not spare their own lives.

Kenainym was solemn and dignified,
People had not seen his smile yet.
He saw the scene of the folks,
Overwhelmed by grief and in deep pain.

Kenainym's brows knitted with rage,

His door-like teeth showed out,
He roared like a black mane wolf:
"Kirgiz folks with white felt caps,
Kankole, the Big Talas are our homeland.
Your prayers must be accepted by the spirits,
The soul of Big Manas will bless us.

"We can not forget these ancestors:
The Old Bakay, great-grandmother Qinekay,
Semtay Khan, grandmother Ayichulek,
And the Lion hero Kristan,
If we forget them,
God will punish us.

"My father as the hero Seytek,
And my mother the powerful giant Kuyale,
They had infinite strength,
Sweeping all before one.
Before them there were many other heroes:
Almanbet, the Lion Chuwak, the warrior Sirak,
And the sage old Koshaoyi,
Muzburchak, Toshtuk,
Kokcher as the son of Aydarhan,
We can not forget every one of them.

"Aykoler blesses us all the time,
And my elder brother Alemsarik.
They enjoyed happiness and joy with us,
They suffered disasters and plight with us.
The spirits of that forty warriors,
Also accompany us.

"The prominent ancestors are beyond count,
Ajibayi having a glib tongue,
The noble and modest Sirk,
Would come out boldly every time when it was dangerous;
The augur Kaltolik,

Had a wonderful foresight,
Predicting with miraculous accuracy,
He observed the shoulder blades,
And could foretell as sure as fate.

"Alakan of the Alem Family,
Was a talent that can not be forgotten.
Kader, Jaynak, and Shotu,
They all had a pair of bright eyes,
When marching in the dark,
They could see things clearly as in daytime.

"Tumanjaynak was intelligent,
Even marching in the dark,
He could recognize the footprint of foxes,
And always chased the enemies in the front.

"Alaman managing the tribes,
Kalkaman administering the folks,
Toknoy commanding the troops,
The chieftain of forty warriors Kergelchal;
Before their death,
These warriors loyally devoted themselves.

"The warriors followed the mane wolf Manas's assignment,
Fighting side by side.
Erchywuler, Bozwuler,
And Tazbaymat were intelligent and capable,
We can not forget them,
And bore them in mind since we were kids.

"I devoutly pray to all the deceased heroes,
To bless and give us support.
Kirgiz people are facing with danger,
I will take the lead and bravely kill the enemies.
All of the folks please hold your hands up with me,
May Manas Aykoler bless us.

I will launch an attack towards the invaders,
And let their blood flow and splash!

"Kirgiz with white felt caps are my compatriots,
Talas is the homeland of all our generations.
The vicious invaders,
Attempt to dash around in Talas,
And ruin Kirgiz families.
The son of Kirgiz Kenainym,
How could he go home in peace and rest himself!"

Kneinym returning from afar did not go back home,
And even take a sip of hot tea.
Neither did he dismount to have a short break,
His lofty stature,
Did not leave the horseback of Kankura.
He waved the sharp spear in his hand,
And urged the steed to rush straightly towards the battlefield.

Hero Kenainym dashed to meet the attack,
All the Kirgiz were in high spirits.
The earth of Talas blazed with colors,
Grasses spreading over were green as a carpet.
Flowers all over the mountains bloomed in purple and red,
Pine trees were verdant and white birches umbrageous.

Wild ducks and gooses quacked,
The lake glistened,
Fish jumped in the water,
Snow cocks sang loudly in the hills,
Roe deer galloped in the woods.

Aspens grew straightly upward,
As sentries standing by the roads.
Eagles stretched their wings and hovered under the sky,
Wild deer danced in delight.
Male argali and wild goats,

Swayed their huge corners athrill.

Every camel was excited,
Waving its hulking hooves.
Cattle ran around with joy,
Foals dashed on the prairies.
Even wild beasts laughed heartily,
Sakers flew up into the clouds.

The mountain breeze softly blew,
The sky of Kankole turned clear and bright.
Kirgiz with white felt caps shouted:
"May the hero triumphantly return!"

Kirgiz men felt proud and elated,
Girls and women were radiant with joy.

Hearing that the Death Sarik had returned Talas,
All the Kirgiz boosted their spirits.
The men held their heads high,
Regaining their dignity.
Girls and women wore gorgeous marten caps,
The earlocks were neatly combed,
They beamed with smiles.

Kenainym did not dismount,
He urged Kankura Steed to meet the attack,
He wore the blue combat boots,
Leather mat was on his saddle,
The brave lion was about to show up on the battlefield.

Kenainym Fought against Keslety for the First Time

Knowing Kenainym had returned,
Keslety summoned Acha Khan to discuss:
"Acha Khan,
You took the lead to fight,
And stroke down two Kirgiz warriors in succession.
You only fought against Bagetebay for a short while,
And did not make him bleed.
Why didn't you insist,
But gave up halfway and returned?"

Acha Khan responded at once:
"Hero Keslety,
Please listen to me carefully,
Bagetebay is a hero indeed.
I was attacked by him continuously and had pains all over,
I lost my power to keep grappling,
And could not continue to fight against him.
If there was another round,
I would have lost my life.
I felt the Death was approaching,
And I could not have gotten away if I kept fighting."

Keslety continued:
"I am just here to discuss with you about this.
Acha Khan,
What you said is true,
Your words have no sophistry.
You said it with all your heart,
That means you are loyal and reliable.

"The Kirgiz warriors and heroes,
Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
I do not take them into account at all.
Kenainym is riding Kankura to approach,
I am going to deal him head-on blows.

"I will not retreat my words,
I will fight against him on my own.
To Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
I also have had my words at first:
Fighting in the battlefield of Talas,
I knocked the three of them down in succession,
And spared them to let them go.

"I also had my words to them:
In front of Kenainym,
I will chop their heads off.
These are not just frightening and crazy words,
You Acha Khan have seen on the field,
I can not conceal myself as well.

"Today Kenainym comes to fight,
I regard him even as inferior to my trouser legs.
I will not let him fight to the second round,
And will stab him down in the first round.

"I heard that Kirgiz women and girls are all superbly pretty,
I will take all of them as spoils.
Kirgiz tribes are connected with each other,
I will kill all the Kirgiz men,
With no one left.

"I will burn their holders of yurts,
As stove poker and turn them into ashes.
I will bring them miserable pain,
And do something they can not forget,
So that I can vent my hate!

"Timirbek and Chounalep,
Stepped on the journey with me,
Both of them were killed by Kenainym,
I will avenge them and ask for the payment of blood debt.

"I will peel off the scalp of Kenainym,
And sprinkle a handful of salt on it.
I will drive pegs on his feet,
And make him pay for what he did.

"I will smash the tomb of Manas,
I will burn Talas into ashes.
I will erase the trace of Manas,
So that no one will mention his name since then.

"I will destroy his castle,
I will tread down his woods,
I will draw the rippling lakes.
I will expel the remain people,
To Khorasan, Isfan and Kangayi,
And assign them to people there as slaves.

"I will let their old suffer,
I will let their kids cry,
I will let their women become maids.
I will take their girls as spoils,
And transport to all the corners in this world.

"I will let their men die without descendants,
I will let their women lose fertility.
I will let all the Arashi people,
Suffer all the privations!

"I will abandon all their old men and women,
To the wild mountain woods along roads.
I will impale their babies' throats,

And hang them on the top of wild willows.

"So long,
Acha Khan,
I am about to meet Kenainym's attack.
I come specially to see you,
Just for telling you something suppressed in my mind."

Keslety rode a yellow steed,
Wore layers of iron armors.
Heavy iron belts were tied around his waist,
Firm and large shield was on his back.

His spear was extremely sharp,
The mace glittered with brilliance.
He took all kinds of weapons,
Which hung all over himself like branches of parasol trees.

Keslety darkened his face with great rage,
He moved all his muscles,
And exerted all his strengths,
Attempting to fight against Kenainym to the death.

Keslety squinted,
Was he a human or a big black bear,
People could not tell clearly.
This supercilious maniac,
Looked down upon Kenainym and his warriors.

Keslety waved the spear and stabbed it to the sky,
His shouts trembled the mountains and the earth like thunderbolts.
He was as a wild beast unthreaded from the ground,
Barbaric roars were sounded from his throat.
He was like a thirsty toad in draught,
Constantly squirming his throat.

Keslety's yellow steed,

Galloped as flying and the wind was raised by it hooves.
This damned baster,
Approached Kenainym.
The six wild dogs following behind,
Madly barked and fiercely bit around.

Keslety rushed to Kenainym,
Without asking Kenainym's name:
"You must be Kenainym,
I am hero Keslety.
I will grind you and your steed,
Into pieces and powder.
I will sprinkle your blood,
To the earth like raindrops.

"Kenainym,
I am coming!
Don't you know that your death is approaching!"

This damned man shouted loudly,
Waving his spear constantly.
He concentrated all his strength,
And fiercely stabbed the spear towards Kenainym.

Kenainym held the battleax tight,
Warding off the spear from the bottom up.
The spear and the battleax clashed into pieces,
The pieces splashed onto the ground.

The fierce tiger Kenainym with white felt cap,
His was an invincible hero.
He never bullied nor deceived,
And never maliciously provoked.
If the enemies bullied Kirgiz brothers,
He would courageously rushed forward right away.
His spear and steed,
Would crumble enemies into dust.

Hero Kenainym with white felt caps,
Held his spear tight and launched and attack,
He aimed at the armpit of the Khorasan man[1],
And vigorously stabbed his spear,
While the spear was broken in the middle,
The hero lost his weapon and was left empty handed.

Kirgiz people had their hearts in their mouths,
Hurriedly they sent a spear into the hero's hand.

Keslety was wicked and merciless,
He seized the chance to pick up the mace.
He barked as a mad dog,
And rushed towards Kenainym.
He held the mace,
And smashed towards the Kirgiz black mane wolf.

The mace made strange sounds,
The whistles were earsplitting.
The mace came in full fury,
Clouds of dust were raised on the ground.
Smokes kept rolling upward,
And rising into the sky.

Kirgiz people cried out in alarm,
Being afraid that Kenainym may be faced with danger.

Kenainym is a battle-hardened hero,
More shrewd than Keslety.
Kenainym was by no means timid,
He met the attack calmly.
He was a hero full of courage.

Facing with the lifting mace,

1 Khorasan man: Here means Keslety.

The black mane wolf did not bat an yield.
He aimed at Keslety's armpit,
And fiercely stabbed a spear,
The spear was rebounded to one side by the hard armor.

At this moment,
The agile Kenainym pierced the spear once again,
The spearhead hurt Keslety's arm.
The muscle of the arm split a span long,
The spearhead impaled the muscle,
And the ligament was injured.

The mace fell down to the ground,
Keslety was greatly frightened.
Kenainym's Kankura Steed,
Bit the snaffle tight,
And dashed to Keslety.

Keslety staggered his wounded body,
Fled to the tent of Khorasan.
Keslety stumbled along for his life,
This huge bear turned into a male goat.
His nares expanded and gasped for breath,
The lower ham of his robe waved in the wind.

Keslety fled to his tent,
Giving vent to his complaints:
"Our chieftain Dabbitay,
We should have herded our livestock,
And stayed at home contentedly.
When Chounalep fled with failure,
We should have recalled our troops.

"We have accepted plentiful gifts from Karamark,
Groups of dromedaries carrying cargoes,
Silvers and golds.
We have accepted bundles of silks and stains,

And superb tea leaves,
For these we became Karamark's vanguard,
Leading troops to attack Talas of Kirgiz.

"We attempted to capture countless livestock,
And turn into men of wealth over night.
We attempted to seize Arashi people as captives,
To take their girls as wives,
To take their men as slaves to herd beasts,
To take their women as maids to wash dishes.

"Khorasan and Isfan are fertile lands,
Our lives are happy, easy and in peace.
We did not enjoy our well-beings,
Why did we come here as a lunatic.

"We addleheaded and corrupted,
Being deceived into the trap.
We come here to look for trouble,
No one thought that was the result.

"We did not notice the way to retreat before,
Now we do not know the way out.
Perhaps we will drain our blood here,
And have our bodies smashed into pieces.
Our wives and kids will cry their hearts out,
Their tears will be like a downpour."

When Keslety just finished his words,
Dabbitay and Acha Khan contradicted at once.
Acha Khan of Isfan started in advance:
"Keslety,
Listen to me,
Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
The three were released one after another by you Keslety.

"Now Kenainym comes to meet the attack,

It is indeed your turn to suffer.
You have spared them once,
Why the Kirgiz have no mercy on you today?
Do not think a lot of wealth,
That will cut short your normal span of life.

"We mobilized the forces to come to Talas,
Are we really willing to endure Kenainym's humiliation,
And dejectedly return?

"You enjoyed in affluence in Khorasan,
It was us who supported you considerately.
Now it is the time for you to show others,
About your strength.

"As long as you are not dead,
We will fight against them.
Thinking of fleeing upon seeing Kirgiz,
Is that proper for you to say those words?

"If not stabbing with spears,
And not doggedly grapple,
How can we defeat enemies?

"Keslety,
Now you are still alive,
And you said those despondent words,
Did you lose your sense of shame?

"With regards to me and Dabbitay as a man,
You Keslety know very well.
Confronting with enemies,
We never flee.
Keslety,
If you do not fill disgraced,
Just leave the battlefield as you wish."

Following Acha Khan's words,
Dabbitay added fuel to the fire:
"Keslety,
You have considered yourself no ordinary being,
You have said many brave words.
But today you insist to flee for your life,
Where is your self-respect?

"Keslety,
You are no more than a warrior,
But I am a khan in charge.
You should know our relations,
Do not make irresponsible remarks.

"Today you can return to the tent and have a rest,
But tomorrow you shall go back to the battlefield,
And continue to fight against Kirgiz.

"You shall hold Zoykuma tight,
That is a sharp and treasured clean steel sword.
You shall chop the arrogant Kenainym,
Into half from the top of his head.
If you can not persist in the fight,
I will be your prop and give you support.

"You have been living for forty years,
Staying at home without doing anything.
All your living expenses,
Were afforded by my silently.

"Keslety,
Now you shall make your move,
And repay for the salt you have eaten[①].

1 Salt been eaten: In Kirgiz language it is an idiom meaning "the love and care received from childhood".

"You often sing your own praises,
What you said is difficult to distinguish the genuine and fake.
Why don't you flaunt yourself today?
How much power do you have,
I will observe and measure carefully tomorrow.

"Do not assume that we may flee for our lives,
This is my response.
As long as I am alive,
How could I step on the way of escape?

"When Acha Khan said his words,
I was weighing and considering,
I was listening carefully.
Keslety,
Didn't you understand?
He was mocking at you.

"I Dabbitay am a hero,
And I thought you are more brave than me.
I expected that in battles,
You could be my reliable prop.
I never thought that your first proposal,
Was to withdraw troops and desert in face of the fights.

"I must defeat Kirgiz,
In front of the people of Isfan.
If I did not trust you at the beginning,
How could I come here with you?

"When Karamark sent the presents,
I accepted in the first time as a khan.
You were also ahead of others,
And accepted their first gifts.
No matter when and where,
You always stood in front of others.
If it was not because of your title of hero,

How could you enjoy these honors!

"Keslety,
Listen,
We will not retreat until defeating Kirgiz,
The war here will continue.
If we are lack of forces,
The supplement shall be recruit from the folks.
I shall make the tiny Kirgiz,
At their wits end.

"I shall make the pompous Kirgiz,
Lose their steeds and walk on foot,
Bustle about and exhausted.
The swaggering men shall wash my dishes,
And the pretty girls shall bear my kids.
"If I can not do these,
How could I live up to the deceased Chounalep's legacy?

"Chounalep has told me,
That to Khitan and Kirgiz,
We can not be softhearted.
If treating a Khitan well,
He will chop you by a hay cutter instead.
If treating a Kirgiz well,
He will loot your livestock and steed instead.

"I have heard these personally,
And still remember clearly.
I always do what I say,
I will never recall troops at this point,
I will never leave Talas even for one inch."

Hearing Dabbitay's words,
Keslety did not mention withdrawing anymore,
Lowering his head without saying a word.

Hero Kenainym on the other side,
Did not chase the runaway foe,
Keslety did not return to the battlefield,
Kenainym stopped waiting on the spot as well.
He turned the horse's head around,
And walked towards the tomb of Manas,
He would worship the spirit of the tiger Manas.
All those people followed Kenainym,
And headed for the Saint tomb in formidable array.

People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Thought that Kirgiz had fled,
All the forces went to pursuit,
But they were seeking the Death for themselves.

Kirgiz Folks Defended Homeland in Joint Forces

Two Heroes Sacrificed in the First Battle against Khorasan

People of Khorasan and Isfan marched towards Sear,
They contemplated in their mind:
"We have to capture Sear,
Loot their livestock and wealth,
And befall destructive disasters to Kirgiz."

Ninety warriors guarding the palace,
Were all crack and prominent.
Each of them could fight against one thousand enemies.
No matter firing guns or shooting arrows,
No matter killing or hustling,
They were all capable,
And proficient.
Among them there were highly-skilled spearmen,
As well as powerful axemen.
Sixty people made up a team,
They mounted the steed and went out to meet the attack.

The chieftain was called Torsoldoy,
He led the troops and loudly shouted.
Shouting the name of Manas.
Fiercely he launched an attack towards enemies.

Hearing the roar of sixty warriors,
Hero Salamart mounted and walked forward.
He saw the enemies were like swarms of beetles,
Or countless crawling ants,
Overwhelmingly launching an attack.

Six warriors dashed into the enemies,
The bullets were like hails,
And the arrows dense raindrops.
Jazayle Guns fired,
And Ochikuer Canons thundered.
The arrows whistled as leaving the bowstrings,
Baran Guns deafened ears.
The earth was shaken,
The mountains collapsed and rocks tumbled,
The waves of lakes ran high.

To capture Sear,
People of Khorasan and Isfan charged in turns.
Gunpowder burned and clouds of smoke floated,
Shots reverberated and bullets flew.
Dust pervaded on the earth,
Grasses were burned into ashes.
Branches were broken by gunshots,
Bullet holes spread over the boles.

In a pinch,
From the back of people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Deafening shouts raised.
Salamart as the son of Sartbayi,
Rushed into the enemies like a flying arrow.
He surpassed all the Kirgiz,
Rushed into Khorasan and Isfan crowds in front of others.

Three heroes arrived at the battlefield in succession,
Bagetebay dashed forward on his red steed,
The white-haired yellow steed of martial Suyin came in great force,
Choulfanbay was as a raging fire blazing.
In order to guard the safety of compatriots,
They discouraged the folks from arbitrarily going into the war.

Salamart and Keslety intensively fought.
Chasing, killing and stabbing the sharp spears.

Salamart was swift,
Highly skilled and experienced.
He left his life behind,
And mercilessly grappled.

Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
The three heroes rushed without a stop,
To kill enemies with the sixty warriors.
Khorasan and Isfan soldiers were utterly routed,
As shocked flocks of sheep they fled in disorder.

The hot-blooded heroes became more courageous as the battle progressed,
The spearhead was stained with blood,
The black earth was incarnadined.
People of Khorasan and Isfan were scared to death,
The vast world became more and more narrow.
The defeated troops fell apart,
The injured soldiers fled in fright.
One hundred and seventy soldiers among them,
Fell in the abyss in panic.

Hero Bagetebay burned with anger,
Urging the steed to chase enemies.
Acha Khan had found him at an early time,
Hiding behind a hummock.

Bagetebay galloped forward without notice,
Acha Khan attacked from his back.
This wild beast stabbed Bagetebay,
Off from his saddle at one blow.

Hero Suyin was axious upon seeing this,
Whipping the white-haired yellow steed to rescue.
The white-haired yellow steed was in its mood,
Galloping forward at full speed.

Hearing the sounds of rushing hooves,
Acha Khan hurriedly turned the horse's head,
And blocked Suyin's way,
Before the hero Suyin could attack,
He was stabbed down at one blow.

Willing to save families at the cost of his own life,
Choulfanbay urged the steed to rush to the field.
Acha Khan was waiting for his arrival,
Standing there and encountering Choulfanbay head-on.
Choulfanbay violently stabbed his spear towards Acha Khan,
The lofty beast was attacked but kept his body unmoved.

When Choulfanbay brushed past,
Acha Khan impetuously pierced the spear from back.
Choulfanbay left the horseback,
Dropping to the ground as a fur cap.
Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
The three heroes were stricken down in succession by Acha Khan.

Acha Khan proudly turned the horse's head around,
Intending to keep fighting against other warriors,
The Lion Kenainym arrived in front of him at this point.
Encountering the Yellow-faced Death Kenainym face to face,
Acha Khan became terrified,
Thinking that his doomed day was inevitably coming.

Hero Kenainym loudly roared,
Kankura Steed galloped forward,
And launched a fierce attack towards Acha Khan.

Hero Kenainym loudly shouted,
Never hearing such a majestic voice,
Acha Khan was panic-stricken and half-dead with fright,
Trembling all over with no stop.

Acha Khan wanted to escape but was afraid of ruining his fame,

At this juncture,
He had no choice but to brace himself and dash forward.
The frightened Acha Khan,
Waved his spear and stabbed towards Kenainym.
The Lion Kenainym did not care,
Standing on the spot without a move.

Acha Khan's spear was tangled by the robe,
It could not impale nor been extracted.
Acha Khan used all his strength to pull the spear out,
While almost broke his ribs because of overexerting himself.
He had no other ways but to drop his spear,
And seize the chance to leave Kenainym.

Acha Khan had no energy to keep fighting,
While he could not find a place to hide,
He had no alternative but to flee to the camp of Isfan.
The mountainous hero Kenainym,
Did not chase behind.

He drove the steeds of three heroes,
To their sides,
The three heroes remounted the saddles.
They were narrowly killed by Acha Khan,
It was Lion Kenainym who saved their lives.

The warriors risked their lives to fight,
And protected the safety of Kirgiz folks.
Most people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Lost their lives.

Hero Salamart and Keslety,
Were still fighting fiercely.
All the weapons were damaged in the war,
They barefistedly hustled.
Unarmed with empty hands.
They furiously roared like thunders,

The shouts frightened all others.

Look,
On their face,
The beard standing upright could be knitted into a pair of socks.
They kept roaring,
The two men grappling.

Between the two rivals,
Flames of war raged,
Clouds of dust pervaded the air,
Their eyelids,
Were full of white ashes.
The two men glared with enraged eyes,
Vexed at not being able to peel each other alive.

Sometimes they slashed each other with whips,
Viciously assaulted with skin cut open and flesh torn.
Sometimes they stretched arms,
To severely punch each other in succession.
The two sides were dead beat,
Gasping with mouth parched and tongue scorched.

Sometimes they grasped the rival's collars,
Tearing the robe of each other.
Sometimes they seized the rival's belt,
Vexed at not being able to tumble each other to his death.

They rolled up the loose lower hem of clothes,
Dragging the trouser legs of each other.
They exerted all their strength,
And grasped the foe's arm tight.
They attempted to tumble each other,
While no one got his wish.

They were locked together in the struggle,
And no one got the upper hand.

They reluctantly mounted the horses,
And picked up the spears when turning around.
They fiercely dashed over to stab each other,
Neither would give in.

Both of them were wounded by spearheads,
Blood flew downwards.
Their eyes turned red and face dark,
They simmered with rage,
And seethed with hatred.

They fought from morning to night,
And tortureed their own short lives.
It was at the sunset,
That they started to cease fighting and return to rest.

Keslety got back to his people of Isfan,
Could not help complaining tearfully:
"Who knew that all the Kirgiz are heroes,
Even teenagers know how to wave spears.
Their powerful giants have inestimable strength.
Each Kirgiz is a lion,
Not minding to fight against large armies.

"Facing with countless heroes and giants,
Kenainym did not take them into account.
Qiktay of Karamark,
Big ears Chounalep,
And their sons Saranja and Sakta,
Which one of them was not a powerful giant?
Kenainym himself alone,
Defeated them one after another,
And let them fall to embrace the earth.

"And Shalekmat wearing the Iron overcoat,
Copper navel Kekmat,
Timirbek of Tajik,

Were all sent to the Death as gift by Kenainym.
I feel extremely sad for them,
And can not help crying as contrary to my usual practice.

"Kirgiz youth,
Energetic and restless.
To offend Kirgiz,
Will lead to endless disasters.

"Their men are strong as red elephants,
And as mad as vapors when getting furious.
They treat each other as equal,
It is hard to find their leader.

"Their women are virtuous,
Their girls are treasures.
Their women behaved elegantly,
And their wives above the ordinary.
It is hard to tell who is poor or who is rich,
The jewelries they wear are equally rare.
The old will not be angry with the youth,
The youth will not disrespect the old.
The men will not vent their anger on women,
And there is no rowdy drunkard.

"It is hard to find who is their khan!
And there is no tame flatterer.
They act fairly to all no matter he is rich or poor,
Treating each other equally no matter he is great or humble.

"They wear gorgeously,
Their saddles are extremely delicate.
Folks as Kirgiz,
Are difficult to find in other places.

"Khan Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Please think about it.

They charged and roared,
As howling wolves.
If we fight against troops like them,
Who knows where we may end up?

"I have fought against Salamart for two times,
Failed to figure out who got the upper hand,
If Kenainym gets on the battlefield,
We are destined to bleed all over.

"This ethnic group is unusual,
They are full of resources and cunning tricks.
When we bode our time,
They led the folks to worship before the tomb.
When the castle was empty we besieged it,
And they hit out with little forces,
To lead us to somewhere desolate.

"They did not let us notice,
And quietly sent the message to Kenainym.
Bagetebay was stabbed down by Acha Khan,
Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Fearlessly rushed forward,
These show that they are both brave and resourceful.

"Acha Khan and Dabbitay,
Let us discuss in earnest.
We had better leave this place,
And slowly return to our homelands.

"As long as Khorasan and Isfan stand together,
We can get new recruits every day,
How can their power match us?

"They have five heroes,
We have to try to separate them from their folks.
We will lead them far from their local place,

If they do not lead large forces,
And only five heroes present,
We will break their spines,
And kill all of them.

"If they lead the troops and expedite as we do,
Then they are no more than courting death.
They are not like us having plentiful grains,
Unable to take enough food,
They will starve to death on the battlefield.

"Kirgiz live an abundant life,
The folks sing and laugh without sorrow or anxiety.
Once their life get worse by just a little bit,
The folks will complain at the top of their voices.

"The utensils and equipment of Kirgiz are simple,
Sometimes it is difficult for them to find a rope.
They do nothing except for herding and fighting,
And no one has admonished them.

"Hails is nothing to Kirgiz,
They do not take hails into account at all.
Even when it rains and the wind blows hard,
They will not hide in the yurts.
They drink grease as beverage,
And never put cold food in their mouths.

"As long as we guard the nice and cool places,
And keep them from resting there.
Neither let them go to the places where breeze blows,
And besiege them under the scorching sun.
They can not find yogurt or milk to quench their thirsts,
And each one of them will sweat as being burned,
Lying on the ground as the crops in the draught.
At that time Kirgiz will suffer a lot,
So that they can accept our conditions.

Otherwise in such a cool place,
It is hard for us to control them.

"The homeland of Kirgiz is full of water,
The meadow is fertile,
Livestock and milks are everywhere.
The white milk and kumis are better than medicine,
It will prolong lives if kept being drunk.

"This place grows herb all around.
The snow cocks were precious birds at first,
But here they exist everywhere,
And leaving their traces all over the ground.
The meat of snow cocks can provide nutrition,
The female argali meat will enhance power,
The meat of deer can strengthen muscles.

"In Khorasan and Isfan there is no wild badger,
We can not find the precious badger guts.
The blue meat of bald eagles can cure backaches,
And it is also rare in our regions.
They will not eat their meat,
Only extract their bile as medicine.
Wild male goats are also abundant here,
Eat its meat will remove internal heat,
And will be effective in protecting skins and preventing smallpox.

"Leopards can be seen everywhere,
Even one bite of their meat,
Will enhance one's strength.

"The wolf packs bite each other,
Chasing and galloping in the valleys.
If someone who has a sore throat,
The gut of wolves will be a panacea.

"All the valleys have foxes,

These are endless wealth.
Making medicine from bile of foxes,
The wound will not fester and will be cured soon.

"Lynxes are of a large amount here,
All those women wore lynx fur coats.
Even our respected khan and queen,
Can not wear so luxuriously.

"White-neck minks habitat here,
Acha Khan and Dabbitay,
You keep looking for martens.
Damned Kirgiz,
Even women wear the marten coats.
Although there are a lot of wild otters,
They said it emits stinks.
In Kirgiz eyes,
All the otter skins are not worth a damn and will be thrown.

"No other places,
Will be richer than the land where Kirgiz live.
The pine trees are thick and green all over the slopes,
Like guards towering aloft on the ridges.
Aspens are not even superb trees in this place,
People will not even spare a glance for them.

"They use red twigs,
To make delicate handle of whips.
The green wild willows thrive,
Straight birches grow straightly into the sky,
The boxthorn wood is harder than iron.

"All the forage grasses can be used as herbs,
Gazelles grasses and Mamir grasses,
Countless roots are all medicines.
Shilarjin grasses and Boznach grasses,
Thistles and dandelions,

Are all good medicine to stop bleeding.

"Poisonous wormwood, tarragons and Bilsarla grasses,
Are hard to find when curing edema.
All these herbs have their miracle effects,
And are fine medicine curing all kinds of diseases.

"The little yellow Qiqikay,
Is an anesthetic no worse than poppies.
Felon herbs and sweet wormwood,
Boil them in water and use the water to take a shower,
Even rubella can be cured.

"Kolie and Kulipsher herbs,
Can often be seen here as well.
Liquorice and bitter artemisia here,
Can not be found in our places at all.
The herbs here are all over the mountains and plains,
They just do not take them as medicine.

"Eagle and owls,
Vultures and carves,
These fowls are not eaten by them at all.
Badger furs and sheepskins,
Are not used by Kirgiz.

"Wild otters and dog furs,
Are not approached by others.
The sheep wool cut by them,
Are randomly thrown away when they relocate.
No one will pack them up,
Or even cast a glance at them.

"Many rivers traverse here,
They do not dig canals and irrigate,
Sowing crops depending only on rains,
Will not make the crops die out of draught.

This place will not suffer from blizzard,
The grains ripened are piled as a hill.

"Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
You can ask yourselves,
We fight against them in this place,
How can we defeat Kirgiz?"

When Keslety talked,
Dabbitay and Acha Khan listened quietly,
They did not know how to respond,
Scratching their heads without a sound.

If telling the truth straightly,
Dabbitay and Acha Khan is asking for troubles,
They accepted the livestock of Karamarks,
And were deceived by their gold, silver and jewelries.
They walked their way to the Death by themselves,
They must be willing even to court destruction.
Tajik had been tricked,
Timirbek just died in front of their eyes.

In this unpredictable world,
Sometimes the charming fragrance would fool people.
The hogs for gaining gold, silver and livestock,
Would eventually cut their own throats.
It was difficult to distinguish true or false in this world,
People sometimes would be driven into the last ditch.

They thought they were khans,
Thought except Talas,
Kirgiz had nowhere to settle down.
As long as capturing Talas,
Kirgiz will fled for their lives.

In this shadowy world,
They would not flee panic until they were faced with death.

If not at this supreme moment,
They would not understand this world.
Everyone would leave regrets.
When the Death approached,
The mortals had nothing to do.

Keslety, Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
The three of them looked at each other in speechless despair,
Rendered speechless and at a loss.
Dabbitay and Acha Khan recovered from being scared,
Summoning others to discuss.

Acha Khan spoke in a hurry,
His tongue became stiff with a lisp:
"Since I Acha Khan was well-known,
I was chosen as khan,
Administrating the folks for over two decades.
Isfan folks lived in peace,
And never expedited outside.

"But I Acha Khan was obsessed with money,
And deceived by Karamark's gold.
I accepted gold and livestock,
And granted their terms.

"I thought that I was an unmatched hero,
And promised to dispatch armies to attack Kirgiz.
I did not realized at that time,
That Kenainym can take my life.

"They talked about giving me gold and livestocks,
And about giving me beautiful girls,
Such rich men with generosity as they said,
I did not know where to find them!

"As the old saying goes:
'People of our own side will not kill us',

We had better return to Isfan,
And steer by the disaster depending on the folks.

"If Dabbitay agrees to my words,
Khorasan and Isfan unite together,
We withdraw and dig some pitfalls,
Then we have the chance indeed to beat Kirgiz.

"Hero Kenainym and Salamart,
Bagetebay, Suyin and Choulfanbay,
They will trace us and follow behind.
We will become hunters at that time,
And be sure of success in no hurry,
Capturing all the remained few Kirgiz.

"Dabbitay,
Please say something,
If you have a wonderful foresight."

Hearing these words,
Dabbitay was enraged,
And in a blaze of passion:
"The khan of Isfan Acha Khan,
The words you just spoke,
Was not what a human should have said!

"The exhausted Keslety spoke sheer nonsense,
Saying that the enemies we fought against,
Are all intelligent and tough.
Saying that the trees and roots growing here,
Are all panacea that can prolong lives.
What he said was sheer nonsense,
As a pile of shit!

"We trudged and put ourselves out of the way,
Coming here specially for the punitive expedition.
We have not conquered the cunning Kirgiz yet,

How dare we think about retreat!
If we can not defeat them when attacking their home,
How dare we lead our troops and return in this way!
Once we withdraw the troops,
Kirgiz will chase us to our homelands.

"Kirgiz here originally,
Has not invaded Khorasan and Isfan,
Big ears Chounalep played tricks,
To deceive us.

"Timirbek was more stupid than us,
He was fooled without knowing the truth,
And went to fight on impulse,
Losing his life and perish from the earth.

"Kenainym did not hurt Timirbek's troops,
And let them be back to their homeland.
Even a horse whip of Tajiks,
He did not take it as his spoil of the fight.

"Just as Kenainym said by himself,
He will not attack,
Unless he is attacked.
If someone come to provoke him,
He will never show mercy,
And his words have been proved.

"Heroes as Big ears Chounalep,
Saranja, and Sakta,
Were also devoured one after another by Kenainym.
Karamark folks were released to their homeland,
Even their handle of whips were not been touched.

"Kirgiz thought,
The ordinary soldiers have no duty,
They only punished the khan and powerful giants,

Along with the chieftains.

"We have known the power of Kirgiz,
If they are led to our lands,
There will be more chaos and wars.
They will devour our leaders,
With no one left.
And will do nothing to our folks,
What will happen at that time?

"If we die in Talas,
The folks will be condolent upon hearing the bad news.
While if we flee back and die,
We will gain the bad name as deserters.

"Kirgiz did not invade us,
Why did you invade them?
Why did you ally with Karamark and expedite?
The old will query like this.

"The families of those sacrificed soldiers,
Will settle the accounts with us as a large crowd,
The folks of the tribes will blame us.
My brothers,
Rather than that,
We had better lose our lives in this place.

"We have to muster our courage and not dread,
Swearing to fight against Kirgiz to the death.
We must not lead the Kirgiz,
To spoil our folks in homeland."

Dabbitay cared about the safety of his folks,
And spoke out what he thought.
Acha Khan and Keslety had no other opinions,
They did not sleep all night with shame and remorse,
And got over the night in discussion.

The Kirgiz Salamart,
Suffered as if it was the doomsday.
His muscles and bones were seemed to be smashed,
The joints of his body were pricked.
His bones were like falling apart,
With arms and legs unable to move.

Suffering the unbearable pain over night,
He opened his eyes the whole night.
Countless decocted herbs,
Were drunken by him without rejection.

Finally the day broke,
The sun rose to illuminate the earth.
Mountainous Keslety,
Came to the battlefield alone and provoked.

The tiger Kenainym,
Was about to mount Kankura and meet the attack,
Salamart knotted the horsetail one step ahead,
And urged the steed to rushed in the front.

Salamart and Keslety desperately fought,
They waved the spear to stab,
They held the battleax to chop,
They extracted the sabre to cut,
And smashed the mace towards each other.

They exerted all their strength,
And dragged the lower hem of each other's clothes.
Sometimes they suddenly grasped the rival's collars and tore,
Some other times they suddenly dismounted with shoulders against shoulders,
Hustling and grappling.
They held the belts of each other tight,
Trying to stumbling each other down.

They pressed close to each other,
Bent down,
And glared at each other without a blink.

Their mouth parched and tongue scorched,
They were both exhausted,
Having no choice but to sit on the ground for a short break,
And then mount the horse and continue to fight.
They wore the chest protectors,
And tied the thick iron belts.

They boiled with anger,
And constantly roared,
They grappled till the dusk.
It was already late and the sun started to set,
The two sides returned to their camps.

The sun rose from the east the next day,
The sunshine illuminated the earth,
Keslety did not show up,
Dabbitay mounted the horse to fight instead.

"Leave it to me!"
Bagetebay itched to try.
Receiving Kenainym's wish,
Bagetebay went to the battlefield.

Dabbitay was an astute hero,
He was a lion that could never be stemmed,
He could bravely defeat the attack of large forces,
He was a reliable khan of Khorasan.

He was good at using spears,
He could bleed the most powerful enemies.
He was a battle-scared hero,
He blamed Keslety for his cowardice.
He let Acha Khan admire him from the heart,

Only because of his eloquence.

Khan Dabbitay and Bagetebay,
Pitched into the battle face to face.
Spear against spear,
The horse's heads turned around after one round.

The two heroes as two flames,
Fiercely fought with hatred.
They hustled till the sun went westward.
Dabbitay had sharp eyes and agile hands,
Warding off Bagetebay's piercing spear.

Dabbitay did not touch by the spearhead,
And rapidly stabbed towards Bagetebay.
Bagetebay was like a fleabane,
Falling down from the purplish red horse.

Suyin was anxious upon seeing this,
Urging the white-haired yellow steed to gallop forward.
How could Suyin stand by,
He faced with the mountainous Dabbitay,
And violently stabbed his spear towards the fat haunch,
The sharp spearhead hit the haunch,
The wound was a span wide.
The Kirgiz hero Suyin,
Stained his spear with Dabbitay's blood.

The Khorasan Khan Dabbitay,
Simmered with rage,
And darkened his face.
He did not let Bagetebay hit him,
But was injured by Suyin's spear.
He felt ashamed,
Like a dappled snake haunting on the slopes,
He became even more vicious and fierce.

Dabbitay mustered his courage,
He held up the sharp wolf-tongue spear,
Rushed towards Suyin and stabbed.
The spearhead impaled from Suyin's lateral waist,
His two kidneys were all punctured.
The pretentious Suyin,
Fell from horseback like a fleabane.

Dabbitay was completely mad,
Dashing about like a starving wolf,
The growing osprey Suyin,
Lost life in his hand.

Choulfanbay came at this time,
And encountered Dabbbitay.
Dabbitay's face turned ghastly pale,
He was utterly discomfited,
Boiled with rage.

Dabbitay had a fierce face,
Ominous glint was in his eyes,
It looked hideous,
And ferocious.

Dabbitay injured his haunch,
And casualties aggregated to several thousand.
The flames of hatred blazed in his heart,
He could not take his life into account.
Without hesitation he turned around and kept killing,
He had to end Choulfanbay's life.

Choulfanbay stabbed the spear,
Dabbitay warded off by his spear.
He aimed at the upper part of Choulfanbay's bladder,
And fiercely stabbed his spear.
Choulfanbay as a fleabane,
Flew off the horseback and fell down afar to the ground.

He propped himself by struggling hands,
And suddenly fell and died.

Salamart rushed straightly to the battlefield without request,
Seeing Salamart coming to meet the attack,
Dabbitay started to talk as follows:
"Salamart,
You are a hero,
But you did not inherit your father's last wish,
You were dippy and lost your bearings.

"Your great-grandfather is Badikole,
He is the khan of the people of Monget.
He and Arokai, Dohan, Shawruk,
The peers contacted frequently.

"Manas is a bloodthirsty maniac of Kirgiz,
Befalling the doomsday on Badikole.
Your great-grandfather left all his folks and lands,
To Karmanap.

"Badikole's son Madkule,
Had one eye on his forehead.
He was ferocious as a demon,
And inherited his father's last wish,
To let the lost folks return to the homeland.

"Semtay as the son of Manas,
Brazenly led troops to invade Monget.
He killed Madkule,
And let his soldiers loot the palace.

"He dismissed the folks of Madkule,
Made Baran and Shakay pay allegiance to Kirgiz.
And all the tribes were assigned to Karmanap,
They took your herds of horses.
And sent them to Bagsh Hero.

"Your grandfather Madkule,
Strong and lofty,
Was an incredible hero.
His wife was no ordinary woman,
They bore your father Sartbayi.
He was born strong and tough as a rock,
Even spears could not impale his body.
He bent on looting Talas,
And avenged his grandfather and his father.

"Sartbayi led his folks to Talas,
Semtay and his son Seytek,
Along with all the Kirgiz with white felt caps,
They could not defeat Sartbayi.
From the the untraversed desert,
They asked Kuyale to come to help.

"Your father Sartbayi,
Was stabbed by Kuyale and died.
This woman named Kuyale,
Was a heroine being well-known.

"Seytek married Kuyale,
Then had a son called Kenainym.
He was known as Yellow-faced Death for this strength.
Strong warriors in the world,
Died in his hand in sequence.

"Mysterious woman Ayichulek,
She adopted Jezbliek as their daughter.
They married their adopted daughter to you,
And you were lured to be their daughter's husband.

"Kenainym will not let you survive,
Salamart,
If you do not believe,

Just try by saying something unpleasant to hear.

"You married an adopted daughter and trod on air,
While were kept in the dark.
Thinking that they handed over Karakalepak and Tukuman,
To you on a platter.

"When your Sartbayi passed away,
You were still in your mother's belly.
Your mother was afraid that the Kirgiz would hurt you,
And did not tell you the truth,
You do not know your real identity to this day.

"Did Jezbliek bear any child?
Did you marry other women?
If you still have no kid,
You will be the last of your family line.

"Kirgiz killed your three ancestors,
While you joined their family and became their daughter's husband,
How could you sleep in peace without nightmares?

"You Salamart is a man with no dignity,
I am your peer about the same age,
I often heard the old talking about your stories."

When Salamart was a boy,
He seemed to have heard someone talking about the past.
When he grew up,
No one told him ever about this,
Now Dabbitay briefly,
Explained the entire story to him.

Salamart remained completely unmoved upon hearing this,
Determined to mercilessly fight against Dabbitay.
They waved the spears,
And fiercely stabbed each other.

One was a highly skilled warrior,
The other was a powerful hero,
The two men pitched into an unprecedented war.

One stabbed the other,
The other warded off by the spear.
They sometimes held the battleax to chop,
And some other times waved the sabre shining with cold light.
They held up the maces with both hands,
And exerted all their strengths,
To smash towards each other's head.

Their robes were torn into pieces,
And armor split.
They put in all their energies,
To pull the belt apart,
And drag the clothes of each other.

To win a hero's dignity,
Two warriors did not slack off.
The heartless and cruel Dabbitay,
Launched a violent attack regardless of his own life.
Salamart felt dizzy,
And almost exhausted all his strength.

Dabbitay was intelligent and intrepid,
Highly skilled in riding.
This man excelling in military drills,
Warded off Salamart's battleax,
By his spear with strength.

The mountainous Salamart,
Launched a fierce attack with all his might.
He aimed at the waist of the rival,
And vigorously stabbed forward,
The spearhead did not touch the rival's vital part,
And neither did it impale his armor.

Dabbitay turned around suddenly,
And stabbed Salamart's soft part fiercely.
Who could bear Dabbitay's heavy attack?
And still sit on horseback after being hit!
Salamart was like landslide,
Falling down from saddle with thundering sound.

Kenainym Defeated the Allied Troops Three Criminals Fled for Lives

This time if Dabbitay counterattacked,
Salamart would have died with no doubt.
While at this vital moment,
Kenainym saved Salamart's life.

Dabbitay stabbed Salamart down from horseback,
Kenainym was extremely anxious upon seeing this.
He shouted the name of Manas,
And urged Kankura Steed to gallop forward,
Clouds of dust was raised behind.

Hearing Kenainym's shouts,
Dabbitay was struck with panic,
It was too late for him to stab Salamart for a second time.
Not as killing Choulfanbay and Suyin,
He could not slit the belly of Salamart.
Salamart did not get injured,
Experienced a false alarm and saved his life.

Dabbitay reined the horse at this moment,
Asked the rival just coming to the field:
"You are riding a bright yellow steed with black horsehair,
The knitted horsetail is raised upward,
Who are you exactly in such haste?
I have never seen before,
That there is anyone who looks like you?

"Your face is contorted with anger and your shouts thunder,
Your face is paled.

You are glaring askant,
Filled with hatred and rage,
If fighting on the battlefield,
You will definitely be lenient.

"You roared the name of Manas,
Disturbing his peace underground.
Let alone your ruthlessness to the livings,
Even the dead will be awaken by your shouts!"

Kenainym answered in this way:
"Dabbitay,
You have already felt afraid,
Dare not stab your spear towards me.
I am riding the faint yellow horse with black horsehair,
Its name is Kankura,
I will become stronger when mounting its back.

"My face is pale,
And I leave no mercy on my foes.
My shouts thunder and my face ablaze with rage,
I look at enemies askant with hatred,
These are my natures inherited from forefathers.

"People call me the Yellow-faced Death,
You are courting death when confronting with me.
Now that you can not wait to end your life,
I will surely take you to your rest.
I treat enemies with ruthless hatred,
I treat folks with endless love.

"My ancestor is Manas,
A rare hero with well-known fame.
A man like you,
If hearing his name,
Will be scared of even going outside,
And will pee on the bed.

"You asked who I am,
My name is Kenainym,
You such a babbling Khorasan man,
Why did you lead troops here and provoke?

"I have never invaded your homeland,
I have never looted your livestock,
Neither have I taken your gold.
You were deceived and lured by Karamark,
Commanding the armies to invade us.
Even I said these to you,
Do not think that I fear of meeting your attack.

"Your people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Had better withdraw and be back before it is too late,
You shall act thoughtfully.

"I will not attack,
Unless I am attacked,
This is the rule from ancestors.
If someone leads armies to offend,
His head will be chopped and his blood drained.
This is the instruction of our heroic forefathers,
We did not forget and hand down it from age to age.

"How many warriors have invaded Kangayi,
There was none of them who won and survived.
Three Karamark basters not long ago,
Intruded into this place from three sides,
Shalekmat in Iron overcoat,
Copper navel Kekmat and Big ears Choun,
They fiercely launch the war,
While ended in losing their lives here and utterly disgraced.

"Soldiers of Karamark had no responsibilities,
They were forced by the khan to expedite.
We did not capture any spoils of war,

And released them to ride back.

"Timirbek came ahead of you,
Losing his head and coming for troubles.
His death made the folks free from disasters,
And we let their troops return to their homeland.

"Powerful giants Saranja, Sakta,
And many warriors of Big ears Choun,
All died in the hand of me Kenainym,
No one was able to survive.
While I still released their armies,
And did not capture their properties.

"Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Please accept my admonishment.
If you fight for vain glory,
You will die in vain and can not return alive.
Your heads will be like a stone,
Being abandoned in the gobi desert.
While soldiers will be like Karamark and Tajik,
To flee back to their homeland.

"When my ancestor Manas was still alive,
Khan Qinacha of Afghan,
Acted in collusion with Karamarks,
And brazenly pitched into the war against Kirgiz.
Isfan and Khorasan also colluded with them.
Dispatched troops to fight against Kirgiz,
And were much more vicious than Karamarks.

"Afghan, Isfan and Khorasan,
Were defeated in succession by Manas,
Although you went and sought refuge with Karamark,
Manas did not take a revenge,
Did not call to account,
And did not invade your lands.

"Now you lead troops to come to challenge,
Playing the role of Karamark's slaves.
I shall accord to the last will of my ancestors,
To thoroughly think about your futures.

"Dabbitay,
If you withdraw your armies,
I will not intercept,
I will not chase to your homeland.
I will make all your ways unobstructed,
And let you return safe and sound.

"You were deceived by Karamarks,
But I will not call to account.
If you obsessively insist on fighting against me,
I will not yield to you on any account.
I will be like a goat grazing on the hill,
Uprooting the Tana grasses in spring,
And you will definitely be devoured with no mercy.

"Dabbitay,
You can make a choice,
If you are determined to go back,
Then do not delay to set off.
Dabbitay,
If you decide to keep fighting,
Then speak ahead if you have any words!"

When Kenainym talked,
Dabbitay had aready grasped the collars of the Death.
Dabbitay fell into the trap made by himself,
Thus never thought about leading his armies to go back.

Dabbitay conceitedly shouted:
"Kenainym,
You kept speaking nonsense,

Saying people of Isfan and Khorasan,
Were deceived by Karamarks,
You are talking sheer nonsense.
I am a slave of wealth in your eyes,
Cheated by the money of Karamark.
It seems that I will hang back in front of you,
And flee as a drowned rat.
While you Kenainym,
Care about your folks with endless kindness.

"I will press your shoulders to the ground,
I will loot Kirgiz for seven times,
As to take revenge on your ancestors of seven generations.
If I fail to realize my vow,
Just let me Dabbitay become disgraced,
And go to the hell!

"I shall let your women and kids,
Become widows and orphans,
Homeless and crying out loudly;
I shall let your old men,
Become lonely and helpless;
I shall let your old women,
Cry and unable to draw themselves up;
I shall let your babies,
Starve to death alive in the cradles;
I shall let your young couples,
Fall into the abysses on the way of escape.

"I shall grasp your youths as slaves,
And let them die in labour and famine!
I shall make your camels trek in the deserts,
And let them fall down in the vast gobi for tiredness.
I shall let all your steeds,
Die during expelling.

"I shall loot all your properties,

And squander your money as I wish,
I shall cruelly torture your folks.
I will do as I said,
These words are all true without any lies.

"Kenainym,
You asked me to retreat once you came to this battlefield,
Could it be that you are scared,
And helpless ask me to withdraw the troops?
You thought I Dabbitay am such a fool,
And can not understand your purpose?

"I will not return with bare hands,
I will take all your horses.
Do not use your sweet words,
To hide the truth that you are afraid of fights.

"You strike an attitude on the surface,
While timid and scared in your heart,
This is your habitual tricks.
Kenainym,
Do not hesitate,
Do not lose time for me to fight against you.
Do not think that you can persuade me by your words,
And impede me from taking any actions.
I know everything from the beginning to the end,
I grasp all the things you consider in your heart.
It is just that you dare not say it face to face,
And that is my response to your words."
Dabbitay roared and waved his spear,
Launching an attack to Kenainym,

The incapable and capable Kenainym,
Excelled in everything,
Both brave and resourceful.
He started to fight alone from nine,
Having stabbed down many mountainous giants,

And arrogant heroes.

His passion was like the burning sun,
His anger was like stroms and cold winds.
He was as fierce as a python,
Everyone who had seen him would become subservient.

Kenainym was a battle-scared hero,
The military drills of this Khorasan man in his eyes,
Was much inferior to Karamark.
He waved whips to urge the steed to dash forward,
He stabbed his sharp spear,
The spearhead sparkled threatening cold lights.

The spears clashed with flames splashed,
The both sides grappled with all their strengths.
They fought until their spear handles were broke apart,
The broken handles swirled in the air.
They held the battleax and chopped with efforts,
The back of the blades split in collisions,
The sabres fell into segments in crashes.

The robes were torn in pieces,
The large cottons balls were exposed in the air.
They held each other tight and dragged with all strengths,
Pulled the belts and clothes of each other apart,
And no one could drag each other down from saddles.

They fought till the dusk and no one got the upper hand,
They ceased the war and returned to their camps.
Some soldiers guarded and stood sentry throughout the night.

The east just turned bright,
All the soldiers of Khorasan and Isfan,
Had already mounted the steeds and turned out.
They launched an attack from three sides,
Dabbitay did not go to the field or continue to fight.

Soldiers of Khorasan attacked Sear,
People of Isfan invaded towards the mountainous areas,
Keslety led soldiers to march towards every cross of the roads.

The tiger Kenainym,
Was ready to fight against Khorasan soldiers.
Moutainous Salamart,
Intercepted Keslety.
Hero Bagetebay,
Stared at Acha Khan.

Kainainym urged Kankura Steed,
Filled with indignation and boiled with rage.
Flames were ejected from his eyes,
As if to burn the enemies into ashes.

Kenainym rushed into the Khorasan enemies,
And raised clouds of gray dusts.
The enemies were in utter confusion,
Winds carried an offensive smell of blood on the battlefield.

Kenainym waved his spear,
And knocked down over forty enemies at one time.
The enemies wearing robes,
Were utterly routed;
The enemies wearing armors,
Fell down to the ground in disorder and died.

His mace was smashed towards the axemen's heads,
And those men were severely hit.
He made all the men with sabres never return alive,
He made the vicious enemies cry to heaven.
Clouds of dusts were raised beneath feet,
The ground were dyed red with blood.
Countless warriors suffered a crushing defeat,
The falling horses lay on the ground with hooves in the air.

The dead steed grimaced,
The whiskers of dead warriors were besides the mouths,
The corps were piled into hills.
The grasses vanished from the battlefield,
All of them were trod down into the mud.
The mud on the battlefield changed color,
Turning into red mires with mixture of blood,
The hollows were also filled with blood.

The Khorasan troops invading towards the town,
Were utterly routed by Kenainym.

Khorasan's commander Dabbitay,
This sniffy khan,
Took his attendants and remain troops,
Fled into the deep mountains in panic.
Khorasan had no power,
To fight against Kirgiz for a second time.

The Lion Kenainym turned the horse's head around,
And observed the situation on the battlefield.

Isfan hero Keslety was brave and skillful in battle,
Extremely vicious in wars.
Fighting against Keslety,
It was difficult indeed to protect one's life.

Keslety marched towards Susamyr,
Salamart came to meet the attack.
They had fought against each other for six times,
And the result came out even every time.

Hero Salamart was brave and strong,
Fierce as a wolf seized in an iron clamp.
Facing with the strong army of Keslety,
He charged forward without hesitation.

Salamart was an intelligent warrior,
He was born to be martial and magnificent.
When he had a trial of strength with enemies,
He was brave and tenacious as a lion.

He manifested the momentum of a hero,
Bravely rushing into the enemies.
Wherever he trod,
The enemies there would die,
With no one could escape.

The spearhead with red tassel of Salamart,
Had been stained red by blood.
The enemies besieging Saramt,
Were hit by the spear in majority.
He exerted his strength to wave the spear,
And killed over twenty enemies at one blow.
The enemies were like forage grasses cut down by sickles,
Lying on the ground in large amount.

The huge forces of Khorasan,
Could not hold out to the end as well.
There were sixteen thousand people at first,
After six wars,
Only under ten thousand remained,
Striving to keep fighting on the battlefield.

Keslety was furious upon seeing this,
With malice written all over his face,
Utterly discomfited.
He asked someone to blow the horn,
Intending to rally the forces,
And stage a come back.

Keslety made up his mind:
"I will calmly face the death if it arrives,

I will sturdily suffer if disasters befall."
Keslety rushed head-on,
And deadly fought against Salamart.

Hero Salamart was without equal in strength,
Facing with Keslety he had no fears.
The two heroes had no regard for their lives,
And laid his spear in front of the saddle,
He put on a fierce look and loudly roared.

They wore high helmets,
And tied firm belts,
Their faces blazed with rage,
And looked sullen.
As the dark clouds in the sky,
They were anxious to devour each other alive.

They held the fatal spear,
In their hands again.
The steeds galloped,
As eagles hovering in the sky.

The spears fluttering in hands,
Flames blazed on the spearheads.
The earth thunderously shook,
As if it would crack and collapse.

The two giants fought face to face,
Spears clashed and the sounds deafened ears.
They shouted with anger,
The roar reverberated all around.

The fine steed galloped,
Raising dust in the air.
Whoever seeing the intensive fight,
Would be half dead with fright,
And tremble with fear.

But who would die on the battlefield and perish from the earth?
Who would defeat the rival and luckily survive?
Both people of Kirgiz and Khorasan were on tenterhooks.

The two heroes had a life-and-death fight,
Blood flew from wounds with no stop.
They spit in their hands and were ready to fight,
As a bull digging ground with hooves[1].

Their roars were thunderous and shook the earth,
Clouds of dusts blotted out the sun,
As if the sky rained dirt[2],
They were dusty all over and unable to clearly see each other.

The wind whistled from the mountains,
And the sky suddenly cleared up.

May God never let us see such a scene:
Salamart and Keslety,
They were locked in the struggle and fiercely grappled,
They spared no effort to tirelessly fight.
All the buttons of their clothes were snapped off,
The ragged collars dropped in front of chests,
The lower hem of the clothes had already been torn into pieces.

The two heroes intensively fought into a deadlock,
Their eyes turned sluggish and tongues were hardened,
Glaring at each other and unable to say a word,
Not knowing how to keep fighting.

Keslety could not stand this arduous struggle anymore,
Returning to the camp while it was dark.
When all was quiet in the dead of night,

1 A bull digging ground with hooves: Bulls will roar with head down, dig ground with hooves and make the mud splash all around when getting furious.

2 Rain dirt: Sand storm, called "rain dirt" in the local areas.

He fled to Khorasan stealthily.
He dropped his troops indifferently,
And escaped alone in panic.

Salamart in the morning,
Hearing the news of Keslety's escape,
Although over fatigue,
Still clenched his teeth and mounted the horse,
Chasing behind Keslety and forgetting about his own.

Kenainym was worried about Bagetebay,
Went to support him personally,
He did not know that Keslety had fled.

The Kirgiz hero Bagetebay,
Intercepted the Isfan Khan Acha Khan,
Preventing him from leading troops to harass Kirgiz folks.

He thought that if Isfan people entered the village,
There would be unimaginable disasters.
Bagetebay rushed to the front of Isfan people,
Pitched into a fierce battle with them,
And stroke down Isfan banner at one stroke.

He shouted the name of Manas,
Bravely waved the spear,
And launched an attack towards enemies.
People of Isfan were like floppy cliffs,
Suffering the strikes of downpours,
And falling down with continuously collapses.

Bagetebay rode the button-eared horse into the enemies,
Bagetebay blessed by Shay God,
Dashed about in the swarm of enemies,
He could stab down heaps of foes at a draught.

People of Isfan were like dense beetles,

Squirming all over the mountains and plains as ants.
Bagetebay did not allow them to swarm into the village,
Blocking up them and striving to kill all the way.

Acha Khan thought to himself upon seeing this:
"Ay, Bagetebay,
I have stabbed you down from horseback not long ago,
You are greatly inferior to me at the critical juncture.
There is increase but no decrease in my strength,
Today I will stab you down once again.
The spearhead shall impale your heart to let blood splash,
And you shall not return alive!"
Acha Khan whipped the horse to rush forward.

Koshaoyi blessed all the folks of Atbash,
Bagetebay was one of them,
How could he not see Acha Khan's intention?
He stabbed down heaps of Isfan people,
And turned around to see in spite of himself.

He saw that Acha Khan was grazing around,
With tongue constantly licking lips and the tip of nose.
He held the sharp wolf-tongued spear,
And searching Bagetebay to have a fight.

Bagetebay as the son of Galgezak,
Boiled with anger upon seeing Acha Khan,
His face was ablaze with rage like dark clouds hanging over the sky,
Anger and hatred rose in his mind.

Bagetebay urged his steed to gallop as an arrow flying off the string,
He rushed to Acha Khan,
Before Acha Khan waved his spear,
He took the chance to stab him down from horseback.
Isfan people shouted and wrangled,
Surrounding Acha Khan.
Hero Bagetebay,

Was also besieged by Isfan troops.

Bagetebay did not panic,
Becoming more powerful as the war progressed.
He was like a saker pursuing great bustard,
Forcing Isfan people to retreat.

Acha Khan wounded his back,
Unable to keep fighting against Bagetebay.
The brown steed of Bagetebay,
Passed through the enemies with ease.

Bagetebay with black whiskers rode on the steed,
Shuttled back and forth among enemies like a hawk,
He advanced unopposed.
Every soldier touched by his spearhead,
Fell down and lost his life.

He rode a button-eared steed,
Dashing about among the enemies.
He dispersed the enemies in the middle,
And separated them in two parts,
He fought his way out from the middle.
His spearhead was stained by blood,
He made the Isfan people in a funk.

The sun had set and it got dark,
Isfan people beat gong to retreat.
The ferocious Bagetebay,
Also left Isfan on steed.

Bagetebay met Kenainym,
They greeted each other and returned to their own tents.
The next day at dawn,
Came the news that Keslety fled through night,
And Salamart chased behind.
Immediately the news that Dabbitay and Acha Khan escaped,

Also arrived to Kenainym.

Kenainy dispatched someone to summon the captives,
And gather all of them in front of him.
Kenainym told them as follows:
"People of Isfan and Khorasan,
All your chieftains have fled with no trace.
You shall not mount horses and dash about,
Just stay here for two days,
Only after getting my permission,
That you can depart to get home.

"I let Bagetebay lead you the way,
And pass through the Kirgiz villages safely,
Those bloodthirsty people among you shall be rigorously controlled,
Preventing them from harassing the villages."

Kenainym was concerned about the compatriots of Jetitor,
And sent someone to have a look.
Jetitor was located in front of Kankole,
There lived many Kirgiz.
Knowing that all those folks were safe,
Kenainym gave his smile face.

People of Khorasan and Isfan waited for two days on the spot,
The two days and nights were like four years to them.
They did not know what kind of punishment they would get,
They unceasingly feared,
With tears coursing down cheeks.
They filled their minds with a myriad of thoughts,
Uneasy and anxious.

Two days and two nights had passed,
People of Khorasan and Isfan did not stop crying,
Many of them had drained their tears.

Knowing that all the Kirgiz folks were safe,

Kenainym asked Bagetebay,
To lead the remnants of dead army to set off.
He instructed Bagetebay:
"These people were hard to tender without their chiefs,
Do not make them like widows losing husbands,
Crying,
Shouting,
Making trouble out of nothing,
And blaming each other.
They shall remain orderly,
To return their own homelands."

Bagetebay proposed to Kenainym at this time:
"People of Khorasan and Isfan,
They came here stealthily.
Two heroes Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Were also devoured by them.
We should unclothe them,
Loot their steeds,
And expel them out of this place!"

Hearing Bagetebay's words,
Kenainym explained to him like this:
"If it was not Acha Khan and Dabbitay,
Who had forced them to this place,
Would the folks of Isfan and Khorasan,
Come here by themselves?

"People of Khorasan and Isfan,
Have already learned the lesson of defeats and shames.
Kirgiz never torture the captives,
Generously never capture spoils,
Or take over their steeds and robes,
And will send them to the way home.
This is a great deed,
All the people will be surprised when hearing this.

"These ordinary folks,
Have no responsibilities.
It was their chieftains who forgot honor at the sight of profit,
And did such a ruthless thing.

"You shall not come here when you are back,
You can directly return to Atbash.
There is no news about Salamart,
I shall go to find where he is personally?

"Salamart acted on his own,
Foolishly chasing the fleeing enemy.
'Do not chase the fleeing foe,
Do not stain the blades with their blood.'
Didn't Salamart hear about,
This instruction of Saint Bakay?"

Hearing Kenainym's words,
Bagetebay responded:
"I shall expel the people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Making them heading forward in a long row.
I do not want to return Atbash,
I shall accompany you."

Kenainym suddenly darkened his face:
"Ay, Bagetebay,
You never listen to my adviece,
Once you should not do something you just do it on the contrary.
Both Suyin and Choulfanbay,
Lost their lives just because of your willfulness.

"Many Kirgiz men,
Sacrificed for guarding Dushanbe.
Kirgiz folks,
Lost their prominent heroes protecting compatriots.

"Let alone their deaths,

You yourself almost lost your life.
Now you still scramble for the way with me,
Then I must let you go alone.

"I shall make you Bagetebay and Salamart,
You self-righteous men,
Have your lesson one by one.
And only after that can I keep marching towards Khorasan and Isfan!"
Kenainym flew in to rage,
Bagetebay was frightened and could not speak a word.

Bagetebay escorted the people of Khorasan and Isfan,
To the way they return to homelands.
He forbade them to provoke,
Forbade them to harass the folks.
On the way expelling these troops,
Bagetebay did not extort any wealth,
Even one bridle of them.
After Bagetebay sent the remnant troops away,
He returned to his homeland Atbash.

"How is Salamart?"
The tiger Kenainym kept worrying about him.
He rode Kankura Steed,
Went to the tomb to pray to the spirit of Manas,
And let the folks return to their villages.
The hero Kenainym,
Mounted his steed to find Salamart.

Let us put this to one side,
And listen to some news about Salamart.

Salamart Betrayed and Was Killed

Dabbitay Raked up the Past to Instigate Salamart to Betray

Keslety fleeing in the dark,
Encountered Dabbitay on the way:
"Dabbitay,
I came here alone,
Not because of Kenainym but Salamart,
I could not bear his attack and almost lost my life.

"Dabbitay Khan,
You have fought with Kenainym,
While still safe and sound,
Have you ever get injured?

"How is the situation of Acha Khan,
We can not get the news.
I am exhausted,
Unable to go to Talas.
Let alone return to Talas,
Even looking back will cost all my strength."

Dabbitay and Keslety told their own stories,
They kept talking while walking,
And unexpectedly met Acha Khan by chance.

Acha Khan told them as follows:
"Khan Dabbitay,
Keslety,
I was also for saving my precious life,
Dropped the troops,
And quietly fled from the battlefield to take refuge.

"I left my large forces,
To Kirgiz.
We were too disgraced like drowned rats,
We were deceived by Kangayi,
And became a joke in this whole world!"

Dabbitay could not wait to speak,
Babbling his ideas:
"Kenainym according to his traditional customs,
Will release our troops to their homelands.
We shall go to the crossroad of Khorasan and Isfan,
And wait their return on the way they must pass.

"After our troops are released,
They will successively arrive at the crossroads.
Do not let them dismiss and go their separate ways,
We shall reassemble them and continue to fight.

"If Kenainym chases to that place,
We shall not fold our hands for capture on any account.
Do not use naive tactics,
We shall sort to ambush:
Two men lurk by the road,
And one man meets the attack head-on.
We shall intercept him,
And seize the chance of ambush,
To stab down Kenainym from horseback.

"After defeating Kenainym,
We will loot Talas,
And wipe out Kirgiz,
To remove our hatred.

"If Kenainym does not chase,
We shall also fully prepare ourselves when getting back,
And expedite towards Talas the next year.
If we give up halfway,

We will be ridiculed by all others."

All the three of them thought this idea brilliant,
They lifted their spirits and kept heading on.
They did not spare the fatigued steeds,
Pressed forward day and night,
Arrived at the crossroad of Khorasan and Isfan,
And settled down to pitch a camp.

Dabbitay lay down and slept in peace,
Keslety and Acha Khan,
Taking Dabbitay as the backer,
Lying beside him destructively.

Salamart did not rest,
Heading forward at top speed,
He came to the three heroes.

The three men hid in darkness,
They saw the comer clearly.
Seeing the figure of Salamart,
Keslety trembled with fear,
Acha Khan was also panic-striken.

Dabbitay was dissatisfied with them:
"What is wrong with you two?
Could it be that you are trembling because of getting a cold?
You scared to death upon seeing Salamart,
Huddling up in a muddle,
How can you charge and grapple in this way?

"Let alone Salamart himself,
Even his father revives to come to challenge,
I will come out boldly and meet the attack alone.
Dogs like those who hit them,
Salamart is just such a slave.
If he dares to fight against me,

I will dig out his eyes.

"I will bravely face with Salamart,
I will plead him with tactful words at first.
If he does not accept,
Then I will tie him up and seize him back,
And chop his neck before Kenainym!
If I can not do as what I said,
I will lose my Dabbitay's dignity,
If you two are afraid,
Just stay here and take a good look!"

The ferocious Dabbitay,
Lofty and strong as a peak,
Majestic with a stocking build,
His limbs were robust as a bulky cycamore tree,
He was a hero in the world nowadays.

This bastard had a pretty face,
There was not a single nevus or speckle on his clean face.
His eyelashes were yellowish and eyes brimming with vigor,
He had a neat figure and was quick of movement,
Extremely skillful in riding steeds.

Now Dabbitay had no fear in his heart,
He seemed to recover his power and prestige.
His horse steadily walked,
It was an inexhaustible fine steed.
Although having kept fighting for forty days,
He could not get fatigue.

Dabbitay mounted the saddle,
And urged the horse to gallop forward.

Salamart having trudged,
Loosed his bridle and came forward at ease.
Dabbitay coming head-on.

Reined his horse and stopped on the road:

"Salamart,
What kind of Hero you are?
You think that you can match me in strength and show off your skills,
And are indifferent to my words,
Are you really a heartless man?
You are brave and powerful indeed,
While your identity is a real slave.

"You did not avenge your father,
But are willing to yield to Kirgiz,
Even I feel ashamed for you,
And have to remind you for a second time.

"When Arokai and Duo Khan were alive,
Your great-grandfather Badikole,
Was a hero the same as them,
Administrating the folks of Monget.

"The crazy Kirgiz Manas,
Took the life of your great-grandfather.
Your grandfather Madkule,
Went to avenge him,
While was killed by the son of Manas.

"These Kirgiz,
Drove your folks away from home for twice.
And assigned Monget, Baran, Shankay,
Jurdget, Juda and Kalcha,
To other tribes.

"Your own father Sartbayi,
Bravely fought for taking revenge,
He mounted the horse to expedite towards Talas,
And made Kirgiz in a dilemma.

"Kuyale as the daughter of Kayip,
Was deceived by Ayichulek.
She was an excellent woman as a lion,
She ended the life of Sartbayi.

"When you grew up,
Ayichulek cheated you.
She said her adopted daugher Jezbliek was her natural child,
And married her to you.

"If you would like to hear,
I have more things to tell you:
When Semtay expedited westwards,
You also marched with him without knowing anything,
You fought against numerous giants on the way,
Unexpectedly having spent three years.

"This time when Kenainym expedited,
You also became his attendant.
You Salamart in his eyes,
Are a sheer slave even inferior to his trouser legs.

"What I said were all truth,
I did not hide my thoughts to you.
When Kenainym defeated seven giants,
He did not send you a spear,
Or even a single needle.
Where is his fairness?
You should think about it.

"You followed him obediently,
Rushing about for him.
Once you go against his thoughts,
You will know how he treats you,
If you do not believe,
Go ahead and have a quarrel with him,

He will immediately chop off your head.

"Coward Salamart,
You do not deserve to be a man but should go to the hell,
You should go into the tomb.
Seeing your deeds,
I am boiled with rage.

"Stupid Salamart,
You do not know how people criticize you.
You have degraded your fame,
Before the people all over the world,
You do not have humanity or sense of shame,
You had better die than living like this.

"Badikole and Madkule,
Hero Sartbayi Kturgur,
Would they die without descendants in this way?

"Salamart,
Isn't Sartbayi,
Not your own father?
Salamart,
Except Sartbayi,
Do you have any other father?
If you have another father,
Do not hide,
And speak it out.

"You are a son of khan,
How could you become the slave of the enemy who killed your father!
How could you forget your father's love and care?
How coward and heartless you are!
Once thinking of Khan Sartbayi,
I start to have the sentiment of missing.

"Ignorant Salamart,
You tell me,
Isn't Sartbayi not your father?
Do you suspect that you were born by others?
Now that Sartbayi is your own father,
Why didn't you avenge him,
Why are you being such indifferent?"

When Dabbitay spoke,
Salamart was as frozen by the coldness,
Keeping his body unmoved,
And eyes staring blankly.
His beard stood upright,
And whiskers cocked.

Salamart could not say that his father was another man,
And could not deny that Sartbayi was his father,
His heart suffered much,
As a snake being attacked by the waist,
His body huddled up.
And the yellow hair on his face was raised up,
As the thorns of a hedgehog.

"I was originally the eminent hero Salamart,
I did not keep my ancestors' deed in my mind,
But rendered a service for Kirgiz,
And disgraced my fame.

"If I ask Dabbitay today,
To help me to take revenge,
And then follow him to make a living,
Does that fit my position?

"If I kill Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Along with Keslety,
Wipe them out in one action,
Form a team among my folks,

And turn around to attack Talas,
Is that practicable?"

Salamart thought to himself,
Hesitating back and forth,
He opened his eyes in low spirits,
His body was powerless like a paste.

Dabbitay was overjoyed,
Thinking that Salamart listened to his advice.

At this juncture,
Those released people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Came to the crossroad without one left,
They reported to Dabbitay:
"Kenainym released us to get back,
Krigiz did not capture our steeds or robes,
Even a handle of the whips.

"After you fled away,
They expelled us to return.
Before Kenainym released us,
We thought we would be killed,
Or assigned to those households,
And became their life-long slaves.

"Kenainym did not come along himself,
Bagetebay departed with us,
And left from the last crossroad.
He did not allow us to enter the villages,
Let us come here in groups,
And encounter you at this crossroads.

"We were nervous since we departed from Talas,
Afraid of the strike of Kirgiz in the dark,
Who chase us and kill us in the wild.
Even though we did not lose our lives,

Our robes and steeds would be looted,
Kenainym would pretend to know nothing and lie at home.

"We did not close our eyes on the way,
Nor lie on the ground and sleep.
Just put down the snaffle and grazed the horses,
We did not demount the saddles even grazing them.

"We were in such great care all the way,
But not seeing the figure of Kirgiz chasing forward.

"Kirgiz have ample food and clothing,
Every one of them is generous and honest.
Kenainym for the well-being of the folks,
Came to meet the attack on his own.
He is highly skilled in military drills,
All the people being chased fled for their lives."

The released people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Crossed their hands before their chests,
And clustered in front of their khan,
Their jaws quivered,
And hearts anxious,
The upper and lower jaws constantly bumped against each other.
They told their experiences with out stop,
Every word of them was straightly from the heart,
And was a praise to Kenainym and Kirgiz.

Dabbitay urgently expected,
Salamart as the son of Sartbayi to take his stand.
Salamart was disturbed and filled his mind with a myriad of thoughts,
Downhearted when thinking of his father.

"If I seek refuge with Khorasan and Isfan,
That will disgrace my fame.
I am destined to suffer like this,
I can only face it bravely and not elude.

"I should stab the three men in front of me,
Down from horseback with no mercy.
When they beg for mercy,
I shall drive them to march towards Talas.

"I shall avenge my ancestors of three generations,
And chop off the heads of Kenainym and Bagetebay.
I shall avenge my father Sartbayi,
I shall make the tomb of Manas and Sear,
I shall make the palace of Kirgiz with white felt caps,
Utterly been razed to the ground.

"I heard that Kirgiz since ancient times,
Spent their lives in wars.
Those ancient people also had a saying like this:
'Kirgiz can not be wiped out.'
And thus came the name of Kirgiz.

"I shall make the strong Kirgiz,
Die out with no one left.
I shall make the people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Yield to me obediently,
And send a letter to Kangayi.

"There were seven giants in the west,
Even steeds could not carry them.
Kenainym killed them all with no one survived,
Thus gaining the title of Yellow-faced Death.

"The heirs of those giants are still alive,
Among many people related somehow or other,
There must be their folks at least.
Once they get my news,
They will obediently seek refuge with me,
And then I will have strong forces.
Whoever does not follow my command,
I will chop off his weak neck.

"Manas expedited towards Begin in those years,
Led fifty-four reks of soldiers,
Now when I go to suppress Talas,
I will take sixty reks of soldiers with me.

"Begin can contain countless people,
While Talas can not hold tens of thousands of soldiers.
I will tread down Sear of Talas,
Turn the rocks and mountains into powders,
And let the wind blow them with not trace.
I will turn all the Kirgiz into slaves,
And give them no chance to rise again!"

Salamart vainly imagined,
As if he did not need to fight on his own,
Nor did he need to stain his spearhead with blood,
And Talas will be easily trodden down,
The Kirgiz will submissively hear and obey.
He cherished the illusions of occupying Talas,
And conquering the great Kirgiz.

He shouted to Dabbitay with eyes opening wide,
And issued orders to Khorasan people:
"People of Isfan and Khorasan,
All of you dismount and quickly bow to me!
I am the well-known hero Salamart.
Let alone you guys,
Even Kirgiz can not flee from my hands.
I have made my mind after deep consideration,
I will occupy both the east and the west,
All of these places shall obey my orders.

"Kenainym may arrive soon,
Before this Death reaches the place,
I will loot Talas at first.
People of Khorasan and Isfan,

Must follow my command.
No one can turn around and all of you shall head forward,
You shall take your cookers,
And camp in the wild at night.
Throughout the journey always live Kirgiz,
You can capture their fat maria anywhere,
Kill and cook them as you wish.

"Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
If you do not carry out my order,
I will twist off your necks,
Loot Khorasan and Isfan,
And make you go through much sufferings.
I will send your money as gift,
To those recruits from various places.
I will lead sixty reks of armies,
To directly attack Talas!"

Salamart became even more crazy as he spoke,
Dabbitay responded to him as follows:
"Sartbayi's son Salamart,
You run off the mouth,
And speak nonsense,
You are simply talking bullshit!

"Will there be anyone who is willing to obey you,
And follow you to Talas?
Do you really want to be our chieftan,
And make us follow you?
How could our human with two legs,
Has such a maniac like you!

"You do not know your root,
It was me who told you about your own father,
How could a man even forget about his ancestor,
Issue orders to me?

"If you really have striking skills,
Then in those long days,
Why didn't you avenge your ancestors?"

Facing with Dabbitay's scold,
Salamart did not listen with great care.
The unscrupulous Salamart,
Also did not explain his own thoughts.
He will show his ferocity and prestige,
To scare the people and make them obey:

"Acha Khan and Dabbitay,
I will engage in a fierce fight against you!
I will slit your bellies,
And pull out your entrails!
With the help of eastern and western powers,
I will loot all your money,
And will carve up all your slaves!"

Salamart waved his spear,
Aiming at the chest of Dabbitay.
Dabbitay told Salamart in this way:
"Ignorant Salamart,
Have you ever thought that this is a fickle world,
Kenainym may chase to this place,
He has a golden face and a vicious heart.
If he comes here,
I will see how you will talk to him?
Salamart not knowing good from bad,
You shall not bluster in front of us,
But had better think about how to deal with the Death Kenainym!"

Hearing the words of Dabbitay,
Salamart answered:
"Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
And that Keslety,
I will kill you three altogether!

"As for dealing with Kenainym,
I have my own way,
I can fight against him on my own,
With regards to how to defeat the Yellow-faced Death Kenainym,
I have already a mature idea."

Salamart held up his whip in great force,
Hardly slashed his steed.
His spear was waved up and down,
Thunderously whistling in the air,
And launching an attack towards Dabbitay.

How could Dabbitay retreat?
He could not help but counterattacked.
Dabbitay and Salamart,
They stabbed and chopped towards each other,
Being locked together in the struggle.

They used spears to ward off the coming spears,
And turned the horse's head around to grapple from time to time.
When they grasped the collars of each other,
Their steeds strenuously could not move.

Salamart as the son of Sartbayi,
Had stabbed down numerous warriors and heroes,
And never sullied his fame.
He seized the good chance,
To stab his spear into Dabbitay's lumbar.
The spearhead pierced into his lumbar,
Dabbitay fell down and got seriously injured.

Acha Khan hurriedly urged his steed upon seeing this,
To rush towards Salamart,
Dabbitay's attendants took this chance,
To save him out of the battlefield.

Salamart did not let Acha Khan hit the mark,
And fiercely stabbed towards him by the chance,
Acha Khan also fell from horseback.
Before Salamart could give a second strike,
Keslety dashed forward.

Seeing Keslety rushing over,
Salamart pondered:
"During the fierce fight in Talas,
You had no power to withstand and fled over night,
Today I am still the hero Salamart,
I will see how you will fend against my attack."

Salamart rekindled his rage,
Dashing straightly forward to pierce the spear,
Keslety was hit by the spear,
Flew afar and dropped to the ground like a fleabane.

Salamart declared in the presence of all:
"Acha Khan and Keslety,
You shall see me Salamart Hero clearly.
Today in this fair duel,
You have seen my boldness.

"No matter you are willing to obey me or not,
You shall speak it out at this point.
I will listen to the answers of you two,
And then I have some words,
To tell Dabbitay clearly."

Facing with Salamart having defeated them,
How would these scared poor men,
Dare to keep contend for hegemony,
All of them submissively hear and obey with hands down.

Salamart suffering in his heart,
Summoned Dabbitay and all others in front of him,

And spoke to them as follow:
"Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
And also Keslety,
You shall listen,
I have words for you to clarify:
I did not know my family background previously,
Dashing about for Kirgiz all the time.
Dabbitay you told me who my ancestors and my father were,
These words made me suffer a lot.

"Now I have made my mind,
I will break with Kirgiz from today,
And avenge my ancestors.
I will definitely not recoil in fear,
And will directly march towards Talas,
Can you be my accompanies?"

Acha Khan said at this moment:
"Salamart,
If you expedite towards Kirgiz,
I will not be fainthearted on any account and will be with you.
You can break with Kirgiz,
This is the best out of the worst for us.

"This year we decide to recuperate,
To feed our steeds plump and sturdy.
We will restore the damaged armors and robes,
And sew the buttons back.
We will reinstall the wolf-tongued spearhead,
We will soak the axe into venom,
And will sharpen the blades of sabres.

"We will also recruit from the folks,
Rally and strengthen our forces.
And expedited towards Talas next year,
How do you think of my idea?"

Dabbitay interposed at this point:
"Salamart,
You are a hero indeed,
You are stubborn in nature,
And do not listen to any advice.
I will tell you everything in my mind,
Without any concealing.

"While you crushed my spines,
Making me suffer a lot.
You stabbed Acha Khan down from the saddle,
And Keslety was also stricken down by you.
Now you want us to march towards Talas.
Do you know,
Until today,
We have not gotten rid of shadow of Kenainym.

"My spines hurt,
I am unable to fight.
Acha Khan is too old and weak,
Powerless to keep killing.
Keslety is just in front of you,
Beaten black and blue and thoroughly refuted,
His strength is far worse than before.

"Crude and rash Salamart,
How could you go to fight on your own?
What plan do you have,
Speak it out and we can discuss."

When Dabbitay said like this,
Salamart was extremely enraged:
"Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
And also Keslety,
All of you go back home,
Get back to your wives and kids!

"One of you are old and weak,
One of you are beaten black and blue,
And one of you wounded the waist and almost died,
Only I can fight and kill by myself.

"I will chop off all your heads,
And do all the things on my own.
Only the flames of war rage everywhere,
That I can be assured.

"I will chop off all your heads,
And tie at the back of my saddle,
And send to Kenainym as gifts,
Only in this way that I can fulfill my wish!

"I will stick your heads on my spearheads,
And offer your heads as a tribute to Kirgiz.
I will try to win their trust,
And hide my real intentions,
I will wait for the good chance,
And dig out Kenainym's eyes!"

Dabbitay said at this time:
"Sartbayi's son Salamart,
All your plans are far from brilliant,
Please listen with attention,
What I propose is as follows.

"Acha Khan and our Khorasan people,
Along with Karamark allied together,
And fought against Kirgiz,
While our blood flew to stain the earth.

"Now if our three sides unite together,
We can pull together to challenge Kirgiz.
Let us put the salt water in front of us,
And lick the water to make a vow:

Anyone who cowardly flee or retreat,
Shall lose his life as the the saline land without vitality.

"Let us walk to the riverside,
And drink the river water to make a vow.
Anyone who goes against the vow,
Will die of thirst.
Let us make a vow in front of the armor,
Anyone who breaks the vow will be killed on the battlefield!

"Salamart,
After we make the vow together,
You shall pretend to know nothing about this,
And return to the Kirgiz,
Ready for an opportunity.

"We shall prepare for everything,
And in the Ona[1] of next year,
Acha Khan and I will gather at this place,
We will wait here for five days.

"As long as Acha Khan and I meet and concentrate the forces,
We will immediately march towards Talas,
And turn the whole world upside down on Kirgiz prairies.

"To Kangayi in the east,
To those giants in the west,
We should send the message to all of them.
Let them march on Talas.

"We will form a troop in great force,
Let the dusts pervade on the earth,
And thrill everyone who see the scenes.
Let all the folks in the world see our strength,
Let Kirgiz get terrified,

1 Ona: Kirgiz calender, July.

And we will stain our blades with their blood.

"We will go deep into every place of Arashi,
Let Kirgiz be utterly routed and have nowhere to hide.
I will smash the well-known tomb of Manas,
Let Talas as the homeland of Manas,
Vanish from this world with no trace.

"When Karamarks occupied there in those years,
Talas was called Kotuliac.
I will erase the name as Talas,
And recover the name as Kotuliac.

"I will make their old overwhelmed with sorrow,
I will turn their men into slaves,
I will take their wives as maids,
I will make their girls become spoils.
The traditional Kirgiz customs,
Shall vanish from the earth."

When Dabbitay spoke this,
Salamart interposed:
"In this case, my khans,
If you think it proper,
We will stay here for two more days.

"Maybe Kenainym will trace to this place,
If this man really comes here,
You shall fight against him in turns,
Trying every means to strike him down from the horse.

"If we can not win,
Then we shall scatter to flee.
We should have plans even when we escape,
Do not let this blood-thirst Kirgiz,
See through our intentions.

"He will surely not be precautious to me,
He will chase you with dark face,
You just express that you will not provoke and will surrender,
He will generously let you go.

"This idiot will think that he scares the enemies away,
And lie at home securely.
We shall not forget our vow at that time,
And gather at this place according to the set time.
We will be like the rising river next spring,
Launching an attack towards him in great force."

Kenainym Killed Salamart with Rage

Kenainym was lofty as Oboler Hummock,
Riding Kankura Steed in a great state.
Kenainym searched Salamart,
He faced the south,
And marched on the way to Isfan.
In a hurry and without a stop,
He had been on his journey for a few days.

The Lion Kenainym finally arrived,
At the crossroad of Khorasan and Isfan.
It was the last dusk before his arrival,
That the people here fled in three directions.
Kenainym came from afar,
Urging his horse forward along the road to Isfan.

Kenainym encountered Salamart head-on,
Salamart saluted and greeted him in low spirits.

Kenainym saw he was in panic,
Spoke to him in a hurry:
"Salamart, are you safe?
I have been thinking of you all these days,
Pursuing you day and night,
And did not see you until this day.

"Dabbitay had fled away,
Why did you chase after him?
'There is no need to chase the runaway foes',
How many times did Bakay say these words,

You were also listening on the spot,
Why didn't you keep that in your mind?

"You have chased them for several days,
Where did they actually go?
Dabbitay, Keslety and Acha Khan,
How could they be gone without no trace?

"There are many footprints of hooves,
Those troops fleeing from our area,
Must have camped in this place.
How could you turn a blind eye to this?
Is there any secrets hidden in your heart?

"Where are the troops of Khorasan?
Where is Acha Khan himself?
Even they reach the highest heaven or go to the lowest hell,
I will be at their heels.

"If they fly into the sky,
I will grasp their legs and drag them back to the earth;
If they go underground,
I will clutch their raids and drag them overground.
If I can not do as what I say,
My Kenainym's fame will be disgraced.

"Salamart,
I see you are anxious,
And show the whites of your eyes from time to time,
With face ablaze with rage.
What happened to you,
No matter it is good or bad,
Do not hide and tell me all the truth.

"There is a shadow behind you,
Which is a bad omen,
And I have seen its appearance.

"Salamart,
You did not find the escaped enemies,
Neither did you return home in Sear,
Did you just wander like this?
If you have a clear conscience,
You would have already caught them up,
Or returned to Talas and rested yourself."

Hearing Kenainym's words,
Salamart felt as if the doomsday befell him:
"You are khan and I am your loyal servant,
You are my nephew and I am your uncle.
If your suspect my loyalty,
You had better chop off my head!

"My steed was exhausted by trekking,
I myself also felt fatigued,
I dismounted and grazed the horse on the grassland,
Who knew that I took a nap for such a long time.

"The steed had eaten its fill when I woke up,
And I mounted the steed to chase forward in a hurry.
When I chased to this place that day,
I found there had been camped by someone.

"I did not know who they were,
So I went to trace the footprints of horses.
I headed for the same direction as yours,
Following up the enemies closely.
Suddenly Saint Bakay's instruction passed through my mind,
And I happened to meet you on my way back."

With regards to Salamart's explanation,
Kenainym was rather in doubt:
"Ouy,
Salamart,
You stand in front of me Kenainym with anxiety.

In all your words,
You seem to hide the dark side of your heart.

"The troops of Khorasan and Isfan,
It was me who released them to get back,
Where did you encounter them?"

Salamart quibbled by lies in haste:
"The place where I slept and grazed my horse,
Is in the middle of a valley.
Maybe they passed through when I slept,
And therefore was not seen by me.
Kenainym,
Let us go,
And be back to the homeland Talas."

Kenainym stopped him at this time:
"Ouy,
Salamart,
Wait a second,
Listen to me carefully,
We will keep tracing the people of Khorasan and Isfan,
Hotly pursue and fiercely attack them.

"After they return from this place,
They will not easily give up,
They will contact both people in the east and the west,
To forage an alliance.

"Kangayi will dispatch a large number of troops,
They will also get the support of the west.
Dabbitay and Acha Khan,
Have at least six reks of soldiers,
Over sixty reks of them at most.
They will lead ten thousand armies,
To attack Talas in great forces.

"This sixty reks of soldiers can not be belittled,
Our Kirgiz folks,
Live dispersedly and live on pasturing.
Once the large forces of enemies sweep them,
And overwhelmingly dash into our pastures,
Our struts of yurts will become stove pokers.
They will cut off our noses,
And sprinkle salt to make us hardly wish to live.

"They will do anything as they want,
They will destroy our folks.
They will loot our girls as spoils of wars,
And will let our aged people,
And growing teenagers,
Be killed with no one left.

"Let us go,
Salamart,
Let us go at once,
We shall chase the people of Isfan,
And let Acha Khan make a written pledge,
That they will never attack Kirgiz.

"If he is unwilling to make the promise,
We will pitch into a fight against him.
Just as a hare grips its teeth when grazing,
We shall seize him alive and make him give in.

"If he has any evil intention,
We will unceremoniously stab our spears forward.
If he wildly talks and parades his skills,
We will find ways to exterminate him.
Before they do not go too far,
We shall catch them up at top speed.
The destinies are too fickle to be predicted,
We have to return to Talas before it is too late."

Hearing the words of Kenainym,
Salamart dare not refuse to go,
And neither did he dare to stubbornly head forward,
He was forced to turn his horse's head around and draw back.

Look at Salamart,
He had a myriad of thoughts and ideas in his mind,
The doomsday had befallen in front of him:
"If we catch up Acha Khan,
And ask him to give us the promise,
If Acha Khan reveals the truth before Kenainym,
How should I do at that time?

"It seems that I should not chase to this place,
There are overtones in his talks,
It seems that he started to suspect me.

"I have set my mind and changed my decision,
I shall break with Kirgiz,
I am not afraid of the punishment of Kirgiz,
And I am brewing a whopping chaos.

"I married a Kirgiz girl as my wife,
And enjoyed the life and pleasures in that place.
I did not know that they are my enemy who killed my father,
How many years did I dash about for Kirgiz.

"Kenainym this bloodthirsty devil,
He did not plead the guilty of killing my father,
And even caught at shadow to suspect me.

"I shall fight against this snobbish Kenainym face to face,
Stabbing him down from horseback.
I shall advance bravely at all events,
And will not submissively hear and obey on any account.

"Instead of having a small fight here,

I want to show my extraordinary power,
In public.

"Arrogant Kenainym,
He must go ahead of me.
When I see Acha Khan,
I will let him see,
How I revenge my father.

"I will attack from behind,
Thrusting Kenainym down from saddle with spear.
Before Kenainym gets up,
I will rush to spear his breast.

"Whether in the west or east,
Kenainym owes many blood debts.
Now I will revenge them,
Then I will win the praise from the world."

Salamart thought to himself,
He fantasized how to defeat enemy,
How to thrust Kenainym down,
How to subdue Kirgiz people with white felt caps,
How to govern famous Talas.

"If I can't thrust Kenainym down from saddle,
Will he break my backbone?
Will he force me to say the plan in my mind?

"Follow him if he asks me to do,
Seize the chance without hesitation,
I will take a chance to behead him!

"If I can't find proper opportunity,
I will pull together with,
Acha Khan, Dabbitay and Keslety,
Try our best to thrust him down.

"Fortunately I stay with him day and night,
When he falls asleep,
It is my great opportunity to attack!

"If there is really no opportunity,
If Dabbitay, Keslety and Acha Khan,
Are all killed by him,
I will invite him to take a rest in my home.

"I will put poisonous nail under the mattress,
Poison in his bowl.
I will send him to death by hook,
Then the load will be lifted from my mind.
As long as Kenainym dies,
Everything here will be in the charge of me."

Salamart racked his brains,
Tried all means,
Concealed bad ideas,
Whipped horse forwards.

Black mane wolf Kenainym,
Rode ahead in a dignified manner.
Salamart looked around at times,
Observing his movements.

Kenainym found,
Salamart behaved furtively with a malicious intent.
Kenainym kept calm,
With insouciant expression.

The advancing Salamart,
Suddenly reined in the way:
"Acha Khan seems to have long gone,
I have something to discuss with you.
If they intrude again next year,

We can clean their clock,
Capture lots of their horses and wealth.

"Today we chase them to Isfan,
Thrust Acha Khan down on the way,
Their people will salute you and beg for forgiveness.
You are always generous,
You will surely forgive them all.
Then won't we go home empty-handed?
It seems to be disgraceful for a hero!"

Hearing the words of Salamart,
Kenainym looked wrathful,
Salamart dare not look up,
At his frightening face.

Kenainym spoke in rage:
"Your father Sartbayi,
Governed few Monget people.
When former king Semtay was alive,
He married Jezblik to you.

"As the dowry of Jezblik,
He gave you lots of territories.
Talsa, Jute and Sakalat,
Kalcha, Jurdget and Juda,
All were handed over to you.
These are still not enough for you,
Do you still want to profit from Isfan?

"Salamart,
Never ask for anything even a thread,
From the people who surrender.
If you are still alive,
Without trophy you can have a rich life.
Gathering wealth by robbing people,
Won't bring you a good name.

"Rather than seize others' wealth,
Swing Kantuman to farm by yourself.
Milk of life will be pure and sweet,
Only by hands and sweats.

"We are just chasing the defeated enemies,
Never making trouble for the people.
The people are forced and driven by khan,
How can we punish and blame them?
Salamart,
Don't stop,
Go forward rapidly without delay!"

Kenainym taught Salamart a lesson,
Salamart was struck dumb,
Had to whip horse on.

No grazing,
No delaying,
No eating.
They neither took a nap,
Nor had a sleep.

Horses ran tirelessly all the way,
Kenainym ignored fatigue in high spirits,
They caught up with Acha Khan finally.

Figures of Kenainym and Salamart,
Jumped first into the view of Acha Khan.
Acha Khan felt confused and worried,
Many doubts came to his mind.

"Even if Kenainym wants to chase us,
Why doesn't Salamart stop him?
As he swears to us,
Why does he still chase us with Kenainym?

"Does he break his oath,
After meeting Kenainym?
Or does he have to follow him to adventure,
Without time to hide?

"Does Salamart confess the whole story,
To Kenainym totally?
Has Kenainym known the truth,
Thinking our power is inferior to his,
And we have no time to contact with the east or west,
To reorganize powerful forces.
Will he come to kill us as the troops are exhausted?

"Does Salamart take the betrayal as capital,
To bargain with Kenainym,
Wanting to govern,
Khorasan and Isfan?

"Does the possessed Salamart,
Want Dabbitay and me to die,
And follow Kenainym to chase us,
For dominating Khorasan and Isfan?"
In the fragmented world,
Ominous ideas hit the heart of Acha Khan.

Acha Khan could not escape,
Dabbitay and Keslety had fled far away.
He thought Salamart was impossible to betray him,
Then he settled down to strike by surprise,
Attempting to find Salamart's intention was good or bad,
By such means.

He waved the flag and shouted,
Gathering all the troops and horses,
Used battle flag to point at the opponent,
Launching an attack in the dust.

Acha Khan gathered all his strength madly,
As if a spider and scorpion stabbed with poisonous stings.

Seeing that Acha Khan led troops to rush over,
Salamart whipped horse to fight.
He shouted the slogan of Manas,
Battling fiercely without hesitation.

They used spear to block spear,
Hitting hard with clink.
They did not leave battlefield,
Until the sun sank in the west and the sky got dark.

Kenainym told Salamart:
"Salamart,
Go to have a fight,
To feel the current condition of Acha Khan.
Acha Khan is familiar with the terrain here,
We are unware of his inner truth.

"We won't hide here tonight,
In case he besieges us,
From all directions.
Once we are defeated by night raid,
Our reputation will be ruined.

"Do not rush into their crowds,
Do not attack dense troops,
Do not let them escape,
Salamart,
You just need to hold the mountain pass.

"I won't lie down and rest here,
I will travel by night.
I will climb the daban of Isfan,
To observe the opponent's movement with clairvoyant.

I will watch the terrain there,
I will look how many people Isfan has.
Before the twilight comes,
I will return to your side."

Finishing the words,
Kenainym mounted Kankura and set out.
When he got to the end of valley,
He found Acha Khan was there,
Directing soldiers to dig deep pits.

Acha Khan didn't see the comer's face clearly at night,
Thinking it was Salamart that came by night,
He went over with greetings,
Meeting Kenainym on horse.

When approaching face to face,
He suddenly recognized Kenainym.
Faced with the hero like a leopard,
He dare not thrust by surprise,
But turned and escaped with fear.

Such action of Acha Khan,
Had long been expected by Kenainym.
Kenainym urged Kankura,
Grasped the rein of the steed of Acha Khan:
"Khan Acha Khan of Isfan,
Who can escape out from my hand?
You intruded Talas stupidly,
And fled in panic after a complete defeat.

"As a khan,
You have plenty of troops and horses.
You have the right to contact with each side,
Where do you want to flee?
Moreover, there are only two people in company,
In my expedition."

Suffering the ridicule from Kenainym,
Acha Khan replied helplessly:
"Kenainym,
You are telling the truth.
I escaped from Talas,
Followed closely by Salamart.

"Dabbitay told him a lot,
To mock Salamart.
Saying his ancestors,
Were killed by Kirgiz people,
Monget people left their homeland.
Saying he was deceived by the adopted daughter of Kenainym,
Working for Kirgiz people till now.

"Salamart was awakened,
To conquer us,
To ally with us,
He fought against us one by one.
He defeated and wounded all of us,
We had to claim allegiance to him.

"We agreed to send letters to the east and west,
Asking all the places to dispatch troops,
Making an army of sixty reks,
Leading six hundred Herculeses,
And giants that horses can not carry,
Launching an attack towards Talas,
To defeat Kirgiz completely.

"Dabbitay is badly injured,
Keslety is extremely worried.
I am old and powerless,
How can I have the strength for expedition?
We decide that in the next Ona,
All the forces will gather here.

"At that time Salamart thought,
Before the appointed time,
If he could find a chance,
He would send you to death.
It would save the people on the world,
From a long journey to you.

"Salamart pursued here with you,
He offered suggestions to me in the daytime battle,
Asking me to dig traps at night in the mountain pass.
I came here in the dark,
Waiting Salamart for a discussion.

"Kenainym,
I won't make a lie to cheat you,
If you do not trust me,
When he goes to battlefield alone tomorrow,
You will see his intention and purpose clearly.

"He plans to pretend to battle with me,
Before the dusk.
After the sky gets dark,
He will launch a sudden attack to you."

Kenainym said:
"Acha Khan,
After all you are a khan,
No matter whether you tell the truth or lies,
I can release you today,
I have my own plan for tomorrow.

"You say Salamart has a black heart,
What do you mean on earth?
Is he still unware of the details,
About how his ancestors died?

"There are lots of forces in the east and west,
Who do you ask to send the message?
In the tomorrow fight,
You must go personally to the front.

"If Salamart does not want to go,
Only I come out in person,
Let me see how you fight against me.
Acha Khan,
I will push you into the pit you dig.
You always have evil intentions,
I have already seen it clearly.

"You want to occupy Talas,
It is simply wishful thinking.
The tomb of Manas, the hero of Aykoler,
Castle Sire built by Manas,
Stands toweringly on the land of Talas.
Forests planted by Bakay and Manas,
Have been lush and leafy.

"Kirgiz people with white felt hats,
Have a strong will,
United as one,
White felt hats on their heads,
Look like blooming wild flowers.
Magical Talas and Kirgiz people,
Are the invincible power!"

Words of the lion-like hero were impassioned,
Acha Khan got flustered.
He did not know how to reply for a moment,
He lost his head and told the truth:

"Oh, hero,
Listen to me,
We all claim the allegiance of Salamart,

He has become our leader,
He contacts with the east and west in person.

"In the west,
There are seven giants in Aytubi.
In the east,
Khitan, Karamark and Kangayi,
All are on his contact list.

"Oh, hero,
Next morning,
If you observe carefully the rest things,
You will find the sign of plots."

"Acha Khan,
If you tell the truth,
You can't tell Salamart what we talk about,
I am worried he will kill you,
Making you die of his sword meaninglessly.

"Whether tomorrow is good or not,
I will deal with it decisively."
After finishing the words,
Kenainym turned around and went back.

The dawn was just breaking,
Soldiers of Isfan,
Had mounted horses and gone to battlefield.
Salamart saw their flags,
Riding horse to meet them.

Hero Kenainym stopped him:
"Wait,
Salamart,
Do not go today.
You have fought hard for days,
People of Khorasan and Isfan make you exhausted.

"You had a fierce fight yesterday,
Another tough day.
You should listen to me,
Let me go to fight against Acha Khan today."

Salamart refused to turn back,
Wielding spear in his hand,
Whipping horse towards the battlefield,
With dust rising from hooves.

Acha Khan from Isfan,
Fought with Salamart face to face.
Without scruples Acha Khan thrusted,
Salamart just pretended.

"Oh,
Salamart,
Salamart,
Are you safe and healthy?
Did you cheat me yesterday?
You said you would lead Kenainym to mountain pass.
I dug a pit and waited for a night,
You and Kenainym never appeared.
Please think it over,
What should we do now?"

Salamart replied:
"Let us fight for two rounds first,
Then you pretend to be defeated and escape,
I also pretend to run after you.
Kenainym must stop me,
I will follow him to turn back.

"In the place where we camp,
I will behead Kenainym,
And go to see you before dawn."

According to the inspiration of Salamart,
Acha Khan turned around and pretended to escape.
Salamart followed him,
Whipping horse and pretending to chase.

Kenainym did not stop him,
Sitting still,
Watching patiently.
Salamart was about to catch up with Acha Khan,
He was unable to turn back.
Then Kenainym grasped the spear,
Catching up hurriedly.

Acha Khan was terrified with the scene,
Thinking the end was coming.
With wild ambitions,
Salamart approached the death.

"Acha Khan,
You block him from the front,
I'll chase from behind,
Let us round up Kenainym!"
In haste Salamart shouted.

"Salamart,
I have had no strength to fight,
Unable to intercept him from the front.
Kenainym is a real lion,
He treats people sincerely with broad mind,
I will tell him all the secrets."

Salamart did not know they met last night,
He heard the words of Acha Khan,
Knowing Acha Khan was about to tell details.
Salamart fell into rage and anxiety,
Whipping horse hard to rush towards Acha Khan.

Kenainym shouted:
"Enough,
Salamart,
Stop,
Don't chase!"
Kenainym shouted for two times,
Salamart did not respond at all.

Kenainym hurried to ride forth,
Just before Kenainym arrived,
Salamart thrusted with spear.
Spearhead impaled the kidney of Acha Khan,
His saddle was stained with blood.
Acha Khan cried "Salamart",
His face hit the ground and never moved.

Kenainym blamed Salamart:
"I shout and ask you not to kill him,
You kill him without listening to me at all.
There must be secrets,
You must explain to me today.

"Your wild ambition,
I have perceived.
You are a mad dog with ulterior motives,
Why do you do such things?!"

Salamart stormed at Kenainym:
"Kenainym,
Do not show off your ability to me,
Do not stare and shout at me,
Do not domineer before me.

"I will make you suffer shame and punishment!
I will call the blood debt of my father.
I am the son of Sartbayi,

How can't I revenge him!"

Salamart looked aggressive,
His roar was deafening,
He shouted the name of Sartbayi,
Wielding the sharp spear,
Attacking towards Kenainym madly.

Kenainym blocked his spear,
Questioning him again severely:
"What are you doing, Salamart?
Are you joking or serious?
Do you really lose your conscience!"

"I do not want to play jokes on you at all,
I am filled with rage.
Kenainym,
Do you know,
Salamart will never forgive you!

"You are the Yellow-faced Death of Kirgiz,
I am the descendant of Kuturgour[1].
I will make your blood flow like stream,
I will flatten your Sire City.

"I will make you, the Kirgiz people,
Wander around,
Die without sons!
I will struggle with you like a huge dragon,
I will have full anger and no mercy to you.
I will swallow and sweep,
All of your ancient Kirgiz people!"

Salamart shouted arrogantly,
With spitting.

1 Kuturgour: The name of Salamart's ancestor.

He stared with serpent eyes,
Rushing straight towards Kenainym.

When fighting against the opponent,
Salamart had strength and courage that couldn't be underestimated,
Compared with his father Sartbayi,
He had exceeded his father.

Both sides used spear to block spear,
Spears and swords collided,
Earth shook and water gushed.
Mountains collapsed and stones rolled,
With dust the sky was covered,
With darkness the world was filled.

Look at the strange world,
As if the end came.
As if the world lost balance,
The heaven revolved,
The earth overturned.
As if clouds on the sky were tore,
About to fall to the ground.
Sorts of strange phenomena,
Appeared continuously.

Son of Kangkoer, Kenainym,
He was an invincible hero.
None of the opponents against him survived.
He shouted the slogan of Manas,
Lifting the spear angrily.
He risked his life,
To rush towards Salamart,
His power shocked the earth.

Salamart with evil ambitions was stabbed,
Lifted by him on the spearhead.
As if a penetrated camel,

Shook its limbs.

Kenainym revolved the spear,
And threw him to mountains.
Salamart fell on stones from the sky,
Smashed into pieces.

Acha Khan and Salamart died in a row,
Kenainym released the rest people of Isfan:
"The people alive,
You can go back to your homeland,
For the family reunion.
Acha Khan has a son,
I make him as your khan,
Inheriting the throne of his father."

Kenainym released the remnant troops of Isfan,
Letting them return to hometown.
He packed up the spear of Salamart,
And the crown of Acha Khan.

"I needn't go to Khorasan,
If Dabbitay dares to go on revolting,
Let him collude with the west and east,
Leading an army of sixty reks to battle.
Then I will deal with him,
Leaving no return to him!

"The death of Acha Khan and Salamart,
Will reach his ears soon.
If he leads Khorasan people to revenge,
If he sets foot on Talas,
I will bash him without hesitation,
Beheading him to send him to death.

"Besides, people from Khorasan just go back,
Exhausted troops have not rested yet.

I need not launch another expedition,
Bringing warfare and darkness to the people there."

Kenainym thought so,
Then turned around and returned to Talas.

Let us put this part aside,
Let us listen to the message,
About the leader of Khorasan, Dabbitay.

Kenainym defeated the Army of Khorasan again

Kenainym killed Keslety

On the fugitive road,
Dabbitay did not return to Khorasan directly.
There was another tribe in Kirgiz,
Named Shankay.

In the middle zone between Jetsu and Khorasan,
Shankay was neither left nor right.
Dabbitay passed there,
An evil idea occurred to him:
I would rob at Shankay,
And announce in public,
"I will loot your wealth.
I will not leave even a hair to you,
If you can not stand injustice,
Or let the people suffer.
Go to find Kenainym for redress."

He did not beat or scold Shankay people,
But looted their wealth.
Living cattle that could walk,
Gold and silver that could be put in box,
Grain that was stored in cellars,
All were looted with nothing left.

Shankay people lost the livestock for graze,
The houses as shelter,
The sheep as food,
The clothes against coldness.

Without dog to guard livestock,
Without food to satisfy hunger,
Without shelter to make home,
Shankay people were badly hurt,
With no way out.

Shankay people gathered in every valley,
Calling heaven and earth,
Crying aloud.
They wanted to go to Talas,
To complain to Kenainym about the hardship.
But even horses were plundered,
Nowhere could they find draught beasts to ride.

They were distraught,
Wail was everywhere.
They even itched to dig graves and die together,
No door to heaven,
No path to earth.

To the herdsmen life was precious,
But livestock were like their limbs.
When acquaintances met after a long separation,
They always asked about the safety of livestock,
The health of each other,
The safety of livestock was regarded as the principal thing.

After reaching Khorasan,
Dabbitay did not rest at ease.
He was not mean with the wealth looted from Kirgiz,
But took it as an attractive reward.

He wrote two letters respectively,
To Salamart and Acha Khan.
Two messengers mounted horses,
To deliver the letters as soon as possible.
On the way home,

Kenainym ran into the two messengers.
One of the messengers,
Had a clear memory about Kenainym's face,
In the battle of Talas.

Though Kenainym was unware,
They thought they had been recognized.
They wobbled with flurry,
Falling from saddle one after another.

They got up hastily,
Weak legs could not make a step.
They bent down towards Kenainym,
Bowing like women.

Flinching,
Jittering,
They bowed like brides.
They were too frightened to speak,
Gray face,
Overwhelmed head.

Nostrils shrank without breath,
Muscles twitched over the bodies.
Even quivering was the greeting voice,
Showing their panics.

They stood with hands hanging,
Their eyes were weeping.
They kept wiping their noses,
Thinking they were in a big trouble.
Nothing but a dead end when meeting Kenainym,
They must be beheaded today.

Seeing they dare not talk,
Kenainym concluded they knew him,
Then snapped at them:

"Where are you from?
You must tell the true origin.
If you dare to make up lies to hide the truth,
I will make you die here at once!"

Faced with the majesty of Kenainym,
How dare they hesitate.
No choice but to tell the truth,
Taking out the letters of Dabbitay,
Handing them to Kenainym.

Hero Kenainym with extraordinary power and strong will,
Took those letters and read them.
He grasped the intention of Dabbitay,
In detail and fully.

Lion thought after reading letters:
"Should I turn back here,
Or move on?
Should I let them continue their journey,
To look for Salamart and Acha Khan.

"After they go back,
Without finding the people,
What will Dabbitay do?
Will he lead a sea of troops,
To come as flood,
Should I wait for the day?

"I estimate that there will be no one,
Invading from the west and east.
If someone strikes again,
People will escape everywhere,
How many folks will suffer,
Persecution and disaster.

"People of Shankay lose all the properties,

How can they live in peace?
For they are in trouble,
It is the most important to give a hand.

"I let them go back,
To convey the death of Salamart and Acha Khan.
I ask Dabbitay,
To return all the livestock of Shankay.
If Dabbitay accepts the advice,
I need not tangle with him.
No need to turn to swords or spears,
No need to battle with him.

"If he is emboldened back home,
Refusing to accept my advice,
I will wring his neck,
Like wringing the neck of a chukar,
Sending him to death."

After a careful deliberation,
Leopard hero said to the two messengers:
"Go back from here,
Report to Dabbitay in this way:
On the way of delivering letters,
In the wild with no sign of human,
You come across Kenainym.

"Say Salamart and Acha Khan,
Have been unable to see stars and sunlight,
And gone to somewhere they can not return,
You can not send the letters to them."

At the back of the envelope of Dabbitay,
Kenainym specified his requirements and expectations.
The gold seal with the mark of Kirgiz Arashi,
Was on the upper corner clearly.

Kenainym wrote:
"Dabbitay,
You need to send the wealth of Shankay people,
All to me.
Dabbitay,
You must come to me,
To have an interview and return home.
Dabbitay,
You need to make a commitment,
Pledging not to break your own promise.

"Dabbitay,
You know my manner,
I will not invade others' territory for no reason,
I will not harass peaceful civilians.
Seven generations of my ancestors,
Always keep our promise,
A promise is a promise.
We Kirgiz people with white felt caps,
Are all kind-hearted.

"Never think everyone is like you,
Feeling happy when getting filthy lucre.
The wicked deal that you do,
Is not what a human should do.

"I will not assault your territory,
Furtively and stealthily.
If you do not follow my advice,
Better soon into combat readiness,
In case you have some regrets.

"I will wait patiently,
Giving you enough time to prepare.
If you are determined to fight against me,
Do not forget to bring forces as assistance.
Because you have lost,

Salamart and Acha Khan."

Kenainym wrote the letter,
That indicated solemn promise.
The two poor messengers,
Took the letter and went back on the way.

Out of breath,
They came to their khan hastily.
Sending the original letter,
To Dabbitay with both hands.

"You have gone for six days,
And come back today.
The letter to Acha Khan and Salamart,
Why is it returned intact?"

One messenger was smart and capable,
He had a glib tongue:
"We took your letters,
Selected good horses.
Advanced in the wild,
Ran into Kenainym.
Learned the two persons,
Had gone to the world free of wind and sun,
Living people were unable to deliver your letters.

"Kenainym captured your letters,
He also wrote a letter after reading.
He asked us to return with the letter,
Please look at the back of the stationery."

Hearing this,
Dabbitay felt surprised,
Half-believe.
He turned the letter,
Seeing the name of Kenainym,

Was just on the stationery.

He read on:
"You send people to deliver letters,
To Salamart and Acha Khan.
But they two have gone,
To the world free of stars and sunlight.
Your messengers can not go to their side,
But go back on the way."

The wealth of Shankay people was also mentioned,
Dabbitay saw several times from beginning to end.
His eyes became,
Dull and dim,
He was too weak to move.
Unable to speak with stiff tongue,
Keeping trembling from top to toe.

He sat a long while dully,
Then gathered all the leaders,
Asked them to fill the courtyard,
He flew into a rage:

"The bitch of Kirgiz,
Thinks he is on an equal footing with me.
He dares to write to me,
Assuming to threaten me.

"I govern forty-six cities in Khorasan,
Am I afraid of the little guy?
The so-called Death Kenainym Sarik,
Never thinks he will meet the fatal disaster.
He treats me as an ordinary man,
Ordering me as a civilian!

"Besides Keslety,
I have sixty-six Herculeses.

Kenainym is alone,
How dare he fight against them.

"If I kill him here,
No one around him can bury him,
Or cry for him.
I will strike Kenainym down,
It is easy to kill him as well,
But I can't reach all my goals.

"I will tie down his neck,
Like tying a shepherd dog,
Escorting him to parade over the world,
Then the debt can be paid off.

"I will let Kenainym know,
How weak his power is.
Let all the people that see or hear,
Spread my name, Dabbitay!"

With thundering roars,
Dabbitay sent forty-six messengers,
To deliver letters to forty-six cities of Khorasan.
He issued an order in the letter:
"All the men,
Hurry to gather together here,
Not one less.

"Do not come with empty hands,
Everyone must take three weapons.
Whether your own folks or relatives,
Or your cousins,
They must be taken here by leaders!"

Three days for those nearby,
Ten days for those faraway.
He made darkness befall the people,

Not letting them have a peaceful life.
Driving them to rally point by force,
Making the people of Khorasan,
Suffer from hardships for no reason.

All the forces came to gather,
A sea of people,
There were sixty Herculeses,
Each one held sharp spear.

Warriors wore tough helmets,
With maces across saddles.
On the back were huge shields,
Sparkled silver iron belts.

If they rushed into battlefield,
The power could overturn mountains and seas.
They howled like mad dogs,
With their teeth chattering.

They kept hopping forward,
Foam sprayed from the mouth,
Juices flowed around the mouth.
They yelled at the top of their voice,
Chasing each other with naked arms,
Rushing around like beasts.
Their heads collided with pounds,
And extremely arrogant faces.

Fifteen Herculeses,
Were experts on unarmed combat;
Fifteen Herculeses,
Were marksmen for shooting arrows;
Fifteen Herculeses,
Were masters at fighting with maces;
Other fifteen Herculeses,
Were spearmen of assaulting on horses.

Those Herculeses on horses,
Were eager to lift spears,
But the tethered horses could not rush out,
They had to wait for the order.

Dabbitay planned on purpose,
Asking Herculeses to open a way,
Swaggering and clawing.
He asked people to play the drum,
And blow the horn for expedition.

He looked more arrogant,
Sat into a sedan chair carried by soldiers.
Then the troops set out,
Shaking heaven and earth.

Dabbitay came to battlefield,
Shouting with glaring:
"Kenainym,
Listen to me,
I am the famous Dabbitay,
Just standing before you.

"You just have such a few skills,
Alone and helpless.
You are driven here by misfortune,
How can you escape from me?

"You think in the west and east,
Those so-called strong warriors are all defeated by you.
You think I am just like them.
Coming here to flaunt my superiority,
Have a look at my sixty Herculeses,
You will lose your life.

"I will divide sixty Herculeses into four groups,

To fight against you with all sorts of weapons.
Maybe you can tackle with one group,
But how can the other three groups make you succeed?

"Fifteen Herculeses will walk into battlefield,
Getting you into fatigue.
Fifteen archers with great precision,
Will shoot arrows together,
Arrows on your body will be denser than raindrops.

"Fifteen Herculeses will wield maces,
To smash your head and backbone.
Fifteen Herculeses will wield spears,
To pierce straight your heart.
Besides the sixty Herculeses,
Keslety and I will also go into battlefield together.
Kenainym, you are alone,
What do you have to compete with us!

"Now you come to a dead end,
No way to escape,
You are doomed to be defeated by me!
I have lots of magicians,
They will work magic to bind your feet and hands.

"You will feel weak,
Unable to move,
You will lose your head,
In a panic.
You will hardly resist,
With no response.
Your eyes will beg!
You will be broken into pieces,
Blood and flesh,
No whole corpse,
Perish completely!"

After hearing the ravings of Dabbitay,
Kenainym answered loudly:
"Do not come one after another,
In case you lose the care from each other,
And go to death after being defeated one by one.

"My ancestor is Aykoler Lion,
So-called sixty Herculeses.
Can not match my power.
I have Zoykuma Sword in my hand,
To greet your Herculeses on foot.

"Dabbitay,
To deal with your marksmen,
I have Arangel Bow and Sur Arrow on my back,
One of my arrows can kill your fifteen people.

"To deal with your men with maces,
I only use one iron rod in my hand.
I kill one with a single blow and no repetition,
Coping with you one by one.

"I use spear to deal with your spearmen,
Fifteen spearmen are not enough for me to spear.
Although I am alone,
And helpless,
There is nothing difficult to tackle your huge army.

"Now you have forty thousand troops,
Just like a flock of sheep in sheepfold.

"Dabbitay,
You and Keslety,
Just escaped from Talas,
As if sheep were chased by wolves.
If you really have crack troops,
Hurry to make them come into battlefield!"

To the answer of Kenainym,
Dabbitay was as speechless as a dummy.
Fifteen walking Herculeses,
Wielded iron chains to hurt people,
Running into mass action,
Rushing forward in crowds.

Invincible hero Kenainym,
He was the wise khan of Kirgiz,
He was born for the tribes of Kirgiz,
He wanted to make great contributions for people.

He drew Zoykuma Sword,
From its sheath,
Lifting it high.
He thought:
"If I couldn't kill them at one blow,
I would lose my face before Dabbitay."

He dodged to the right,
To look for an opportunity.
He just swung Zoykuma Sword,
Heads of fifteen Herculeses fell to the ground.

Seeing fifteen people dying simultaneously,
Fifteen archers of Khorasan launched the attack,
Fifteen arrows flew with whirring,
Hitting the body of Kenainym.

Unparalleled hero Kenainym,
Dodged from the right again,
As the archers lined up,
He drew the bow,
Shooting fiercely with sharp Sur Arrow.
The arrow penetrated the opponents,
Fifteen archers also fell to the ground.

Sixty arrogant Herculeses,
Fully half died in an instant.

Of the rest people,
Fifteen wielding maces,
Fifteen shaking spears,
They called out Dabbitay's name,
The howl echoed across the battlefield.

In the camp of Khorasan,
There were seventy wizards working magic:
Some excelled in incantation, spell and magic,
Some could summon wind and rain,
And walk on air,
Some took viper as whip to wave.

Seventy magicians came forward,
Eager to bind the hands and feet of Kenainym with sorcery.
They chanted sorts of incantation,
Over and over again.

Kenainym wore,
The shirt of devil Jurendo,
How could the incantation be fulfilled on him?

Faced with the thirty surrounding Herculeses,
He fought back by circuity.
Avoiding being hit by mace,
Blocking spearhead back.

He shuttled among them,
Bit two spearmen,
Another five mace men couldn't escape as well.
The seven arrogant madmen,
Were thrust down by Kenainym at one blow.

The rest twenty-three were very crafty,

Full of tricks,
Skilled in martial acts.
They fought fiercely against Kenainym,
Back and forth,
Left and right.
Maces were roaring over the head,
Spearheads collided with chest protectors.

Faced with the siege,
Astute hero Kenainym,
Wielded edge tools,
With glaring eyes,
Like the red sun through heavy fog in the sky.

He grasped the duck-palm type spear,
Shouted the name of Manas,
Launched attack towards the enemy repeatedly.
Everyone seeing his power,
Would be half dead with fear.

Lovely horse Kankura,
Galloped,
Like an arrow flying off the string,
Like a roc flying in the sky.

Kenainym speared five people from the front,
Another seven people also died.
Those Khorasan people as onlookers,
Were scared out of wits,
Dizzying.

Kenainym was fearless,
Charging bravely,
Like a hawk diving from clouds.
If encountering with such a hero,
No one could stay alive.

The rest eleven men fled in panic,
Afraid of being hit by the hero.
They ran away as fast as rabbits,
Helmets and armors were thrown,
Hair was tangled,
As if weeds were blown away by autumn wind.

Worrying about the pursuit of hero,
They looked back at times.

As the rest Herculeses all fled,
Dabbitay issued another order:
"Kenainym is lowering his guard,
Keslety, attack now.
Approach him quietly from the back,
Thrust him down from the horse.
Hurry to lead ten thousand soldiers,
To besiege him from all directions.

"Use more nets,
Layer upon layer,
To catch him.
Drag him and his horse here,
I will send him to death by myself!"

Keslety started the expedition on horse,
Followed by ten thousand soldiers.
A sea of Khorasan soldiers,
Like everywhere ants crawling,
Like black bees annoying.

Hero Kenainym did not care,
Rushing around repeatedly.
Three thousand nets befell him,
He was completely covered with iron nets.
He was not speared by Keslety,
But was caught in the net of enemy.

Without the cheer of forces,
He lost his might.
His hands and feet were bound,
His eyes were glazed,
Puzzle crossed his mind.

Would God punish him,
Would destiny tease the hero?

Herculeses surrounded Kenainym,
But could never drag the black mane wolf.
Keslety yelled:
"Let me pull,
Give me the rope!"

Hearing the yell of the beast Keslety,
Kenainym was suddenly awakened:
"May my ancestor Semtay give me wisdom,
May my grandfather Kris① help me succeed.

"Where are you, Old Bakay?
Where are you, my great-grandmother Kanikai?
Transforming into a swan by a sudden,
Having a nest in the fairyland,
My grandmother Ayichulek,
Where are you now?
The fairy on Mountain Kayp,
Where are you, my mother Kuyale?

"You are the gods protecting me,
How much I miss you,
Adore you.
You are my reliable dependence,
I ask all the heroes in heaven,

1 Kris: It's the nickname of the hero Krichorao.

To do your best,
To care for me.
I believe Kris must come to help me,
His wisdom and power can shake the earth!"

Keslety took the rope,
Tied it to one side of stirrup with belt.
He trod on the stirrups,
Whipped the horse hard,
Dragged it forward.
No matter what they did,
Kenainym and his steed were absolutely still.

In the critical moment,
The earth shook acutely in sudden,
Billowing dust covered the sky.
The ground cracked,
Flood gushed from the ground.
A voice called from the water:
"Kenainym,
I am Kristan,
Child,
Cheer up,
Move quickly!"

Kenainym knew it was the ancestor that spoke,
The Aykoler hero in his mind.
He lifted his spirits,
Mustered up his courage,
Gathered all his strength to tear the stirrups.
With a crack,
The seventy iron nets on his body,
Were all torn up.

Keslety still pulled hard,
The broken net rope rebounded and hit the soldiers.
How powerful the force was,

Fifty enemy soldiers died together.

Kenainym jumped out on Kankura,
Stared at the figure of Keslety.
He whipped horse to catch up with Keslety,
Lifted sword to hack at his neck.

Kenainym Speared the Giant of Khorasan Talana

When hero Kenainym was covered,
With seventy iron nets,
Dabbitay got carried away.

When hero Kenainym broke out,
And the head of Keslety fell,
He seemed to be struck by cold water.
He was too angry to say a word,
The whole world seemed to be in severe winter.

He issued orders to troops,
Asking Khorasan people to turn out in full force.
They launched an attack to Kenainym,
Shouting like surging tidewater.
Like countless black beetles,
They besieged Kenainym from all directions.

Dabbitay yelled:
"Seinemen,
Hurry to cast nets,
Throw them into the air!
Spear men,
Never escape,
Advance bravely!
Marksmen,
Stay together,
Standby on one side.
When the sly Kenainym springs to the edge,
Aim and shoot his pupils!"

Intrepid hero Kenainym,
Wielded sword to fight hard.
He chopped a mass of enemies,
Blood splattered from the point of sword.

The famous horse Kankura,
Wandered on the army like a dragon.
Kenainym gave the enemies head-on blows,
As if a tiger burst into the sheep.

Smoke arose everywhere,
Blood flowed everywhere.
Look at countless slashers,
How many had exposed guts.

Day and night,
Tireless horse Kankura,
Kept galloping,
Freely on the battlefield;
Kenainym wielded sword,
Hacking around,
Keeping fighting,
More fiercely.

The earth was soaked by blood,
The soil was stained with blood.
Hero wielded Albaris[1] Sword,
Like a magical general from heaven.

Unable to stand the strike,
Enemy soldiers fled everywhere,
As if mountain torrents broke dam.
In hot pursuit,
Hero whipped horse,
Over hill and dale.

1 Albaris: A Kirgiz term, a demon-like sword.

His spear,
Never missed,
Flocks of enemy soldiers,
Were lifted in the air and thrown over the cliff,
One after another.

Enemy magicians worked magic to make winds,
Flying sand and rolling stones,
Covered the sky.
In an instant,
Kenainym was enveloped in heavy dust.

Kenainym was well informed after all,
A piece of hidden Jurendo's tongue,
Was bitten off,
And swallowed.
He recited all the incantations of Jurendo,
He wielded the spear,
To stop the blowing wind.

It turned out that,
Five magicians made the wild wind.
Meanwhile three Herculeses,
Charged towards Kenainym on horse.

Kenainym ignored the Herculeses,
Wielding sword to attack the magicians first.
Before they escaped everywhere,
Before they fled in panic,
Letting them die of the magical sword.

At this time three Herculeses whipped steed,
Wielded spear to shout and fight.
Whinnying horses were as fast as wind,
Followed by dust.

Seeing the spear coming from the front,

Swift and smart Kenainym,
Moved aside,
To dodge swiftly.
Three Herculeses passed him by,
To the distance of two horse poles.

Before the three people turned around,
Kenainym urged horse to chase,
Like a flying arrow.
He thrusted for three times,
The three people fell to the ground.
These three arrogant Herculeses,
Were like falling leaves and flowers in the storm.

Horse Kankura like a tiger with wings,
Jumped unruly,
Full of strength,
Even whirlwind could never catch it,
Even earthquake could hardly stop it.

Invincible hero on horse,
Chased and killed groups of enemies,
As if bustards ran into an eagle,
Enemy soldiers died in crowds.

In sight of the scene,
Khorasan people shouted frightenedly:
"Today is the end,
We will all be killed!"

Among the Herculeses selected by Dabbitay,
There was a powerful warrior called Talana.
Of the people ever fighting against him,
None escaped from him.

His steed was Tarmalkok[1],
Like a lion on its prey.
Tarmalkok stamped a huge rock,
The rock would be as weak as wet lime.
If Talana grasped a trunk,
Water could be squeezed out from the trunk.
Talana wore a seven-layer iron helmet,
A thick five-layer armor was on his body.
A nine-layer iron shield,
Was always carried with the bloodthirsty demon.

Spear, sword and hammer,
Shovel, chain and stick,
The damned man mastered all the weapons.
Shooting an arrow and firing a gun,
He was also skilled.

A demon of drinking blood and eating man,
No one dared to oppose him.
Anyone who offended him,
Would be beheaded and killed.

His battleax was as huge as a horse's head,
His spear was five feet long.
Even if he faced a mountainous giant,
He could fight bravely,
Never yield.

His body was as high as a tower,
His hands and feet were as thick as trees;
His mouth was like bottomless cave,
His teeth were like jagged rocks;
His eyebrows were like lying bears,
His braid was like a long and thick rope;
His eyelashes were like dense woods,

1 Tarmalkok: A horse's name, a Kirgiz term, refers to blue curly horse.

His eyeholes were like dry ponds;
His ears were like leaves of coconut tree in India,
His head was like a huge yurt.

The pit that he made after lying on the ground,
Could contain fifty lying sheep.
Through the north and south,
Anyone had never met,
Such a strange giant like him.

Layers of armor all over his body,
Shone in the sunlight.
His battle flag blew in the wind,
His arrogance was scary.

His horse Tarmalkok,
Rushed forward wildly,
Like overwhelming flood,
Like uncontrollable hurricane.

Talana barked like a mad dog,
Gritting his teeth.
Horse hooves shook the earth,
Approaching Kenainym rapidly.
Descendant of hero[1] was as firm as mountain,
Staring calmly.

Talana planned to fight alone,
Shouting at Kenainym like a bull:
"You arise my anger,
I will fight against you alone.
God sent you to me,
Your life loses the protection.

"I have the strength to crush stones,

1 Descendant of hero: It refers to Kenainym.

Devils will surrender before me.
If anyone dares to be against me,
I will drain his blood.

"I observed you in the distance for days,
To see how much ability and strength you have.
Kenainym,
How many soliders,
Killed by you.
I witnessed everything,
So I volunteer to come to battle.

"Let me tell you,
Kenainym,
Today you are in my hand,
No way for you to live in the world.
I will cut your skin into bands,
I will smash your to death on the rock.
I will take your head as flagon,
I will take your blood as wine and drink up.

"I will hang you on the spearhead,
I will open your heart,
I will gut you,
I will toast your liver on burning coals,
I will feed my hound with your bones,
I will use your skin to wipe down my swords!

"Kenainym,
I will hang your corpse,
High on the spearhead,
To collect the reward from Dabbitay.
Wearing the awarded gown inlaid with gold,
To travel around!
If I can not do what I say,
Let my name disappear from the world!"

Kenainym replied cheerily:
"There is a custom in Kirgiz:
To guard against sudden attack of wolves and vultures,
Hang Aybarl[1] puppet,
On the neck of your beloved horse,
On the mane of running horse.

"You are just an Aybarl puppet,
I will hang you on my horse.
No matter how many beasts like you come forward,
I will beat you,
Destroy you completely!

"How many people ever boasted,
Blowing into the sky.
How many people were smug,
Thinking they were supreme.
Once they fought against me,
They were all defeated by me.

"The giant Kezle with eagle tail,
Five times taller than you,
He did not escape from me!
Because the soul of my ancestor Manas,
Will always bless me to defeat the enemy.

"Jurendo lived for eight thousand years,
Did many things human could never imagine.
He thought he could do whatever he wanted,
But was killed by me in the end.

"How many giants,
Big oxen could not carry.
Although they rode elephants to harass people,
They all did not escape death,

1 Aybarl: It refers to bow and arrow or archer.

Losing dignity and fame before me.

"Arrogant Talana,
Your end will be the same as theirs.
Compared with Kalebek,
How can you be called a master?"

Rebuked angrily by Kenainym,
Talana suddenly fell into rage.
He wielded spear and shouted,
Jumping like a hungry wolf.
He yelled "Dabbitay, Dabbitay"!
Lifting spear to thrust at Kenainym's heart.

The beast boiled with anger,
His roar was like thunder.
His mouth was foaming,
His eyes were burning.
His nostrils were flaring,
His beard was shaking,
Like flying reeds in wild wind.

His long hair on the temples hung down,
Like trailing bridles on the ground.
Like a python out of its hole,
He stuck out tongue to lick lip and nose.
His spearhead spat fire,
Fiery flames burned.

Kenainym casted a glance with contempt,
Standing still,
Staying calm.
Kenainym cared nothing,
Just like a towering mountain,
As if a big army stood behind him.

Because God specialized him,

The power of Kenainym was outstanding.
He was the son of Lion,
With an iron will,
And the best military skill.

He wielded the battleax,
To block the spear of Talana.
The spear was broken into pieces,
Falling from the hand of Talana.
The spearhead was smashed into iron sheets,
Sparkling silver,
Flying everywhere.
Soldiers were afraid of being hit by pieces,
All used shields to block them hurriedly.

At the moment,
Battleax hit Talana's head again and again,
With cracking sound,
Before he could turn back to dodge.

When eyes closed and opened,
Descendant of hero Kenainym,
Hacked fiercely for sixty times,
As fast as lightning.

Spark flew from the shield of Talana,
To the grassland that burst into flame.
With spear Kenainym thrusted,
Breastplate of Talana was stabbed.
Soldiers of Khorasan were all shocked,
The Death had approached.

Dabbitay was extremely anxious while watching,
Shouting at Talana eagerly:
"Hey,
Talana!
Where is your courage lost?

Where has your wisdom gone?
Why do you stand still,
Letting Kenainym hack at will?
Never lose your mind at this moment,
You must be wise and brave,
Act calmly!"

Talana was aroused,
After the voice of Dabbitay reached his ears.
He adjusted himself to changing circumstances,
Taking out the mace on him.
He lifted it high and waved it,
To hit Kenainym hard.

Battle-hardened Kenainym,
Wielded the battleax in his hand,
Blocked the mace of Talana.
The mace flew out of the hand of Talana,
Fell on the center of battlefield,
With a loud explosion.

With the mace lost,
Talana suddenly got frightened.
He reached out in panic,
To grasp the collar of Kenainym.

With outstanding nerve,
Kenainym also grasped the collar of Talana,
With feet into the stirrups,
With all his strength.

Both sides grabbed the collar of each other,
Wanting to tie it round the pommel.
Although foaming at the mouth,
Both sides sat steadily on the saddles.

Collars were torn up,

Layers of belts were broken.
Their heads collided,
Until they became blue and black,
With bloody faces.

They both wanted to drag each other,
Keeping whipping their own steeds.
Horses straightened their necks to move forward hard,
Their ears swung back and forth like scissors.
The two horses had equal strength,
Neither could realize the wishes of their masters.

They fought on the hillside,
Running along the path of hillside;
They chased downhill,
Running like roe deer;
They spread their own flags,
Running towards the valley;
Steeds under them,
Running like argali.

Horses got exhausted,
They jumped off and wrestled on the ground.
Shoulder against shoulder,
They pushed and shook each other.
They used feet to support the earth,
As firm as trees.

When they lifted the opponent on the shoulder,
Even the ground could not stand huge pressure,
Feet sunk deep into the soil,
Deep trenches appeared on the earth.
Smoke arose from the trenches,
Dusty,
Misty.

Countless rocks were squeezed out of the cracks,

Like upturned pots on the ground.
Huge stones that originally stood on the ground,
Were swallowed into trenches by the earth.
Lush splendens everywhere,
Were uprooted with mud.
Rivers overflowed on gobi and desert,
Dry land for thousands of years turned into swamp.

They were not tired of fighting,
For two days fiercely battling.
Only God knew,
What would happen.

Talana could not stand finally,
Interceding with Kenainym:
"Unmatched Kenainym,
I am too ignorant to know,
You are so brave and powerful.

"I thought once we fought,
I could take your life.
We battled on horses,
Now we are exhausted,
Powerless.

"We tightened the horse bellybands,
Struggling on horses,
We tussled,
Grasping the collar of each other.

"With all our strength,
Straight backs became bent bows.
Badly injured were our legs,
Suffering intolerable pains.

"We wrestled hard and pushed each other,
Doing our best to entangle each other.

Sunrise and sunset, we had no break,
Fierce battle hurt both sides.

"I have an innate habit,
Growing up without change,
At all seasons,
Having a meal every seven days.
I just counted in my mind,
Today is the time for me to eat.

"I ask you for a truce,
Let me go back to have a good meal.
I invite you to have dinner with me,
I will show no slight to you."

"Talana,
Go back,
Hurry back,
Never act slowly.
It will be your last meal,
Prepare your shroud by the way.

"If you have a family,
Make a farewell to them,
Leave your last words to them,
Because you will never return.
Talana,
I will not go with you,
I will not follow you,
For having a dinner."

With the consent of Kenainym,
Talana turned back to his own camp.
His mountainous body swayed,
As if a blue beast swung the feet,
He jumped off the saddle after returning to Ayinla.

Headmen led by Dabbitay,
Surrounded him with censure:
"Known as a hero,
What are you doing, Talana?
Why not catch Kenainym,
But let him wander freely in the wild?"

Talana answered:
"The fight makes me exhausted,
Too tired to move a step forward,
Let alone catch him bound.

"I almost lost my life on the battlefield,
I asked him to restart the battle after a meal,
After I come back to have a good meal,
I must do my best to defeat him.
I will have no return if I am defeated,
Never raising my head before the people.

"Among the men with head on the shoulder,
Among the people with legs to walk,
Kenainym is like an unbreakable rock,
An unshakeable mountain.

"I heard he claimed,
He travelled around the world,
Including Jurendo,
He defeated every enemy,
He is really a matchless hero.

"Now,
Kenainym is like raging fire,
Burning up in the wind.
Anyone offending him,
Will hardly escape from death.

"Hurry to prepare the meal,

Send it to me soon.
It is not easy to fill my stomach,
Prepare one hundred and eighty naans first.
Finishing these naans,
Is just an appetizer before the dishes.

"Kill camels and cattle for me,
Kill ten sheep for me,
Kill enough birds and beasts for me,
Make these prepared in six days.

"I still need six buckets of spirits,
Send two buckets now and I will drink them up.
The rest buckets should be prepared as well,
I will drink them up while eating.

"Go to find thick and hard ropes,
Put them on my bed.
Only with hard things under me,
Can I sleep well."

After commanding,
Talana stretched out and fell asleep,
Two nostrils were like two wind tunnels,
Heavy breath shook the earth,
Heat spread farther than arrow range.

Cooks were all flustered,
Making fire and cooking meal,
Without no delay.
After six busy days,
Talana just woke up to eat.

He swept the food,
With nothing left.
He mounted Tarmalkok after the meal,
Swaggering out of the camp.

Kenainym watched Kankura grazing.
With praying to God.
Estimating Talana was about to arrive,
He mounted Kankura,
Rushing forward like a tiger.

At the sight of Talana on horse,
He could not help falling into rage,
Filled with indignation.
He furrowed his brow,
A sullen face,
Was like the sky covered with cloud and mist.

Talana approached soon,
Wrapped with tight iron coat.
"Hey,
Kenainym,
I have been full and come to fight.

"I guess your belly is empty,
How can you battle with me?
I am like a reed growing free in the water,
You are like a duckweed floating on the water.

"You will leave the world lonely,
You will be speared by me.
No one will bury your body,
It is your pathetic destiny!"

Roar of Talana was deafening,
Resounding as if the world shook.
He wielded spear and urged battle horse,
Launching an attack towards Kenainym.

Just as usual combat,
Spears collided.

After one round,
They still tied,
Matched in strength.

They turned around,
Starting the second round.
Like his ancestor Kris,
Kenainym had a towering rage,
And clever eyes.

Kenainym was menacing,
Slogan of Manas shook the earth.
He wielded his spear,
Aiming at the bastard on Tarmalkok,
Thrusting hard with it.

Talana fell from the saddle,
Onto the ground.
Paste sprayed from his stomach,
Flowed out of arrow range.

Dabbitay was Defeated and Escaped

The road to Khorasan was blocked,
Dabbitay had no place to desert.
He calculated for a long while,
Planning to flee towards Indistan.

"Will Indistan accept me,
Will I get support there?
If I can stand firm there,
I will let Kenainym die.

"Maybe I should desert to Kangayi,
Not Indistan.
Instigated by them at first,
I launched the attack to Talas.

"If I desert to Qudus,
They will not let me stay for one day.
Going to Baghdad is also impossible,
Going to Egypt will not turn my luck around.

"Baghdad, Egypt and Qudus,
Were occupied by Jews originally.
It was Kenainym that went to help them,
To recover the lost territory,
To recapture the homeland.
If I desert to the three places now,
How can they let me take refuge.

"If I go to Indistan,

Kenainym must pursue me.
For the safety of residents,
Indistan will treat me as a disaster and drive me away.
I should seek asylum from Kangayi,
My difficult condition is for them,
My loss should be compensated by them.

"Among lots of tribes,
In Kara Khitan, Karamark and Kangayi,
No one can help me,
There is no hope if I get there.
It seems I come to the dead end without idea,
About how to clear up the mess and live the rest of life!"

Dabbitay of Khorasan,
No patron to seek for,
No shelter to live in.
For satisfying his greed,
He took the bribes of Karamark,
Then he came to the pathetic end.

Dabbitay got distracted,
Feeling he was approaching the death:
"I ever heard,
Kenainym was generous.
Now he will not forgive me,
It was I that cheated Salamart to oppose him.
Originally relying on the power of Keslety and Talana,
I was hopeful for the triumph.
Now the two heroes are both killed by Kenainym,
I lost all powerful soldiers.
I am like a roc about to fly,
But the wings are suddenly broken.

"When I took the bribes of Karamark,
It was really out of my mind,
Seeking for the death.

'Never dig a too deep hole,
You can not climb up if you fall into it.'
I digged a deep hole for Kenainym,
I fell into it and could not climb up.
Now I come to the end,
Depressed,
Helpless.

"If I am overconfident to make a comeback,
I will lose my life as weak as a fly.
Once he promises to spare my life,
I will send Khorasan with my hands."
Cranky Dabbitay,
Looked haggard,
Felt uneasy.

Desperate Dabbitay thought:
"I should muster my courage,
To keep fighting against Kenainym.
He has battled with many giants continuously,
Maybe he has been exhausted.
Here is my territory,
I am familiar with the route for offensive and defensive.

"I should rally the forces,
For the desperate fight,
For the decisive battle.
I will not flee if the Death comes,
I will go to the place with no return leisurely.

"If I had my usual power,
I would let Kenainym bleed.
It is my last chance in my life,
I can not throw it aside."

Dabbitay of Khorasan,
Nowhere to go,

Nowhere to escape,
He simply bit the bullet,
Whipping horse on towards Kenainym.

Seeing the figure of Dabbitay,
Kenainym thought:
"Dabbitay,
You come back,
If you do not,
Where can you escape?
You rack your brains but hardly escape from death!

"If you beg for mercy with kindness,
I can forgive your crimes.
If you come to fight with hostility,
I must cut off your head as a severe punishment!"

Kenainym was a fearless hero,
He defeated countless enemies alone.
He never broke the manner of hero,
He never complained to people.
Although he knew the Death would come,
He never turned back to escape.

Faced with a mighty force,
He was never distracted.
He got braver when facing more enemies,
Like fierce fire burning in wild wind.

He swore to defend his dignity,
Daring to stain his hands with enemies' blood.
He would gouge out the eyes of people,
Who dared to fight against him.

To the people who turned against him,
Whether young or old,
Whether friend or enemy,

He would chop the opponent's head off.
So,
The Kenainym,
Fame of the Death Sarik spread over the world.

"If I escape and hide out everywhere,
There is no point in living.
Rather than desert to an alien land to ask for asylum,
Wield the battleax to have a decisive battle!

"If the place I desert to,
Accepts me sincerely,
I will feel grateful.
If they think I am a defector,
And ignore me,
It will make me lose face.

"A wise man ever said:
'The person betraying his people,
Will be believed by no one.
The person betraying his homeland,
Will be accepted by no place.'
I have come to this point,
How can I live before people!"

Dabbitay was distracted,
As if the heart was haunted by muddle.
He hardly came up with any way,
Unable to disperse the grief.
He was disoriented and confused,
Filled with sorrow and worry.

He knew it was difficult for him to escape,
It was equivalent to death for him to battle.
To the army of Khorasan,
He also dare not act as before,
Throwing weight around,

Fulminating at will.

With nowhere to hide,
He had to come to Kenainym.
He bore the torment,
Whipped the steed under him,
Rode forward affectedly.

The greatest hero Kenainym,
Saw Dabbitay approaching,
Watching his movement with a serious look.

Dabbitay stood opposite him,
Speaking to him:
"Only hero can fight against hero,
It needs people for a hero to be a king.
I thought Kangayi people regarded me highly,
So I provoked you with losing myself.
I have recognized,
You are a true hero.

"I have contended with you for a long time,
Making many cruel wars.
Khan of Isfan, Acha Khan,
Followed me to attack you.
It was you that defeated them all,
Relentlessly,
One by one.

"Your person Salamart,
Ever pledged allegiance to you.
Kenainym,
I tell you now,
To stir up his hatred of you,
I told him the matter about Budikole,
In full detail.
When Salamart followed my advice,

I strengthened my confidence to defeat you.

"Although he revealed nothing,
You became aware of the secret.
With strong vigilance,
You crushed his plan and action completely.

"You defeated your enemy completely,
Making their plots unable to succeed.
The Kaldary[1] sent by Karamark,
The arrogant warriors,
You caught all of them,
And wiped them out.

"Smile never appeared on your cold face,
So you got a reputation as the Death.

"From the beginning I fought against you,
You harmed my back.
I kept being against you unreasonably,
Then I lost all the crack troops.

"Now I am defeated by you,
Still begging you to listen to me:
I beg you to spare my life,
Because I am a khan as well.

"I will pledge allegiance sincerely to you,
Dedicating all my power for you.
If you order me to launch an expedition,
I will go to battle against your enemy.
No matter how difficult problems I meet,
I will handle them properly by all means.

"I possess the throne of khan,

1 Kaldary: It refers to official.

I have good fortune,
Skilled in civil and military.
Whether changeful plots,
Or powerful warriors,
I can turn the corner.
I am capable and slick,
With careful and thorough behaviors.

"If you appreciate me,
I am willing to be at your service.
I only beg you to claim in public,
I am still a khan.
I will prepare a grand farewell for you,
An extremely glorious ceremony.
Making the people dazzled,
Spreading the story over the world."

After hearing the sweet words of Dabbitay,
Kenainym replied:
"Hey,
Dabbitay,
Can you be called a hero?
You creep are always against me,
You have come to a dead end.
Now you come to court me falsely,
Will I be fooled to follow your advice?

"You know what is called a hero,
You know how a hero protects people.
You rule the people arrogantly and cruelly,
Ordering them to die for you,
How inhuman you are!
What an evil behavior!

"You forced people to join the army,
Launching an expedition away from home.
You have no protection or respect for human life,

Do you have any reputation?

"My ancestor, Hero Manas,
Left great traditions to us.
For generations,
We keep teachings in mind and inherit virtues of ancestors.

"My ancestor, Aykoler Manas,
Forty warriors followed him like shadows.
He led forty warriors,
Fighting over the countries.
He led a mighty army,
Ever conquered the Great Begin.
Begin was extraordinary,
Ancients all knew it was a famous city.

"When it came to the hero, Semtay,
He only led two warriors,
To battle against thousands of troops,
Never bringing disaster to people.

"Semtay, Kristan and Bakay,
Were still alive in Seytek era.
They also just depended on several heroes to battle,
Never mobilizing tribes.

"I become a lonely hero,
Overturning the world.
All the time I think about protecting homeland and tribes,
Never taking soldiers during expeditions.

"I went to Dushanbe,
Kirgiz warriors asked to see the world with me.
Unwilling to be against their will,
I agreed reluctantly.
They had forgotten the war,
Still thinking it was a horse racing.

"It is our tradition to protect the people,
What your ancestors left is the tradition harmful to the people.
You beg me to spare your life,
I will make it clear for you.

"You said you ever played tricks,
Causing Salamart to betray me!
What else tricks do you have,
Just go on using them.
If you have no skill,
Do not ask me for anything impossible.

"I have had deliberation,
I have no reason to show mercy.
Pull out your tendon and strip off your skin,
Fill your skin with wheat straw,
And hang you high on the gate of Khorasan!

"I will not hurt your innocent people,
I will not occupy your land.
If anyone revenges you,
By invading our territory,
I will show no tolerance or sympathy,
Blood for blood,
Eye for eye.

"To the people losing their khan,
Harassment is unpopular.
To the folks losing their headmen,
Provocation is heartless as well.
The plain people without khan,
Like the soldiers under siege.
The helpless folks without heroes,
Like the babies unable to walk by themselves.

"I will not insult any person,

Not as complacent as you idiot.
Do not wait if you have courage,
Do not count on me to show mercy.
Whenever and wherever,
I never owe anyone anything!"

Dabbitay was extremely angry,
With the words of Kenainym.
He never suffered such severe censure,
Then urged horse forward.

He wielded the spear hard,
Launching the attack with howl.
He attempted to thrust the black mane wolf down,
From the horseback.

Kenainym watched quietly,
In no hurry,
Calm and stable.
He blocked the coming spear,
Not hit by Dabbitay.

He held the spear,
Closer to his body.
When Dabbitay passed by,
Like lightning he seized the attack opportunity.

Aiming at soft spot of the beast,
He thrust hard with the strength of a camel.
The buttock of Dabbitay left the saddle,
The feet also slipped from the stirrups.

The pure steel spear of Kenainym was very sharp,
Piercing the rigid armor at one blow.
Kenainym exerted his strength,
Lifting the huge Dabbitay,
High on the spearhead.

Khorasan people watched helplessly,
Kenainym rode away.
People with abilities in Khorasan,
Already died in the war one by one.

No one chased,
No one fought back,
No one offered advice,
No one cared that,
Whether Dabbitay was alive or dead.

They all guessed:
"Kenainym will throw Dabbitay,
Off the towering cliff.
Then he will come back to slaughter us,
Letting our blood flow like stream,
Overturning our world.
Cutting our head,
And flattering our homeland."

Many soldiers of Khorasan,
Worried about their own safety.
Distracted,
Perturbed,
They were all anxious.

Kenainym went straight to Khorasan,
Without looking back,
To the palace gate of khan.
Putting Dabbitay on the spearhead,
To the middle of palace gate.

Kenainym loosened the belt of Dabbitay,
Hung him on lintel with the belt.
Kenainym did not know,
Dabbitay was still alive,

Then left the gate without looking back,
To the dense crowd of forces.

Dabbitay was hung,
But not dead.
Spearhead did not pierce deeply,
No fatal wound on his body.

He stopped a passerby,
Who was asked to put him onto the ground.
He went to the vault and opened the gate,
Giving treasures to the people.
He offered a huge reward to all the people,
Promoting them to fight back Kenainym.

Khorasan people turned out in full force,
A huge army,
A mighty force.
Along the road,
Shooting arrows and Jazayle Gun.
Someone fired Auchagul cannon,
Shells landed and blazed.
The deafening gunfire,
Seemed to wipe out all the life.

Smoke covered the sky,
Every place on the shaking earth became battlefield.
Arrows flew,
Drums beat,
People boiled,
Flags waved,
The world became a boiling soup.

"Hey,
Hurry to kill Kenainym from Kirgiz,
Where can he escape now?"
Dabbitay shouted himself hoarse,

Driving all the people in the city.
Seeing Dabbitay escaped death,
Those crying soldiers,
Started their charge with shouting.

Those pitchers aiming at heads,
Waved the slings,
Then stones flew;
Blacksmiths carried huge hammers,
Coming up with heavy steps;
Carpenters held saws,
Coming up hastily.

Watering men carried wooden shovels,
Tucking their clothes in,
Coming up on spindling legs;
Reaping men tightened their belts,
With sickles in the belts,
Coming up lamely;
Women followed men,
Twittering along the way,
Coming up with twisting;
Thin old men were feeble,
Coming up on bulls staggeringly.

The old or the young,
The men or the women,
All came up with no one left.
But Dabbitay hid in the city,
Daring not to come out of the closed gate.

Seeing the situation,
Kenainym thought to himself:
"It seems that I am still careless,
My spear was not powerful enough,
To impale his liver.

"Unexpectedly Dabbitay instigates his tribes,
So many people come out in full force,
Risking their life in the gabble,
Ignorant crowds were like mountain torrents.

"I have the power to wave spear,
To hang them on the spearhead one by one,
To throw them into the wild,
Like throwing out dead pigeons.
But if I make the slaughter,
Countless common people will suffer.

"What can common people do,
Disobedience means the destruction of family.
Can it realize my wish of defeating enemy,
By killing common people hastily?

"Instead of paying attention to common people,
I should enter the castle to find their master.
As long as the soul of Manas,
Helps me in critical moment,
I will catch Dabbitay alive,
In the castle."

Lion Kenainym,
Made lots of plots in his mind.
Whipping his magical steed,
Rushing towards the castle.
Horse Kankura under him,
Made all the horses far behind.

Kankura galloped,
Mane and horsetail fluttered in the wind,
Rising dust covered the sky.
Of swarming forces in pursuit,
None could approach it.
Kankura like whirlwind,

Ran on the boundless ground.

When eyes closed and opened,
Kenainym got on flying horse,
To the castle gate of Khorasan.
Wall of the castle was higher than mountains,
Solid iron gate of the castle was firmly closed.
The iron gate knobs thick as arms,
Hung iron lock big as a horse head.
Many soldiers stood on both sides,
Holding spears,
Majestically outside the gate.

Kenainym just ignored them,
Lifting crescent battleax huge as a door to hack hard.
He smashed the lock and opened the door,
With a rumble,
Huge doors collapsed towards the inside.
Gate guards were awoken,
Rushing to stop Kenainym immediately.

Kenainym hacked around,
To cut them down.
Seeing so powerful hero,
No one dared to step forward.

Dabbitay knew everything in the city,
Without courage to lead soldiers to battle.
He was burning with anxiety,
In a trance,
He was trembling with fear,
With weak legs.
When the Death came again,
He really did not know where to preserve his life.

"I will move in opposite direction,
Marching straight with no stop,

Launching an attack towards Talas.
Let Kenainym do anything here,
Hard to find my trace everywhere.
I will go to the hometown of Manas, Talas,
Making a mess,
Turning the table.

"If I am captured without a fight,
I will suffer from unprecedented bully,
And lose my life in the end.
If I beg Kenainym with crying,
He will not spare my life.

"Even if I hand over all the wealth and cities,
I think he will not be grateful.
Rather than die here meaninglessly,
Strike back again to Talas.

"I will behead the triumphant Kirgiz people,
Like butchering goats,
And open them like cutting melons.
The castle Manas left,
I will destroy it completely,
Burning and robbing.

"I will smash the tomb of Manas,
Throw his skeleton into the wild."
The sly scoundrel,
Had a murderous heart.

As the smoke arose,
When it was dark everywhere,
The bastard whipped the horse Toru[①],
Escaping from Khorasan quietly.

① Toru: A horse's name, it refers to a claret red horse.

At the city of Khorasan,
Kenainym searched every corner,
But he still did not find Dabbitay,
He did not know where he hid either.
So he sent people to hang billbeastds,
On which a reward was posted:
"Find Dabbitay,
Then sit upon the throne."

Even the reward was such generous,
He still got no trace about Dabbitay.
Owing to that Dabbitay had no offspring,
And his relatives were wiped out.
If he died in his home,
There was no one that could inherit the throne.

His wife swallowed the poison Kuchal,
Ended the life of himself in his home.

"About the throne of Dabbitay,
Kenainym gave it to an indigene.
He mounted his horse,
Left the city of Khorasan.

"Where on earth can Dabbitay be?
Before I wipe him out,
I could not stop for a moment.
I should go to my hometown Talas,
Take my leave to my Kirgiz fellows,
Then continue to search Dabbitay."

Kenainym made the decision,
He moved forward to the distance.
From dawn to night,
The hooves never stopped,
He went across many villages in darkness.

At all costs,
With lash he urged his steed,
One day he came to a fork road,
There were a lot of hoof prints,
In which water was gathered.

He drew the conclusion after he observed it,
It was the footprint of swift horse.
Arashi people of sixty tribes,
Their steeds would not leave these.

He observed the shape of the hoof print,
It was actually left by Khorasan horse.
He judged clearly,
Dabbitay had gone through there.

"Did Dabbitay feel disoriented,
He fled to Kangayi from here?
Or he was driven by devil,
Rushed to the direction of Talas?

"Maybe he wanted to take the chance,
When I am out of there,
He was going to upside down the peaceful life of Kirgiz people.

"I smashed the gate of Khorasan,
Broke it into pieces.
Maybe he wanted to revenge,
So he went to the tomb of Aykoler Manas,
He wanted to insult my ancestor!"
Thought of here Kenainym was anxious,
He wished that he could fly to Talas with wings.

Following the hoof prints,
Kenainym chased as quickly as a flash.
He kept on track,
Towards the direction of Talas.

Because of the time delayed in Talas,
He was far outstripped by Dabbitay.
All of these will become a story,
It will spread in our offspring.
Let us stop here,
Then talk about the devil Dabbitay,
About the crime he slaughtered Kirgiz people.

Dabbitay Attacked Talas in Stealth

Dabbitay Striked Talas Heroes rose to Resist

Let us talk about unscrupulous Dabbitay,
Day and night,
He never stopped his steed,
It was a cool autumn evening,
He approached the treasured place Talas.

Kirgiz people were meeting here,
The lights were bright around Ayinla.
People gathered together,
They worshipped the spirit of Manas.
Both men and women,
They were all devout.

They slaughtered stallions and mares,
They slaughtered goats with yellow head.
They slaughtered tall camels,
They slaughtered strong cattles.
On sooty iron tripus[1],
They put cauldrons and made fires,
All of them took part in it.
They cooked all kinds of meat.
In these cauldrons,
The scents of food was attractive.

There was a girl called Kezer,
She played a Kirgiz horn harmonica.
This girl was famous,

1. Tripus: The support of cauldron.

It was sweet when she was talking,
Her tweedle sounded like bicker and twitter,
Everyone thought she was cute.

Sometimes her tweedle was sorrow,
The old may wet their cloth;
Sometimes her tweedle was melodious,
People may fall in it,
Just like being intoxicated by wine.

Herdsman forgot to drive horses,
No one noticed the scorched flavor of milk pot,
Sheepherder kept being with peaceful sheep flock.

At this time,
Kezer appeared on a hillside,
Played her favorite harmonica emotionally.

This cute girl was remarkable,
She was versatile,
And talented.

Listen,
After the intoxicating tweedle,
She sang in ringing voice:
"All Kirgiz people of Arashi,
Listen,
The old and the young,
You listen,
All women and children you listen:

"Since Aykoler Manas was born,
Kirgiz people sat on the throne soon.
Even Kangayi and Karamark got together,
They still could not compete with him.

"He led an expedition to the east,

Attacked the Big Begin.
This unparalleled feat,
Shook the whole world,
Then he was known by all.

"The offspring of Aykoler,
Protected their lovely people.
The territory of Kirgiz,
Never been occupied by invader.

"People of Kangayi was unwilling to keep themselves mute,
They always disturb us.
The offspring of Manas,
They protect us generation by generation.

"Kirgiz people was happy and peaceful,
We welcomed the birth of Kenainym.
No matter the west or the east,
No one dared to fight with him.
Anyone dared to show the weapon before him,
Will be defeated immodestly.

"People of Isfan and Khorasan,
They acted in collusion with Kangayi.
They invaded our lovely home several times,
However, they had never won Kenainym.
Kenainym went to Khorasan to chase them,
Today there is still no news about him.

"There is a figure in the distance,
He looks unfamiliar.
Informed wise men,
Please identify carefully.
Is he the son of Seytek,
Kenainym is coming to us?
He is in blue and rides a bay horse,
He looks unlike what Kenainym usually is."

Hearing the warning song from Kezer,
All fellows raised their head to overlook.
They whispered to each other,
The comer looked strange.

There was a man called Jengtay,
He had good memory,
And sharp eyes.
Anyone appeared before him,
He could recognize it.
These warm heart and righteous youths,
Urged Jengtay to show his skill:

"Jengtay,
Look!
If that man was not Kenainym,
Who is he?
If he is a rabid dog,
We will mount our steed,
Go to besiege him from all sides.

Jengtay stood up to observe,
He screamed in astonishment:
"Is it the punishment from God,
He is bringing disasters to us?
The comer was on a bay horse,
He looks like henchman Dabbitay.

"Why he comes to Talas,
Does he flee here to hide?
Or he has defeated Kenainym,
Come here to invade us!
There are two possibilities,
Both of those are possible!"

After the words of Jengtay,
People pointed his face with fingers:

"Jengtay,
Damn you!
Dabbitay will not hide in Talas,
There is only one possibility as you said,
Do not make irresponsible remarks!
You are unscrupulous,
You disgraced your parents with the shit you spoke!"

There was a youth called Anter,
He was self-glorifying in the young.
His steed was Sarikel[①],
He had all kinds of weapons,
He looked like a great hero.
He had nothing to fear,
Urged his steed to advance.
Went straight to block Dabbitay.

Young hero Anter was brave,
He came to the edge of a village.
He had fought several times,
He had been honed by the cruelty of war.

Unscrupulous Dabbitay of Khorasan,
He regarded everyone as shoe-pad:
"You ride a light brown horse,
You look like haveing some ability to fight.
Kenainym was dead,
Is there any hero in Krigiz?

"I am telling you I am Dabbitay,
I order you that including young and old,
Everyone take out a mattock.
Destroy the city of Sire and the tomb of Manas,
Do not leave a single brick.
If you disobey my order,

1 Sarikel: A horse's name, it means the light brown horse.

I will kill all of you!

"You guy on a light brown horse,
Turn back now.
Transport my order,
Without any flaw."

Anter was in rage after that:
"Dabbitay,
You are a paid henceman,
Damn you!
You said Kenainym was dead,
No one believes your lies.

"The offspring of Manas Kenainym,
How could he indulge you?
How could the sun rise in the west,
How could Kirgiz people lose their hero?

"Kirgiz people are not that cowardly,
No one will obey your order.
We are offspring of Manas,
How could we destroy the City of Sire?
Did you think that,
Your lies will frighten the Kirgiz?

"Kirgiz people are gathering,
They worshiped the tomb of black mane Manas.
You evil mind guy with sores on your head,
It is the time you seek your doom!
It is lucky that you are alive today,
You will fall in hell tomorrow!"

Anter turned back,
Report the truth to Kirgiz people:
"People of Kirgiz in white felt caps,
Old men with white beard,

Listen carefully:

"Dabbitay of Khorasan,
His words were arrogant and harsh.
He threatened to kill all of us,
He looked cruel,
And aggressive.
He said he had defeated Kenainym,
This time he came to Talas,
He wanted to destroy Sire City and the tomb."

After the report of Anter,
Women were indignant,
They were talking at once,
They shouted together:
"Damn wagging scarecrow,
We will throw his body to the wild.

"We women will charge together,
Attack him from all directions,
We will split his belly!
He talked nonsense,
He was a despicable vagrant,
How could he dare to approach Kenainym!"

The old were angry and fierce,
Just like angry old goats,
Their hair and eyelash were shaking,
Just like hedgehog erecting the spikes.

The young was in rage,
They mounted their steeds.
They could not help holding their spears,
Waited the order form their commander.

They blamed Anter:
"Why you raised a big rumpus,

You called yourself a marvelous hero,
It is the good chance to show yourself.
Why you disturbed common people,
Why you are not that wise as usual?

"So many of us fight against a man,
Just like shooting a fly with a lot of arrows,
We stabbed with spears together,
His belly will become hornet's nest!"

Being blamed by the crowd,
Anter turned his horse.
Faced with Dabbitay,
He waved his spear disposedly.

Arrogant Dabbitay,
He thought nothing of Anter.
He did not mind it at all,
Anter was not that strong he thought.

Anter shouted loudly,
He shouted the name of Manas.
All of Kirgiz people cheered together,
They shook the mountain and the earth.

Hearing the thunderous roars,
Dabbitay felt anxious.
He waved his spear as well,
Led a violent attack to Anter.

Using spear to block spear,
They stabbed each other time and again.
Round after round,
One was more tenacious than another.

Suddenly Dabbitay attacked with his spear,
He stabbed Anter down from the horse.

Someone came to rescue,
Anter picked up his life.

Hero Beto of Kirgiz,
Like a ravenous lion.
He rushed towards Dabbitay,
His roars shook the mountain and rocks.

Dabbitay looked him up and down,
He thought Beto was a warrior.
For the braveness he exclaimed:
"Sinful Kirgiz,
Every one of them was a warrior.
Anyone who can walk,
Looks like a burning fire!"

Desperado Dabbitay,
His face was as cruel as a wolf.
He talked to himself cruelly:
"In the crowd of Kirgiz,
If any one dares to challenge me,
I will kill him,
No exception!"

This crazy wolf was in anger,
He held the bloody spear,
Faced with warrior Beto,
He stabbed him down with one hit.

There was a young man called Jamekay,
He rushed up to Dabbitay like an arrow.
Aiming at the waist of Dabbitay,
He stabbed his spear.

Dabbitay stayed on the horse after a wobble,
Before Jamekay turned back,
He gave a hit with his spear.

Jamekay was stabbed down by surprise,
Like a fur cap he was thrown away.

Young hero Tubash,
Worrying about Jamekay,
Desiring to revenge Jamekay,
He urged his steed to charge.
Knowing nothing fearing nothing,
Aiming at the armpit of Dabbitay,
He exerted all his strength to attack.

Exasperated Dabbitay,
With the spear he struck back fiercely.
Youth Tubash was also thrown out like a felt cap,
He was thrown to the gobi full of rocks.

Youths of Kirgiz was astonished,
They were going to hit out together,
Everyone was included.

There was an old man called Akchuletoy,
He gave some advice to these youths:

"Dabbitay came here this time,
Maybe he was going to seek refuge with Kenainym.
Young guys,
Listen to me,
Do not do stupid things,
Keep your head.
Do not get on the battlefield recklessly,
Do not fight in impetuosity,
Hold your bridles.

"If it is a tangled warfare,
Your fight skills are not effective,
You will lose the chance in vain,
Death maybe falls on you.

"Someone was stabbed down,
Do not revenge him,
Send warriors to rescue him,
Make him be away from enemy's weapon.

"You should fight in series,
Try to entangle our opponent.
There is the blessing from the spirit of Manas,
Kenainym will come to get on the battlefield.

"You do not have armors,
You do not have robes and leather pants.
If you rush on like a swarm of hornets,
Faced with this bloodthirsty guy,
In a moment you will lose your lives.

"Listen to me,
Do not be impulsive,
Do not lose lives in vain.
Today and tomorrow,
Make feints to drain his energy.

"The spirit of Aykoler,
He is about to punish the arrogant beast.
If Kenainym comes this evening,
Today is his time of death.
His head will be cut down,
His armor will be taken off.
My young powerful warriors,
You will seize his armors.

"You should keep it in mind,
The spirit of Manas is blessing us.
If we fight alone,
We will be defeated,
Our ribs will be broken and our tongues will be cut away.
Gather all people of Kirgiz,

It is the blessing of God."

They thought the words of Akchuletoy was reasonable,
So they did not enter the field together.
They sent two warriors,
To help young lion Tubash to get away from the field.

Hero Anter and Beto,
They went into battle in turn.
Youth Tubash and Jamekay,
They also pitched into the work.
They fought in series,
Dabbitay was exhausted.

Famous uncle Koshaoyi,
He had an only daughter called Alemakay.
Her son was Akchulay,
Whose tribe was in Naryn.
Akchulay was in good relation with Anter.
In order to visit his friend,
He came here today.

Seeing the sense of war,
He was confused about it.
He saw three guys on the battlefield,
It was not a one-on-one hit.

Akchulay greeted to the crowd,
He held his bridle and stood aside.
Jengtay noticed Akchulay,
He came up to show respect.

Akchulay did not answer it,
He asked some questions directly:
"Ah,
Jengtay,
What are you playing here,

Who is the one on the field?
Answer my questions."

"My elder brother Akchulay,
Please listen carefully,
I am telling you the details.
The single-handed man was Dabbitay,
He is the leader of Khorasan.
He have led lots of troops,
To challenge Talas.

"He was not alone that time,
He colluded with Isfan and Kangayi.
In those days,
Talas was filled with blood and bones.

"Finally,
He could not bear the attack of Kenainym,
During the darkness,
In a flurry,
He scurried off like a rat.

"Salamart was after him,
Urged his steed,
Kept chasing.
Worrying about Salamart,
Lion Kenainym,
Ran after him as well.
Two heroes Kenainym and Salamart,
So far we have no news about them.

"In order to worship the tomb of Manas,
We gather together.
When we were worshipping,
Like a stray dog,
Dabbitay wandered here.

"This time he was more crazy and provoking,
He said Kenainym had died.
He ordered we people of Kirgiz,
To destroy the castle and tomb.
This damn guy,
He spoke shit,
He talked nonsense.

"We are filled with hatred,
Someone of us was fighting with him.
We wanted to go into battle together,
But the old did not allow.

"We fight in turn now,
But we could not defeat Dabbitay like this.
We are all expecting Kenainym and Salamart,
They will subjugate Dabbitay if they come.

"The spirit of Manas was blessing us,
We get together and prey here,
If not,
My friend,
The majestic City of Sire,
The mountainous white tomb,
All these will be wiped out."

After the words Akchulay was outraged,
He tightened the belt of his steed,
He prepared to join the battle in rage,
Urged his steed,
No hesitation.

He called Anter and Beto,
Jamekay and Tubash,
Asked them all to leave the field,
He will fight by himself.

The leader of Naryn Akchulay,
He managed all things about his tribe.
He made his people live in contentment,
He protected the peace of his fellows.

Once people of Kangayi invaded them,
They surrounded the city of Naryn,
Akchulay was not there that time,
He knew it after the event,
It made him pained.

He urged his steed Chalbash,
Cloud of dust was raised.
He prayed for the blessing of grandfather Koshaoyi,
He prayed to the spirit of Aykoler Manas,
He prayed to Almanbet and warrior Chuwak,
He prayed to fearless hero Sirak.

He prayed to Lion Semtay,
He prayed to brave Krichorao,
He prayed to giant Toshtuk,
And Muzburchak.

He prayed to Lion Seytek,
He prayed to hero Kokcher,
And his uncle Galgezak,
He prayed for the blessing in the decisive battle.

There was only one thing in his mind,
"It is important to solve the urgent need,
Dabbitay was so shameless,
He went so far as to invade Talas when Kenainym was not here.
If he break through the City of Sire,
My people of Kirgiz will suffer from disaster.
If the tomb of Manas was destroyed,
It will be a burning shame of Talas!"

Hero Akchulay rushed forward with roars,
He went to meet the attack from the crowd.
Akchulay was extraordinary,
He looked like a burning flame.

Dabbitay and Akchulay,
They fell in a face-to-face struggle.
Anyone of them desired to win,
They attacked fiercely.

Two bloody wolf tongue spears,
Stabbed and blocked,
Snapped and creaked.
One hit after another,
Spearheads rained down.

Both of them were injured,
Their heads were swelled up like a bloody bucket.
One side was exhausted,
The other side could not hold the spear.

Seeing the fierce struggle,
People there were all shaken with fear.
The place that was stamped by them,
Cracks and collapse,
Filled with deep holes.

They fought from day to night,
Neither could get the upper hand.
No one was in luck,
No one defeated his enemy.

Their world became narrow,
Their faces became yellow.
Dust fell on their beard,
Eyebrows knit in a frown.
Someone of them said something,

Simultaneously two heroes came back to their sides.

It was late,
Night fell,
Akchulay came back to the camp of Kirgiz.
Dabbitay stayed in the wild,
On his own,
All alone.

Then old man Akchuletoy shouted,
He was warning the young:
"That bloodthirsty wolf,
He may strike us at night,
We should not relax our vigilance.
Young guys,
Strengthen defense capabilities,
Ensure the safety of our tribe and our fellows."

Young guys followed his advice,
They made the plan methodically:
Anter and Jamekay,
Youth Tubash and hero Beto,
They mounted their horses bravely.
In four teams,
They kept patrolling in darkness.

Old man Akchuletoy did a thorough job,
He talked to hero Akchulay:
"You actually was extraordinary,
You deserve to be the grandson of Koshaoyi.

"When we were going to collapse,
You came here.
I think it was not coincidence,
It was the blessing of the spirit of Manas,
He invited you to help us.

"My child,
Listen to me,
There is an accumulation of purulent blood in your body,
You should take the gall of badger and vulture,
Then you can drain the blood.

"You still need some gray fur of Mongolian gazelle,
To wrap up your body.
Then you could clean the purulent blood on the wounds,
Make the wounds heal rapidly."

Kirgiz people took good care of him,
They let Akchulay lie down.
They fed him the gall in morsels,
They wrapped his body with the fur.

They slaughtered mares to feed him meat,
Kumiss around him was always plenty.
Mutton was not conducive to the wounds,
They never let him eat it.

Dabbitay of Khorasan,
His heart was full of gloom,
He wanted to find a backer,
But he did not have a place to go.
Except for the tribe of Karamark,
He had no place to hide.

If he knew the tenaciousness of Kirgiz earlier,
He would better stay in Khorasan.
Thinking of this,
He felt it was burning in his stomach.

He wanted to stretch his limbs,
But there was no place to rest.
He was on his way in hunger,
But no one served him just one meal.

He was left in the wild along,
Only loneliness kept him company.
He could not lie down and have a rest,
What he thought was only to fight with Kirgiz.

"If it was prolonged for another two days,
Kirgiz would put me to death.
Akchulay who fought with me,
Seemed braver and fiercer than others.
Even if I beat him,
Kenainym would come to fight with me soon afterwards.

"Before they went back,
I will kill them off guard.
I will swallow a thousand heads of Kirgiz,
Or my name will be mud in disgrace."

Taking some solid food with himself,
He was not so hungry as to die in the wild.
He sat there alone,
Filled his belly with solid food.

He buckled his clothes,
Tightly fastened the belt,
Then put on the iron armor,
Immediately he was well prepared for fight.

He tightened the saddle,
Frapped the strap and horsetail.
Got on the horseback,
Then erected his large body,
Making some evil plan in his mind:

"Let Kirgiz people eat and drink,
I have some inextricable tricks.
Manas is their home of soul,
I am going to trod down his tomb.

"Immediately I should act in secret,
Destroy the top of the tomb in darkness.
Anyway I can not flee from my death,
No better than be an escaped hare."

This guy was cruel-hearted,
In darkness bitterly he scurried.

Wise old man Akchuletoy,
He asked six young men to go with him:
"Go with me,
Heroes,
Smelling your scent,
I also feel invigorating.

"Famous Aykoler Manas,
He is the strong back of people in Arashi.
We should go to his tomb,
To scout if there is any trouble.

"I am worrying that dispiteous guy,
He may destroy the tomb,
To vent his anger.
These four warriors,
May drop their guard,
Careless and unconcerned."

Seven heroes walked in a hurry,
They came near the tomb.
Suddenly they found a mountainous figure,
It was approaching the tomb.
Led by Akchuletoy,
Seven heroes kept watching the figure in some place.

The malicious demon,
Walked stealthily to the tomb,

Waved his spiked club.

At the moment he hit the top of the tomb,
From the tomb,
A thunder burst,
It made the ground shake.

Solitary Dabbitay,
He saw no figure,
But lost his spiked club without a trace.

That dispiteous guy,
Unwilling to concede with nothing,
He took the battleax with him,
Rested it on his shoulder.
After a crack,
Just like a goose feather,
The battleax disappeared.

The snotty idiot,
Held a spear again.
When he urged his horse,
His spear was left behind.

The tomb looked as unusual,
Emitting red divine light,
It talked in an earsplitting sound:
"You can not get close to the tomb,
Within few days you will lose your life .
We are guarding here,
You have no chance to do evil!

"Within two days,
Kenainym will be back to here.
He will lead Kirgiz warriors,
To beat you to death,
For you there is no place to hide!"

Exasperated Dabbitay Slaughtered Kirgiz People

In fear Dabbitay turned his horse to escape,
He looked back at times.
In the dim light of night,
A glow of red light there was,
His spiked club, spear and battleax,
Tidily lying on the ground beside the way he fled,
Just like someone did it on purpose.

He girded the crescent battleax around his waist,
Put the spiked club under his leg,
Thought something with the spear in his hand:
"The tomb of Manas,
Really miraculous,
Things done by Kirgiz,
All attached traps.

"I will go to their city,
Break the door in the night.
Carefully I will observe there,
To find out what is exactly in it.
Even if the City of Sire is mysterious,
I will solve it.
As long as I find the secret,
I can obtain the power to destroy it."

Dabbitay made the plan in his mind,
To the City of Sire he walked hastily.

Akchuletoy led six heroes to trace,

Though there were clops,
This beast did not notice any danger.

If anyone who missed the scene,
It would be a lifelong regret.
Around the walls of the city,
Dabbitay saw a bright light,
The moon made the night as bright as day.

A god dog came from roadside,
It furiously barked to Dabbitay.
The god dog was high and mighty,
It was stentorian and full of ferocity.

Seeing its vigour,
Dabbitay dare not act rashly.

Because of the cord around the neck,
God dog did not jump on him.
Someone held the dog at behind,
Prevented the attack from it.

At the early period of Manas,
Saritaz already was the guard of the palace.
It was said he had a daughter named Saidep,
She was the beauty who held the dog.

Seeing the mighty of god dog,
Hearing its bark,
Dabbitay lost his head,
He stood still in a trance.

He turned to draw his sword from the scabbard,
And was going to chop the god dog.
At the moment he was chopping,
God dog whipped its tail.
It hit right on him,

Dabbitay fell from the bay horse's back.

The girl Saidep looked like a fairy,
She came and said harshly:
"You delusional idiot,
I am warning you now:
You went to the tomb furtively,
And came to the city on the sly,
Even a silly pig will think about it,
Why the tomb and the city remained intact after many years?
Several centuries passed,
No outsider can get into its corridor.

"Now if I let out the god dog,
It will not let you flee for your life.
If you die in this way,
It will distain the name of Manas.
Someone may say he relied on witchcraft,
Is there any virtues and gods?

"There are exactly thousands of gods,
They guard the city and tomb day and night.

"There are also forty lion defenders,
God dogs are their sentries.
You are not allowed to close even half a step,
Your dirty tricks will not succeed.

"let alone you Dabbitay,
Even if Kunwuerbayi came here,
He could do nothing.

Kunwuerbayi is a dominating khan,
Idiot like you,
There are as many as autumn insects under him.
Someone can use snake as horsewhip,
Someone can mount the clouds,

They are all under his government.

"Someday,
You exhaust the feed from God,
You will lose your life.
You get up now,
Get back to your home right away!"
The god dog grinded its teeth,
Ceaselessly waved its claws.

"It looked that Dabbitay could not get into the city,
We need not wait here anymore."
Led by Akchulay,
Seven heroes turned and rode to the crowd.

The sky was getting brighter,
Skylarks started to chipper,
Beasts were all ready to get out,
Everything woke up,
Greeted to the rising sun.

The morning mist drew up,
The ground was showing its brightness.
Hero Akchulay was in high spirits,
He can not wait to go to the battlefield.

Dabbitay barged all night,
He did not have even a rest.
He had no time to feed his horse,
Neither did he eat the breakfast.

The war drum of Kirgiz was beating,
Dabbitay could not have a rest.
For his honour,
He bit the bullet and got on the battlefield.

Akchulay and Dabbitay,

They met again,
Without mercy.
In hatred they glanced at each other,
They were seeking the soft spot of their enemy.

One of them was aggressive,
The other was howling.
They waved their spears,
Stabbed the opponent without shrink.

Sometimes they swung the spiked club,
Smashed each other in full strength;
Sometimes they drew their sword,
Wrestled and fought at full split.
Two fresh lives,
Hung in the balance.

Faced with death Akchulay did not shrink,
He really was a smart and strong warrior.
For Kirgiz he had no fear of sacrifice,
He never hesitated on battlefield.
Faced with sword, spear and spiked club,
He was fearless.

Last night,
Outside the walls of Sire:
Saidep made a prediction:
"Within two days,
Kenainym will come back to us."
Saidep's words were harsh,
It hit Dabbitay's heart.

I come to Talas of Kirgiz specially,
To do something world-shaking.
Manas's tomb and the City of Sire,
I did not destroy them at all.
If Kenainym comes back,

I will lose my life.

"I should give it one more try,
Stab Akchulay down from his steed,
Make his blood splattered.
As long as I stab down Akchulay,
Is there any Kirgiz who dare to fight with me?

"I should cheer up,
Break Kirgiz's spirits.
I will break their courage,
Give them no peace,
Make them displaced.

"I will arouse my fighting will,
Struggle to fight and kill,
Behead at least one thousand Kirgiz.
Otherwise,
I Dabbitay,
Come here in vain?

"Once Kenainym comes home,
He will not allow me to do this.
He will search every corner,
At that time I will have nowhere to hide."

Looking back,
Dabbitay steamed up,
He thought in a rage:
Holding a bloody spear,
He went to Talas specially.
He did not stab any people of Kirgiz,
He did not make their blood splattered.
He felt a great shame at that time,
Embarrassed,
Had no place to hide.

The pompous beast,
With the eyes widely opened like a dying goat.
His mustache was sparse,
His eyebrows and eyelashes were like weed.
Got angrier after he thought it,
In furious anger,
His hem was tremulous.

Just like a rutting camel,
He jumped and shouted,
His body was quivering,
Like a hungry wolf he was licking,
Left a cloud of dust behind him.
To Akchulay he launched an attack,
The two sides were going to fight again.

Hero Akchulay became braver,
Commanding,
And courageous,
Towards Dabbitay,
He waved his weapons and charged.

Dabbitay kept licking,
Repeatedly whipped his bay horse.
Hero Akchulay rode the steed Chalbash,
Sped to the front to fight against the enemy.

Dabbitay from Khorasan,
Used his usual dirty trick.
He pulled the rein suddenly,
Stopped his bay steed.

Akchulay had no time to hold the rein,
He brushed past his enemy.
When he tried to control the horse,
He had missed the chance to avoid the adversity:
Treacherous Dabbitay seized the chance,

He stabbed the rib of Akchulay with his spear.

Naryn hero Akchulay,
Left his hip from the saddle,
Left his feet from the stirrup,
Then fell to the ground from his horse.
Extraordinary warrior Akchulay,
Defeated by Dabbitay in this way.

Dabbitay turned the horse then,
Lifted his battleax to chop Akchulay.
Seeing this,
Anter was anxious,
Like an arrow he rode on his steed.
At Dabbitay's hip he stabbed,
Thought the hero he would protect.

The horse was too fast to stop,
It almost collided head-on with Dabbitay.
Agile Dabbitay was filled with anger,
He took the advantage to wave his spear upward,
Anter fell to the ground by that.
Kirgiz youth Tubash,
Came over promptly after he saw the scene.
Before Dabbitay hurt Anter again,
To Dabbitay he waved the battleax.

Youth Tubash was too young,
He did not know the ferocity of Dabbitay.
Damn Dabbitay,
He beat the proud down at once.

At this moment,
Hero Beto came to the battlefield.
Aiming at the waist of Dabbitay,
He made a stab strongly.
Faced with the spear from Beto,

Dabbitay did not mind at all.
After many battles,
Enemies dead in his hands was countless.

He waved his bloody spear,
Stabbed down Beto,
Who called himself a hero.
Dabbitay from Khorasan,
Did not pull out the spearhead.

Worrying about Beto,
Jamekay urged his horse to rush.
Before he took any act,
Dabbitay hit him first,
Jamekay fell to the ground.
For the dignity of Kirgiz,
Bravely eagles came to fight against Dabbitay,
They were all stabbed and fell from the horse,
In the danger of losing their lives.

People of Kirgiz could not stand by,
They all mounted the horses and started a charge,
They shouted together,
Shouting the name of Manas.
Their sound shook the earth,
Kirgiz people surrounded Dabbitay completely.

Faced with the attack from ordinary people,
Dabbitay was not afraid.
Thinking it was the time,
He launched a counterattack aggressively.
Anyone who met his attack,
Lost its life forever.

He killed five people by a hit,
Like a devil he was killing and charging.
He went on the rampage,

The blood of Kirgiz turned the earth into red.
He dispersed the crowd,
No one could stop his attack.

Hero Akchulay, Anter,
Youth Tubash, Jamekay,
And warrior Beto,
Totally five people were hit by spear,
All were in serious injury.

Just like angry swarm,
People became fluttered.
No one knew how to do,
In the dilemma,
People got stuck.

There was a palace manager,
Who was called Aoronbay.
He was not here at first,
Now he came back.

Seeing the scene,
He shouted in anxiety:
"Jamekay,
Tubash,
Beto,
Anter,
Where are you four guys?
How could you see the collapse of Kirgiz!"

Hastily Akchuletoy answered:
"Manager,
You are just in time,
You are stronger than thousands of soldiers.
The four warriors you just said,
Including Akchulay the grandson of Koshaoyi,
They are all in serious injury.

"The situation remains problematic now,
People of Kirgiz are extremely worried.
We do not have any idea at all,
In danger we are stuck."

Aoronbay shouted to all soldiers:
"I will charge forward right now,
All of you,
Attack from all directions.

"All of doughty soldiers with axes,
Strong soldiers with lances,
Soldiers with spiked clubs,
Skilled soldiers with swords,
Javelineers,
Archers,
Do not let enemies get out,
You have to stand still.

"Slingers who are good to throw stones,
Muscular herculeses,
Warriors who are good to lasso horses,
Soldiers who can catch birds,
Get ready,
Use your skills to beat the enemy!"

Shouting the slogan,
Aoronbay inspired the fighting spirit:
"Manas, Manas, Manas!"
With a gray lance,
He went to Dabbitay first.

Responding to the appeal of manager,
Soldiers acted together:
They waved lances,
Held glittering swords,

Shook sharp axes,
Took all kinds of weapons,
All people of Kirgiz came out,
Surrounded the crazy villain.

People's feelings ran high just like the tramp of horses,
Clouds of dust raised on the earth,
Noise of battle came from all directions,
People of Kirgiz ran like wind.
Dabbitay was all on his own,
Like a rutting camel,
He was surrounded in the angry campsite.

Brave Aoronbay came first,
He rode the steed to the face of Dabbitay.
Aiming at the chest of Dabbitay,
He attacked with the sharp spearhead.

Faced with Aoronbay,
Dabbitay was disparaging.
Thought he was hit by the spear,
He felt like being bitten by a mosquito.
About the crowd,
He thought of nothing.

What really concerned Dabbitay,
It was the arrival of Kenainym.
Once he thought of Manas,
He was half dead with fright,
In furious rage.

Dabbitay thought to himself:
"Now the opportunity is good for me,
I should not lose it easily.
I will draw out my sword,
To kill thousands of Kirgiz.

"Who dare to fight with me,
I will chop him.
I will give them a wholesale slaughter,
I will chop them into mash."

People of Kirgiz encircled Dabbitay,
Ceaselessly attacked him,
Did not give him the time to breathe.
They stabbed him with lances,
They pounded him with spiked clubs,
They chopped him with axes.
The clash of weapons,
The shout from soldiers,
Continually came to Dabbitay's ears.

The arm he held the sword,
Hit by lance for many times.
The back hurt by axe,
Bruised,
And swelled.
The lasso of death,
Had encircled the neck of Dabbitay.

"These Brute are crazy,
I should not lose my life here.
I should urge my steed,
And escape from the campsite.
When they get disperse,
I can fight back unawares."

Dabbitay lay on the back of the bay horse,
He lashed the steed like heavy rain.
The steed burst all its strength,
Helped him flee from the campsite.
His arm had been pierced,
The blood distained his armor.

Dabbitay looked back,
Found the troop of Kirgiz was relaxed.
At once he turned his horse,
To Kirgiz he launched a counterattack.

He waved the spear,
Swept Kirgiz crazily.
He waved bloody sword,
Slaughtered Kirgiz cruelly.

Time passed by finally,
The sun hid in the western mountains,
Night fell,
The battlefield was dark.

Sharpshooters stood out of the circle,
At the enemy they shot bullets with hatred.
Aiming at the same evil target,
Archers drew the bow,
Some warriors ambushed aside,
They threw fifty nets to one direction...
Bullets and arrows did not pierce Dabbitay's armor.
Fifty nets came over,
Covered Dabbitay firmly.
Thought he struggled in it,
He still could not get out of it.

At this time Aoronbay came on his horse,
He wanted to cut Dabbitay's head.
He waved the sword Zoyborot to chop,
But he missed the head,
Instead, he destroyed the net.
On the net a big hole appeared,
The damn devil seized the chance and fled.
It surprised all Kirgiz soldiers,
Scattered as a flood.

Kenainym Came Back to Talas
Dabbitay Escaped in Haste

On the way back,
Kenainym heard the sound of shoot,
Noisy shout,
And neighs of horses.
He found it came from the tomb of ancestor,
It made him anxious.

After hearing it,
Kenainym thought there was chaos in hometown,
He was uneasy,
And perturbed.

"Dabbitay is fleeing,
Does he go to Talas?
The sharpshooters of Kirgiz,
Are they ambushing at the outside?
If they dare not fight with spear,
And want to kill him from the distance?
Or is it the attack of Dabbitay,
That caused the sound of shoot?

"Sire City is far from here,
The sound of gun could not reach here.
Maybe he tried to destroy the tomb,
So my clansmen shot him,
I have to get here that very night,
To save the trouble."

Hearing the furious noise of shot,

The ears of Kankura were swaying.
The steed Kankura came like fly,
Hero Kenainym was on its back.

When Kenainym arrived,
The day had passed,
It was middle night.
He knew the people of Kirgiz,
He could recognize the figures,
That fled to Berto Daban.

Kenainym was burning with anxiety,
He shouted to his fellows:

"Panic fleeing people,
Do not flee anymore!
Do not be afraid all Kirgiz,
I Kenainym have come!"

Hearing the sound of Kenainym,
Excitedly clansmen spread the news.
Most of them turned back,
Gathered round,
And stopped fleeing.

Dabbitay became more manic,
He was chasing and killing.
Heard the name of Kenainym,
Immediately he held the bridle.

The exciting words from Kirgiz,
Spread to his ear.
Dabbitay turned the horse hastily:
"I have to escape as soon as possible,
I should find a place to hide as well.
I can desert to Kangayi,
To find Kara Khitan and Karamark,

To tell their headman what has happened.
I will bring five heroes from there,
Bring thousands of soldiers like swarm,
I will subjugate Talas again,
I will sweep away all Kirgiz."

He did not sleep for the whole night,
Ceaselessly he rode the horse during the dark.
He lashed his bay horse hard,
Fled to the direction of Kangayi.

Dabbitay dare not sleep,
He was afraid of the chasing of Kenainym.
Let Dabbitay flee in panic,
We put this part aside.
Please listen carefully,
What the Kirgiz of Talas do.

At daybreak,
When the night passed,
The sun was rising,
Lightened the ground.
Seeing Kenainym,
Surviving soldiers felt relaxed,
They breathed the sigh of relief.

Many family lost relatives,
Many people lost horses,
Many women lost husbands,
Many sons lost fathers,
Many old men lost sons,
They were filled with sadness.

No one wanted to fall behind,
They all clustered round,

To welcome their khan black mane wolf[1],
The excitement of clansmen was uncontrollable.
They collected the crimes of Dabbitay,
Then told that to Kenainym one after another.

Young fellows rushed to the fore,
Picked up fat livestock to butcher.
They held worship rites,
To express their devotion.
They worshiped the spirit of Manas forever,
After chanting scriptures they dispersed.

Kenainym came back to fellows,
To pacify them he said:
"The invading of Dabbitay,
Led you a lot of suffering.
In the battle against the enemy,
Five strong heroes got injured.

"Your injury will be cured,
All clansmen will thank your braveness.
About the people of Kirgiz that have been killed,
We express deep mourning.

"Surviving people,
You should live by yourself,
Do not be lazy.
No one would feed you for nothing,
Livestock would not come automatically.

"Remembering the words from Akchuletoy,
It is reasonable.
Pick up strong warriors to fight in turn,
Fight while drawing off,
Do not give the enemy chance to breathe.

1 Black Mane Wolf: It means Kenainym here.

To wait me to back home,
Finally we get the chance to lead a decisive battle.
"You should not be blamed,
It is because Dabbitay of Khorasan.
He is strong and heartless,
Like jackals and wolves he is our enemy.

"Aoronbay,
You were too impulsive,
You made Kirgiz suffer great losses.
In war everything should be cautious,
No one could take reckless actions."

The indication about the tomb,
The amazing things happened in the city,
Everything is covered,
Akchuletoy told all that to Kenainym.

After that Kenainym said:
"With your own eyes you saw the god,
It was the black mane wolf[1] that helped us,
Forever we should believe in the god of Kirgiz.

"You should unite together,
We are a family.
Youth should help old men,
Majority should help minority.
Faced with crying orphans,
We should care more about them.

"Poor man and homeless man,
Impoverished family and solitary elders,
If you have plenty money,
You should take pity on them frequently.
Rich family should not be arrogant,

1 Black Mane Wolf: It means the spirit of Manas here.

To poor men do not be indifferent.

"About my expedition,
I am telling you the truth:
When I knew Salamart was tracing,
I followed behind him.
Unexpectedly he believed slanders from those khans,
He went so far as to betray us.
A shameless beast he is,
I have cut down his head.

"In soldiers of Khorasan,
There are many valiant giants.
Though they have advantage on numbers,
No one could defeat me Kenainym.

"I was so careless that I made a mistake,
I thought Dabbitay had been dead,
I hung him on the gate,
He escaped alive from me.

"I met a lot of trouble after that,
I had no choice but fight alone,
Many hard days and nights,
I was crossing the territory of enemy.

"I did not recognize the deceit of Dabbitay,
He invaded Talas in stealth.
I could not find him in his home,
His fellows either.
On my way back from Khorasan,
Once I found the tracks of his horse,
I thought he went to Kangayi,
Unexpectedly he invaded Talas.

"I smashed the gate of his city ever,
For revenge he fled here.

His purpose was detestable,
He wanted to destroy our Sire City.
Faced with the bark of god dog,
He was frightened out of his wits,
Then ran away.

"When you shouted loudly,
Saying I Kenainym had arrived.
You words were solidaric,
He heard all of it.

"Hearing my name,
He felt it was his doom.
He escaped before me,
Maybe he flees to Khorasan his home.

"However, he will never live like before,
He could not bully people there anymore,
His throne,
Had been taken by his enemy.

"He may go to Kangayi for shelter,
The soldiers there all died in war.
No one wants to follow him to fight,
He has no choice but to roam everywhere.

"He is a black heart scum,
The Death will drive him here.
Once he comes and challenges,
I Kenainym will not give him the chance to survive again.

"If I trace him now,
I will catch him soon.
He is not so important,
We do not need to do that.

"Ah,

My fellows of Kirgiz,
Farm and graze are our duty.
Wish all of you are healthy,
Rehabilitate yourself,
Earn more money."
After these words,
Kenainym walked to the gate of the palace.

Hero Akchulay healed his wounds,
Peacefully came back to his fellows.
He told Bagetebay something,
About what he found outside.
After it Bagetebay said:
"Finally the Kirgiz got their peace,
From now on they will live in happiness."

The Kirgiz held Kumiss party in turn again,
They held racing of three-year-old horse every year.
Boys always stayed together mirthfully,
They played the game Accherlem to the deep night.

With abandon girls was singing,
The singing of Bekbakay[1] spread to the sky,
They protected sheepfold the whole night.

Hunters hunted wolves,
They shot deer and argali,
On stone mountains wild goat could not escape.

Young adults all wore fox fur hats,
Riding high,
Triumphant.
Old men all wore wolf fur robes,
Brimming with energy,
In high spirits.

1 Bekbakay: The song girls always sing when they protect sheepfold.

Old women wore Aliechicks,
It was as big as pot.
They also wore lynx fur overcoats,
Looked fashionable and confident.

Women wore draped in jewels,
They walked with their chest lifted.
Long apron dragged along the ground,
Big earrings were rattled.

Young married women wore gorgeous Torcol[1] Coats,
On their feet Bidana[2] Boots were creaky.
They looked lovely and light,
Just like swimming fishes.

Girls wore beautiful silk dress,
Gold bracelet was shining.
They had otter fur hat on their heads,
Their laughter sounded like silver bells.
Just like quicksilver on the ground,
They were shinning and dazzling everywhere.

Every girl of Kirgiz was pretty,
There wore precious necklaces around their neck.
Golden yarn was knit into delicate patterns,
Agates, pearls and diamonds were all on it.

Beautiful hair braided in plaits,
White feather was put on the top of hat.
Waistcoat was decorated with pearl buttons,
It looked more dazzling in sun light.
The neck was thin and long,
The shoulders were narrow,
The girl of Kirgiz was as pretty as fairy.

1 Torcol: The name of a kind of silk.

2 Bidana: The name of a kind of precious boots.

Young men were in red cloaks,
In the wild they hunted together with eagles.
They went along the edge of hills,
To catch chukar and sandgrouse.
After the saddle was full of prey,
They fastened the remainder both sides the horse.

The sons from rich family,
Wore golden belt around their waist.
They were in badger overcoats,
The collar made of marten was shining.
If someone inexperienced met them,
It may not dare to greet them.

When summer came,
They treated for dinner in turn.
They butchered mare and foal,
Drank delicious kumiss and black tea.

When winter came,
Dozens of people stayed together.
Where there were wine and Jarma,
There were orgiastic fellows.

The scent of tea spread in Ayinla,
Around teacups cube sugar was heaped.
The table linen was filled with food,
People did not take it away from morning to night.
Children treat butter as usual,
Women thought cream was too oily.

Every one of Kirgiz was working,
Every family took their livestock carefully.
None of Kirgiz was loafing,
They hunted with eagle everywhere.

The box was full of jewelry,

The grassland was full of livestocks.
People of Kirgiz in white hat,
Lived in joy and abundance.
They had only a nice wish,
Got married and multiplied the earth.
Instead of treasure they had now,
They wished for happy life of future generations.

That damned Dabbitay,
Let us come back to his escape:
On the way of fleeing from Talas,
Dabbitay rode day and night and took no rest.

He dare not feed the horse on the way,
He dare not have a rest either.
He could not find any place to hide,
He could not find anyone to help him either.
He could not find an inch of earth to stand,
He could only run to the east hastily.

The journey was so long that made him sick,
Skinny horse was sweating.
Even his father never walked through these roads,
It made him really bitter.

Unlike herd of Kirgiz,
In mountains he could not find the way easily.
It was not the overcoat made by his mother,
Anything he did was unplanned.

How many rapid rivers he crossed,
How many stone daban he climbed,
How many high mountains he bypassed,
How many hills he tramped.

Many benchland with thorns,
Many steep cliffs,

Many snowy hilltops,
He left all of this behind him.
Sixty days passed,
Finally he stepped on the land of Kangayi.

To the khan of Karamark Autor,
He told his story.
From Arokai and Manas,
He started his topic,
It was about Karamark and Kirgiz.

In his words,
Big ears Chounalep,
Copper navel Kekmat,
Iron overcoat Shalekmat.
And Timirbek from Tajik,
Acha Khan from Isfan,
The offspring of Kuturgur Salamart,
All these people were mentioned.

Finally,
Dabbitay from Khorasan,
Could not help crying like a child.
From his eyes,
Giant tears wet his coat.

He said:
"In Kangayi,
Karamark and Khitan are living.
There are also tribes of Manchu, Sibo and Solan.
With friendship you were living together,
You are in close interdependence,
You are inseparable.

"In the hands of Kirgiz,
Many heroes of you were killed.
They shamed you,

They made you fall in embarrassment.
"When Manas was alive,
He went on an expedition to Afghan.
The same,
Khorasan and Isfan suffered great damages ever.

"Fellow sufferers,
Specially,
Big ears Chounalep invited me.
Acha Khan from Isfan,
Was included.
We thought Karamark was with roots,
So we come without delay.

"Timirbek from Tajik,
Chounalep and us,
We got together in Dushanbe.
On our way to Talas,
We wanted to rob it clean.
Finally we did not make it,
Instead, we paid the price of blood.

"Timirbek and Chounalep,
They lost their lives there.
Acha Khan and I thought it over,
Racked our brains,
Then made a plan:
We got back to Khorasan and Isfan first,
As fast as we could.
Mongolian and we were in good relationship.
We should tell them all details.

"After that Salamart agreed to join us,
His attitude was firm as a rock.
We discussed together:
We should bring help from Kangayi,
The same to Karamark and Khitan.

Plus Salamart from Monget,
Acha Khan from Isfan and me.
Eight tribes sent troops jointly.
Just like floods,
We led an aggressive attack.

"Kenainym of Kirgiz,
As a lonely hero,
He is skilled in military arts.
He kills people like mowing,
He destroyed our joint force.

"We became separated after giving up,
I came back to Khorasan,
Acha Khan got back to Isfan,
Salamart had no place to go but Monget.

"On the way back,
Salamart met Kenainym on a narrow path.
The Yellow-faced Death,
Traced closely behind us.

"Salamart and Acha Khan,
Lost their lives in his hand.
He did not stop there,
He had no plan to get back.

"He came to Khorasan soon,
Fearlessly I met the attack with my soldiers.
I had lots of giants in my troops,
Someone beat one thousand soldiers ever.
Every one of them was strong and sturdy,
However, killed by Kenainym in no time.

"At the tenth night,
With his spear he picked up me.
He put me at the door of hell,

Hung me at the middle of the gate.
Without knowing I was still alive,
He went into the city blindly.

"My guards of the palace,
Helped me to relieve the crisis.
There were some people in the city,
All of them were mobilized by me.

"I commanded all of them,
Trying to encircle Kenainym,
I could not allow his escape.

"Faced with so many soldiers,
Kenainym did not mind at all,
He paid no attention to us.

"Just like the way sakers fly to choughs,
He went into the city to chop and cut.
With sword Albaris,
He chopped the soldiers near him.
With sharp spear,
He stabbed the soldiers far from him.

"The blood distained his sword over and over,
The spearhead was filled with flesh.
Where he was fighting,
There was screaming.
He routed the crowd again and again,
He disrupted the whole battlefield.

"When he was chopping and cutting,
I had an idea:
At the time Kenainym was fighting,
I should launch raids to Talas.

"I would destroy the tomb of Manas,

I would destroy the castle of Talas.
I would trample the Kirgiz under my feet,
Then I would give them killing and burning.

"I thought there was no one daring to fight with me,
No one could match with me.
Hastily I arrived Talas,
I saw a lot of people of Kirgiz,
They got together around the tomb of Manas.

"When I arrived,
On my way someone came and blocked,
I gave them orders,
Let them take their mattocks,
To destroy the tomb of Manas.

"Hearing my words,
Women were all cursing.
There was a man who rushed to me,
In his eyes the fire was burning.
The others cheered together,
It sounded like the sky was tearing.
They shouted the name of Manas,
The vigour was like a blowing gale.

"Faced with the bustle of these common herd,
I Dabbitay had no scare,
These arrogant warriors,
One by one I stabbed all them down.

"The people of Brute were terrible,
They fought like this:
Once someone was stabbed,
Immediately the next one would give out the spearhead.
They gave you no chance to kill the one on the ground,
They made every effort to help their fellows.

"The comer would not be quiet,
They were always shouting the name of Manas.
No matter happiness or worries,
People of Kirgiz always kept saying the name of Manas.

"I have no choice but to go to the tomb at night,
Trying to smash the top of the tomb.
I took out spiked club, spear and battleax to chop,
But all these weapons disappeared in a moment.

"Suddenly a sound came out to warn me:
'Your life has only few days.
You can not destroy the tomb,
Now you get away from here!'

"I turned around and looked the way I came,
I found my spiked club, spear and battleax,
These were placed on the roadside tidily.

"I advanced to their castle,
And met a hunter that was guarding the gate.
The white hunter jumped out and barked,
It was flinging itself,
While made me not dare to take a step.

"I lifted my sword,
Trying to cut the head of the hunter,
However, the hunter waved its tail,
It beat me down from my bay horse.

"I opened my eyes and saw a girl,
She talked to me:
'Dabbitay,
Your life has only few days.
If I let the god dog out,
It will swallow you with even your bones.
After two days,

Kenainym will return,
Then you will lose your chance to get back.'

"At this time the horizon became white,
People of Kirgiz came in flocks.
There was a warrior called Akchulay,
He rode his steed Chalbash,
Showing his arrogance.

"I attacked with my spear,
He was beaten down by only a hit.
Then Jamekay, Beto and Tubash,
They rushed up to me one after another.
I dodged their spear,
And stabbed all of them down from the saddle.

"More people rushed to me then,
With shouting they encircled me.
Swords and spears,
Came like rain,
From all directions,
Continuously.
I could not bear attack like that,
So I fled on my steed.

"Suddenly the war drums started to beat,
The crack of guns came from all directions.
Overhead bullets were roaring,
Like insect swarm arrows were flying.

"Along with the deafening shouts,
A myriad of iron nets wrapped around my neck.
I fell in the nets from Kirgiz,
My hands and feet were bound,
I was in chains.

"There was a sniffy youth,
He took the Zoy steel sword.
He wanted to cut my head,
Instead, he broke the net.

"Like sunset I was netted at first,
However, my luck had turned at that moment.
I got out of stuck and fought again,
Just like wolf attacking sheep.

"How many people suffered bad luck,
They were beaten down by my spear.
I chopped left and right with my sword,
Many people of Kirgiz lost their lives.

"The crowds were on their way to escape,
The sky turned dark when it was night.
Flocks of people ran in front,
After them closely I chased.

"Suddenly I found Kenainym,
He stood in the crows.
I held the saddle of my steed,
Heard their talk by chance.

"How could I wait my death,
I thought it was my fortune to be alive,
So I can tell you my story."

Dabbitay finished his words,
After that Autor said in excitement:
"Dabbitay,
You came here specially,
Just to say this meaningless story?
Dabbitay,
Before you,
I have known the root of Kirgiz.

"No one would do this,
Sacrifice himself to save a coward.
I do not mind what others do,
I will not fight with Kirgiz.

"Sibo and Solan have nothing to do with this,
If Khitan or other people of Kangayi want to go,
You could lead them to fight.

"Dabbitay,
If you listen to me,
You had better go back to Khorasan.
I heard that,
Kenainym may make an orphan take charge of Khorasan.
You should try your best,
To take over your throne.

"After you obtain your throne and glory,
You could pass me your glad tidings.
I will gather five tribes at that time,
Then lead my troops to you to show my blessing.
If you could not pass me the message like this,
I will stay in my home restfully.

"In the tribe of Monget,
Salamart have died,
No one will be your backer.

"In middle Asia,
There is no such one ever,
Who can beat Kirgiz.
No one is willing to do it,
Challenge Brute under your banner.

"Dabbitay,
It is not worthy to you,

To disturb yourself for Brute.
In every tribe,
There were many heroes.
But when they competed with hero from Brute,
No one could dominate.

"Since the era of Manas,
Brute is always unbeatable,
No one dare to invade them.

"In order to conquer Brute,
Kangayi had sent troops for several times.
Led by giant Kunwuer many heroes took part in,
But all of them were beaten down by Brute.

"Anyone who dared to challenge them,
Would suffer from miserable fate.
They were distained by blood,
No one could go back alive.

"Kangayi will not send troops to Brute,
It is our will.
We want to live here peacefully,
Our hometown we will never leave.

"Big ears Chounalep,
Shalekmat in Iron overcoat,
And Copper navel Kekmat,
Rashly they went out to battle,
To sacrifice themselves.
In the troops led by them,
Many soldiers lost their lives.

"It looked not enough then,
Sakta and Saranja,
They still wanted to fight,
Giants from five tribes,

Lost all their lives in the hand of Brute.

"I Autor will do good preparations for five years,
Then I will personally lead my troops.
I will wear multilayer iron armor,
To make the people before me feel panic.
I will make the ground smoggy,
I will make the Brute lose their brains.

The Death of Sarik Kenainym,
Even he has seven thousand lives,
I will kill him.
You said you could not destroy the tomb and castle,
There is no other reason,
It is because you are not powerful enough.

"Dabbitay,
If you can endure it,
Do not go out to battle,
Wait five years.
Then I will help you,
To overturn the world.
The elites of Kirgiz,
I will beat all them down.

"Dabbitay,
If you can not wait anymore,
You should go back to Khorasan.
People there dare not fight with you,
You can take over your castle again.

"You should do preparations perseverely,
Do everything well after five years.
When you are ready,
Send me the message.

"You should find a way to subjugate a person,

It is the khan of Isfan authorized by Kenainym.
If you can subjugate him,
You will be more powerful.

"When we contact after five years,
You should mobilize all the people,
Who pee standing up,
No exception.
I will pass Brute to you,
Forever wash down your trouble.

"Dabbitay,
You must know,
These are sincere advice from my heart."

Hapless Dabbitay,
How could he stay in Kangayi for five years.
He could not stay for long,
He could only go back,
They appointed to meet after five years.

Stray Dog Dabbitay Hatched a Larger Plot

Dabbitay left Kangayi,
He went to the west hastily.
Thinking about Khorasan,
He felt everything is fate.

The bay horse under him,
Walked listlessly.
Many dusks and dawns passed,
Finally he came close to Khorasan.

He did not enter the city at day,
At night he sneaked into the palace.
Damn Dabbitay started a surprise attack,
He fought with alert guard fiercely.

No one greeted him,
No one treated him as a khan.
He found that,
People of Khorasan no longer showed him respect.
The new khan,
Engraved the words of Kenainym on his mind.
Those people who lost their lives for Dabbitay,
Their relatives were been accepted:
The uncles of the young,
The nephews of the old.
Their young cousin,
Or their old cousin.
Any one was related somehow,
Would be gathered together.

The new khan reasoned them,
Made them felt calm and peace.

The new khan was clever,
Though he was not strong enough,
He was really a hero filled with wisdom.

People suffered from heavy taxation before,
The court ordered double tributes,
There would be five held back by minister.
If the court ordered five,
It would be turned to ten by officer.

People could not afford the tax,
Many of them got into trouble.
Even the rich felt embarrassed,
Their camel and treasure never increased anymore.

Since being supported by Kenainym,
The new khan ascended the throne,
Two years passed,
He never levied tax from people.
These poor families,
Never lost even a blade of grass.

Relying on the strength of people,
The new Khan did not yield an inch to Dabbitay.
Abandoned by people of Khorasan,
Reluctantly Dabbitay fled to Isfan.

He wanted to go to Isfan directly,
Then endeavored to get support from Isfan.
He wanted to lead a large troop,
Then occupied Khorasan again.

After Dabbitay stepped on the territory of Isfan,
He found the new khan was the son of Acha Khan.

He was elected by Kenainym,
The new khan Naskay was famous everywhere.

Naskay was clever as well,
He engraved the wise words of Kenainym on his mind.
With the head shaken Naskay rejected,
Dabbitay's hope to fight together dashed to pieces.
Dabbitay put on an act,
Pretended to threaten Naskay in anger.

Firmly Naskay said:
"Dabbitay,
I am not afraid of you,
I will pass all these to Kenainym."

After that Dabbitay prevented him hastily:
"Naskay,
Listen to me."
He started from Karamark, Khitan and Kangayi,
Including all things happened recently,
His story contained all details:

"My khan Naskay,
Listen to me,
Your father Acha Khan,
Do you know who killed him?
I tell you clearly,
It is Kenainym from Brute."

Naskay continued impatiently:
"Dabbitay,
Do you have an end?
I have some words to tell you.
It is you that cheated my father,
You led him to fight and lose his life.

"Not only have I words to tell you,

But also I will revenge on you.
Do not be a sore horse,
Scrape me to scratch your itch.

"Go anywhere you want to,
Do not waste my time.
If you offend me by ignoring my advice,
You will be tied to stakes.

"I will give you a good beating,
Then throw you on the back of the bay horse,
I will send four soldiers to escort you,
Then transport you to the scaffold of Talas.

"Dabbitay,
Listen carefully,
The day you came here,
I had sent out two soldiers.
I sent them to Talas,
To pass the message about you.
You have no chance to escape,
I have set the trap."

Hearing the sharp words from Naskay,
Dabbitay felt like a stick in his throat.
He noticed the danger was close to him,
Trembling,
Uneasy.
If he fought with Isfan again,
He thought he had no chance to win.

Time passed by,
Dabbitay had no place to go.
He felt difficult to eat or sleep,
He even could not hear the name of Manas.
He dare not stay for long,
So he prepared the horse well in stealth.

He had no idea about the place to go,
He thought in hesitation:

"It is not suitable to go to Baghdad either,
Iraqi will not stay me for long.
They were surrounded that very year,
It was Kenainym who saved them.
If I was driven away this time,
Maybe I will die in the desert.

"Instead of roaming outside,
It is better to invade Isfan.
There are only few people that can hinder me,
I can go back to Khorasan after I succeed.
I will distribute the livestock and treasure I robbed,
In order to get their support,
To remove my previous ill,
To regain my throne.

"Instead of bothering other tribes,
Directly I should go back to Khorasan.
I will regain my throne,
Regain my glory again.
I will lie in the palace to stretch my limbs,
Enjoy wealth and rank.

"I know everyone of Khorasan,
I even know everyone's appetite.
If anyone dare to fight against me,
I will make their blood splashing!"

Dabbitay acted as he thought,
Going on his way on the horseback.
He advanced at day and slept at night,
Sometimes he walked day and night.

The bay swift horse was mounted by him,

Ceaselessly its hooves tramped.
All the way he advanced rapidly,
Finally he approached Khorasan.

He saw a walker,
Who showed haste with the cloth flowed.
Dabbitay went towards him,
Encountered the walker exactly.

Actually he was the heeler of Dabbitay,
As a lonely giant he managed the city.
At the first sight he saw Dabbitay,
He cried,
Could not help saying:
"Oh,
My khan Dabbitay where are you from,
Why you disappeared without a trace?
You gave me strength before,
I am always missing you.

"The new khan won the loyalty of the people,
He not only rejected to levy tax on them,
But also cancelled all taxation.

"No one force people to pay tax,
Civilian do not need to pay tribute every year.
The poor,
Never fall in difficulty for taxation.
All people support the new khan,
They look up to him as the savior.

"About my situation,
I had six houses at first.
They confiscated these all,
Only a small one was left for me.

"They thought it was not enough,

They also confiscated all my livestock on the ground.
They left me only blind camels,
Lame sheep,
Lambs without ewe,
And old oxen that always shitting,
They let me herd these.

"Everywhere blind camels were running,
Lame sheep were disobedient.
Lambs were always jumping,
Damn oxen ran during shitting.

"One day they stepped on a farmland,
By stamping and eating they destroy it.
The owner of the farmland came to quarrel with me,
It made me embarrassed and ashamed.

"About six months ago,
It said you would go back home.
I waited at day,
I waited at night,
Finally I met you today.

"They brought us disaster,
They deprived our glory.
Khan Dabbitay,
Trust me,
It is all the words from my heart."

They left the main road after that,
Then came to a hidden place.
Two villains got together,
Planned their next plot.

The giant said:
"Dabbitay,
You are a hero,

Except Kenainym,
Who can compete with you?
Come to my house please,
I will find a place to hide you.

"I do not need a steed,
I want to go on foot,
I will stay home at day,
Do the contact at night,
I will pass the good news about you,
To Kenainym's enemy,
To these people who have blood feud.

"The former potentates,
Who suffer from tyranny;
These people who dare not go outside,
Can only pee and shit in their houses,
Give me three months,
I will gather them and report to you.

"As long as we plan together,
Then do the preparation,
You will be our khan again,
You will regain your majesty."

They finished the talk,
In darkness,
That man led Dabbitay to his house.
His wife and children,
Served Dabbitay carefully,
Showed their respect.
He went out immediately,
To contact with the old subordinates of Dabbitay.

Hearing the news,
The old subordinates of Dabbitay were delighted,
They congratulated in secret.

Being not resigned to what they lost,
Without sleep they contacted each other overnight.
They repeatedly told each other:
"We swear to keep our secret."

The common people,
Felt nothing about their conspiracy.
They prepared carefully,
Till the day they appointed.
They rebelled in different places,
Started a merciless bloody battle.

They shouted the name of Dabbitay,
Swept all fortresses.
Only the city of Khorasan closed its gate to resist,
Dabbitay was still prevented from the city.

The new khan was in difficulty,
Being caught off guard,
He blamed himself for carelessness.
He was surrounded for one and a half years,
Without any message.

Food was lacking in the city,
Citizens were worried.
Some rumors started to spread,
The whole city,
Fell in panic.

The young khan got into trouble,
He decided the plan after pondering:
"I will mobilize the people in the city,
All of them should follow me,
I will extinguish the arrogance of revivalist,
Start a fight against our enemy.
I need a smart guy at the same time,
He should pass my holograph to Kenainym."

After thinking well he gave the word,
Mobilized the troop to act.

All people in the city,
Received the order from the new khan.
They acted together,
Came out of the city to fight against the enemy.

It was the time,
As the commander the new khan went out to fight.
Feeling extremely angry,
Dabbitay mounted his bay horse to attack.

There was a warrior Toyto,
He was an experienced hero.
Brave enough to step out first,
Against Dabbitay he started to fight.

Seeing the heroic of Toyto,
Seeing their khan personally came to fight.
In the battlefield,
The troops' martial was roused,
Their confidence was boosted.

The people thought of the subordinates of Dabbitay,
Thought of the running dogs of them,
For long,
They acted violently,
Scourged folks,
The people attacked in rage,
Captured all of them alive.
Then got them together,
Executed one hundred and eighty criminals one time.

Shouting the name of new khan,
The troops started to besiege Dabbitay.

Faced with the crowd,
Evil-minded Dabbitay was in a rage.

By the spear with only a hit,
He killed Toyto who was oncoming.
Then he drew the sword,
Started a charge to counterattack.
No one dared to fight with him again,
They could only flee to the wild.

Blood flowed to everywhere,
Whine was from all directions.
Led by the new khan,
The troops retreated to the city.

Towards the gate,
Dabbitay started a fierce attack.
Bullets and arrows came from the city,
Just like raindrops flying,
Do not allow him to get close even a half step,
Do not allow him to come into the city.

Dabbitay persisted for long,
But failed to break through the gate,
He was ashamed,
And anxious.
He thought:
"I will block the city for a year,
No one can get into it.

"I will make them exhausted,
At the end,
Fall to the last ditch.
Then I will attack again,
They will open the gate automatically."

Dabbitay went on patrolling day and night,

He kept the city of Khorasan being surrounded.
The new khan was stuck in the city,
He could not act out of it.
The life in the city became harder,
He felt dizzy and giddy,
Just like going into the blind alley.

A year passed by,
The messenger sent by the new khan of Khorasan,
Came up to Kenainym finally.

To Kenainym,
The messenger reported all information.
Pondering for a while,
Kenainym decided to support personally.

The messenger got back to Khorasan,
Spread the news Kenainym would come.
The new khan and his troops were elated,
Then started to do the preparation,
They had made up their mind to win.

In the subordinates of the new khan,
There was a villain called Zapil.
He wrote a secret letter,
To send some information to Dabbitay.

Tricky Dabbitay received the letter,
Then adjusted his plot.
He planned in his mind:
"When Kenainym is out of Talas,
I will strike his homeland.
Once Kenainym arrives Khorasan,
Definitely,
He will not leave me any chance."

Dabbitay highly praised Zapil,

In his mind there came out an idea,
He told the details to Zapil:
"If Kenainym comes here,
To Talas I will start a long-range raid.

"Wise Zapil,
Listen to me:
When Kenainym arrives,
You should pretend to inform him.
Just say that,
Dabbitay has ganged up with the new khan.

"Tell him that they had plotted conspiracy,
Then they sent a messenger to transfer you.
After that Dabbitay left in secret,
To seize the chance to strike Talas.
He wanted to occupy Talas,
Then let the new khan keep governing Khorasan.

"Zapil,
Never mind the costs,
You should make every endeavor to brownnose Kenainym.
You have to kill Kenainym boldly with poison,
The Sire Castle and the throne of Talas,
All belong to you."

Zapil was unscrupulous,
Hearing the sweet words from Dabbitay,
He thought Talas was easy to obtain,
He felt complacent,
And excited.

Dabbitay was shameless,
He bought some flunkies.
In order to observe the trace of Kenainym,
He sent them to every mountain pass.
After affirming the news about Kenainym,

Dabbitay mounted his horse to go to Talas.
Let us stop here,
Then start from our hero Kenainym Khan.

Wicked Dabbitay Deserved more than Death

Invaded Talas again Dabbitay Escaped in panic after Defeat

In Talas,
Kenainym received the news from Khorasan.
It said in order to retake the throne,
Dabbitay was encircling the city of Khorasan.

The guard officer of palace Aoronbay,
There were many intrepid heroes under him.
Kenainym gathered these young people,
No exception.
All were called.

He brought old man Akchuletoy,
Brought Anter and Jamekay,
Youth Tubash and Beto.

After everyone arrived,
He spoke loudly:
"The old and the young you listen,
I decided to go to Khorasan.
The new khan there was trapped,
I will go there to save him.

"Dabbitay had been to Kangayi,
I think he had instigated the people there.
If Kangayi came with troops,
You must protect our fellows.
You should know the state of the enemy,
Do not let our people feel worried.

"Maybe they will come in stealth,
To scout us at first.
Maybe they will underestimate your strength,
Then directly start a fight.

"You should keep watching,
Guard every mountain pass.
Anyone suspicious from anywhere,
You should expel or arrest it.

"No matter where they are from,
Compel them to go back to their home.
Anyone who dare to pass in force,
Put him into prison.
Their status,
When I come back I will understand thoroughly."

Kenainym finished his speech,
Asked them to spread it to all fellows.
He said it would be less than sixty days,
He was certain to come back to Talas.
After his wise advice,
He went towards Khorasan on his horse.

Wise and brave Lion Kenainym,
He left the gate of Talas on the steed.
Led by Akchuletoy,
Six heroes discussed:

"Before this time,
Kenainym never warned like this.
No matter where he went,
He never disturbed the people of Kirgiz.
It is actually in danger this time,
We should keep watching our enemies.

"Take strict precautions against our enemy,

We should send people to every col.
Examine everyone passerby,
We have to check it out,
Whether it is a common person or giant like elephant."

They were discussing like this,
Akchuletoy started to talk:
"Warriors,
Listen,
Kenainym is never afraid of any enemy.
When he goes outside,
He never disturbs the people of Kirgiz.
There must be strike from enemies,
We must keep guard.

"Dabbitay had been to Kangayi,
Then came back to Khorasan.
Worrying that the enemy may attack us,
Kenainym went out to do the support.

"He worried that,
Armless people may suffer from the enemy.
So he warned us again and again,
Hold fast to our homeland,
Guard it heavily."

Fellows all agreed with his idea,
They said it was reasonable.
They sent people to every mountain passes,
Guard steep cols heavily.
They also sent people to no man's land,
To keep sentry at major thoroughfare.

Now,
Kenainym was on his way to Khorasan.
Let us talk about him.
Majestically Kenainym was on the back of Kankura,

The copper handle spear was in his hand.
The body of hero was tall and stalwart,
It looked as strong as Oboler Mountain.

Many dabans were left behind by him,
Mountains bowed down to show obedience.
Behind him were peaks in white Aliechick,
These looked like graceful girls.
The body of hero was stalwart,
He urged the steed Kankura day and night.

Behind the galloping horse,
Roaring floods were left,
Clouds of smoke were left.
Crystal clear lakes were left,
Countless villages were left.
Surging rivers were left,
Beastd prairies were left.
Finally,
Lion Kenainym approached the city of Khorasan.

The invisible sentries sent by Dabbitay,
Showed cowardice when they met Kenainym.
No one dared to touch the hero,
So they reported to Dabbitay directly.

Dabbitay dare not meet the attack either,
He acted in stealth.
He lashed the hip of the bay horse,
Started his journey towards Talas.

The new khan and his soldiers were in the city,
They kept guarding prudently.
It was unusual this day,
Dabbitay did not come to harass the gate.
No one knew the trace of the beast,
They felt confused.

Kenainym went out of the city,
He asked strangers about Dabbitay.
With their heads shaking these people all answered:
Had not seen him.
Kenainym kept searching,
He decided to find this bastard.

Ambitious Zapil,
Behind the new khan he had left the city in stealth.
With conspiracy,
He met Kenainym out of the city.

It was proved that,
Under the order of Dabbitay,
Zapil was playing sowing discord.
At the moment he met Kenainym,
He bowed down with a step back,
Greeted like a bride.
Then he bowed again with both hands on his chest,
Greeted like a woman.

He was afraid of being detected,
Nervous,
And uneasy,
He could only bow again and again,
Humbled,
And submissive.

Seeing that Kenainym asked:
"Is your new khan peaceful and healthy?
He sent someone to report to me,
He said Dabbitay surrounded him in the city.

"Where is Dabbitay now,
Zapil,
Do you know the detail?

Why are you waiting me here,
Met me outside the city?"

Zapil started to cry after that,
He pretended to weep out in sorrow:
"My adoring respectable hero,
I will report you all the things I know.
I guess you will arrive,
So I wait here at roadside.

"Dabbitay came here,
Destroyed the peace of people's lives.
He colluded with the new khan,
Sent people to pass you the letter on purpose.
It said that the city was surrounded,
It was cheating with fake messages.

"They wanted to entice you to come,
Then put poison in your food.
Dabbitay wanted to keep his position on the throne,
Continue acting as a tyrant in Khorasan.

"They were making you leave your base,
After you leave the plain of Talas,
It is their time to invade Sire City."
Zapil kept talking,
Made up stories as if it were really true.

Listened while watching his look,
Kenainym felt it was incredible gradually,
Even the voice was unreal,
So he ordered him to lead the way into the city.
Kenainym thought himself:
"The new khan will not do this,
It is Dabbitay's strategy of sowing discord."
In haste Zapil went ahead,
He had no time to notice his cloth.

With the head down he was plotting his conspiracy,
The hem of his cloth was flowing.

They were approaching the gate,
Only the distance of a horse racing before them.
In the troops left by Dabbitay,
There was a person standing on the road with the spear:

"Two days had passed,
We did not see Dabbitay.
Zapil,
You must know,
Please tell me the trace of Dabbitay.
If you do not,
I will keep you out,
You are not allowed to get into the city to meet your khan!"

Hero Kenainym found that,
Zapil was winking at the man.
It looked as if he was admonishing the guard,
To tell him the people hehind him was Kenainym.

Kenainym pretended to notice nothing,
He stopped here on purpose.
Zapil shouted hastily:
"This is hero Kenainym.
Who dare to get in his way?!"

When they were approaching the gate,
Zapil pretended to announce good news to the new khan:
"Hero Kenainym has arrived!
Open the gate soon!"

No one left,
People in the city came in great numbers,
Cheered with tears.
Poor new khan met the savior,

He hugged Kenainym tightly.
Could not say a word for a while,
Big tears fell from his eyes.

After a while,
The new khan scolded Zapil in a loud voice:
"Zapil,
You are crafty,
Once things go well you will come in advance.
How do you know,
When hero Kenainym came,
Which way he chose?

"You went out of the city alone,
Why did not the enemy there interfere you?
What are you doing?
Who do you service for?
Do you want to betray Khan Kenainym,
Then send secret messages outside?"

The new khan said to Kenainym:
"I expect you day and night,
My savior,
When Dabbitay came here,
Most of people rose up in resistance.
They could not occupy the city of Khorasan,
So they fled to Isfan.

"After that he slip into the city alone,
Many people died in his sword.
He gathered his former subordinates to rebel,
In order to act as a tyrant again.

"There actually are some unscrupulous men,
They were dead set on following Dabbitay.
About one hundred and eighty men,
Killed by our brave people.

"We failed in the fight out of the city,
So we retreated to the city and were surrounded.
Zapil knew all of it,
So he wrote a letter to pass out.

"These two days,
Dabbitay disappeared from his team.
At the same time,
Zapil disappeared from the city."

After the words he turned to Zapil:
"Tell me all the details Zapil,
I am really strange now,
How you met my savior Kenainym?"

For a while Zapil lost his tongue,
He would like to dig a hole to hide that time.
At this time,
All the people out of the city wanted to compromise.

Kenainym asked them:
"Do you know the trace of Dabbitay?"
At this time,
The secretary of Dabbitay stood out:
"About the trace of Dabbitay,
Ask Zapil,
He must know all secrets.
If Zapil is not frank,
I will tell you what I know."

At this time,
Zapil was in tears:
"My wise khan,
Kenainym,
Please tell right from wrong for me.
The khan and the secretary,

They colluded to frame me.
They were up to some trick,
So they wanted to bring disaster to me."

At the moment Zapil stopped,
Kenainym reminded like this:
"Anyone can tell the truth,
Do not lie,
Be honest.
Where is Dabbitay?
Tell me all about him.
No matter what you said,
You have to be responsible for what you did!"

The secretary put his hand into a bag,
Took out the letter wrote by Dabbitay:
"Look, my khan,
It was the conspiracy of Zapil!"
He took out the reply of Dabbitay as well,
Then passed it to the new khan.

In the reply Dabbitay said:
"When Kenainym comes,
I will go to conquer Talas.
You should pretend to welcome Kenainym,
Then use poisonous tea to kill him.
He took away my throne,
I desire to revenge.

"I will occupy his Talas,
Then sweep out all of Kirgiz.
You should govern Khorasan,
Kill the new khan and his offspring,
No exception,
Kill them all.
Including his subordinates and officers,
Cut down their heads,

Smash these all."

They searched the bag of Zapil on the spot,
Found out prepared poison.
Before Dabbitay was caught,
Zapil was put into bleak jail first.

The depth of the jail was forty Arshin[①],
Zapil could not escape even with wings.

Righteous man won victory,
The new khan stayed in Khorasan.
Hero Kenainym was anxious,
He got on his way back to Talas.

Kenainym and Dabbitay,
They were chasing and running,
My song will be with them,
It always goes on simultaneously.

Ambitious Dabbitay,
He did not have any break at day,
He slept less at night,
His bay horse was pushed to move,
Finally he arrived in Talas,
Then started to play his conspiracy.

Now let us listen carefully,
It is the situation about fellows in Talas.

After Kenainym left,
Warriors started to prepare for war:
They sharpened the spearheads,
They polished the blades;
They made handle of ax with cotoneaster,

① Arshin: Length unit in ancient Kirgiz, about seventy centimeters.

Then firmly the ax was installed.

They put armor on their bodies,
They carried the shield on their backs;
They wore helmet on their heads,
They tightly fastened their belts;
They put the war boot on their feet,
They placed spiked clubs on saddles;
Outside the door they tied the war horses,
Like this they armed to the teeth.

The old and the women grazed in the wild,
They carried enough solid food as well.
Warriors went on patrolling around hills,
Youths kept guarding at broad road.
By the way they hunted with hawks and dogs,
Captured many foxes and wolves.
They hunted gray horn argalis,
They got back gladly with plenty prey.
People of Kirgiz patrolled day and night,
Tight encirclement was set in Talas.

Dabbitay could not strike in stealth,
He had no choice but encountered the Kirgiz.
This evil-hearted people of Khorasan,
To be conceited,
He started an attack.

Warriors met his attack immediately,
Fierce struggle happened between them:
Someone charged bravely from this side,
Someone waved the sword just like stopping the landslide;
At this side sparks were flying from helmets,
At that side blood draped from cut faces.

Youth Tubash,
Hero Beto,

They fought with enemies in turns,
When they felt exhausted,
Anter and Jamekay came to their aid.

Akchuletoy was giving counsel,
Aoronbay was commanding the troops.
They stood under the banner abreast,
Cheered for the warriors in the battlefield.

Others had no chance to fight,
The four heroes attacked in series.
They looked the same,
All in armors and chest plates.

Dabbitay of Khorasan,
A scheme came to his mind:
"The four people looked like dwarfs,
I should not treat them as giants.
I should avoid to be tangled,
Otherwise I will lose the chance.

"I should stab down one of them first,
Then kept charging forward.
I will attack Kirgiz people far from here,
Let their blood flow like flood.

"I will rush into the crowd of Kirgiz,
Bring disasters to them.
Once Kenainym comes,
I will lose my chance to be alive,
I have no choice but to die."

Dabbitay was aggressive,
He shouted his name.
Towards Tubash and Beto,
He led an attack again.

He rushed up to them,
In series he stabbed them.
Damned Dabbitay,
He sent two youths to the doom.

Seeing this scene,
Worrying the lives of Tubash and Beto,
Like arrows Anter and Jamekay came to rescue them.
But before they arrived,
The Death took the lives of two heroes.

Akchuletoy and Aoronbay,
They shouted the name of Manas.
They ordered all Arashi people to charge together,
It looked like overwhelming black swarm.
Though youths Tubash and Beto were dead,
Anter and Jamekay kept their lives.

Beast Dabbitay,
He lapped the blood of two heroes.
In the crowd of Kirgiz in white hat,
He still rampaged and did evil.

He waved the bloody sword,
Slaughtered the crowd;
He waved his sinful spear,
In series the runaway people were stabbed.

The dust was raised,
The day turned dark,
His sword was distained by blood.
He made Kirgiz people out of their bearings,
Broad world became smaller.

When he was killing and rushing,
The figure of Kenainym recurred to him:
"It is the time he comes back,

Where is his steed?

"I have led a bloodbath toTalas,
I am fully satisfied and content.
It is nightfall and he does not appear,
I will keep killing before dark.
When the sun is setting in the west,
The sky turns dark,
I will go to occupy the City of Sire.

"If I can not break the gate,
My goals will not be achieved.
I should go along the main road,
To find out the trace of Kenainym.
If Kenainym still does not come,
I will take the chance to smash the tomb."

The wicked beast,
The merciless gangster,
Went out of his way,
Reckoned and thought,
He predicted the time Kenainym came.
He left the crowd when dark fell,
Towards Yuqikoshaoyi he fled.

Day was breaking,
The sky was turning bright.
The stars were making eyes,
They moved to the west.
Creatures awaked one after another,
Went to the wild to wander.
Rosy clouds distained the east,
The sun appeared from morning fog.

Dabbitay overlooked the direction of Jetsu,
He saw Kenainym was coming this way,
The steed Kankura was in good feather.

Looked at the armor on his body,
And the gilded quiver,
In the sunlight it glittered.

Seeing hero Kenainym,
The whole body of Dabbitay,
Could not help shaking ceaselessly.
He could not control his fear,
His heartbeat was severe.

At the moment he planned in his mind:
"I should flee to Khorasan at once."
He thought secondly:
"It is too late,
How can I continue to escape?
I should ambush here,
Shoot him with my firelock.

"If I shoot him to death,
I can attack Kankole again.
I will kill every pregnant woman of Kirgiz,
Then paunch all of them!

"If my bullet misses him,
I should flee to Kangayi.
There will be no place for me in Khorasan,
I have no choice but to intercede Autor.
There is a blood feud between Kirgiz and Kangayi,
Kangayi will accept me."

Wish God make the decisions,
Do not show us this kind of shameless guy.

Dabbitay loaded his Auchagul Gun,
Took the ignition in his hand.

He trained the gunsight on the aim point.

Aiming at the target relentlessly.
Then Kenainym came on his steed,
With his buttons tightly fastened,
There was no vulnerable spot from the foot to the head.
His eyes were jetting flame,
It was burning straight to the sky.

At the sight Dabbitay thought,
Bullet could not hurt Kenainym at all.
"If my bullet was noneffective,
Before smoke began to clear,
He will take away my life.

"I should let him pass first,
Then aim at the hip of his steed.
As long as I hit the target,
He will be like a break-winged bird.

"Lost the steed,
The hero will become a lame person.
No matter how strong he is,
He will lose all his courage."

Born Lion Kenainym,
He noticed the abnormity of Kankura.
When he was climbing a ridge,
He hit the steed with the lash.
Just like a flying hawk,
Kankura rose high into the air.

When Kenainym was waving the lash,
Dabbitay fired his gun.
Auchagul Gun roared,
The ground shook with the sound.

The bullet from Dabbitay missed,
Hastily he mounted his steed.

He carried the deadly black spear,
Tightly holding it in his hand.

Before Kenainym turned back,
Dabbitay came up to him.
Aiming at the waist of Kenainym,
At full tilt he ran his shining spearhead.

The spearhead did not pierce the armor,
However it broke five ribs of the lion.
Kenainym felt nothing,
He was born extraordinary.

He charged in rage,
Shouting the name of Manas.
If he did not get hurt,
He would kill his enemy with a hit.

This time when he wanted to stab with his spear,
He felt his right hand could not move easily.
His ribs were cracking,
The sound transmitted to his ears.
Unlucky hero,
Fell in trouble like this.

Like a fish just fleeing from the net,
Dabbitay regained the chance to be alive,
He fled promptly.
Black mane wolf Kenainym,
Broke a rib,
Lost the feeling of his right hand.
Dabbitay knew nothing about it,
He thought only about living,
He fled to Kangayi.
He thought that,
Kenainym did not want to waste energy to chase him.

Dabbitay Lured Autor to Send Troops to Invade Talas

Hero Kenainym,
Got down from the saddle when he came back.

Seeing their lion was returning,
People of Kirgiz crowded around him:
The old and the young,
Old women and old men,
Men and women,
Boys and girls,
All the people of Kirgiz gathered.

To no one,
Kenainym reached out his hand to greet.
No one knew,
He could not raise his arm now.

He did not find out hero Tubash and Beto,
The lion knew,
The two heroes had sacrificed.

He dispersed the crowd,
Did not allow them to gather there.
He kept Akchuletoy and Aoronbay here,
The same with Anter and Jamekay,
He said there were things to discuss together.

The crowd dispersed,
Only four heroes went into a house.
Old man Akchuletoy opened his mouth,

Poured out his heart in tears:
"You are the well-being of Kirgiz,
Please listen to me.

"Remembering the words you left before leaving,
We followed every word in it,
Put them into effect.
When Dabbitay invaded our territory,
We had a swift response.

"Anter and Jamekay,
Youths Tubash and Beto.
In order to protect our honour,
They went into the battlefield in turns,
Their attack made Dabbitay feel dazzled.

"Worse than beast,
This guy was in rage,
He was so aggressive.
He stabbed the two heroes,
Youth Tubash and warrior Beto.

"Warriors Jamekay and Anter rode their horses to rescue,
But before they arrived,
Tubash and Anter had been killed.
Present people rose in swarms,
They helped Jamekay and Anter to escape from danger.

"The lunatic beast,
He showed his nature of bloodlust.
He waved his sword in the crowd of Kirgiz,
He made their blood flow like flood.

"Before dark,
He had killed many people,
We led the revolt,
But we could only retreat when we fought.

"After dawn,
We did not see Dabbitay again.
Maybe he knew you have come,
In fear,
Hastily he fled?
Or maybe he hides in some place,
Waiting a chance to act.

"You are the savior of Kirgiz,
Because of you we have peace.
It is your coming,
Bring us the spirit of Manas."

After the words from Akchuletoy,
Kenainym ordered:
"Do not wait anymore,
Act now,
Patrol our border closely,
Dabbitay mustn't be not allowed to kill anyone!"

Kenainym let them set out,
Then invited Qinekay to get in the yurt.
In those years when Jurendo was killed,
They seized a lot of herbal medicine,
He ordered Qinekay,
To pick medicine from a big girdle.

At first Ahp① and Sap②,
These should be pulverized and applied on the wounds.
Then Aibep③ and Sibep④,
These should be swallowed to cure the wounds.
There was also Kubat⑤ from a box,
It should be eaten at meal.
Cut up the meat of female argali,
Soaked it in the herb Taltesh and ate it.

1 2 3 4 5 Name of Kirgiz medicine in ancient times.

Had someone bound up his wound,
Changed the dressing frequently,
Never wasted any time.

Ninety days passed,
After three months of careful treatment.
His broken rib was healed,
No scar,
Totally healed.

Thought of the great shame,
Being attack by Dabbitay as to suffer cracked ribs,
He decided to tell nobody.

Sunrise and sunset,
He was on his mind,
He resumed his spirits completely.
At dawn he wore the armor and took an iron stick,
On the back of Kankura he took the road.

"I will go to Khorasan to find Dabbitay,
Then eradicate the devil completely.
If he is not there,
I will go to Kangayi to find him.
If I let him go this time,
He will invade here with his henchmen again.

"I have not seen Jodar for years,
How was he doing?
By the way I can visit him this time.

"In Yarkant, Khotan and Lop Nur,
In Kumul and Turpan;
In Barkol, Manas and Altay,
In Yili, Tex and Muzart,
In the prairie of Kunse and Gileadz.

"In Azike, Arile, Kumalik,
Near the lakeside of Isaike Lake,
In endless Mount Tianshan,
In the northern and southern Slope of it.
In the extremely hot corridor,
Around the Himalaya.
In the forest at northern Kashmir,
Totally sixty tribes live there,
They formed the famous alliance Arashi.

"There are also Kirgiz people in Yurganic,
The tribe of Keyba in white felt caps,
They live in the daban of Lahm.
In Badak Mountain and Balik,
Our friends Tajik live there,
Turkomen live in Kara Karlpark.
Our fellows are also in the six cities there and Andijan,
Including Namagan, Tashkentand and Samurhan.

"For many years,
I haven't seen them.
This time I will go to all these places,
To search for Dabbitay.

"I should protect the peace of Arashi,
I should carry on the career of our ancestor Manas,
I could not stretch my all fours,
Until our people obtain their peace.
Then I can rest easy,
Sleep free from worry."

Powerful black mane wolf,
He thought great things all the way,
He rode to Khorasan quickly.
He traveled across daban of Jetsu,
He went through villages around Jedigair,
He went by Buhara and Tukuman,

He had been to many places where the bribes lived in.

He went along the hills of Betebak,
Got in villages around there.
He observed the people's condition,
Including the poor and the rich.

He went across Badak Mountain and Balik,
Where people of Tajik and Yurganic lived in.
He went along with Karatau,
Without break all the way.

He went across valleys of Kashmir,
He went across rivers of Khotan and Chiney,
He went across Yarkant and Kashgar,
He went across Arile and Azike,
He went across alkali lands of Lop Nur,
He went across narrow commercial pass,
Then he went on the ancient Silk Road.

On his steed Kankura,
Kenainym passed snow-white alkaline land,
Passed endless hot gobi,
Passed desert full of quicksand.

He passed by Turpan and Kumul,
He searched Barkol and Manas City.
He came to Beshbarak[①],
In stealth he pried into news from indigenes.

He went along the foot of Arat Mountain,
Towards Altay.
He rushed in hills,
Without a break.

1 Beshbarak: Kirgiz language, it is the name of a city.

He came up to the foot of Salebald hill,
Then climbed the ridge of Sarikayik mountain.
He took out the clairvoyance,
And looked into the distance.

He saw the yellow benchland of Kuran,
At the east edge of it,
At lakeside of Kanas in Altay,
At the front of birch forest,
A black flag was flowing.

Horns were blaring,
Drums were beating.

Countless small red flags,
Waved at the whole sky and ground.
Swarms of troops,
Stamped and shook the earth.

Suddenly the dust was blowing,
The fog was spreading,
Without sunlight it turned dark.
Everything around there became blurred,
The clairvoyance was out of action.

Kenainym cast his eyes nearby,
Around the riverside,
There were different kinds of yurts.
There were women and children,
They walked there in flurry.

"Are they the fellows of Kazakh?
They have lived in peace for years,
They suffer from unexpected disaster now."
Kenainym loosed his bridle,
Urged Kankura to run fast.
Forest was left behind him,

In wind his cloth was flowing.

Like this he went to the place,
There were forty or fifty people,
All these were women and children.

When Kenainym came,
All the people were on all fours,
Tears dropped from their eyes.
Nobody made any sound,
Just as their throats were stuck.

At this time,
A woman stood up and stretched his hands,
There were two little boys,
She drew them to her side.

She said in tears:
"People say 'when a man falls in trouble,
He will abandon his wife at the roadside,
He will throw his children to the hillside.'
I thought it was untrue before.
But it was fulfilled today.

"Your father did not look back at me,
He did not need you either.
He did not pick anyone of you,
He left us in the disaster.

"Look at the devil from Khorasan,
In arrogance he came here,
He made us fall in a desperate case,
Just like falling in a bottomless chasm.

"My children,
Disasters have come,
If we can be alive,

We flee to the highland together;
If we have to die,
We lie in the same hole."
That woman chattered,
She took her children to escape.

Kenainym said at this time:
"I am not people of Khorasan,
I am Kenainym of Kirgiz."

Hearing the name of Kenainym,
That woman was shocked.
She was stunned,
Had no reaction,
She kept her gaze fixed upon Kenainym.

That woman regained her consciousness then,
She tried to sound the comer out with a question,
She thought she was going to die sooner or later,
So she risked telling the truth:

"Maybe I mishear your words,
Could you tell me your truth.
I did not recognize you,
I did not catch your name."

"My name is Kenainym,
I come from broad Talas.

Hearing the name of hero,
The woman was overjoyed,
Following her heart,
Her tears were shed like turbulent lake:
"My hero khan black mane wolf,
Thanks for your mercy, my God,
Finally I meet you today.

"The great Arashi with sixty tribes,
It is the backer of all of us.
In order to get away from danger,
We have no choice but to escape to the valley.

"We are troops of hero Kokcher,
We Kazakhs live here generation by generation.
Kazakh and Kirgiz are close relative,
Both we pray the spirit of Manas when we fall in trouble.

"One year ago,
We heard about a person from Khorasan,
He challenged hero Kenainym,
He fled hastily after defeat,
Then he went to Kangayi to meet Autor.

"Six days ago,
We met an unforeseen disaster.
Here comes a man in Ayinla,
The bay horse under him looked like an elephant,
He was as strong as a mountain.
Before he asked the name of our tribe,
He had cut the heads of six young people."

"This bloodthirsty devil said arrogantly:
'My name is Dabbitay,
I am the khan of Khorasan.
Anyone who have relationship with Arashi,
I will drink up your blood.

"'I have a lot of troops behind me,
I am searching target first.
No matter whom I meet,
I will suck its blood.
Arashi people made me suffered,
Because of them I went through many hardships.
You should do the preparation,

Treat my mighty Khan Autor with your utmost cordiality.'

"We treated Dabbitay with meat and liquor,
We tried to stall him.
No matter how much liquor we offered,
He was not in drink.
He gave us the order to prepare,
Then mounted his horse and went back.

"After he left,
We sent people to every direction,
To spread the news about the devil.
We wanted to inform fellows to escape,
No time to delay,
It was actual urgency.

"Men fled in every direction,
Scary and uneasy.
About their wives and children,
They had no time to look back.
We could not find a place to hide,
We could only cry,
Tears filled our eyes."

After the words,
Kenainym drew a conclusion in his mind,
He met some troops on his way,
They were soldiers of Karamark.
Kenainym said around:
"Do not be afraid,
Get together.
I am Kenainym of Kirgiz."

Including women and children,
All of the people got together.
About seventy persons,
Their sorrow began to turn to joy,

The worried look was removed from their faces.

Fellows went around spreading excitedly:
"In order to rescue us,
Kenainym has arrived!"

They called each other's name,
To seek fellows who were hiding.
When they met people who were riding,
They made them spread the news.
Let all fellows come back to Ayinla,
And go home to sleep.

Kenainym did not stay there,
He mounted his steed,
Left at full speed.
On the way,
Kenainym met a hurried man.

Before Kenainym loosed his tongue,
The man started to panic,
All his body was shaking.
Just as the Death came up to him,
Occupied his body.
He dare not to escape,
Just like his legs were fastened.

This guy knew nothing about Kirgiz language,
He could not greet in it.
He dare not exchange glances,
He looked stunned,
And dastard.

"Where are you from?
Who are you?"
Harshly Kenainym inquired.
The man answered:

"Autor and Dabbitay sent me here,
To inform his order.
Let them prepare livestock for him,
Then get out of home,
No exception.

"They asked me to report to them after the mission,
I try my best to track,
Just to do this sort of thing."

Then Kenainym said:
"Hey,
You henchman,
Go back now,
Tell Autor my words.
Just say you meet a person on the way,
He has yellow face and blue eyes,
He rides a black horse called Kankura.

"Tell them,
For an exile and his fellows,
Here is no yurt to be prepared.
They even want to eat meat,
Here is no unsupervised livestock!

"Autor followed Dabbitay and provoked us,
Could it be said that people here were weak?

"Let him go back to his people,
Go back to his city.
Do not make trouble out of nothing,
Do not challenge us,
Do not disturb the peace of Kazakh in Ayinla.

"I will ride my horse to seek out them,
I will go up to them.
My name is Kenainym,

Report it to your khan!"

Hearing the name of Kenainym,
That man was too scared to breathe,
Blue veins stood out on his yellow face,
He almost breathed his last.
He dare not look up,
Like puppy that just stole milk,
He lowered his head in bewilderment.

Though he opened his mouth,
He did not dare to breathe.
There was no warmth on his body,
It was totally cold.
His blood flow was blocked,
His belly started to distend,
His face became dull,
His body became stiff.

"Hey,
Bastard,
Move now,
Do not you hear my order?"

That man understood that he could go,
So in haste he held his lash to urge his horse,
However, he hit his own head,
He gasped in pain.
He turned his horse in fluster,
Disappeared in a cloud of dust.

In the blink of an eye,
He went back to his troop.
At the sight of his troop.
He sweated all over,
And felt weak the whole body.

"My Khan Autor,
I have something to report.
You sent me to the tribe of Kazakh,
And let me transport your order.
I told them to set up yurts and slaughter sheep,
You ordered me to count the number of yurts and sheep,
Then go back to report.

"In order to execute your order,
I advanced fast with no break.
Out of my expectation,
I met the Death.

"On half way I met a giant,
I felt scared when I saw his figure,
What he looked like,
Please let me tell you now:

"His figure was as tall as a camel,
The steed under him was tawny with black mane.
He was in iron armor,
Aulbok coat was on his body.
Like a tiger he was uninhibited,
He was powerful than a dragon.

"He held a sharp spear in his hand,
He had the Sear Sword on his waist.
The spiked club was on the saddle,
Around his waist there was the glittering crescent battleax.

"He had all kinds of weapon,
Each one was sophisticated,
It is really astonishing!
Since I was born,
I have never seen such a strong man.

"His skin was yellow,

His eyes were blue,
In his eyes flames were burning.
He looked extraordinary,
His face was glittering.
Such a handsome man,
He must be the god that befell the world!

"At the sight I saw his figure,
I was half dead with fright.
He ordered me to come back to my troop,
And report the news to my khan.

"His name is Kenainym,
He told me to report all of his words.
He said that you played up to an exile,
This kind of khan must be overturned.

"My noble khan,
I have some questions about it.
It is about Dabbitay,
Did he come to seek asylum from elsewhere?

"If the whole world gets together,
To fight against Kenainym,
I thought that,
Kenainym still could not be defeated.

"He was not fat or thin,
He was tall and strong.
He looked like a mountain,
Ordinary person can not beat him down.
His waist was as strong as rock,
Ordinary person can not break it off."

Hearing the words from the messenger,
Dabbitay suffered from indignity.
He spluttered first,

He blamed the messenger like this:

"You are only a servant of Autor,
Do not talk nonsense here.
Kenainym is not worth mentioning,
How can I be driven by him?
Why did you praise him like this,
With full of praise?"

After the blame,
The messenger refused to accept it,
He recriminated without hesitation:

"Dabbitay you people of Khorasan,
What right do you have to parade your ability,
Why do you stand here,
Open your mouth wide?

"If you stay on your throne,
Manage your city firmly,
You can be our guest,
We will accept your words.

"Today you are an exile,
You flee hither and thither to take refuge,
There are no happy children around you,
There is no lovely wife be with you.

"Today around you,
There is no your relative.
How could you shout in parables,
Do you have any dignity!

"When you heard the name of Kenainym,
You shook with fear,
Without spirit.
You do not have the courage of a hero,

You do not dare to fight against him.

"You are like a mangy dog wagging the tail,
Where is your dignity as a khan?
There is nothing else in your mind,
Only the fear of the Death!"

The messenger asserted eloquently,
Dabbitay knew he was wrong.
The words that the messenger praised Kenainym,
Made Dabbitay feel the Death was before him.

Then Autor got sick of it,
Loudly he blamed the messenger:
"You have lost your mind,
Do not talk nonsense,
No more lies!
Do not spread your words to my soldiers!

"Kenainym is not that strong,
He is not unbeatable.
Where is Kenainym now?
Lead me to see him."

The leader of Karamark Autor and Dabbitay,
Took their road aggressively.
They urged their horses to run all the way,
The stamp shook the mountain and ground.

Dabbitay was scary,
Trembling,
And puzzled.
Autor had not seen Kenainym before,
So he itched to try,
Pretty aggressive.
There were many troops behind him,
They cheered like angry waves.

Autor thought in his mind:
"Faced with me Kenainym must be out of his mind."

It was autumn that day,
There was a broad plain.
Autor went out of the mountain pass,
Then he met Kenainym.

Perverse Autor Worked His own Ruin

Seeing Dabbitay,
Kenainym planted his red flag in the ground.
He wanted to start a bloody battle,
At the cost of his life,
Which was put on a horse mane by him.

Lion like hero Kenainym,
Faced with two giants he was fearless,
Faced with death he never shrank,
Towards the enemies he charged.

He mounted his steed Kankura,
Left clouds of dust behind him,
Just like tornado.
He waved his spear,
Coldly the spear glittered,
The ground started to shake.
He led a charge towards Dabbitay,
Trying to hit him with a blow.

Like a leopard our hero advanced bravely,
He rushed up to Dabbitay rapidly.
Before Dabbitay did the reaction,
He stabbed him down from the horse.
Autor came at once,
Then saved Dabbitay from death.

No matter how arrogant Dabbitay was,
Today he was defeated before the crowd.

Waggling the fat body,
Autor asked Kenainym:
"I have not seen any one like you,
Why do you have such deep hatred with him?
You must suffer from hatred,
You look angry,
Your blood is boiling.
My name is Autor,
What is your name?"

"I know you are Autor,
I am Kenainym.
Dabbitay is my enemy,
I searched the whole world,
To find the fugitive slave.
Today I find him,
It is the chance to revenge.

"Are you a khan or a common person,
Tell me your details.
Which tribe do your belong to?
Where is your hometown?
Do not hide,
Tell me the truth,
Why do you help Dabbitay?

"Dabbitay of Khorasan,
He always does evil to Kirgiz.
He is inimical,
He is cruel,
He slaughters my tribes in waves.

"I never invaded his territory,
But he always invades us.
As long as he goes back to his home,
I will not chase after him.

"According to your action,
You must be cheated by him.
Even if you send troops together,
I will meet the attack fearlessly.
If you take out the exile,
Then go back to your home,
I will not complain again.

"Anyone who dares to offend me,
I will smash it.
The one respecting me,
I will never offend it.
That is all my words,
There are all sincerely advices!"

After the words of Kenainym,
The leader of Karamark Autor was in rage:
"You asked if I am a khan or common person,
Your question is too arrogant!
I come from the tribes in broad Kangayi,
I am a khan.
Sibo, Solan, Manchus,
And these Anchus,
They are all under my control.

"Your Kirgiz grazed in mountains,
I already knew it:
You are called Brute,
It was known by all my ancestors.

"Dabbitay from Khorasan,
He asked me to take refugee,
That is because I am famous.
Kenainym,
If you want to compete with me,
You will lose your life in vain!

"Among the people of Karamark and Brute,
Many heroes perished.
Including many khans and giants,
The number is countless.
Kenainym,
In your hands,
Many common people lost their lives.

"Let us talk about recent events,
You killed Khan Qiktay,
Iron overcoat Shalekmat,
Copper navel Kekmat,
And Big ears Chounalep,
You killed them in series.

"In order to avenge the death of their father,
Youths Sakta and Saranja,
Died in your hands.
To support them,
Timirbek of Tajik,
Acha Khan of Isfan,
Both died in the battle.

"Yellow-faced Death Kenainym,
You killed many khans.
In order to avenge their death,
I rode my horse from Kangayi.
I thought you were in Talas at first.
It is the Death who drove you here,
Made us meet on the narrow path in Altay.

"I will slit your heart and drain your blood,
I will clean Brute out.
I will destroy the City of Sire,
I will tread down the whole Talas.
I will find the skeleton of Manas,

Dig it and throw it to the wild.

"I will smash your gorgeous palace,
I will take your girls to my camp as spoils.
Kenainym,
If you want to know,
For my coming here it is my purpose.

"I'm in charge of five tribes,
I have all I want,
I am invincible.
You Brute are not worth mentioning,
Even if I want to slaughter the people of Khitan,
It is a piece of cake.
Do not mention Russians and people of Baran,
I have the strength to conquer all!"

Autor finished his arrogant talk,
Kenainym answered like this:
"It is you Autor Karamark,
Your nature was as cruel as an beast.
You said you would slaughter Russians,
You would kill all the people of Khitan and Baran.
You threatened us like this,
But can it make me cringe?

"I am going to knock your arrogance off,
I will chase you to the place you were born.
I will destroy your lair,
I will drain your blood up!"

Like this lion hero roared,
He waved the spear in his hand.
As to the mountainous Karamark,
No concession he had.
Shouting the name of Manas,
Kenainym headed straight up to Karamark.

Clouds of dust were raised behind him,
Like fog the battlefield was covered.

Kenainym and Autor came it to a hand-to-hand combat,
They fought fiercely.
They attacked each other with spears,
And both of them were blocked.

It creaked when steeds were stamping,
It clashed when spears were impacting.
Their roars sounded like thunder,
Soldiers were shaking in fear.
Those mousy cowards,
They were scared with wet pants.

After the spearhead was broken,
They took out battleax to fight.
They risked their lives,
Applied all themselves to the fight.
Many weapons were broken,
They still did not stop.

On the back of Battleax cracks appeared,
The blade of it was turned,
Their helmets were damaged in many places,
Their iron belts were ruptured.

The netty iron clothes,
Were torn into pieces,
The bulletproof robes made of Brum cloth,
Were covered with sword marks.
No collar and sleeve was left,
No excepting,
All things on their body were broken.
Under black rocks,
Hero adjusted their distorted spears.
They went into the battlefield on the steeds,

Without a moment of rest.

Their roars sounded like thunders on the ground,
Their movements were dazzling.
They howled like a dragon,
Their vehemence made people threatened.
Soldiers around there sighed:
"It is the doom of the world."

Night fell,
It was dark,
They did not stop until daybreak.
They risked their lives,
And thought of only attack.

As the battle progressed,
They became more fierce and aggressive,
No one conceded.
The only thing they thought was to win,
Then buried the enemy in black earth.

Spears and swords were broken,
Without weapons,
They jumped off the horse to wrestle.
They rolled up the hem of clothes,
Then pushed and shoved like bulls.
They charged fiercely like camels,
Both of them desired to win,
To subjugate the enemies.

At the time they deadlocked,
With all the strength,
Autor pushed back Kenainym.
He looked at the hill behind Kenainym,
Tried to stumble him at that place,
Then he could pin Kenainym and slit his belly.

He pushed and shoved tiger Kenainym,
When he roared like a stallion,
Then he grabbed the arm of Kenainym.

Autor planned in his mind this time:
"I should grab his arm,
And tightly hold his waist,
Before he turns his head,
I will push him to the hill.

"I will trip him up,
Then throw him on the huge rock,
Before he has time to react,
I will cut his head off,
I will pierce his cheek with a rope,
And tie it on my saddle,
Take it to my camp."

It was the conspiracy of Autor,
But hero Kenainym had already noticed.
He gave no chance to Autor,
He tightly grasped the belt of Autor with two hands.

He lifted the enemy over his head,
Just like lifting a bag of hay.
Shouting the name of Manas,
He rotated Autor,
Then threw him on the black rock.

Could Autor be saved then?
Just like a broken china bottle,
His body was smashed to pieces,
Blood flew out from his broken head,
He died in a moment.

Lost their leader Autor,
People of Karamark was very grieved.

When they lost their heads,
Dabbitay ordered:
"Karamark,
Prepare to attack,
You have troops of eighty thousand soldiers,
He is all on his own,
Do not stint your lives.

"We are balanced in power,
I am going to fight him myself.
You should siege him together,
Capture this Brute man-eating monster alive.
All the people who are alive need to act together.
It is time to revenge our khans,
It is time to win honor for Karamark!"

Present people of Kara Khitan,
Karamark and Kangayi,
All of them followed the order of Dabbitay,
They charged like a flock of crows,
Only Sibo did not join it.

Faced with the overwhelming soldiers,
Kenainym rose up to counterattack.
He waved spear and sword,
He was as fierce as a dragon.
He rushed into the crowd,
Drove these ant-like soldiers.

Soldiers of Karamark cried piteously,
They stamped each other to death.
Just like the autumn wind sweeping the leaves,
Scattered soldiers could not dodge Kenainym's attack.

People of Sibo took the opportunity to move,
They led horses without owner.
It was dark on the battlefield,

The troop of Karamark could not bear this cruel war.

Survivals came up to Dabbitay,
They shouted to complain:
"It is all your fault sinister Dabbitay,
You destroyed our peace.
You said you would go to fight yourself,
Then mobilized us to siege.

"But when we charged in the front,
You sat tight on the upper hill.
You are a vagrant bane,
You bring us only misfortune!

"Kenainym would come to seek you,
You would better get out of here soon,
Do not appear before us again!

"We lost our wise khan,
We lost our backer Suletan.
Autor died miserably,
Dabbitay can not avoid the punishment,
It is you that brought us endless sadness!"

At this time,
A group of Sibo people were driving two thousand horses,
They came up to Kenainym.

There was a man of Sibo called Tonmin,
He said to Kenainym:
"Kenainym coming from afar,
I am Tonmin.
Thank you Kenainym,
You punished these rabid dogs.

"When Kunwuerbayi and Manas was alive,
We Sibo were managed by Karamark.

We turned out in full force to fight with Manas,
But we rarely survived the war.

"We had troops of thousands of soldiers,
However we never defeated our enemies.
We got through countless battles,
But we Sibo failed to leave a fame.

"People of Karamark was our commander,
We Sibo were only cannon fodder.
According to the legend of our elders,
People of Sibo were discredited since then,
All our hopes were dashed to pieces.

"Auraqueker and Bozkeltic,
They were all dead.
You Kenainym and Qiktay Khan,
You fell in an unprecedented struggle.
His six warriors wanted to support him,
But all of them died in your hands.

"Today we come here,
It is all because of the compulsive order of Autor.
When their troops started to siege you,
We Sibo did not move.
We accepted masterless steed of Karamark,
No escape,
We accepted these all.

"Khan Kenainym,
We did not escape,
We did not take rash actions,
If you want to chop us with your sword,
We will show you our necks.
Anything you order,
We will follow it.

"We Sibo have separated with Karamark,
We have been out of their control.
I Tonmin came here,
To report you our situations."

At this time,
Kenainym answered:
"You Tonmin came from Sibo,
I have heard the words that you spoke.
You collected the war-horse of Karamark,
Put these together.
You are going to separate with Karamark,
Have you made up your mind?

"I Kenainym will not attack others,
Unless we are attacked.
Anyone who dare to offend me like Autor,
I will defeat it,
Then smash it into powder.

"If all your words are from your heart,
If there is all truth,
Please keep these war-horses,
As a gift in return.
I defeated Autor,
But it is not suitable to accept these horses as spoils."

Sibo people drove these horses away,
Then groups of Solan came here,
They begged Kenainym for mercy,
Kind Kenainym accepted it.
Till today,
Sibo and Solan separated with Karamark,
This event is an important cause.

Like this,
Sibo, Solan and Karamark went their separate ways.

Since then,
The danger of death,
Totally fell on the head of Dabbitay.

Karamark lost their khan,
They thought Dabbitay as their backer.
Faced with hero Kenainym,
They dare not get on the battlefield,
Miserably they could only stand by and watch.

They felt their collars were torn by Death,
Anxiety was in their hearts,
They lost their heads in trouble,
There was no way to go.

Dabbitay Strook the Harem of Autor Six Princesses rose up in Resistance

Dabbitay of Khorasan,
He endured until nightfall.
When the day became dark,
He escaped hastily at any risk.

Kenainym waited patiently,
Until the sun rose in the east,
He still got no response.
So he shouted to ask the details:

"People of Karamark,
Kangayi,
Why are you wasting time?
I ask you to respond clearly,
You want to fight,
Or you have no strength to do that?
I did not see Dabbitay,
Where is he actually."

Hearing the word of Kenainym,
There was a cry in the crowd.
Karamark and Kangayi,
All of them were crying,
They complained in rattle.
One of them came up to Kenainym,
As a representative he told their real willingness:

"We called you Brute,
Our ancestors started bloody wars with you.

They traveled long distances through hardships,
It cost lots of wealth of fellows,
Many heroes died in these wars.

"Our khans and leaders,
They did not know their place,
They never defended our homeland.
They always led troops to launch wars,
Invaded you and brought you disasters.
However, they always suffered defeat,
Wasted man power and money,
Suffered heavy casualties.
They gathered soldiers to revenge after that,
Launched wars again,
Looted livestock again.
Sibo and Solan left today,
Because they do not want to commit sins again.

"This time,
We Karamark were badly hurt,
We lost Autor our backer.
Our khan went on the road of no return,
That is owing to the trick of Dabbitay.

"Dabbitay were so despicable,
He pushed us to the abyss of death.
He seduced us into fighting against you,
Then he was so shameless to flee alone.
We are poor for losing our khan,
So we complain to you our hero.

"If you want to kill us all,
We will show you our heads.
If you want gold and jewellery,
We will send you with bags.

"If you want livestock,

All of our livestock around the hills are yours,
If you want beautiful girls as spoils,
All of beauties in our palace are for you to choose."

Kenainym said:
"Your livestock and beauties,
Your gold and jewellery,
I do not want any of these.
I want to find Dabbitay,
I want to take revenge on him.
Where is Dabbitay?
Tell me the truth."

"Yesterday before it was dark,
Dabbitay was with us,
He instigated that,
He would fight with you at daybreak.
This morning we found that,
He had disappeared.
He is a liar,
We do not know where he fled to."

They expressed regret,
Kenainym left promise to them:
"You can go back,
Live your life,
Protect your homeland.
If you have a grudge against me,
If you dare to invade Talas again,
No matter when you come,
I will meet the attack there!"

Fearless Kenainym,
He left these words behind his horse.
He thought that,
Desperate Dabbitay might strike Talas in stealth.
Hastily Dabbitay escaped,

He rushed all the way.
He came to the palace of Autor,
In depressing voice,
He ordered:

"We have been defeated by Kenainym,
I come here to help you get out of the city.
Wear your Brum coat,
Pick your fastest steed.

"Autor has fled to India,
Brute soldiers will come here soon,
Come with me now."

Autor had six wives,
Dabbitay kept urging them.
Let them put on their precious coats,
Let them mount their fast steeds.
Let them carry all their treasures,
And follow him to flee from the city.

There was a young concubine of Autor,
Her name was Kelingel.
She really was a wonderful woman.
Fleeing with the beauty Kelingel,
It was the true purpose of Dabbitay.
As to the other five,
He only wanted their gold,
He wanted to find a correct chance,
Then abandoned them in the wild.

They kept walking all night,
Vigilant Kelingel was thinking.
Many memories came to her mind,
She seemed to see through the ambition of Dabbitay:
"It seems that Autor had died,
Six of us have become widows.

Dabbitay of Khorasan,
He seems to have some attempt at us.

"He wants to pick one of us,
Then on half way abandon the others.
He wants to flee to India,
With treasures of us."

In stealth,
Kelingel told these to other sisters,
Then kept touch with each other.
They went through mountains,
By the next day, when it was dark,
They stopped in a place.

Dabbitay said to Kelingel:
"We sleep together tonight,
Fish will not leave trace in water.
I will sleep with one of you every night,
No one is going to tell Autor.

"I have an appointment with Autor,
We will meet in India.
I will protect you,
Bring you to him safely."

When Dabbitay said that,
These six women looked as if they fell in crazy,
They jumped on Dabbitay and shouted:

"You damn guy,
You seduced Autor there,
Made him die in Kenainym's hand,
You took away our husband.

"Now you are cheating us,
You want to sleep with one of us every day.

You are a shameless immoral man,
You are trying to rape us.
You are an extremely wicked guy,
Even fools will not believe your rhetoric.

"You desire Kelingel's beauty,
You like her delicate skin.
You think her bed is warm,
You want to take her away.

"You even want girdles of treasures,
You let us carry these for you,
You want to flee to India,
Enjoy the rest of your life.

"You want to take Kelingel away,
It is totally wishful thinking.
Kelingel is wise and chaste,
How could she marry you scoundrel.
We will cut off every piece of flesh on your bones,
Then stamp it just like stamping cow dung!

Rather than let you take Kelingel away,
We give her to Kenainym.
Then we can get the throne,
Let Autor's brother Audura inherit it.
We can save the throne of the Autor family like this,
We also give a reliable backer to our sisters.

"If Brute people do not accept us,
They refuse to marry Kelingel.
As the widows of Autor,
Warriors of Kangayi will accept us!"

Six wives of Autor,
With kitchen Knives,
They jumped on Dabbitay.

They decided to fight against the devil to the end,
They wanted to avenge the death of their husband,
They were regardless of the cost.

The oldest wife of Autor,
Her name was Mujun.
She always defeated man on battlefield,
She was a powerful woman.

She wore iron net underwear at ordinary times,
But no one knew her secret.
Her steed was Surchabal[1],
She looked like a warrior.
With a huge shield on her back,
She was going to fight on the horseback.

"Hey,
Dabbitay,
Come on!
I will drain the blood in your heart!
I do not allow you taking Kelingel away,
I will avenge the death of Autur.
I will cut off your head,
Then give it to Brute!"

She kept shouting,
Dabbitay of Khorasan,
He had no excuses to quibble,
He had no choice but to fight.
He really did not think of it before,
The six wives of Autor would lead him to doom.

"I will break off their waists,
I am going to end their lives.
I will be with Kelingel,

1 Surchabal: Name of a horse, it means gray fast horse.

Then travel the whole world.
I will take away their gold,
It can cover the cost of my remaining years!"
Dabbitay underestimated Mujun,
He thought of course he would win.

Mujun was an extraordinary woman,
Filled with indignation,
In fiercely rage,
She waved folding spear,
Charged to Dabbitay.

Duel started between these man and woman,
Dabbitay wanted to stab Mujun down with the spear.
Creaks came out when spears clashed,
Both of them stepped back after a round.

Angry Mujun was unwilling to submit,
Forcibly she lashed her steed Surchabal.
Bitter tears dropped from her eyes,
She attacked again at all risks,
Just like Death she was filled with combativeness.

Dabbitay was ashamed into anger,
He held his bloody spear,
Just like he was fighting against Kenainym,
With eyes stared,
In a violent rage.

Mujun and Dabbitay fought fiercely again,
They hit by their spears violently.

The bay horse and gray horse under them,
Chased each other,
No hesitation.
Kelingel watched them,
She found they were well-matched.

But she knew Mujun was a woman after all,
Her strength could not last long.

"Mujun met the enemy bravely,
She was in fierce battle.
If we do not support her now,
Maybe none of us can flee from our doom.

"When Mujun was stabbed down,
Four of you except me,
Will be spoilt wantonly.
He will cut off your heads,
Before you could call for help.
Then he will rape me,
I have no strength to resist.

"I Kelingel would rather die,
Than be occupied by this scoundrel.
We would better fight together,
Support our hero Mujun.

"We will catch this Khorasan people together,
Cut off his head just like slaughtering sheep.
Then pierce his lips with rope,
Fasten his head on our saddle.
After revenging Autor,
We can come back to Koktukat!"

Sincerely Kelingel mobilized them,
Immediately these wives joined the fight as respond.

From left someone cut him with a kitchen knife,
From right someone stabbed him with a sword.
From this side someone chopped him with an ax,
From that side someone hit him with a big stick...
These women were shouting,
When they attacked Dabbitay.

Dabbitay was shocked,
He was unable to meet their attack.
Faced with six crazy women,
He had no choice but to escape.
These girdles were full of gold,
But he did not carry it with him at all.

When I am telling this kind of story,
I never feel sleepy.

Culpable Dabbitay Lost His Life after Three Attacks on Talas

These six women,
They mounted their steeds,
Carried girdles that full of gold,
Went to their homeland.

Dabbitay was worried,
He had no place to go,
He was totally in fear.
He did not know any place to hide,
Kept awake all night,
Wondered without destination:

"I have no place to go,
No one would believe me.
I told lies everywhere,
I instigated others everywhere.
I can not stand the temptation of money,
I accepted the gold and camels of Karamark.

"I am lonely now,
With no companions,
With no homeland,
With no fellows,
With no friends.
Like frosty leaves I lost everything.

"I can not live in Khorasan,
The new khan will not let me off.
Any tribe knows it is me,

They will not let me pass.

"In Iraq and Iran,
I am not welcome anymore.
I do not know their leader,
I can not go to the country in the east either.
The world is endless,
But there is no foothold for me.

"Oh, no,
It is the rule of the world,
As a khan I fell from throne,
Now I look like a stray dog.
Rather than wondering like this,
Killing time in pain,
I should go to the homeland of Kirgiz,
Invade the city of Talas again.

"I should try to strike them,
Launch a life and death struggle,
Maybe I can rise from the dead.

"if I am not strong enough,
I can flee to Monget,
That tribe is isolated and remote,
I can hide in the people of Salamart.
If Monget cherish their warriors,
I can stay in that place for two years,
Maybe I can rise from the ashes."

Dabbitay thought he found a place to go,
He even wanted to loot Talas city.
He kept running day and night,
He went through Samalad Mountain[1].
On the vast land of Arashi,

1 Samalad Mountain: In Kirgiz language, it means mountains with huge wind gaps.

He dare not expose himself,
So he only acted at night.
He was skinny,
His face was sallow.
Starving,
Cold,
That criminal being struggled in tragedy.

Infested with lice,
He was extremely itchy,
His body was full of sores.
By snow Samalad Mountain was covered,
The wind was whistling,
The snow was falling.
After bitterness and sorrow,
Dabbitay arrived in the plain of Talas finally.

Before this time,
Dabbitay had been here two times,
He was familiar with the terrain here.
"I can not do it openly,
I can not drive the horse of Kirgiz,
I should strike them at night.

"I am going to disguise,
To change my silhouettes,
I will get into their city in stealth.
If Kenainym falls in my hands,
I will split his chest,
Then rip out his viscera.

"If I do not achieve this,
I will set fires in city,
Then lock the gates from outside,
And run away after that.

"Then I will go to the tomb of Manas,

And destroy it.
If the palace is burnt into ashes.
The tomb is razed to the ground,
The reputation of Kirgiz will be damaged.

"If the city goes up in flames,
Kenainym may be burnt to death,
It is the God's blessing.
I am able to see the light then,
I will enslave all people of Kirgiz."

Dabbitay imagined various actions,
Fancied that he would succeed.
At the intersection of Susamil,
He stayed for a day,
Had a rest there.

He took off his coat armor,
Then wore ordinary clothes.
He went towards the direction of Sire City,
On the horseback,
With his chest lifted.
Please do not worry,
Let Dabbitay go,
Let us talk about situations here.

In the people of Kirgiz,
There were many competent men,
They had different skills.
One of them called Kokum,
He was wise,
And insightful.

He was seeking his lost livestock,
Unintentionally he found the place where Dabbitay lived:
"People who have slept here,
Must be a burly Hercules,

It seems that,
There are worries in his mind.

"He changed his clothes here,
He also removed the iron palm of his steed,
Then he left here in haste.

"I should track him as soon as possible,
I have to find out his traces,
Then report it to captor Essim,
No details could be missed."

Kokum planned in his mind,
Turned his horse to track.
He caught up with Dabbitay soon,
He saw the tall figure of him.

Kokum was sixteen this year,
He had never seen Dabbitay,
So he did not recognize him,
He pretended to be curious and observed,
Then came back to the place where Essim lived:

"Brother Essim,
Are you in the house?
You are our captor,
I have some news about Ridge of Jetitor,
Do you know that?

"I went there to seek my lost livestock,
At the foothill of Susamil,
I found some suspicious trace.

"Someone changed clothes there,
He also removed the iron palm of his steed,
His direction was not southern nor western,
He went towards downstream Susamil.

I ran after him on my horse,
I found his figure soon.

"That man was tall and strong,
He was on a bay horse,
There were hatred in his eyes.
According to my observation,
Flames were burning in his eyes.
Once he enters our city,
I am afraid he is going to do something harmful."

Hearing the words of Kokum,
Essim mounted his Chobble[1] Steed.
When he got out of the valley,
He just met Dabbitay head-on.
He pretended to be unmindful,
He almost impacted the head of Dabbitay's horse.

When Essim passed by,
Dabbitay noticed his suspicious eyes,
He knew the purpose of Essim.
Then remembered the youth he just met,
He thought in his mind:
"That boy noticed I am a stranger,
So he reported to his leader.

"I should change my direction immediately,
I will go through this marsh.
I should ride an ox,
Then drive a couple of cows,
Disguising as a herd."

Dabbitay changed his way,
He went towards the marsh.

1 Chobble: In Kirgiz language, name of horse, it means a strong horse that is not that fast.

Essim did not look back,
He went straight to the city,
Reported it to the guard officer Aoronbay:

"Aoronbay my commander,
I have something to report.
I was resting in my home,
Suddenly I heard the voice of Kokum.
Loudly he shouted my name,
He entered my home before he dismounted from the horse.

"I thought he had an emergency to report,
So I put on a coat and walked to the door.
Before he dismounted from his horse,
He started to say what he just saw.

"He said that at the edge of Susamil,
He found a suspicious man.
That man was disguised,
He was on a steed without iron palm.
So Kokum ran after that man,
He caught up that man soon.

"He said he found something after observation,
That man was tall and stout,
Full of combativeness.
He thought that man was hostile,
Maybe that man would strike us,
Then set fires in our city.

"He said it was just the emergency,
He hasted to report it.
He was not that sure,
So he asked me to scout again.

"After Kokum's report,
I mounted my short tail horse to scout.

At the valley of Susamil,
I met that man.

"I looked closely,
Then I knew all secrets.
That man was Dabbitay,
He planned to strike us.
From his black eyes,
I understood thoroughly his conspiracy.

"I guess that,
Dabbitay started to doubt Kokum and me.
So he got away from the road,
He went towards a marsh.

"I expect he will ride an ox,
Drive a couple of cows.
When it is dark,
He will slip into Sire City.

"Once he comes in,
He will set fires everywhere.
Maybe he has other purpose,
Aokay[1],
I do not know now.

"I came here from distance,
Just to report it.
Next step,
I will follow your order."

Hearing the news from Essim,
Aoronbay jumped out of the seat:
"Essim, Kokum, Atakay,
Tirdikbay, Kuquek, Satikay,

1 Aokay: Respectful name of Aoronbay.

All six of you act now.
Inquire about the news from all directions.

"If Essim has not mistaken,
Scoundrel Dabbitay,
He will badger us without an end.
We can not treat it lightly,
I have to report it to our Khan detailedly."

Aoronbay sent out the six youths,
Then he went to Kenainym to report.
He urged his steed,
The hooves were pounding,
Coincidentally he met Kenainym on halfway.
Aoronbay greeted him at roadside,
With his hands on the chest,
Respectful:

"Majestical Suletan my tiger,
You look like the lofty Arat Mountain,
When you smile,
It looks like warm sunlight.
When you are sullen,
We will shock in fear,
With our heads lost.

"In order to report an emergency,
I come here to visit you.
I Aoronbay is your servant,
I will report what I have heard,
Completely,
With no concealment.

"Our wise youth Kokum,
He found a suspicious man.
He saw more horrible things,
So he reported to Essim rapidly.

"Essim started to chase that man then,
He found that man was disguised,
That man also removed the iron palm of his steed.
He recognized him,
That man was Dabbitay in disguise.

"Essim observed him,
Dabbitay was filled with viciousness.
He expected that,
Dabbitay was going to set fires in Sire City.

"Essim passed him by on purpose,
He watched carefully,
He considered in his mind.
He thought Dabbitay would drive cows on an ox,
Then enter our city at nightfall.

"I have sent out Essim, Kokum and Atakay,
Tirdikbay, Kuquek and Satikay,
I let them to track Dabbitay,
In order to keep us informed.
I let them report the details frequently,
The interval time should be less than the time of juicing a mare,
I come up to you specially,
Just to report it to you."

After Aoronbay's words,
Kenainym grinned,
He said with a smile:
"Aoronbay,
If it is true,
Our people will be in peace.

"Tell our fellows not to worry,
Dabbitay is tricky,
He will not enter the city easily.

When he sees the six people you send,
He will know we have noticed,
Then he will change his plan.
You must keep in touch with these six men,
Ensure the safety of Sire City.

"Dabbitay is cruel,
When he finds he can not enter the city,
He may strike the tomb.
He is going to use vicious means,
To destroy the tomb of our ancestor.
I am going to guard it myself.
I will capture this black-hearted foe alive. "

Kenainym ordered Aoronbay,
Let him lead the horse.
He made someone prepare the saddle,
And all weapons and armor.
He set out in stealth,
With no one noticing.

Kenainym went out of the backyard,
He worried about being found by Dabbitay:
"If he recognizes the hoof print of Kankura,
He will escape recklessly,
So I am going to take that remote route."
He went towards hills on his horse,
He went through Alemabrak[①] and Sonkartash[②],
He climbed over the hills.

At the tomb black mane wolf Kenainym dismounted,
He walked with the bridle in his hand.
He watched in a nook,
Waiting for the figure of Dabbitay.

1. Alemabrak: In Kirgiz language, name of a place, it means apple spring.
2. Sonkartash: In Kirgiz language, name of a place, it means the rock of eagles.

In evil intentions,
Dabbitay rode an ox with his body bent.
He disguised to deceive the public,
There were a couple of cows around him.
He went on the marsh unhurriedly,
However, he kept watching the road to Sire City.

He saw Essim suddenly,
Ominous feeling welled up in his mind,
He was overcome by various worries:
"I met this one just now,
He even passed by me.

"Did he see through my secret,
So he scouts me around there?
Maybe when I enter the city,
They will surround and catch me?"

Dabbitay stopped his step,
He looked around with his vigilant eyes.
This time he found youth Kokum,
Now he knew it clearly.
Several other figures,
Also appeared in his eyes.

Essim, Kokum and Atakay,
The three of them were on a side;
Tirdikbay, Kuquek and Satikay,
They were on the other side.

Sharp-sighted falcons were on their hands,
Hounds were running after them.
They let falcons hunt ducks, waterfowls and chukars,
They let hounds hunt rabbits, wolverine and foxes.
If they found deer or roe,
They would siege it with bows.
They were in spirits,

Their figures were flickering on the hills.

Dabbitay thought:
"Kirgiz people were everywhere,
No one knows what they are thinking.
These cunning Brute bastards,
Maybe they have recognized me.
They pretend to hunt,
Actually they are scouting me.

"I saw two of them before,
Now they have six people.
They always observe scapulas,
They can identify footprints of strangers.
They use stones and candles to divine,
They used to find enemies with these skills.

"I should not enter their city,
I should change my direction to the tomb of Manas.
They thought I was going to make trouble in the city.
So they must organize tight defences there.
At this point they will ignore other places,
They may ignore the defense of the tomb.

"Let Kenainym stay in the city,
Let them keep the gate.
At the time of twilight,
I will go to the tomb."

Dabbitay planned in his mind,
Then he jumped into a thick reed beach,
Being out of their sight.

He nailed the iron palm to the horse again,
Abandoned the ox and cows,
Then disguised his horse with hide.
In order to block his face,

He covered his helmet with a fur hat.

He put his hammer on the saddle,
Then put the sword back into the scabbard.
He wrapped the sheep-like hammerhead,
It was his weapon to destroy the tomb.
He rode through a thick forest then,
Towards the direction of tomb.

At different places,
He killed the six scouts.
He crossed the Karabrachatcal River,
Rushed to the tomb.
When he arrived at the tomb of Manas,
It was nightfall.

The beast who was cursed by the God.
Hatred welled up in his mind.
But his steed dare not go forward,
It stopped to look around.
Suddenly it found the hoof prints of Kankura,
It was too scared to cross it,
Even shaking in fear.

Dabbitay cursed his steed,
He did not know what had happened.
Immediately he dismounted his steed,
Then he was astonished:

At the place stamped by Kankura,
A set of pot-like prints was left.
On the green flat grassland,
Pan-like circle of grass roots were dug out.
He looked at the soft ground,
There were hearth-like holes,
It spread to the direction of tomb.

Dabbitay was enlightened suddenly,
Kenainym was more wise than himself:
"He sent people to track me,
At the same time he made people protect Sire City.
However, he had seen through my plan,
So he has already come to the tomb to wait me.

"I can not turn and flee,
I have to fight against him.
Whether I escape or stay here,
A fierce battle is inevitable."

It was time to fight a decisive battle,
Dabbitay spat at his palms,
He took out the sheep-like hammer,
Carried it on the shoulder.

He rushed up to the tomb,
Wanted to smash the gate of tomb.
He thought even he was killed by Kenainym,
The reputation of smashing the tomb would be left in the world.

He was in rage,
His face was grim,
It looked as if his eyes were jetting flame.
Rapidly he rushed to the gate of tomb,
Lifted his hammer.

At this time,
Kenainym was diagonally across Dabbitay,
He was in righteous indignation,
His anger was burning.
Like an arrow,
He came up to Dabbitay.
He did not stab with the spear,
He did not chop with the battleax either.
He grasped the belt of Dabbitay tightly,

Lifted him from the bay horse,
He lifted him over head like catching a bird,
Rode his steed towards Sire City.

On the halfway,
Kenainym met a strange woman,
She was the wife of Autor Mujun.
Mujun stopped Kenainym and complained:

"Kenainym,
You are a giant hero,
I am Autor's wife,
I am chasing this merciless sinner.
He is a malicious guy,
I disturb you for chasing him.

"He falsely claimed Autor had been to India,
He was going to escort us there.
During the six-day trip,
He said he would rape one of us everyday.

"He was going to loot our treasures,
For his profligacy in India.
He said he would marry Kelingel as wife,
Then cut off the heads of the other five.

"Even though I am a woman,
I struggled against him at all risks.
Five sisters beside me,
All worked together to support me.
This treacherous guy was going to be defeated.
So he fled at night.

"I was anxious,
So I ran after him on my horse,
I decided to kill him first,
Then report you the news.

"My Khan Kenainym,
I saw the people sent by you,
In some place,
I also saw you were on your steed Kankura,
You were rushing towards the tomb.
Heroism was on your face,
You looked majestic.

"I am waiting on your way back,
I have a request to ask you now.
Please give me this slave.
I am going to take him back to my hometown and punish him.

"I will lead my five sisters to revenge,
We will cut him into pieces,
Then suck up his bone marrow!"

Whether her words were true or not,
Kenainym did not doubt it,
He passed Dabbitay to Mujun.

Too impatient to wait,
Mujun Kdon[1] bound Dabbitay's limbs,
Just like treating a beast,
She fastened him on the bay horse tightly.
She cut off the tongue of Dabbitay as well,
In order to avoid his crying.

She took him to Autor's hometown,
Showed him before all fellows.
She gathered her five sisters,
Then told what they experienced to fellows.

Without any request,

1 Kdon: In Kirgiz language, it means the wife of a khan.

Kenainym passed Dabbitay to them.
Hearing that,
All of the people there were amazed.

The heroine Mrs. Mujun,
Discussed with Kelingel and others,
Six women acted together.
They stamped the body of Dabbitay,
Then removed his skin with a sharp knife.

They unlinked his every joints,
Chopped off his arms and legs in six days,
Then they disassembled his body in one day,
Finally tore up his viscera.
Dabbitay used to stir up the world,
But now he died in the hands of women.

I know some stories,
And I will tell all of these to Kirgiz.
My name is Jusurp Mamay,
I love my fellows and my homeland.
Singing heroic epic Manas,
It is the traditional custom of my family.

Postscript

The Chinese version of Kirgiz heroic epic Kenainym (Volume one and two), Book Four of Manas, was translated based on the version republished by Xinjiang People's Publishing House in 2004, written in Kirgiz language.

The first eight chapters of Volume one, Kenainym were translated by Turdi Mehmettursun. The last chapter of Volume one and Volume two were translated by Zhumak Kader. A team organized by Zhumak Kader made a Kirgiz-Chinese check on the translation script, and then handed it over to Minjie Guo, Ruizhou Li and Jihong He to collate and edit. The language style and quality were quite different among translators, which increased great difficulty to complete this task. Jihong He, Ruizhou Li and Minjie Guo spent great time and effort in scrutinizing and polishing the translation script word by word. To ensure that the Chinese version is faithful to the original, Zhumak Kader reviewed it once again.

We take online method to get review and opinions of researchers and experts for this translation script. People who gave reviewing opinions are as follows. Zhenhua Hu, professor of Minzu University of China; Ying Lang, researcher of Chinese Academy of Social Sciences; Adili Jumaturdi, researcher of Chinese Academy of Social Sciences; Zhanzhu Wu, researcher of Heilongjiang Institute of Nationalities; Hongchao Zhang, former vice chairman of Xinjiang Federation of Social Sciences, translator and editor; Yingfu Luo, former vice chairman of Xinjiang Federation of Literary and Artistic Circles(XJFLA); Xiongfu Ma, vice chairman of XJFLA; chairman of the Xinjiang Folk Literature Association and editor; Guodong Zhao, professor of XinJiang University of Finance & Economics; Wurhaliqia Hederby, adviser of Manas Chinese Translation Committee. Specifically, professor Zhenhua Hu responsibly sent eight detailed feedbacks. Experts and researchers participated in the review gave specific revise opinions and considered the translation was in high quality and faithfully reflected the heroic epic style.

After receiving opinions, Zhumak Kader discussed with relevant experts and researchers and summarized and classified these feedbacks in Urumqi. Accroding to reviewing opinions from experts, Jihong He revised and embellished the rhetoric in translation to strengthen the rhythm and charm of the epic. He also made names of people and places to be consistent with first three books, and adjusted new names according to the advice from professor Zhenghua Hu that phonetic features of the Kirgiz languages should be considered. In addition, he added some annotations properly. Zhumak Kader read over the final script and handed it over to the publishing house.

Party Committee and Government of Kizilsu Kirgiz Autonomous Prefecture highly valued the Chinese translation and publishing of Manas. Officials debriefed regularly, guided the translation and solved specific difficulties during the work.

Xinjiang Culture Department and Intangible Cultural Heritage Office focus on the Chinese version of Manas as a protection of intangible cultural heritage, and provide it with substantial support.

XJFLA cares about the Chinese translation and publishing of Manas consistently, and cooperates with the work actively.

On the occasion of the publication of this book, we express our sincere appreciation to the people participated in translating, collating and publishing the work of Manas, and to the Party leaders and experts who devoted their time to Manas.

图书在版编目（CIP）数据

中国柯尔克孜族英雄史诗. 玛纳斯. 第四部, 凯耐尼木: 1—2卷: 英文 / 居素普·玛玛依演唱; 《玛纳斯》汉译工作委员会编译; 马铃欢, 林潇, 格里高利·B. 米克斯译. —乌鲁木齐: 新疆人民出版社, 2019.12
ISBN 978-7-228-18712-6

Ⅰ. ①中… Ⅱ. ①居… ②玛… ③马… ④林… ⑤格… Ⅲ. ①柯尔克孜族—英雄史诗—中国—英文 Ⅳ. ① I222.7

中国版本图书馆 CIP 数据核字（2020）第 007944 号

译本依据新疆人民出版社 2004 年出版的《玛纳斯》柯尔克孜文版居素普·玛玛依演唱记录校勘本翻译

项目统筹：林　辉　孙祁娟
责任编辑：晁　清
整体设计：刘堪海
封面绘图：邹振明

中国柯尔克孜族英雄史诗·玛纳斯
第四部　凯耐尼木（1—2卷）

居素普·玛玛依　演唱
《玛纳斯》汉译工作委员会　编译
马铃欢　林潇　格里高利·B. 米克斯　翻译

出版发行　新疆人民出版总社
　　新疆人民出版社
地　　址　乌鲁木齐市解放南路 348 号
邮　　编　830001
电　　话　（0991）2837939
制　　版　乌鲁木齐彤加意图文设计有限公司
印　　刷　北京富诚彩色印刷有限公司
开　　本　787mm × 1092mm　1/16
印　　张　67.5
版　　次　2020 年 9 月第 1 版
印　　次　2020 年 9 月第 1 次印刷
定　　价　150.00 元

版权所有　违者必究